Literary.

The Century's Life of Napoleon has caught the popular fancy in a most surprising way, and copies of the magazine have been hard to get unless purchased within a few days of issue. "With each installment," says the Critic of March 2, "the value and thoroughness of the work becomes more manifest." The present revival of interest in Napoleon has been only a lucky coincidence for The Century, as Professor Sloan's history was projected, and its publication in 1895 decided upon, long before there was, even in France, any unusual interest in the character of Bonaparte.

The Forum for April will contain an article by John Beach McMaster, the eminent American historian, entitled "Is Sound Finance Possible under Popular Government" He quotes instructive precedents to show that the people may in the long run always be trusted.

The illustrations for the romance entitled "Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," the first installment of which will be given in the April number of Harper's Magazine, are by F. V. Du Mond.

Rev. R. B. Collier Resigns.

Broadway Baptist church, Baltimore, Md., in receiving the resignation of Rev. R. B. Collier, pastor, unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, our pastor has tendered his resignation to take effect April 15th proximo: we desire to say, though the sundering of human ties, which have so long united us, are attended with keen regret, we recall many pleasant reminiscences of pastor and people. We have reason to acknowledge the blessings which the Lord has bestowed upon the labors of our pastor, and that so many souls have been led to accept Christ during his pastorate.

Resolved, That we bear testimony to his faithful preaching of the truth, his kind and affectionate visitation to the sick, and to his zeal and earnestness in every Christian work.

And we will pray that God will bless our beloved pastor in all his future labors and make him more abundantly successful in winning souls to Christ. He leaves us as a church in a good spiritual condition with the prayers of every one that his efforts may be crowned with yet greater success.

The Largest in the World

How many people in Chicago know that with all her other great industries there is also found here the largest soap and washing powder business in the world. The N. K. Fairbank Company, with their factories in Chicago, St. Louis and Guttenburg, being, without doubt, the largest producers of soap products in the United States. This great business is not of mushroom growth but the result of persistent effort, broad business methods and intelligent and discriminating advertising.

Announcement is now made that The N. K. Fairbank Company are about to take another step forward to turn another page in their history of progress by introducing another new soap. This will shortly be advertised in a most striking and original manner.

For twenty five years this company was likewise the leading lard producer of the world, and abandoned lard merely because a new world was to be conquered. With keen business perception they saw in cotton seed oil the basis for a still larger business in a more healthful, more economical and in every way more desirable food product than lard. When this new product was perfected and their plans carefully arranged, they turned their attention from the lard business, and with a courage born of the confidence that they had produced what the world had so long demanded, viz, a substitute for lard, they launched "Cottolene." The quick acceptance by the public of this really meritorious article attracted the attention of the ever-ready imitator and the market was soon flooded with imitations, sailing under colors of all descriptions. But Cottolene was first in the heart of the people and those who use it are not at all likely to go back to lard or accept an imitation.

The N. K. Fairbank Company attribute their success to the merit of the articles they produce; to the fact that their products are staple necessities of life, not luxuries, and to careful, thoughtful, persistent newspaper advertising, which they continue through all seasons, in hard times and in good. Surely this is a far wiser plan than the occasionally blast of trumpets and spasmodic efforts often characteristic of others.

In the advertising branch of the business they are represented by the well known firm of N. W. Ayer & Son of Philadelphia, who purchase all their advertising space.

A Cure For Deafness.

Those afflicted with deafness, the result of catarrh, will be gratified to learn that many marvelous cures of this affliction are being effected by the use of a new scientific invention which medicates with perfect safety the cavities of the internal ear. Persons who have been deaf for many years are reported to have had their hearing restored within a few minutes and the cures are permanent. The treatment is being introduced by Dr J. H. Moore, a competent and liable physician of Cincinnatti, O., who is for a short time sending medicines for three months treatment free to a limited number, in order to establish the wonderful power of the treatment.

Tributes of Respect.

The following are the resolutions of respect of Flat River Union Sunday-school on the death of Mrs. R. L. Waller:—

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Allwise Father to remove from our midst on Jan. 23d, 1895, our sister Rebecca L. Waller, and while to us the death of such a friend and faithful child of God is an unseen problem, yet believing that our Heavenly Father knows best, we bow submissively to his will.

Resolved 1. That in her death our church loses a faithful member, and our Sunday-school an active worker.

Resolved 2. That we extend to the husband and tender little children, and also the aged parents, and brothers and sisters, our heartfelt sympathy, and commend them to the God of all grace, who is the only comfort in the hour of affliction.

Resolved 3. That a copy of this be inscribed upon the record book of the Sunday-school; that it be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication, and also to the family of our deceased sister.

The Home Circle.

One at a Time.

One step at a time, and that well placed,
We reach the grandest height;
One stroke at a time, earth's hidden stores
Will slowly come to light;
One seed at a time, and the forest grows;
One drop at a time, and the river flows
Into the boundless sea.

One word at a time, and the greatest book
Is written and is read;
One stone at a time a palace rears
Aloft its stately head.
One blow at a time, and the tree's cleft through,
And a city will stand where the forest grew
A few short years before.

One foe at a time, and he subdued,
And the conflict will be won;
One grain at a time, and the sands of life
Will slowly all be run.
One minute, another, the hours fly;
One day at a time, and our lives speed by
Into eternity.

One grain of knowledge, and that well stored,
Another, and more on them;
And as time rolls on your mind will shine
With many a garnered gem
Of thought and wisdom. And time will tell,
"One thing at a time, and that done well,"
Is wisdom's proven rule.

Earning a Living.

I have selected two women to mention as examples that may be an encouragement to some who will read of their efforts. They are young women who have set about to find their places in the battle of life.

The first, a delicate, fragile-looking girl, determined, after her father had met with heavy losses, that she would not be burden to him. Borrowing the necessary sum, she went to a city near her home, and took a thorough course in shorthand. As soon as she had finished, being highly recommended because of the quality of her work, she secured a position in a law office. At first her salary was not large, but it was gradually increased. Of course, it was hard work, for this girl had been used to pleasure and the various good things of life, and these had to be relinquished to a great extent. But at the start she had recognized this and determined to make no moan over her lost gaieties. Lately she received an offer of over $100 a month, as court stenographer in a new State. Has her perseverance paid?

The next is a bright, handsome young woman, who felt that she must earn her own living. Her relatives and friends held up their hands in dismay when she announced that she was going to learn printing. "Why not teach school," they chorused; "that is by far more ladylike." Assuming that teaching was not her vocation, she entered the printing office and stayed there until she became a rapid and accurate typesetter. Offered a course in stenography and typewriting, she left the printing office better prepared for her future work by her experience there. To day she is stenographer to a railroad official, commanding a good salary.

It not necessary to be poor and friendless before taking up some special work or study. Do it, girls, whether you are in need or can write your check for thousands. Do it, for there are many ups and downs in life, and fickle Fortune may turn on you a frowning instead of a smiling face. Then what you have learned will help you to keep the wolf from the door.

Work, and do it well; and, above all, never be ashamed of honest labor, for no one who is ashamed of honest work will ever make much of a success.—Caroline S Valentine.

The Backward Child.

The backward child may indeed be deficient in application, not in capacity. Should this be so, arouse him, not by a hail-storm of nagging or a down pour of fault finding, but by a system of rewards lovingly adapted to his disposition and character. Suffer no discouragement to creep into your own heart concerning him, and do not allow him or her to feel that there is reason for any doubt about the reaching the top of the ladder in due season. The top, mind, not the middle rounds; any one can reach these. Set a definite aim before your child, cultivate a high and noble ideal, but be willing to climb slowly. Haste is at the root of many a failure, haste and lack of thoroughness as one goes on.

With a tender regret for lost opportunities, who has not sometimes seen a mature woman timid, self conscious, handicapped from youth to gray hairs simply because she was a "backward" child once, and therefore was snubbed and ridiculed, and pushed into the background, while her sisters and brothers bore off the honors and were the objects of universal estimation! A wrong for life was done to the little daughter, and her daughter may perhaps suffer from the same old mistake, for wrongs are far reaching. Be pitiful and just to the backward child in your home.—Margaret E. Sangster.

"There was a time," said John B. Finch "when the temperance movement was largely the struggle of a few poor victims of the traffic to free themselves. That day has passed; the reform has become a part of the religious faith of this nation, and in spite of all the sophistries and the work of the drunkard makers and their aiders and abettors, the day is not far distant when the State will no sooner license a man to carry on a business to destroy the loved ones of the women of the land, than it will license a man to steal the jewels from their jewel-cases."

A Cry in the Night

A Mother Wakes to Find Her Little One Strangling.

SHE SAVES ITS LIFE BY THE PROMPT USE OF

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

The following is but one of many testimonials, showing the great value of this emergency medicine: "One of my children had Croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it strangling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicines given, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously awaited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and, in a short time, she was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved her life."—C. J. WOOLDRIDGE, Wortham, Tex.

Prompt to Act, Sure to Cure

Turn the Spigot.

The lady of the house, in one of our large city homes, was suddenly startled by the shrieks of her Irish servant in the kitchen. Hastening to her relief, she found the water pouring out from the pipes and flooding the floor, while Bridget was doing her level best to arrest its ravages by dipping up the overflowing current in a bucket and dashing it out of the window. But her efforts were of little avail. Doing her very best, as she was, the waters were gaining upon her and threatening to submerge the kitchen and destroy its contents, perhaps including Biddy herself. Hence her terrible shrieks for help. Her mistress, taking in the situation at a glance, lifted her skirts, dashed through the rising waters, and turned the spigot, and the waters ceased to flow. It was an easy thing to do. It was a natural thing to do. It was the only effectual thing to do. When it was done the danger was past. Bridget ceased to shriek, and the household was at peace, which things are an allegory.

The overflowing stream of the still and the brewery is surging through the land. Its waters are submerging and destroying ten thousand homes. They are threatening the ruin of precious interests. The Christian people are the Bridgets, laboring and striving to abate the waters in their tin-buckets of moral suasion, regulation, restriction, tax, etc. And in the presence of its increasing flow and its threatening aspect they are shrieking at the very top of their voices, in a kind of despairing cry, for help. Oh, where is the good sensible house wife who will turn the spigot! Poor Biddies! what a pitiable, and if it were not so full of misery and death, what a laughable exhibit we are making of ourselves. Is it not possible for the Christian men of this land to see that there is but one way to stop these damaging waters? The saloon is the spigot, out of which they flow. Turn the spigot down and the overflow ceases.—Statesman.

Object of Criticism

The object of all criticism is not to criticise, but to understand. More than this. As you will find it more wholesome in life, and more salutary to your own characters, to study the virtues than the defects of your friends, so in literature it seems to me wiser to look for an author's strong points than his weak ones, and to consider that every man, as the French say, is liable to have the defects of his qualities. Above all, criticism is useful in inducing a judicial habit of mind, and teaching us to keep our intellectual tempers. When Mr. Matthew Arnold charges Shakespeare with exaggeration, it shall not set me in a passion, but put me upon honest inquiry rather to find out whether the fault is in the greatest of poets or in one of the subtlest of critics. My duty is to discover exactly what he means, and this again helps me to a knowledge of his own limitations as a critic. I think I see that his love of French neatness has carried him too far, and that he applies a test too exclusively intellectual. I mean by this that we must, as Shakespeare himself says, "Play with our fancies and believe we see."—James Russell Lowell, in Century;

HON. JOHN C. SCARBOROUGH, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, made sensible suggestions in his biennial report to the Governor: First, that there be a levy of more taxes for the free schools. It costs $2,500 a day to maintain the free schools in North Carolina. Last year they were kept open thirteen weeks on an average; this is sixteen days less than four months—the length of time the Constitution commands that they be kept. The reason is this: the amount of appropriations to a number of institutions and departments, support of which is not required by the Constitution, runs up so high that the constitutional limit of taxation is reached when the levy of taxes for the schools is sufficient only to maintain them thirteen weeks. $200,000 is needed. Just about that amount will be drawn from the State Treasury the next two years for higher education, not to mention the appropriations which will go to the Agricultural Department (with its troop of typical office holders), the geological survey and other aggregations of offices that are not provided for in the Constitution.

It was recommended also that the law be so changed as to make it easier to have an election in each township, city or town on the question of local taxes for schools, and that the maximum rate of local taxation be doubled. This is clearly desirable, since it provides for local option as to public education.

Here is where higher education comes in again. When Prest. McIver was holding institutes and electioneering all over the State, he was glad enough to have $4 000 appropriated for Teachers' Institute work; when, as the result of his zealous electioneering, he became president of the Normal and Industrial School, he worked successfully to have the appropriation taken away from the Teachers' Institute and given to the Normal and Industrial. This also carried Peabody funds with it. It was recommended in the report before us that provision be made for holding an institute in every county; for the instruction of teachers, however, and not for political nest-feathering. The present lack of institutes (only a few are held in a desultory way in the summer months) is chargeable to the Normal and Industrial School.

The Legislature left the public schools in a bad way. The levy was increased, but only slightly, and assessments, every one knows, will be greatly reduced. A costly change of books was made probable, which we are not prepared to say ought or ought not to have been done, since we have not examined the books. None of the Superintendent's suggestions were heeded. The system was put back where it was prior to 1891. Appropriations for Teachers' Institutes were forbidden. There is no one to locally organize the teachers or supervise their work; there is reason to fear that our public schools will fall into the hands of incompetents.

To those who can make anything out of figures, the following will be interesting: In the year ending June 30, 1893, $751,608 11 was received by the county treasurers for school purposes, Wake county collecting $35,610 63, Yancey $1,805 77. Of the total amount, $71,218 14 was from liquor licenses. In the year ending June 30, 1894, $777,079.39 was received, Wake contributing $37,184 67, Yancey $1,645 91; $33,613 94 being liquor taxes. Most of the total amount was raised from poll and property taxation; only a few counties levy special local taxes. In the year ending June 30, 1893, $790,320 29 was paid out for the free schools, $454,639.95 being expended for schools for whites, $317,468 46 for negroes, the balance jointly, for county superintendents, etc

In the year ending June 30, 1894, $783 405 09 was expended, $455,949 47 for whites, $314,844.54 for negroes, the balance jointly. In 1894 there were 196 614 white male children of school age (between six and twenty-one years old) in the State, 186,737 white females, total 389,709; of colored children there were 103,614 males, 101,699 females, total 213,191; grand total, 601,900. There were enrolled 235,486 whites; colored, 123,899. The average attendance of whites was 149,046, of colored 71,246. Not many more than half our children are in our schools, the proportion of whites being slightly greater than that of colored. One dollar and thirty cents is expended for the public schooling of every child in the State, white or colored, rich or poor. At the Normal and Industrial School $40 or more is expended by the State for each girl there; at the University, $50 is expended for each boy there. And many school districts in North Carolina are yet without a school! In 1894, of 5,123 white school districts in the State, schools were kept in 4,811; of 2,424 colored, schools were kept in 2,296.

Value of school property for whites, $817,148 08; for colored, $301 149 80. The State University alone owns $600,000. Average salary of male school teachers for whites, $25 53: female, $23 08; of colored male, $23 08: female, $19 27. Number of school houses, for whites, 4,356; for colored, 2,010

The white people of the State pay school taxes to the amount of $473 823 10; the colored people, $69 914 19. The opinion obtains in the North that the whites are opposed to the education of the negroes: these figures speak eloquently to the contrary.

There is nothing in public affairs that so concerns us as the education of the 601,900 children of the State; and there is nothing of more importance to every patriotic citizen. Statistics are likely to tire one, but when they show the condition of the chief means of good citizenship, they should be studied attentively.

AS A solely religious organization, a Young Men's Christian Association is uncalled for; and when one assumes to do the work of a church, it must be placed in the catalog with other creatures of vanity and vexation of spirit which are kept up for the salary that their keepers get. But there is room for Y. M. C. A.'s here and there, that is, of course, for a Y. M. C A which is of some account. The trouble with people in Raleigh is, they have never seen one worth having. Here they have singing and pious speech-making at stated intervals, and this is well enough in its way; but we have this, more attractive and more sensible in the churches The Y. M. C. A cannot hope to flourish in an occupied field. Not that there should not be religious features, but that there should be a great deal more. In Charlotte, for instance, they have a first class reading room, an intelligently conducted gymnasium, convenient bathing facilities, and a good lecture course, not to mention the number of innocent but instructive diversions. The Charlotte Association would do good if never a religious service were held in its building; it would lead men naturally to think of higher things and thank God, as the source of such abundant goodness. It is natural that there are earnest and fruitful religious services in the Charlotte Association. It is natural also that the grim aspect and doleful sounds which meet the passer-by in Raleigh do not keep our Y. M. C. A. out of debt.

The Raleigh Association is badly in debt. This is not the first time. It has appealed to the people to snatch it from ruin several times, and as often has it fallen back. N. one wonders that even the State Y. M. C. A. Convention has not stirred the people sufficiently to get a response.

There are young men in Raleigh to whom an Association providing wholesome instruction and diversions under Christian influences would be a boon. Such an organization supplements the moral influence of churches, in that it provides pleasant means of occupation at any time in the week, saving men from saloons or clubs, and offering them reading, valuable lectures and other opportunities for mental or physical diversion. But a Y. M. C. A. that undertakes to keep up the salaries of several men, with religious appearances and the game of tiddle de winks, is bound to run into debt.

IT IS not often that a newspaper gets opportunity to present such an article as that on "Monazite" in this issue. In the western part of our State, particularly Cleveland county, about $100,000 (reports vary from $50,000 to $100,000) worth of the mineral that bears this name has been sold in the last few months; and it is believed that this is only the beginning. It is wonderful to think about—this substance so long looked upon as of no more value than sand, yielding so much money to those who have despised it. It is more wonderful to think that ignorance, high and low, of the value of the mineral is so extensive that we exhausted a good reference library in a fruitless effort to learn enough to write an editorial about it. So that the article by Mr. Hufham contains information that cannot easily be gotten. By residence in the monazite section he has obtained a general knowledge of the subject, and he also had advantage of the excellent facilities at Wake Forest for original scientific investigation.

The Welsbach burner, in the making of which the monazite is used, is a late invention. And it is a very wonderful one. Although it burns gas it produces a light as brilliant as an incandescent (electric) light, and softer and steadier than any we have ever seen. More wonderful still, it reduces the consumption of gas one half! The factories are said to be five weeks behind orders for these burners, and the demand is increasing faster than the supply. So our western friends can count on it, there will be a live market for their sand a long time yet.

Young People's Unions in Our Country Churches.

BY REV. R. VAN DEVENTER.

I beg pardon for presuming to write on this subject. I may even dare, however, to say a few things as I see them through the eyes of my brethren who have so kindly given me their views.

I find there is a wide difference of opinion. All see difficulties in the way of having Young People's Societies in our country churches. Some think they are too many and great to be overcome; others see no no reason "why they may not be in country as well as in town churches"

"I am under the conviction that not more than half of our church members, and only a very few unsaved persons, are touched by our Sunday schools. The report taken from the last Associational Minutes will give us the situation.

The Flat River Association in 1893 had 3 983 members, and 1,392 Sunday-school scholars. The Liberty Association had 2 363 members, and 1,301 Sunday school scholars. The Little River Association reported 2 106 church members, and 844 Sunday school scholars. The Tar River Association reported last year 6,795 church members, and 3 399 Sunday school scholars. The Chowan Association reported 7,675 church members, and 3,646 Sunday school scholars. The Mt. Zion Association reported 4 854 church members, and 2,404 Sunday school scholars.

I suppose these are as good Associations as we have in the State, and others are as good as these. It does appear that our present methods are not meeting the demands, and that the churches should awake to the situation. If there is a demand for increased activity in town, there is greater in our country churches, where the Sunday schools, according to the reports, are held ten, nine, six or three months in the year. If the town and city churches have a problem, I believe there is the problem of the country church, too

I find that the brethren realize the necessity of organization in the churches, but do not see that it is best to organize them in classes. The objection, as I see it through their thoughts, is not to the end, but to the means to the end. They do not object to loyalty to Christ and the church, to culture for service, but to the "manner and form," which is only a matter of taste, and can be regulated by each church. There seems to be something in the word society that puts many people in a state of hostility, and they do not see the Young People a part of the church, under the direction of the church, doing some of the work of the church by the consent of the church. Cultured people say it is "bad form" to make the toilet of a lady or gentleman conspicuous by criticism; that it is not the work of the artist that makes the man or woman, but the heart, the life that throbs beneath the garment. May we not say it is unjust criticism to make banners, salutes, yells, "windy nonsense," &c., to constitute the young people's movement, when in fact it is loyalty to Christ, service, higher Christian life. The banners, salutes, and marchings, are only matters of taste, and do not destroy or cover up the end in view in the movement. Let us take the lines—

> "Let us gather up the sunbeams
> Lying all around our path,
> Let us keep the wheat and roses,
> Casting out the thorns and chaff."

The drapery, the clothing, is beautiful. We see sunbeams and golden wheat, and inhale the fragrance of roses, but we do not get the thought by that process. We would be styled bad readers if we emphasized these, and covered up the writer's meaning, when the thought is in just three words—up, keep, and out.

I feel that many are hiding the meaning of this uprising of the young Christians, by holding up, sometimes to ridicule, the things that are by them counted objectionable.

FEW MEETINGS.

Several brethren say that infrequency of meetings in our country churches, is another difficulty. I should say that this objection is an argument for a Y. P. Union, that there might be meetings oftener. There are some weaknesses in our country as well as many in our town churches. I recognize that the "country churches by their loss are contributing to the vigor of our town churches," and I have learned that sometimes the town churches have had some trouble in adjusting the country brother and sister to the new order. There is not that loyalty to the church in the member raised in the country which you will generally find in the member raised in town. I believe it is due to infrequency of meetings in the church to which he belongs, and the habit of "running, riding all over the land," visiting other churches. One Sunday to his church and three Sundays to some other church, or stay at home. Let every church call together its young people, and old, if they will, at least once a month, to study doctrine, missions, and to cultivate the spiritual side of their being, and that will open the way to a generation of active, informed, loyal Baptists.

GREAT DISTANCE.

The members live too great a distance from the church, I am told by some brethren. I am also told by a most successful preacher who spent many years in country churches that the "young folk run, ride all over the country Sundays." They could be induced to go to a Y. P. Union—couldn't they? I spent one winter and spring in the country twelve miles from a Baptist church. It was twelve miles from a Good Templars lodge, too. I think every week the young people came together at that place, at a distance of twelve miles and more. I did not find that distance was an obstacle insurmountable, when Sunday afternoon came, to the young people's visiting. If the horses were too tired in the spring to be driven, the young men and women were not too tired to walk. If young people can find a way when it is a question of pleasure, they are noble enough and good enough, if Christians, to find a way when it is a question of duty. Give them a chance.

I have mentioned some of the objections as seen by the pastor in the country, who has often three or four times more people under his care than the pastor in town, and who has a tremendous obligation on him. I tried to get brethren who lived in the country to write. I could not, and this is my excuse for having tried. I do not say the brethren who do not see as I, will be sorry, if they do not get out of the way they will be run over, and might get hurt; if they do not jump on this train crowded with young life, and impelled by the consecrated enthusiasm of youth eager to do something for Jesus, they will be left; but I do say, brethren, let us encourage the young to live nobly, work faithfully, and to make the best of the life God has given them. I believe a good way to do this is through a Young People's Union. What do you think?

North Carolina and the Seminary—No. 2.

BY REV. B. W. SPILMAN.

I have not the means at hand to study this question except for the two years that I was at the Seminary, namely, '92-'94. During these years twenty students registered from North Carolina Of this number, seven are yet in the Seminary. Of the thirteen who have settled, six returned to North Carolina, and seven have located elsewhere. Of the six who returned, two returned to their pastorates, and four of us returned "on our own hook." Not one of the thirteen received a call to return to North Carolina.

Of the twenty North Carolina students, thirteen had attended Wake Forest. Of this number, five are in the Seminary and eight have located. Of this eight, I alone am in North Carolina. It seems, then, that instead of the chances being four to one, they are seven to one against a Wake Forest College man returning to North Carolina from the Seminary. Bialock, T., Crocker, Corpening, Gilmore, Kendrick, J., Royall and Thompson, with one exception every one of them being Wake Forest graduates and students at the Seminary two years or more, have located in China, Kentucky, Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia within the last two years. Is it not poor economy for our Baptist churches to spend thousands of dollars educating preachers for other States?

But why do not our students return? Is it the fault of the churches or the students? I think it a safe estimate that eighty per cent. of our students (except missionaries) locating out of North Carolina do so not alone from choice, but because no call comes from North Carolina. Except in numbers, North Carolina students take as high a stand as students from any State in the Union. If anybody challenges this statement, I will prove it.

From the standpoint of the student, I will examine some of the influences at work to cause our students to locate out of the State.

1. Many go as missionaries. I have before me the Seminary Catalogue for '87-'88 There were seven North Carolinians. There were five Wake Forest students, four of whom were graduates. The four graduates are not in North Carolina, but three of them are missionaries. So also three of the seven who left within the last two years are in China.

2. Many receive no call. A student stays from three to six years at College, and from one to four in the Seminary. Many of them are in debt. One's school days draw to a close. He believes it due himself, his creditors, his denomination which has largely educated him, and his duty to God to enter the work as soon as his preparation is ended.

The North Carolina Students' Association of the Seminary tries every spring to get our men back into the State. Every man's name is taken. Those names are sent by the Secretary to some of the pastors in the State. An article is published in every Baptist newspaper in North Carolina, calling attention to our students who are going to leave the Seminary. Many readers of the RECORDER may remember the article last spring by Rev. W. R. Cullom. With many vacant pulpits in the State and many men ready to return to them, silence reigns supreme and no call comes. I know one man who offered to preach for $300 for the first year if he could only secure a field in North Carolina. I have in my possession now a letter from a Seminary student received since I have been in Kinston saying that he is willing to go into the swamps of North Carolina at $300 to get back to the State. He is a Wake Forest man. Under conditions like that, what is a man to do when he receives a call elsewhere? Refuse it and come to North Carolina and sit down for several months and run the risk, as Bro. Gilmore did, of having to leave the State after all? Very few are going to do it. Hence, we lose our students.

3. But perhaps they do not wish to return to their native State. During my two years at the Seminary, every one of our students to whom I spoke of the matter, said that he wished to return to North Carolina. I cannot speak for those who were there before my student days, and I will let those now at the Seminary speak for themselves. Of each one the question was asked, "Do you wish to locate in North Carolina?" In my next I will let them speak.

Religious Adventure.

BY REV. N. B. JONES.

This seems to be prominently an age of adventure with the religious thinkers. It may be that these are perilous times. Most vessels have to encounter danger in crossing the great waters, but the sea-worthy ship, with a wise and experienced crew, will be safely anchored by and by.

I have recently seen from the press that one of our most brilliant young men has gone adrift; of course if the cable and anchor are broken, we can't conjecture what will finally be the result. There is a fascination about adventure, but it sometimes it costs very dearly. The old landmarks are not to be spurned; for they were placed by wise men guided by divine influence. The seal of God has always been upon them, and they bear the marks of fire and blood.

Great effort is being made to improve on the methods of Christ and his Apostles in bringing the world to a knowledge of God. It seems to me to be placing the ministry of our Lord Jesus Christ at a discount. If divine knowledge and wisdom did not set in operation the methods to reclaim a fallen world, I would like to know why? Perhaps it was left for some of our brethren who can see further into eternal things than a man could eighteen hundred years ago, even though he was the Son of God.

I believe in organization and system, but I do not believe in organizing and systematizing to death I suppose if men who are called of God would give more of their time to preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ, there would be less need for so many societies and so much cutting up of our church work. It does really seem if we do not call a halt, before long the church will be out of our vocabulary, and we will only have a society in a society.

I have been very conservative on the question of multiplying societies in our church work. I am afraid it has caused many of our young people to lose sight of the body in their admiration for the dross. I am aware that great stress is laid upon the social feature. "Behold, how good and how pleasant for brethren to dwell together in unity." Are the societies trying to rob the church of her social life, or are they trying to outstrip their mother? Are they rivals of the churches? It is a sad thought.

Brethren, let us say less about our young people, and more about our family (our church). Do not make our mother and father feel that we are drawing a line beyond which they have nothing to do but look on and see our fantastic capers.

I believe that Christ's church will meet every demand of the young and the old, and his kingdom will be rapidly advanced by the united effort of his people. We do not expect to succeed without organization, but don't keep on putting a wheel in a wheel till you cannot prove by anybody that it is a wheel.

Salisbury, March 28, 1895.

Unspotted.

The word "unspotted" is very suggestive; it means not bespattered. Keep thyself in such relation to the world as not to be spattered by it. We can thus be in the world and not of it, and so deport ourselves toward it that the purity of our religion shall not be spattered by its pollution. I have known men who were good Christians, pure in heart, but in business and social relations had become spattered. They went into business determined to be honest; but the atmosphere in which they moved, the maxims of men with whom they came in contact, so influenced them, that their very honesty was spattered by the dishonesty of others. O, how many good men have had their characters spattered by doubtful actions, by some mistake they have made, by not being thoroughly and at all times true to their convictions!—Rev. A. C. Dixon.

The greatest man is he who chooses the right with invincible resolution; who resists the worst temptations (from within and without); who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully; who is calmest in storms, and whose reliance on truth, on virtue, on God, is most unfaltering.—Channing.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1895.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

THE IDEAL PREACHER.

We name as the first qualification of an ideal minister, piety. Without this no one should undertake to preach at all; for it is no matter what graces he may possess, provided he lacks grace. The pulpit has suffered much of late from a disregard of this fundamental fact. To a fluent talker, an eloquent babbler, or a humorous clown, the modern pulpit offers many potent attractions and temptations. Churches that have not been very magnetic themselves, seek a drawing preacher; and what does he draw? He gathers about him the rabble of the community, charms them with his rattling oratory; and discarding the eternal difference between generation and regeneration, he may even seem to succeed in spiritual work, building up the membership in numbers—to unbuild which will prove the most forlorn task his successor will have to grapple with. And how does he draw? By rehearsing exciting tales and anecdotes which better suit the vender of patent medicines, and by entering into competition, as to the subject matter of his discourse, with third-rate politicians. Such preaching lowers the tone of Christianity, and does more harm than infidelity. "Godliness is profitable unto all things;" but this sort of preaching is profitable unto nothing, and is downright profanity. No man has a right to play with the cross as with a toy, and use the pulpit to vent his vagaries or gratify his ambition. No, our ideal preacher is pious; he reverences God and God's truth; you can see it in his face, hear it in his gracious speech, feel it in the warm pressure of his hand. He believes something, and he preaches tenderly what he believes. He lives near the throne—like Moses, his face shines with the divine presence. He is charged with the gospel as a telegraph wire is charged with electricity. He draws, too; but he draws men to Christ; he also repels—and multitudes will leave him just as they left his Master when he proclaimed the humbling truths of the gospel.

Our ideal preacher is practical, timely, fresh, but not sensational. He does not have to search in scientific or political mines for precious matter, but is sufficiently acquainted with God and his word to get good, wholesome fare, even heavenly manna, for his people's food. He has not much room for lecturing, either. His time is his Master's; and all of it is required to preach the gospel to dying men. The church is of more importance to him than the town hall, while he esteems it an infinitely greater honor to make men pray than to make them laugh. Whilst he is not a skyscraper, nor a crank, nor a monkey, he is, on the contrary, sober, thoughtful, well-balanced, studious; and because indwelt by the Spirit, he preaches the word from a pure heart fervently.

Besides being spiritual, our ideal preacher is intellectual. His sermon is not read. He may have notes, but not enough to impede the free expression of the message he bears. He grows earnest and eloquent as he discourses of heavenly things. He delivers his message as if he had just come, as indeed he has, from the presence of the King. Having spoken to God, he now speaks for God. His sermon is full of meat, the juice runs out. Every thought is redolent of Christ—self is crucified, the crucified Christ lives again. He talks as a man that knows Christ—as a man that loves Christ. As he speaks for God and eternity, a frivolous jest would seem a sacrilege—sensationalism, a blasphemy.

Under his preaching, the heart of the hearer glows with religious fervor, the mind yields to an abiding conviction. He presents the truth with marvellous power. Seriousness pervades the congregation. Men feel the force of divine truth. Souls from time to time are converted. The membership is trained and mellowed. They carry rich blessings home with them; they feed on solid food; they are strengthened and fitted for the trials and duties of life; for the sermon is strong, tender, spiritual. It is not an essay nor a speech, but a message from heaven to men. As a bird is not all feathers, so the sermon is not all illustrations. As well-spread wings are but means of promoting nobler flight, so well-chosen incidents are but the vehicle of profounder truth. The sermon teaches something; teaches of Christ and immortality, of duty and heaven. It is not wit, nor satire, nor jest, nor cold and meaningless platitudes, but the blessed and eternal truth of God.

In public prayer, our ideal preacher leads you to the very throne of God. He seems to be looking into Christ's face, speaking into Christ's ear. How tenderly and lovingly he pleads with the Father for his people. The Holy Spirit seems to rest so fully upon the congregation that the church appears to be none other than the house of God and the gate of heaven. Wearied souls are refreshed, and the elect have the joy of God's salvation restored unto them. He remembers in his prayer the special needs of his flock, upon whom in reverent and melting speech he invokes the divine blessing.

And lastly, our ideal preacher is a faithful pastor. He visits his flock because he loves them. He is kind and gentle, wise and considerate. He is a true man. He plays no tricks, yields to no whims, does not advertise himself, and performs his part in the sacred ministry as a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

CONCERNING Y. P. MOVEMENTS.

Recently an advocate of local, State, and inter-State or national organization of the young people would appear to trace the history of opposition to these movements, showing how that this barrier had been overcome and that concession had been made. We are glad that he reminded us of these things; for they serve a different end from that which he purposed.

"At first there was opposition to the local societies," the writer stated. Sure enough there was. There was opposition, not because of the danger in local societies themselves (for there could not be great danger with them in the churches), but in what they would lead to! We said all along that local organization would be the fore runner of genuine B. Y. P. U. A$_{e}$ism. But on being assured that the brethren who had the North Carolina part of the movement in hand would keep their hold on it, and being further assured that general organization was not desired, we did not hesitate to say that there could be nothing but good in arousing the young people to work in and with their churches. That is where we stand to day. But the brethren, where are they? Gone off, as we feared, in search of more organization, some for National, others for Southern Union, before they have fairly tested the facilities already in hand! We would not oppose Southern or National organization one moment, if we did not think it would lead to worse, would lead to estrangement from and independence of the churches.

As long as this is possible—and we quoted statements last week to show that it is probable,—we think even the leaders of the Y. P. movement in North Carolina will acknowledge that we had better first try our present local organization with a general meeting with the Convention, before we go further. It is a serious argument against the Y. P. movement, however, that the more range you give it, the more it asks, without stopping to use what it has.

We hold to this: Whatever of good there be in organization of young people can be gotten from our present arrangements in North Carolina. There is in these arrangements every virtue that can be claimed for general organization. We hold further that there is probability of injurious consequences in larger or more distinct organization, without any possibility of more good.

A Southern Union means perpetuation of sectionalism, means that the United States census agents will have to look upon the Baptists of the North and South yet another half century as separate denominations. National organization means the introduction into our Southern churches of an indifference to the the inspired writings that harbors the belief that the Bible was sufficient only for Apostolic times. Any kind of a general union is liable to breed independence of the local churches; and no argument can be produced to show that all possible organization will do more for the young people than can be as well done by what we have.

Bro. White named six reasons to support his claims for further State organization. Now let us see:

"1. The very fact of union with others will increase the interest of individual members and improve the spirit of unity in the society."

Probably Bro. White forgets that the young people entitled to membership in the societies are members of Baptist churches. For, have not our churches and church-members "union with others?" Then, if "the interest of individual members" and the spirit of unity in our churches is not what it should be, the reason cannot be laid at the door of lack of union with others.

"2. Annual meetings will promote acquaintance and fraternity," etc.

Bro. White forgets again. If the younger members can afford it, and feel themselves in need of "acquaintance and fraternity," why what is to hinder them from going to our conventions? If not as delegates to the conventions, then as on-lookers; and if not to the conventions, to the Y. P. meeting provided for in connection with the convention?

"3. It will beget a healthy denominational pride, and the realization on the part of the young people that they are factors in the spread of the gospel and Baptist principles."

Alas, alas, what a sad confession! Our young church members do not sufficiently realize that they are "factors in the spread of the gospel." If there be any such in our churches, we doubt their conversion. God knows that the soldier who enlists in the army of the Lord must realize that he binds himself to be a factor in the promotion of the gospel. Regeneration and not organization is needed, when professed children of God do not feel their responsibility.

"4. It will promote zeal in the work of the church in supporting our denominational work in missions, just as in the case of the Woman's Missionary Society."

This is not an argument; it is not a reason. It is a hope. The development of the women's societies is a very different thing from the possibilities of State organization of the young people; and entirely different from National organization of young people. There are obvious ties that naturally bind the women to the churches. But who can restrain young people (boys and girls) who begin by working without the church and under different direction, from seeking more freedom. "As the twig is bent, the tree is inclined." The women are anchored by growth and natural ties. Not so with the young people.

"5. It will encourage local societies in assisting in organization of other societies, and bring Baptist churches into closer sympathy."

Have we not a convention, associations, union meetings and boards to "bring Baptist churches into closer sympathy with each other"? If these fail, can the election of a Y. P. president, secretary and treasurer, with committees, and organic independence of the convention, succeed?

"6. Through State and Southern organization the local societies will be supplied with needed literature, Bible studies arranged, and missionary information furnished."

Bro. White began with the purpose of giving six reasons why State organization will benefit the local societies. Before he gets through, here he is with a Southern organization. Well, we told you so. Truly, not a great deal of literature can be supplied except through a Southern or National union. But we had been thinking that our Sunday-school Board at Nashville was supplying this literature at a very low rate, and very high-class matter, wherever there are young people who are able to get it. At least this is what it was instituted for. And then, too, there are the denominational papers doing what they can in an humble way, printing a little on the subject of missions some times, and an occasional item about other denominational work now and then; and some of them are aiming departments straight for the young people. Indeed, the RECORDER itself is not too modest to say that young people have been helped by reading it, and that it is still aiming to print every week such a variety of matter, including "missionary information," as will interest and uplift church-members of all ages. Why, it was only last week that we made arrangements to print from one of the ablest and most successful trainers of young people, Rev. Dr. Thos. Hume, occasional notes that will be for the especial benefit of pastors who have young people's meetings in their churches; and Bro. Van Deventer, Bro. White himself, and others of the ablest men in our Convention, make our columns interesting with matter on this line; and they will continue to do so.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL SUPPLIES.

Most of the churches, Sunday-schools and parents fail to put the high estimate on the Sunday-school supplies which their influence on the churches, Sunday-schools, and homes, will justify. Money can hardly be spent more wisely than in Sunday-school supplies. Every thoughtful, wide-awake, Sunday school officer, and father and mother, sees the influence of these supplies on the children, on the Sunday-schools, and on the homes. Every Sunday-school ought to be well supplied with Bibles, song books, Quarterlies, Teachers, papers, cards, class-books and maps. Most of the schools order only about half the supplies they could wisely use.

Of all the schools ordering through the Supply Store at Raleigh the three largest orders for the second quarter are from Raleigh schools. The supplies of the First Baptist Sunday-school (colored), J. H. Young, superintendent, for second quarter of this year, amount to $85 07; the supplies of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, H. W. Brewer, superintendent, for the second quarter, amount to $28.44; and the supplies of the Tabernacle Baptist Sunday-school, N. B. Broughton, superintendent, amount to $26.43 for the same quarter.

It will thus be seen that the three largest orders in the State are from Raleigh schools, and the largest out of these three is the order from a colored Sunday school.

It is almost impossible to enlarge and improve our Sunday school work without supplies sufficient for all the children who attend. They ought to be given to the visitors, and sent into the homes of the church members who do not attend the school.

The Sunday school Supply Store at Raleigh is an enterprise of our Convention; and it ought to be patronized as such. It supplies literature as cheaply as it can be gotten elsewhere, and the profits go to our mission work.

WE ARE glad to announce that Rev. G. M. Webb of Shelby has become agent for the BIBLICAL RECORDER in the King's Mountain Association. It is altogether unnecessary that we commend Bro. Webb to the brethren of this Association, which is his home, where he has spent many years of successful work. The RECORDER already has a fine list of subscribers in this Association, and among them it numbers some of its best and truest friends; but among the five thousand Baptists in Cleveland county we feel that there is room to greatly increase the number. We trust the brethren will aid Bro. Webb every way possible in his work.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....The Lord gave us fine weather for the Union Meetings.

....There is official information as to the Convention in another column.

....Rev. J. F. Love, Suffolk, Va., baptized three candidates Feb. 24th.

....Nine members have lately been added to Pastor C. S. Cashwell's church, Hickory.

....Rev. L. L. Sams, lately pastor at Summerton, S. C., has moved to Patron, Texas.

....According to the Evangel Dr. J. S. Felix may become pastor of Asheville First church.

....Rev. L. S. Foster of Mississippi is compiling a book of sketches of Mississippi Baptist preachers.

....It will please Bro. Conrad and others to know that the name of the Female University was not changed.

...."The head of education in North Carolina, Dr. G. T. Winston."—Chapel Hill Cor. News and Observer, March 24, 1895.

....Four persons were baptized into the fellowship of the Fayetteville Street Baptist church Sunday night last by Rev. A. D. Hunter.

....Dr. Wm. H. Whitsitt is now chairman of the Seminary faculty. Prof. H. H. Harris is delivering lectures at the Seminary on Missions.

....A collection for Foreign Missions before the Convention; another for Home Missions. Pastors, keep these two privileges and duties in mind.

....Rev. Jos. G. Bialock of the Seminary will take charge of Rockingham, Laurinburg, Lilesville and Roberdel—one of the best fields in the State—June 1.

....We regret to hear that one of the most eminent of South Carolina laymen, A. P. Abell, is dead. He was at one time Secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention.

....Rev. Dr. Rainsford, an Episcopal clergyman of New York, one of the Apostolic Succession, is in favor of opening saloons on Sundays. Shades of the apostles!

....Rev. J. E. Hutson of Richmond has arranged to hold a meeting at Halifax soon. In a recent meeting in Richmond in which he led the preaching there were eighty professions.

....Prof. W. L. Poteat lectured last week at Oak Ridge Institute; last Sunday he lectured before the Baptist church at Warrenton. Pastor Taylor has been holding a good meeting.

....Pray for our Boards. Pray for our missionaries. Let us, with God's help, overthrow the debts. We ought to have a hundred times as many missionaries in the field as we have.

....Rev. W. B. Southern of Asheville and Mrs. A. S. Reynolds were married at Asheville, Feb. 19, by Rev. J. T. Betts. Bro. Southern is pastor of Asheville West End Baptist Mission.

....Correspondents should note the change of Rev. K. C. Horner's address from Horner's to Siler City. We were glad to get the encouraging letter from Bro. Horner printed in another column.

....The American Baptist Publication Society has arranged to publish a series of Baptist histories that will cover the United States. Drs. Burrage, Moss, Justin A. Smith, Riley and Prof. Vedder are the writers.

....Bro. Jno. T. Pullen delivered his lecture on "Personal Work" at Wake Forest College recently. His earnestness and free use of God's Word made a deep impression. We wish Bro. Pullen could talk on this subject in every church in the State.

....The new church for the colored people of the Baptist denomination, on Needmore street, is nearing completion and when finished will be quite attractive. They deserve credit for their zeal and progressive spirit these hard times.—Mt. Airy News.

....The subject of Dr. Hume's address before the late Y. M. C. A. Convention was "Study of the Word Necessary to Spiritual Growth." Dr. Hume was requested to publish it, but as he spoke in the good old way, without manuscript, it was impossible.

....Dr. Pritchard preached a fine sermon to his Charlotte people in memory of his old teacher, Dr. Broadus; he also wrote comprehensive articles on his life and work for the Watchman, Boston, the best Baptist paper in the North, and for Charity and Children.

....We are glad to know that Rev. A. Cree, whom the Patron and Gleaner justly speaks of as an "able preacher and scholarly gentleman"—has accepted the call to remain pastor at Roxobel, which he resigned last fall. He will preach at Roxobel two Sundays each month.

....Rev. W. N. Martin of Juno, N. C. reports in W. N. C. Baptist forty additions to Macedonia church in a fine meeting. There have been twenty additions at Rock Springs, where Elder E. Allison has been holding a meeting, aiding Pastor Wharton. These brethren are now holding a meeting at Clyde.

....Prof. Geo. H. Ross, who graduated at Wake Forest in 1893, has a flourishing academy and boarding school at Oakdale, N. C. He has secured the promise of Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas to deliver the literary address at the closing exercises for this session, which occur May 23d.

....There have been about thirty additions to the church as a result of the meeting of Bro. Martin with Bro. Watson in Norfolk. Thirty joined Bro. Hatcher's church, as a result of a meeting with his father, and as many have joined Dr. M. B. Wharton's Freemason Street Church.

....Rev. N. R Pittman, who has many friends in North Carolina, has recently resigned the Patee Park pastorate, St. Joseph, Mo. Bro. Pittman was the instrumentality of great progress in the Patee Park church, the membership largely increasing, and a handsome church house having been erected.

....We have information that Rev. G. W. Rollins who has been in different parts of this State seeking a pastorate, is unworthy of the confidence of our people. He showed us a certificate of his ordination in 1872 or 1873; but he cannot show a church letter. Our information is from an unquestionable source.

....More than one hundred missionaries are at Toluca, Mexico, this week holding a conference on the work of the Holy Spirit. Moody and Sankey are present. The revival of study of the Spirit is very encouraging. To Dr. Gordon's work on the "Ministry of the Spirit" no little of this increase of interest is traceable.

....Rev. L. G. Broughton writes from Norfolk, March 27th: "I close to-night in many respects the greatest meeting of my life with Dr. M. B. Wharton at Freemason Street Church, this city; two hundred professions at least; church wonderfully revived; sixty received at present in church. The Lord be praised."

....Pastor Van Deventer is very greatly encouraged with his beginning at Burlington. The house is so over-crowded that an effort to enlarge is not at all unlikely. This is a very fine section of country, one of the most promising in North Carolina. We shall always look upon Bro. Hocutt as the pioneer in this section.

....Rev. J. M. White of Apex has been in the school room thirty years, and has wielded a powerful influence. He says his Green Level Academy is the most pleasant he ever taught. Bro. N. B. Broughton will deliver the address at the coming closing exercises of this school, which occur April 19th; there will be a concert at night.

....Rev. W. J. Hunnex has resigned his commission as missionary of the Southern Baptist Convention to China. Rev. C. E. Smith is on his way home from a long and debilitating stay in Africa; Sister Newton will go to England and marry Rev. J. D. Lutcliffe at Manchester. The F. M. Journal says, "we are very sorry to lose this good sister from our work."

....Rev. D. P. Bridges of Catawba writes: "You may put me down on Bro. Jones' list for a meeting at Ingrams' School house this summer. I have been preaching some there. The interest is good. Is Broadus gone? It is not one year yet since I left him. Little did I think it the last time I would see him here. But he is gone. For two years he was almost as a father to me."

....We are permitted to make some extracts from a letter from Rev. F. H. Jones of Franklin, Va.: "Dr. Pritchard's sermon on Christian Unity ought to be put in tract form and distributed." (It will be.) "No matter where we live, we must have the RECORDER; those who read it are generally sound in the faith." Bro. Jones has two good country churches in addition to his Chatham work.

....We are grateful to the following kind friends who sent us new subscribers last week: Revs. W. B. Waff, Reynoldson, D. W. Thomasson, Belmont, two; H. H. Gwaltney, Vernon, who sends two dollars for Bro. David Sheets, aged ninety years, one of our strongest Baptists; B. K. Mason, Advance; Bro. A. H. Harwell, who sends a new subscriber and a club of renewals; Rev. H. H. Mashburn, Wake Forest, who sends four new ones; Bro. H. E. Copple; Rev. A. C. Davis, who sends four.

....The power of real preaching is not declining, but the power of what some men call preaching is becoming a rapidly vanishing quantity.—The Watchman. Just so; and "the decadence of the churches" which alphabeticalism is designed to put a stop to, is due to the powerlessness of "what some men call preaching." The fact that the "decadence" is most pronounced in the North, where liberalism and Harperism obtain mostly, is in consonance with the pitiful alphabetical attempts to do what pure gospel alone can do.

....The "Regions Beyond Roll" is growing; but we must say that it does not seem that the brethren have awakened to the great promise of this effort to reach the waste places in North Carolina.

....Japan has employed a number of native Christians as chaplains for her army in the field, and has granted permission to missionaries to preach among the troops. This is a decidedly encouraging sign. The Chinese sent an ambassador to Japan to sue for peace. An unfortunate attempt was made to assassinate him, and this, it is thought, will make it easier for China. The papers report the Japanese armies as marching on Pekin, the city of the Emperor, although Japan has proclaimed a temporary armistice.

....A set of so called postal laws has been frequently published showing that publishers can keep on sending their papers to delinquents until they pay up. There is nothing in these laws. A man has to pay only for the papers that he takes out of the post-office, and not for these, if they are marked sample copies. About this time of the year there is a class of subscribers which get discouraged and order their paper stopped, hoping to economize. There is no economy in this; it is "saving at the spigot and wasting at the bung." We hope this class will not discourage us this year, but will keep a good grip until the Associations. Don't stop your paper.

....At the recent annual convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of North Carolina in Raleigh, appropriate resolutions were offered by a Presbyterian gentleman, Prof. G. B. Hanna of Charlotte, chairman of the State Executive Committee, presenting the testimony of this representative body of all evangelical denominations to President Jno. A. Broadus as scholar, teacher, preacher, author, man, and their profound sense of the great loss sustained by the whole Christian world in his death. Dr. Thos. Hume of Chapel Hill followed with a brief address defining his character, especially emphasizing his combination of practical and scholarly gifts, his distinct convictions, his simplicity, his deep piety and his large charity.

....It is not more organization that we need; but more activity. Now, the question is, what promotes Christian activity? Big meetings, elections of presidents, secretaries, etc., etc? Or is it Consecration? If there must be knowledge, there is the Bible, the church, the preacher, the teacher. Do we need another? Bro. Van Deventer says, "Let every church call together its young people, and old, if they will, at least once a month, to study doctrine, missions, and to cultivate the spiritual side of their being, and that will open the way to a generation of active, informed, loyal Baptists." What, then, have you, pastors, been doing? Have you not called the people together, begged and warned them, young and old, to come, some twice a week, some once a week, some twice a month, all at least once a month, to worship the Lord, "to study doctrine, missions, and cultivate the spiritual side of their being?" And indeed, is the way now closed against making Baptists "active, informed, loyal Baptists?" Are there not "active, informed, loyal Baptists?" Surely; and the way they came is still opened.

....We make acknowledgments to the American Baptist Publication Society and to Rev. Lansing Burrows, Augusta, Ga., the editor, for copies of the American Baptist Year Book for 1895—one of the most used books in Baptist newspaper offices. Dr. Burrows always does his work well; he is our ablest statistician. We have space this week for only a few figures from the book. We hope to make comparisons and suggestions later. These figures are a minimum estimate, and are thoroughly trustworthy: There are 1,530 Regular Missionary Baptist Associations in the United States, 37,910 churches, ordained ministers 27 091; in all North America there are 38,996 churches, 27,766 ministers, total membership 3,768,737. In the year 1894 the following is the lowest reported increase in the United States: By baptism, 205 857, by letter 92,839, experience 14,483, restoration 26,696; decrease, by letters 91,964, exclusion 46 618, erasure 19 901, deaths 29,686, total membership 3,637,421. There are 22,016 Sunday schools of Baptist churches in the United States, 152,767 officers and teachers, 1,500 834 pupils. Value of church property $30,285 034; contributed for salaries and expenses, $8,046,668 60, for missions, $1,188,059 17, education $174,865 24 miscellaneous $3,313,098 19, total $11 672 691.20. In the world there are 4 848,854 Regular Missionary Baptists, this being an increase over 1893 of 164,847; 570 ministers were ordained last year, and 260 died; 45 ministers were received from other denominations. In North Carolina, ninety-one associations are reported (fifty-three white, thirty-eight colored); 1,511 churches for whites, 1,131 for negroes. The white increase was as follows: By baptisms 7,396, letters 4 147, restoration 926; decrease, letters 4,353, exclusion 2,329, erasure none, deaths 1,840; total white membership 149,904 There are 1 089 Baptist Sunday schools for whites, 6 314 officers and teachers, pupils 69 356 Value of our church property $1.099 037 Contributed for salaries and expenses $154 417, missions $35,377 14, education $4,417.73, miscellaneous $44,311.50; total $239,594.07. Our colored brethren had 1,403 additions by baptism, 138 letters, 132 by experience, 316 restored; the decrease, by letters 98; by exclusion 459, by erasure none, by deaths 185; total membership 109 971. They have 530 Sunday-schools, 3,168 officers and teachers, pupils 31,591. Value of church property $386,730. They contributed for salaries and expenses $34,562 28, for missions $1.654 47, for education $13.50, miscellaneous $3,661 86; total $39,912. Georgia leads the States with 367,498 Baptists, then Virginia with 318,355, then Texas with 260,968, then North Carolina with 259 775, then Alabama. South Carolina has 218,414.

RAILROAD RATES.

The Southern Passenger Association, the Associated Railways of Virginia and the Carolinas, the Seaboard Air Line, the Southern Railway, the Norfolk & Western R. R, and all other lines south of Washington, together with all Railroad lines in Texas, have granted rates of "one first class fare for the round trip;" tickets to be of iron clad signature form, limited to a continuous passage in each direction; to be sold May 7th and 8th, final limit for return fifteen days from date of sale. No official notice has yet been given me of reductions by any Western lines or from the territory of the Trunk Line Association.

Further announcements will be made as information is received, or I will take pleasure in giving any information in my power by letter if stamped envelope is sent for reply.

These rates apply to delegates and visitors to the American Baptist Education Society, the meetings of the Young People's Societies, and the Woman's Missionary Union.

HOTEL AND BOARDING HOUSE RATES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31, 1895.

To Delegates and Visitors to the Southern Baptist Convention, Greeting:

The churches of our denomination in the District of Columbia are gratified that their invitation to the Southern Baptist Convention to hold its session for this year at the National Capital had been accepted. We will do all in our power to make the session pleasant and profitable to all who attend. We will furnish free entertainment for the officers of the Convention, the presidents and secretaries of the Boards, and returned missionaries. The house of worship of the First Baptist church, 16th street above Scott Circle, has been selected for the place of meeting, and the Ebbitt House, corner of 14th and F streets, for Convention headquarters.

We have endeavored to secure ample accommodation in hotels and boarding-houses at reduced rates for all who desire to attend. Rates will range from $2 50 to $1 50 a day, while some boarding-houses will receive delegates and visitors at $1 00 a day.

At the Ebbitt House the rates will be $2 50 a day, with accommodation for fifty persons at $2 00 a day with two in a room. Delegates and visitors will obtain these rates on the presentation of a card of introduction from the Committee on Assignment. Those who expect to attend will please write as soon as possible to the undersigned, giving the full names and the number of those for whom entertainment is desired, stating whether Mr., Mrs., or Miss, the rates preferred, and the time of arrival in Washington, and the Committee on Assignment will do its utmost to furnish comfortable quarters.

These terms apply also to all attending the meetings of the American Baptist Education Society, the Woman's Missionary Union, and the Young People.

North Carolina and the Home Board.

ONLY FIFTEEN HUNDRED DOLLARS.

About the beginning of the year 1895 we asked North Carolina for $2,500 to aid in paying the missionaries of the Home Board and carrying it to the Convention without debt. Of this amount about $800 has been received at Atlanta. There are other sums that have been contributed, but have not yet reached our Treasurer.

The amount still to be raised cannot be far from $1,500. Surely North Carolina will not fail to give us that. She can do it so easy if she tries, and she will try.

I. T. TICHENOR.

The Debt Diminishing.

Gratifying progress has been made in reducing the amount of our obligation to the Home Board. Within the last month we have reduced the amount asked of us from $2,000 to about $1,500. Combined effort for the next four weeks can easily secure the balance. Fifteen hundred dollars in four weeks! Brethren, let this be our task, and let us remember the general collection on the first Sunday in April.

THOSE PLEDGES AT THE CHOWAN ASSOCIATION.

The churches and some individual brethren at the last session of the Association pledged for Home Missions $380 50. Most of this amount, I believe, has not been collected. Brethren, do no not wait to send the balance to the Association. That will be too late for the present emergency. Please collect and forward Bro. to J. D. Boushall, Treasurer, Raleigh, N. C., by the last of April. "He helps twice who helps quickly."

THOSE MISSION CHURCHES IN OUR STATE.

I recently named several of these in the RECORDER, and suggested special thank-offerings from them. So far two have responded. Where are the rest? Ah! they are waiting for the general collection the first Sunday in April. All right, that will be time enough. The two have responded nobly; let the others do as well.

R. T. VANN.

Will the Debt Be Paid?

This is the question now on many hearts. Will we get rid of the hindering burdensome debt which is a dead weight on our Foreign Mission work, which troubles not only us here at home, but our brethren and sisters on the foreign fields? Many are giving nobly, but are others on that account going to excuse themselves and do nothing, and thus leave us still burdened and embarrassed? By united, earnest effort on the part of all in April, the debt will roll away. We asked God during the month of March to help us, let us in April show we were in earnest.

The Corresponding Secretary sent letters to all the pastors in our bounds and requested an answer from each. Four weeks have passed and he has heard from one out of every fifteen. Where are the others? What say they? Many of them we hope to hear from in a substantial way. May not one be heard to say, "I can do nothing."

Private individuals are responding by letter with amounts varying from ten cents to $200. Any one can make excuses and then feel miserable about it all. It is so much better to help as you can and feel happy. Many hundreds are writing and saying, "We will help." This month will be memorable with us. Let us make it like none other ever before for liberality in God's work. We are now to decide whether we will say to our workers, so much blessed of God, "Go forward, in God's name go forward," or "Leave the work and abandon the perishing to die in sin." Let no one fail to realize the situation. Thank God if you have "many calls." It proves you are some account or have something. No one goes to a dry well for water. Thank God if you have a new church building. But do not on account of these things fail in your duty to your brethren standing by you and earnestly trying with heavy sacrifices to pay your common debt. Do not fail in your duty to the missionaries whom you have sent out. Do not fail in your duty to your neighbors and children by teaching them to neglect the lost. Do not fail in your duty to dying men in the darkness of sin and death. Do not fail in your duty to Christ who redeemed us and committed to us this work. Oh brother, Foreign Missions is the most unselfish form of true religion. We honor God in reaching out after poor lost men and women.

Excuses are easy to make. Come up and do your part. Many are doing nobly, but unless many others help, we are not going to pay all. Let every one of us give something—one dollar, if no more. Each head of a family can give that. Each Sunday-school teacher, your class will gladly give it. You can give it. Ask your pastor to take a special freewill offering this month. We all can help. The little drops make the copious showers. May God put it into the hearts of thousands, yea, tens of thousands, into your heart, reader, to help. Let us pray and present the work to others, talk about it and give every day in April. Then when the month closes, we can altogether rejoice in the Lord and his work.

We will thus not hinder the work of the Lord by calling the workers home, and we will not cause his displeasure to rest upon us, our children and our churches. But rather we will experience the truth of his word in Mal. 3: 10—12, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in mine house: and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground, neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed; for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the Lord of hosts."

Fraternally yours in the work,

The Outlook.

At present there is a combination of influences to make it hard to raise funds to endow an institution. Bad weather has belated the farmers in preparing to plant their crops. Low prices of cotton make it a gloomy prospect for them to handle money in the near future. Unsettled conditions in commercial ranks cast a veil over the future. But in spite of all these obstacles, the people in almost every place we have visited are enthusiastic in their determination to patronize and endow Wake Forest College. Christian education, upon its own merit, is winning the hearts of the people, and its high destiny is assured as soon as its claims are cleverly put to the attention of the people.

The present outlook for the increase of endowment is good, though we are not getting very large contributions from many people. A larger number of people are helping than ever helped before. If we had the time and could meet the entire Baptist forces of the State with the success we have had with those we have met, we would endow the institution with the needed funds, and, what is still better, with the sympathy of all our Baptist people. Every congregation we meet makes it evident that this campaign was necessary had the institution needed no endowment. Young men are inspired with a determination to attend the College. Parents are quickened to encourage them to receive higher education. It is giving an impulse to general education and benefiting every institution in North Carolina.

Now, in conclusion, let me say that the pastors of the churches and the friends of Christian education may add greatly to the interest of our work, and the real fruits that will follow us, if they will put themselves to a little trouble to secure us an audience wherever we have appointments to address the people. The people should not be made to dread me because I come in the name of an "agent." It will not hurt them to hear our story if they have not a cent to give to the endowment. On the other hand, they may be materially benefited. We have been gratified to have large audiences at most of my appointments, and the results have been very satisfactory.

Let every friend of Wake Forest lend a helping hand, for the work is great and its demands are urgent. We can succeed only by your co-operation.

Fraternally, C. W. BLANCHARD.

From Rev. K. C. Horner.

Dear Recorder:—Please allow me space in your columns to speak again of my work.

Since I last wrote you, I resigned Bethlehem church in Moore county, to accept Liberty church in Randolph. My work this year will be at Liberty, Siler City, Rives Chapel and Cool Springs. I have my work very conveniently arranged and if possible am enjoying it better than ever before. The work thus far has been very pleasant in my new field

On Tuesday, March 19th, we moved into our new home in Siler City. We had quite a new experience and a blessing bestowed that we had not hitherto enjoyed. About dark several of the good people of this place, irrespective of denomination, size or sex came en masse to "pound" us. Each one had a gift to present.

Bro. D. L. Webster, one of our young men of talent and promise, with a few appropriate words made known to us the object of their coming. They delivered their presents, therefore, and retired, leaving us alone to amuse ourselves in looking over the many nice things brought us.

I have often read of preachers being "pounded," and it would always arouse my inquisitive nature to know how they felt under such circumstances. But I must confess that I never seemed to feel before so unworthy.

We love the people of Siler City, and hope by Christ's help in the future to show fully our appreciation of their kindness.

Change my address from Horner's to Siler City and send us the RECORDER. It will be a welcome visitor to our new home. God bless the RECORDER and all interested in its success. Fraternally,

Siler City, N. C. K. C. HORNER

Some Useful Books.

A series of intelligently written works on gardening has been a long felt want. It has been a pleasure to examine the results of the effort of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., to supply such a series; and we do not hesitate to say that they have been entirely successful.

The names of the books suggest their nature; personal examination alone can reveal their worth. "The Beautiful Flower Garden" will make any one's flower garden prettier; "All About Sweet Peas" deals with this fashionable flower and is just what its title claims; "Onions for Profit" and "Celery for Profit" are complete handbooks on these subjects, showing how to economize and get the largest returns; "Selections in Seed Growing" is more scientific, comprising leading essays read at the World's Fair; "Manures: How to Make and Use Them" is able and practical; and the best of all for gardeners is "What to Grow in a Kitchin Garden of One Acre."

These books are written by men of experience and learning. They are published not for money, but to make planting and cultivating a success. Messrs. Burpee give them away as premiums with their seeds, or send some of them for a small price.

Well Said.

Rev. C. Durham has done the work of several men during the past few months. He has not only faithfully done the word of his office, but has spoken much for Home and Foreign Missions. He has done more talking on the Educational question than any other man in the State; he has also written many articles giving valuable facts on "State aid." He has stood like a man before the little demagogues of the Legislature. The apparent defeat is triumphant. Some victories are barren. This of "State aid" will be. Durham will stand before the people during the next two years.—Rev. C. A. G. Thomas in Atlantic Baptist.

Christian Endeavor Convention.

A CONFERENCE-CONVENTION OF ALL THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETIES IN NORTH CAROLINA is called for April 26th—28th, to be held at Winston-Salem. The Societies of that place are actively preparing to entertain free of charge all who will come as representatives of their Societies from any part of the State. The main reason for this Convention is the necessity of a State Union, which shall be inter-denominational, and which will thus advance the cause in general. This matter is to be discussed at the Convention, and, if possible, a Union is to be at once effected. There will also be sessions for comparison of the best methods in prayer-meeting and committee work, and these are to be as helpful and educational as possible.

A very warm and cordial invitation is extended to all Endeavorers to be present at this first gathering of the kind ever held in the State. Arrangements are being made to obtain reduced rates on the railroads. Delegates who expect to attend the Convention will please inform as soon as possible, Rev. A. D. Tiller, Winston, N. C.

The Evangelistic Reformer.

The ship-worm (tore do) passes through several stages and changes before its destructive powers are fully attained. At first it is very minute, and it is covered with hair-like projectors, and swims rapidly through the water. In two days it assumes a new form, and in a very few days changes to still another. So that within a week the little thing is spherical, then oval, then triangular, then spherical again. Then it is a full grown ship worm and begins its life-long work of boring into good timber.

Every community is afflicted with the man who goes through a variety of changes before he settles down to a vocation. He is a tradesman, a bankrupt, agent, lecturer, doctor, lawyer, reformer, evangelist, and then having crawled through the first part of life settles down to a spurious philanthropist, undenominational evangelistic reformer. In this stage of his being, he ends the great work of his life—boring hopeless humanity in all directions, in order to support himself.—Ex.

The Baptists of Roxboro are agitating the building of a new church. At a business meeting Monday night a committee was appointed to decide whether they would repair or build, and we believe the committee is of the opinion that it is best to build a new church. We hope they will so decide and erect a handsome brick church that will be more in keeping with the business portion of town. The present building is entirely too small and has outlived its day of usefulness.—Courier.

Moses.—No. 1.

BY REV. J. O. ALDERMAN.

HIS CHILDHOOD.

The grandest character, probably, of all history is Moses. And the study of his life and the tracing of God's loving oversight in his career will richly repay any child of God.

The dark background in the oppression of the Hebrews serves to bring out in bold relief the striking foreground painted by the divine hand in the character and career of Moses. A simple pastoral band of some seventy souls, enjoying the freedom and comparative purity of shepherd life, went down into Egypt to take up their abode in the greatest nation of antiquity. Here these simple shepherds were surrounded by a very highly developed people of very different customs and religion. Here we lose sight of them, leaving them naturally to be amalgamated and swallowed up into the general population of Egypt. For centuries we see nothing of them. But at last we catch a glimpse of them again. Still they are not amalgamated nor lost, but are perfectly distinct and now a mighty host threatening to Egypt because of their numbers and strength and prosperity. Rameses II., the reigning Pharaoh, dreading such prosperous subjects lest they become foes, issued an edict that all Hebrew male children be killed, following this up with cruel and bitter persecution, intending to exterminate them as a distinct people. But upon this dark background God began to paint a beautiful and striking foreground. A man of the tribe of Levi had a son born that was destined to become great. The mother seeing in the child the promise of God, hid him at home for three months. Unable longer to hide him, she carefully prepared an ark and in it gave little Moses to the Nile and to God, still, however, sending her little daughter, Miriam, to watch and be ready to perform any service that human hands could render. At the proper moment, when the heart of the princess was touched by the crying child, little Miriam cleverly secured as the child's nurse its own mother, and the child of destiny was saved.

The child was ordained of God for a great purpose. But the mother and sister had parts to perform, and nobly and effectively did they perform them. Ordained of God and effected by human instrumentalities, the child was saved from death. Yet much was to be done before he was ready for his great work. He must be trained. Christ, the anointed of God, was thirty years in training. Training is not to be dispensed with. So it was necessary that Moses be trained.

There were in his childhood, which includes the first forty years of his life, two distinct periods and kinds of training, the first under his mother where his moral and religious training were cared for, the second at the court where his intellectual and governmental training were looked after. God needed a Moses. Moses needed a full development of his moral and religious nature. Also it was imperative that his intellectual and governmental capacities be developed And here we see the divine hand. First, the child was given back to its own mother during its tender years to be reared. She was all the more interested in her little Moses, seeing in him the promise of God and knowing that soon he would become the adopted son of Pharaoh's daughter. She bestowed upon him all possible care. She knew that Egypt was given up to idolatry and impurity. Her son was to be put into the very midst of all this. Her heart palpitated with fear for his safety. But she used fully the few years of his early childhood to instil into his young heart and mind true principles in morals and religion. She taught him of Jehovah, the true and only God, and the falsity and folly of the Egyptian idolatry and irreligion. It was for only a few years during his early childhood that she had the training of her child, yet so effectively did she labor during these years, that his subsequent career at the court in the midst of so many temptations failed to wean him from Jehovah and the Hebrews to the brilliant and dissipated life that he might have lead.

But early moral training was not enough. He needed in addition a kind of training that could not be secured in the home of his parents. Hence, by God's providence he went to the court where and by means of which he was developed intellectually and in matters pertaining to law and government.

To perform his great task of delivering a horde of slaves from Egypt and leading them to Canaan as a well-organized and law-abiding nation of freemen required that he be a deeply moral and religious man, which he became under his mother's training; and that he be a man profoundly versed in letters and science and general matters of law and government, which he became under his adopted mother at the court.

He needed to be a scholar, for the Law was to be recorded and expounded. Also a record of God's dealing with Israel was to be kept. A knowledge of geography and general science was needed to help him in selecting routes and halting places and in overcoming the trials and dangers of wilderness life. He needed especially to be a profound statesman, for otherwise he could not have led a horde of slaves and developed them into an organized nation of free and brave men. He needed to be intimately acquainted with the methods and stratagems and strength of the Egyptians, for it was necessary to contend with, elude and overcome all these. All this preparation could have been secured nowhere else than at the court.

How clearly traceable in it all is the finger of God! The very decree intended to destroy the Hebrews as a distinct people became the very means of sending to the court a Hebrew child to be trained and fitted to become a leader that should deliver them and make a mighty nation out of them! And the oppressor and would be destroyer becomes the very guardian and instructor of the great deliverer!

Monazite.

BY J. D. HUFHAM, JR.

In the preface to Bulletin No. 74 of the U. S. Geological Survey, the author says as regards the gold sands, among other things, "To mineralogists, North Carolina has become classic ground." But not to mineralogists alone have these sands proved profitable; for besides their yield of gold, they have been found to contain a substance which is the source of a very recent lucrative manufacturing industry. This substance, on account of its unlikeness to any other known mineral, is called monazite, from a Greek word which means alone.

Monazite exists in small quantities in Norway and some other European countries, in Brazil, and in a number of localities in North America. It seems to be most abundant, however, in Western North Carolina. There it is found among the gold sands of Alexander, Burke, Cleveland, McDowell, Polk and Rutherford counties; it is also found in association with diamond, zircon, etc., near Crowder's Mountain, Gaston county, and in Mecklenburg county. It is found in micaschist in Mitchell county; in feldspar in Yancey county, and in large clevable masses from Mars Hill, Madison county. It is principally found, however, in the gold sands already spoken of.

These sands are nothing more than the debris of disintegrated rock which have gradually worked their way down hill and mountain side by processes of freezing and thawing. The heavy particles like gold and monazite are usually deposited near the slopes, while the remainder creep down to the plain. Those particles of sand and monazite which fall in the course of streams and rills, are swept to the plains below, where they are deposited as soon as the current becomes too feeble to carry them further. It is here that monazite is usually found.

Monazite is a crystalline substance belonging to the mono clinic system. Its color varies from greenish yellow to dark brown; specific gravity, 5 10. It is very heavy; an ordinary water-bucket full weighs from sixty to seventy pounds. It is a phosphate of three metals: cerum, lantharium and didymium. Thorium is present merely as mechanically admixed thorite. But the percentage of thorium present determines the commercial value of monazite, for the more thorium there is, the more valuable the monazite. The percentage varies from 1 to 7.

Monazite is dug or "panned," just as gold is. The stream whose bottom has been found to contain monazite is dammed at some place. A trough about twelve feet long, with a platform at one end, is then placed on the dry bed of the old stream. The top of the platform is a steel plate perforated with small holes. A trench is then dug from where the water has accumulated, along the bank, and made to turn again into its former bed just where the trough is sitting. The water falls on the steel plate where the sand from the stream's former bottom is thrown. The sand being much lighter, is washed away while the monazite remains in the trough.

The cost of mining monazite is usually about one half its market value. Monazite usually sells at from six to ten cents per pound. I quote the following from the Rhelby Aurora of Feb. 28: "One of our citizens, T. D. Lattimore, has this week completed a ten ton contract with Mr. English of New York, and these tons were culled from less than two acres of bottom land, two miles northeast of Shelby. Mr. Lattimore has dug from about three acres of land about $2,000 worth of monazite. As his land is rich in a fine quality of monazite, it did not cost him one half of this amount for laborers and superintendent; so Mr. Lattimore has made clear over a thousand dollars, and the mine has plenty more monazite left."

From the same paper issued March 7, I again quote: "There are five hundred laborers now engaged in digging this yellow sand in Cleveland county, and some operatives have made contracts for the next six months. The output increases each month, as new mines are being opened and the number of laborers is increasing..... The supply in Cleveland county continues to increase, and three hundred farmers in this county have valuable monazite deposits, that can be worked profitably."

Monazite will apparently have a history somewhat analogous to that of gold. Its real source has not yet been touched. Those quantities which have thus far been found seem only to be washings from large veins which have crumbled. In time veins will be discovered in solid rock and worked just as was the case with gold.

The metal thorium was first discovered in 1828 by Berzelius, and named for the Scandinavian war-god, Thor. It is obtained by heating the chloride with sodium or potassium. It is a heavy metal of dark gray lustre. When heated in the air, it burns with intense brilliancy. It is used in the manufacture of the Welsbach gas burner. This burner gives a much cheaper, softer, and yet as brilliant light as the incandescent.

Stop that Cough!

It may lead to serious consequences. Cough remedies will not do it, because it means more than a simple cold. Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites will do it, and at the same time will build up and fortify the system against further attacks.

We are putting up a 50-cent size for just these local difficulties. For ordinary Coughs and Colds that quantity will doubtless cure. If it is deep-seated it may require more.

Don't be persuaded to accept a substitute.

This remarkable statement, to which we direct special attention, is from a Tennessee farmer: My age is 63. I suffered intensely from Catarrh 10 years. Had intense headache, took cold easily, had continual roaring and singing in my ears. My hearing began to fail, and for three years I was almost entirely deaf, and I continually grew worse. Everything I had tried, failed. In despair I commenced to use the Aerial Medication in 1888, and the effect of the first application was simply wonderful. In less than five minutes my hearing was fully restored, and has been perfect ever since, and in a few months was entirely cured of Catarrh. ELI BROWN, Jackson, Tenn.

Wanted.

Do you want to start the New Year in a good position that will pay you well provided you are a good salesman and collector?

We want live, energetic men to canvass, sell machines and collect. If there is an agent located in your community we can locate you elsewhere in a good section. We furnish a nice light-running wagon, agent to furnish horse and harness and make a $500 bond. We offer a good salary, or commission contract, one under which a live, energetic hustling man can make and save money. Men of character and good make-up do well to secure work with the Company, for if successful and the business entrusted is handled honorably, they will be promoted to more responsible positions of trust and responsibility, with increased compensation. President Woman's Central Committee of North Carolina, Miss FANNIE E. HECK, Raleigh, N. C.; Secretary, MRS. J. A. BRIGGS, Raleigh, N. C.

SUBJECT FOR MARCH: AFRICA.

Two new narrative leaflets, telling of the work of the Home Board, have been published and will be sent free on application to Miss Fannie E. Heck, Raleigh, N. C.

In the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Societies in Charlotte, Dr. I. T. Tichenor said, in speaking of our work among the Indians:—

"While the world wonders and rejoices over the work of grace wrought in the Sandwich Islands in the space of fifty years, the Southern Baptists have, under God, done, through their Home Board, in the Indian Territory, a work which exceeds it both in point of number of converts and the time in which it was accomplished."

Of the one work, all the world knows; the other is not even appreciated by the denomination through whose agency it was accomplished.

God has jewelled the work of our Home Board with thousands of souls redeemed from heathenism, and we have not returned thanks.

Although our dealings with the Indians as a nation have well been called a Century of Dishonor, and the path of our history is strewn with broken treaties, treachery and cruelty, it has also been starred with the lives of hero missionaries as noble as any who have gone to the uttermost parts of the earth.

First among these, towering above his fellow pilgrims in zeal and intellect, stands John Elliott, the Puritan missionary, who as early as 1644 was preaching to Massachusetts Indians in their own tongue. His translation of the Bible was the first, and for many years the only translation in an Indian dialect.

Following Elliott and his fellow-laborer, Mayhew, whose work among the praying Indians of Martha's Vineyard is "a most interesting page in missions," came David Bainerd, who into a life of only thirty-nine years (1718–1747) crowded great things for God. In the closing years of his work a great revival wave swept over the Indians among whom he labored. Everywhere he was met with cries and tears as young and old Indian braves besought him to show them more plainly the way of salvation. All too soon, it would seem to us, his life closed, and suspicion and persecution came upon the Christian Indians whom he, like Elliott, had gathered into Christian villages.

Persecution of a fierce type, however, fell to the lot not only of the Indian converts, but to the heroic Moravian missionary Teisberger himself. Beginning work in General Oglethorpe's colony in Georgia, he was driven from point to point and his villages scattered by the persecution of the colonists until he at length reached the shores of Lake Erie.

Here the fiercest fury of persecution broke, not only upon him, but upon other Moravian missionaries as well, who, for conscience sake, refused to aid in the war of the Revolution.

After the Declaration of Independence and the establishment of the United States, no organized effort to evangelize the Indians seems to have been made until in 1801, the New York Missionary Society sent Mr. Holmes to work among the Indians around Niagara Falls.

Following this, the American Board of Commissioners began work among the Cherokees and Choctaws in 1818, and since then one missionary organization after another has in rapid succession entered this most interesting field, and missionaries, heroic in heart and great in achievement, have followed one another too rapidly to be even mentioned here.

To-day Christians of all denominations in varying degree acknowledge their responsibility to the Red Sons of the plain, and while white settlers with grasping greed cast covetous eyes towards their ever narrowing possessions, they are endeavoring to bring the larger kingdom and liberty of the sons of God.

Between Ourselves.

Mrs. R. Van Deventer reports the organization of a Society in her new home, Burlington. Of this Society Mrs. W. H. Riggsbee is secretary.

Although at New London they have as yet no church building, Miss Maggie Littleton writes that they wish to form a missionary society, "There is that that scattereth yet increaseth."

Mrs. Mamie Hatcher, formerly of Siler City, now of Liberty, is full of hopes for the organization of a Society in her new home. Miss Ollie Bradshaw has undertaken part of the work begun in Siler City by Mrs. Hatcher.

Soon after the annual meeting in Charlotte the children asked to be formed into a missionary society. Miss Cora Conrad writes: "The children are clamoring for a society, which is very encouraging, and no one will undertake it, so I have promised them that I will. We want to organize a Sunbeam Society next Thursday." Very soon after the annual meeting, the young ladies, also, clamored in more stately fashion, and were organized under the leadership of Mrs. R. J. Jordan.

Miss Susie Tyler, who has on several occasions interested and instructed the ladies of the various Raleigh W. M. S's. with talks of her home and mission work in Zulu land, met with the ladies of the W. M. S. of Wake Forest on March 18th. This "labor of love" is the more appreciated for the fact that Miss Tyler who, with her father, Dr. Josiah Tyler, forty years missionary to Zulu, spending the winter in Raleigh, is a missionary of the Northern Congregational Board. Her best resting seems to be aiding.

A lady from Tennessee writes: "If the statements of the sufferings of our frontier missionaries be true, I for one never intend to waste money foolishly on dress while so many of God's servants are suffering while toiling for the salvation of human souls."

An Echo from the Christmas Offering.

My Dear Miss Heck;—I received your postal, asking our Society for $5 00 as a Christmas offering. How happy I am to tell you we have offered $10.00.

We had been thinking of this, saving our little dimes for two or three months, and when at our last meeting we put all together, it amounted to $10 00. It made us so glad and happy. There are so very few of us that we could not but feel that we had done well, although we think that it is not what we might have done, when we take into consideration the many blessings we have.

Yours in love,
LILLIE MITCHELL, Secretary.

Indian Lullaby.

Where the waves are lapping, lapping softly
o'er the pearly pebbles,
And the stream is gliding, gliding ever onward toward the sea:
Where the pines are murm'ring, murm'ring to the never dying breezes,
Sits a mother crooning, crooning to a child upon her knee
Sleep, my warrior,
Sleep, my chieftain,
Sleep, my little Indian brave—
Lulled by murm'rings
Of the forest
And the streamlet's lapping wave;
While thy father's Flashing arrows
Chase the deer in forests deep,
Rest, my warrior,
Rest, my chieftain,
Rest within the arms of sleep.

Where the light is glimm'ring, glimm'ring on the surface of the water,
And a sweet breath stealing, stealing from the pine woods o'er her creeps:
Where the twilight's deep'ning, deepn'ning fast within the gloomy forest,
Still the mother's crooning, crooning, while her infant warrior sleeps.

Sleep, my warrior,
Sleep, my chieftain,
Sleep, my little Indian brave—
Soothed by breathings
Of the pine-woods
And the cool stream's rippling wave,
While thy mother's
Dreamy crooning
Falls like music of wild streams:
Sleep, my warrior,
Sleep, my chieftain,
Glide on to the land of dreams.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Only see that your heart be right toward God—that you now love the Lord Jesus Christ—that you love your neighbor—walk as your Master walked, and I desire no more. Give me solid and substantial religion, give me an humble lover of God and man—a man full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality—a man laying himself out in the work of faith, the patience of hope, the labor of love. Put Our Institutions into the Hearts of the People.

Dear Recorder:—I rise to say that I heartily approve of the policy pursued by brethren Blanchard and Stringfield in the work they are doing for Wake Forest and the Woman's College. They are going right into the midst of the great mass of Baptists and telling them the story of struggle and self-sacrifice of the past, their present needs and their prospects.

This is following out the very genius of denominational life. Whatever success we have had is largely due to the fact that our heralds for every cause have gone into the rank and file of the common people. Every individual church and every individual in every church needs the information.

Bro. Caddell uses this as a reason why every Baptist should read his church paper, and it is a strong reason; for if he is to act according to his own sovereign will, without dictation from higher courts, he ought to be informed about matters that come before him.

You know Dr. Dickinson says, "A Baptist is as free as a fool," and some of them are, for they have the freedom without the knowledge necessary to make the freedom safe.

These brethren are going to weak churches where representatives seldom go, and they are fastening the affections of the people to these institutions. The time is here when everything cannot be represented at the Associations; the time is too short for all to have a proper hearing, so they must go to the churches. This is the age of the canvasser—door to door and man to man work.

Now, there may not be a great deal of money raised from the multitude, but, what is better, loyalty and sympathy for our institutions. There needs to be a constant flow of contributions, though small, to keep this tie alive and strong. We must be linked to every denominational enterprise by the tie of sacrifice, or they will pass out of our affections.

Yet we are never to lose sight of the fact that a sufficient endowment for our colleges must come chiefly from large private beneficence. But the best way to secure large gifts from these individuals is to get the great mass of the people thoroughly warmed up on the subject, and it will warm these men of means into liberality, or if they are already looking for a place to put their money, it will convince them that the people would appreciate and use large gifts.

I feel hopeful about the Royall Chair, and more than that, for Wake Forest, and that there is a glad day in the midst of the years that will see the Woman's College planted on the same unfailing rock, the struggles and affections of a consecrated and heroic people. M. L. KESLER.

It may save you time and money to be informed that, when you need a blood purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the kind most in favor with the medical profession. It is the standard and, as such, the only blood purifier admitted at the Chicago World's Fair.

From Abbottsburgh

Dear Recorder:—I have thought for some time of sending the RECORDER a few facts with regard to our little town, and more especially the Baptist church here.

Abbottsburgh is situated on the C. C. R. R., about eighteen miles from Lumberton and forty-nine miles from Wilmington. The place had always been in the background in regard to educational enterprises until last February.

Lee & Byrd established the Abbottsburgh High School there and have been progressing finely. The people seem to be well pleased with it.

The writer accepted the call and began the pastorate of the Baptist church of this place the first Sunday in December, 1894, and has been laboring faithfully ever since.

The people are very generous and kind-hearted here and in the surrounding country also. We have a flourishing Sunday-school It is under the careful supervision of Bro. George W. Smith, the superintendent. We also have a weekly prayer meeting.

Yours in the glorious work,
R. L. BYRD.

It is Said

"Some men are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them." This might have been true when advancement came through the favor of Kings and Queens. But in this American republic and in this nineteenth century there is but one way for a man to become great. He must achieve greatness, and no man can achieve greatness without education.

With education the poorest boy may become the greatest man, though we can not all be president. The most important question is: Would we be prepared to perform the duties of a great office if it were thrust upon us? We probably would if we should do as did. He is said to have, as his constant companion, the Encyclopaedia Britannica. He is even said to have kept a set in his private car while making a campaign tour. This mark of diligence and intelligence made him many friends and admirers.

There is a great principle involved in this idea. If you look up just one question each day you will soon become an educated person, and you learn to enjoy it.

These questions should be investigated right when they come up, while your mind is curious; then you won't forget what you read—you can't if you try.

But to do this you need the Encyclopaedia Britannica, and The Charlotte Observer is ready to assist you by offering this great library for at a remarkably low introductory rate, and on terms so easy as to place it within the reach of every boy or girl.

Only 50 cents dropped each day into the little dime registering savings bank, which we present to each subscriber, will give you this king of Cyclopaedias in any style of binding you may choose.

We are permitted to make this offer for a limited time only. If you want the Encyclopaedia ask for sample pages, terms, etc., to be mailed to you.

Half Price to Ministers!

Sermons, Addresses and Reminiscences,

BY

Rev. THOS. E. SKINNER, D. D.

In order that every minister in North Carolina may have an opportunity to place this valuable and interesting book in his library, and for the purpose of introducing it, we offer it to ministers, by mail, postpaid, for sixty five cents (65).

Fifty cents for the book and fifteen cents for postage.

The book contains 450 pages of clear print, on good paper, and is handsomely bound in cloth. The regular price of the book is $1 15, by mail, and is considered very cheap at that.

Our offer to ministers is to send the book by mail for 65 cents. We shall keep this offer open for a limited time. If you want the book, send your order at once. Address,

EDWARDS & BROUGHTON,

Publishers, Raleigh, N. C.

Read What is Said of the Book.

Dr. Charles E. Taylor says: "A most valuable contribution to the religious literature of North Carolina. If the book shall have the wide circulation which it deserves, I believe it will be used of God for the awakening and conversion of very many."

Dr. J. B Gambrell, President of Mercer University, Georgia, has the following to say in "The Index": "The whole book is juicy, soulful and helpful toward a wider range of things and a better spiritual life. It is a good Sunday book. The Sermons deal with matters of life and death, and the Addresses touch on many practical topics, while the Reminiscences, especially of the author's conversion and spiritual life, are rich with a heavenly flavor."

"Every pastor and especially every young Baptist preacher in North Carolina, ought to have a copy of Dr. Skinner's book. If I had the means it would be a great pleasure to me to send a copy of it to every young preacher in the State."—C. Durham.

A War Echo.

EVERY HONORABLE VETERAN DESERVES HIS PENSION.

AND THE LONE LIMB IS NOT THE ONLY REASON FOR A GOVERNMENT REWARD EITHER.

(From Journal, Lewiston, Me.)

Samuel R. Jordan, has just given the Journal an account of his life, which in view of his extremely hard lot for the past few years will be read with interest.

"I am 48 years old and have always lived in New Portland. I enlisted in the army in 1862 as a private in Company A. 28th Me. Volunteers. My army experience injured my health to some extent, although I worked at blacksmithing some part of the time, when suddenly, several years ago, I was prostrated with what able physicians pronounced Locomotor Ataxia. At first I could get around somewhat yet the disease progressed quite rapidly until I had hardly any feeling in my legs and feet, they felt like sticks of wood and I grew so much worse that I could not move for three years without help, as my neighbors and friends could testify. I employed several physicians in my vicinity, and elsewhere, and they all told me that medicines would not help me, that they could do nothing to effect a cure and that in time I should become entirely helpless. I became discouraged. I was a great care to my wife and friends. Shortly after I met an old army comrade, Mr. Asa Partlin, a resident of Madison, Maine, and he incidentaly mentioned how he had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for a severe case of rheumatism and a spinal and malarial trouble, that he had suffered with consequent of his army life, and had been greatly benefited by their use. By his earnest recommendation I was induced to try the pills. After taking them for a time I began to feel prickly sensations in my legs and a return of strength so I could move them a litle. After a few weeks I began to feel a marked improvement in my condition. I soon was enabled to walk around a little with the help of crutches. After taking for some time I can now walk without crutches, my general health is much improved and I have regained my old timed vigor. I can walk about and enjoy life once more, for which I feel very thankful, and this happy result is due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine in the sense that name implies. They were first compounded as a prescription and used as such in general practice by an eminent physician. So great was their efficacy that it was deemed wise to place them within the reach of all. They are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2 50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

History of the Baptists of Alabama.

There has just come from the press a "History of the Baptists of Alabama by Bro. B. F. Riley, D. D., Professor of English in the University of Georgia." It is a book on good paper, open, large type, of 481 pages, divided into thirty five chapters, and is published "under the auspices of the Alabama Baptist Historical Society, by Roberts & Son, Birmingham, Ala., 1895" It deals with the origin of the Baptists in Alabama in 1808, their church, educational and mission work and growth to 1894: the men of note, usefulness and influence in the denominational councils and work through the past eighty-six years; and gives wood cuts of twenty men, mainly pioneer preachers, of two colleges buildings and two church buildings.

This history is a detailed record of denominational events in that State during the stirring period of eighty six years, and it furnishes biographical sketches of those who have been conspicuous in the annals of the denomination, besides much other incidental matter relative to the secular history of Alabama.

The Alabama Historical Society has done wisely in having this volume issued, and Dr. Riley has done his work most successfully.

When will some one do such a work for the Baptists of North Carolina? How long! O how long! will we have to wait!! What is the North Carolina Baptist Historical Society doing to hasten such a work?

"A PANACEA FOR ALL ILLS" is found in the

The following testimonial speaks for itself :—

WELLFORD, S. C., March 20th, 1895.

My Dear Sir:—After using the Electropoise six weeks in my family and on a few neighbors, have realized great satisfaction in pulmonary troubles, colds, and rheumatism. I am satisfied that it will, if used judiciously, break up any case of pneumonia. In fact, I believe it a panacea for all human ills. We now consider the poise an essential member of the family. Very truly, J. A. BELL, Pastor Baptist Church.

We will gladly send hundreds more like this, as well as terms for rent and sale. Why not let us?

BYRD—WYATT—On March 24th, 1895, in Greensboro, N. C., by Rev. C. A. G. Thomas, Mr. Jas. A. Byrd and Miss Alice Wyatt.

ALLEN—BELL—On March 27th, 1895, at the home of the bride in Greensboro, N. C., by Rev. Charles A. G. Thomas, Mr. John E. Allen, Jr., of Johnson county, and Miss Bertha J. Bell.

CONNELLY — HAWKINS — On March 20th, 1895, at the home of the bride in Greensboro, N. C., by Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas, Mr. H. Bascom Connelly of Durham and Miss Ruby L. Hawkins.

DIED.

BRYAN—Died Dec. 19th, 1894, Lucy Bryan, in her sixtieth year. She was married in 1855; and joined the church at Beaver Dam, Bladen county, while in her teens. She bravely assisted her husband, who lost his right arm at Fort Fisher, in raising eight children, all living. L. BRYAN.

TEAGUE—Died at his home in Randolph county, March 11th, 1895, in the twentieth year of his age, Bennnie C. Teague, son of George and Mary Teague. After months of suffering, a loving son, a kind brother, and a faithful friend is gone, and we trust has passed from the scenes of this lower to the upper, higher and infinitely more glorious and better state of existence. M. J. LEACH.

BELL—Sister Ida Bell died Feb. 13th, 1895, aged nineteen years, six months and ten days. She was baptized into the fellowship of Shady Grove church several years ago. She lived a consistent Christian life. Sister Bell was organist of Shady Grove at the time of her death. She leaves a Christian father and mother to mourn their loss, but their loss is her eternal gain. May the two devoted brothers follow their sister so far as she followed Christ. May heaven's blessings rest upon the dear parents and relatives. .N. P. S.

SMITH—February 27th, 1895, at his home in Davidson county, N. C., Gen. G. W. Smith died, in the seventy-seventh year of his age. Gen. Smith was one of the oldest and most active members of Jersey Baptist church. We shall sadly miss him from his accustomed seat and in the church work.

Bro. Smith was a man of influence and prominence in his county. The church of which he was a member has not only lost one of its leading members, but the county has lost one of its oldest and best citizens. Our brother leaves an aged widow and a number of children to mourn their loss.

THOS. CARRICK.

HANKINS—Sister Malissa R. Hankins, wife of Bro. J. J. Hankins of Virginia died at the home of her son, J. K. Hankins, Lexington N. C., March 12th, 1895, in the fifty-fourth year of her age. Sister Hankins was one of the few persons who were organized into Lexington Baptist church. For several years she was one of its most active members and zealous workers. She came here some weeks ago for medical treatment under her son-in-law, Dr. R. L. Payne, Jr., but in spite of medical skill death came and removed her from earthly suffering to her heavenly reward. A good wife, a devoted mother, and a faithful Christian has gone to meet her God.

THOS. CARRICK.

HOBSON—Died at her home in Ramseur, Randolph county, March 23d, 1895, Mrs. Lydia Hobson. She was a member of Ramseur Baptist church, and was a Christian in deed whose life was a model for any one to have followed. When such a woman is taken from any community it is a great loss. Her daughter, who has been afflicted for years, crossed the river of death about three days before she did.

Sister Hobson leaves two brothers, one sister, a husband, two daughters and two sons to mourn. Their loss is her gain.

The burial service was conducted by the writer March 4th, it being the wish of her husband and children. G. W. HARMON.

Ramseur, Randolph county, N. C.

MITCHELL—Died near Ruffin, Caswell county, N. C., March 8th, 1895, Miss Minerva R. Mitchell, in the eighty-fifth year of her age. Some thirty years before her death she professed faith in Christ, was baptized by Rev. S. G. Mason, and became a member of Trinity Baptist church. She faithfully and lovingly served her Master, exerting a sweet and gentle influence over all with whom she came in contact. It was a benediction and an inspiration to be in her company. She loved to have ministers in her home, and with grace and dignity dispensed a Christian hospitality. As she neared the end of her earthly career she said she had known no earthly want, that her needs had all been supplied with loving hands, for which she seemed to be devoutly thankful. She was gentle in character, but firm in conviction; loved peace, and followed it. Faithful and consistent, she was ready for the call of the Master—"to depart and be with Christ." Loved and honored by all who knew her, her memory will long linger in their minds and hearts. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

The Lord bless, comfort and save the bereaved family. F. H. JONES.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God in his infinite wisdom to suffer the hand of death to be laid on our beloved brother, N. R. Watkins, who fell asleep in Christ at his residence near Rolesville, N. C., on Jan. 17, 1895, in the sixty-ninth year of his age; and whereas, he had been a member of our church from the day of his baptism to the day of his death, and for a large portion of this time also a faithful and honored deacon; therefore be it Resolved, 1. That it is with unfeigned sorrow and a deep sense of our loss that we contemplate the removal from us of this good man.

Resolved, 2. That in our sorrow we find ample ground for comfort in our brother's simple but sturdy faith, his modest but earnest piety, the kindly influence of his life, and the peaceful passing of his spirit to its eternal home.

Resolved, 3. That we will strive with the Lord's help to emulate the Christian virtues of our deceased brother, and thus commend to the world the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Resolved, 4. That we tender to the bereaved wife and family our heartfelt sympathy in this the hour of their great sorrow.

Resolved 5. That these resolutions be recorded on our church-book, that a copy be furnished to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER, with request to publish.

Done by order of Rolesville Baptist church, Jan. 19, 1895.

Literary.

The Treasury of Religious Thought for April completes a volume which may compare not unfavorably with any earlier. This closing number begins with a sermon on The Conpulsion of Love, by Rev. W. F. Anderson, the successful pastor who has recently completed the beautiful building of St. James's M. E. Church at Kingston, N. Y. The other sermons and notes of sermons are by representative men, and of a high order. Rev. Isaac D. Kip appears for the first time in this magazine in an able article on The Way ye Call Heresy Dr. Brown, of New Haven, gives the third of the series of essays on Two Decades of Religious Progress. The different departments are fully maintained, and the number contains a full and valuable index of the sermons, texts, authors, and articles of the year 1894-95. The editorial suggests the ideal of a Christian magazine, and foreshadows improvements contemplated for the next volume.

Money and Bank Credits in the United States. By Henry W. Williams. American Academy of Political and Social Science, Publication No. 139. Paper, 8vo. Pp. 26. Price, 25c. Philadelphia; 1895.

The Baltimore Bank Plan is probably the most widely discussed financial measure of day. Drawn up, as it was, by a committee of bankers, it would seem that it ought to provide the correct remedy for some of our financial troubles. That it is not perfect in every respect is shown by Mr. Henry W. Williams, of Baltimore, in his paper on "Money and Bank Credits in the United States," lately issued by the American Academy of Political and Social Science. Mr. Williams first outlines a development of the system now in use, which, if carried out, would give us a safe and elastic currency. He then concludes with a review of the Baltimore plan, and a criticism of the fourth suggestion of the Baltimore bankers that no security be deposited by the banks to protect their note issues. He shows the danger inherent in this suggestion and the safer plan to follow. This paper should attract wide attention in view of the general discussion of the monetary situation.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones, —— place; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews, ——; Rev. R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges.

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

For Annihilationists.

The North American Review, several years ago, engaged Dr. Shedd to write an article favoring the doctrine of the eternal punishment of the wicked, and also engaged Henry Ward Beecher to answer it. It was agreed that the proof sheets of Dr. Shedd's article should be sent to Mr. Beecher before they were published. They were accordingly sent to him while he was on a lecturing tour in the West. He read the article with care and then telegraphed from Denver: "Cancel engagement. Shedd is too much for me. I half believe in eternal punishment now myself. Get somebody else." No one else could be gotten, and that article has remained unanswered. It ought to be issued as a tract.—Wes. Recorder.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Spring No. 2—in Bright's Disease of the Kidneys.

Dr. R. D. Baskerville, Swepson's, Va., Reprint from the "Maryland Medical Journal" of February 23, 1889.

"I have prescribed BUFFALO LITHIA WATER Spring No. 2, with decided beneficial results in both forms of chronic Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. In a case of acute Parenchymatous Nephritis occurring in a lad fourteen years old—'the first stage of Bright's Disease' of some writers, 'the large, smooth kidney' of English authors—the urine gave a faint acid reaction, specific gravity 1006, and contained about three per cent. of albumen, Œdema of the feet and legs extending to the knees, face puffed almost beyond recognition, and considerable effusion in the great cavities. BUFFALO LITHIA WATER Spring No. 2, was ordered at once, and in twelve days the Dropsy was entirely relieved, the specific gravity had risen to 1012 and the albumen had disappeared to a mere trace; the Water was continued for a few weeks and the patient was entirely well, and has remained so to this time, a period of more than ten months."

Dr. John W. Williamson, late of Jackson, Tennessee:

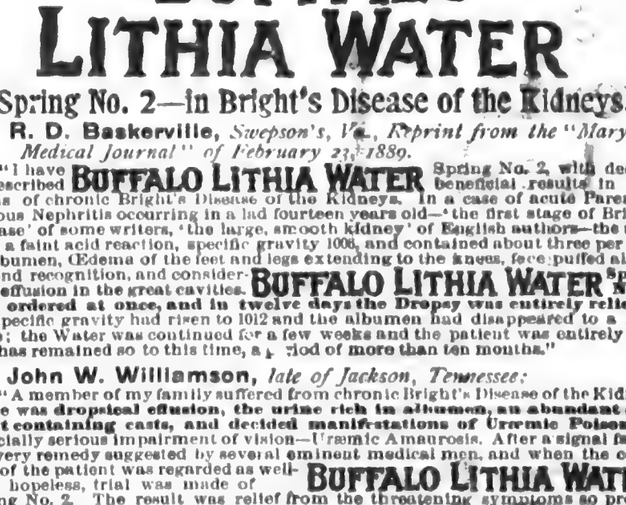
"A member of my family suffered from chronic Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. There was dropsical effusion, the urine rich in albumen, an abundant sediment containing casts, and decided manifestations of Uræmic Poisoning, especially serious impairment of vision—Uræmic Amaurosis. After a signal failure of every remedy suggested by several eminent medical men, and when the condition of the patient was regarded as well-nigh hopeless, trial was made of BUFFALO LITHIA WATER Spring No. 2. The result was relief from the threatening symptoms so prompt and decided as to be almost incredible to any but an eye-witness. The continued use of the Water for several months resulted in a complete recovery. Several years have now elapsed and there has been no return of the disease."



This Water is for sale by druggists generally, or in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles $5.00 f.o.b. at the Springs. Descriptive pamphlets sent to any address.

In the Heart.

If no kindly thought or word
We can give some soul to bless;
If our hands, from hour to hour,
Do no deeds of gentleness;
If to lone and weary ones
We no comfort will impart—
Though 'tis summer in the sky,
Yet 'tis winter in the heart!

If we strive to lift the gloom
From a dark and burdened life;
If we seek to lull the storm
Of our fallen brother's strife;
If we bid all hate and scorn
From the spirit to depart—
Though 'tis winter in the sky,
Yet 'tis summer in the heart!
—George Cooper, in S. S. Times.

The Sweetest Lives.

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed;
Whose deeds, both great and small,
Are close-knit strands of an unbroken thread,
Where love ennobles all.
The world may sound no trumpets, ring no bells;
The book of life the shining record tells.

Thy love shall chant its own beatitudes
After its own life-workings. A child's kiss
Set on the sighing lips shall make thee glad;
A poor man served by thee shall make thee rich;
A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong;
Thou shalt be helped thyself by every sense
Of service which thou renderest.
—Mrs. Browning.

Willie's Gold Mine.

"If I were rich, I'd never go to school another day!" exclaimed Willie, as he threw his books and strap upon the sofa in the cosy sitting-room. "What's the use bothering away one's time in school, any way!"

"Well, Willie," inquired grandma, cheerily, from her pleasant corner, "how would hou like to own a gold mine—your very own!"

"A gold mine! My! I'd like it awfully, grandma; but," continued Willie, slowly, "I don't s'pose I'll ever own one."

"I see no reason why you can't, if you really wan't one," replied grandma, smiling.

"How! Do tell me quick!" cried Willie, eagerly. "I guess Jim West won't feel so big if I get a gold mine." And Willie whistled gaily at the thought.

After a moment's silence, Willie continued, thoughtfully: "I can't buy a gold mine, for I've only two dollars in my bank, and a mine will cost heaps."

"Sit down a minute while I explain," and as she spoke, grandma fondly drew her pet to her side. "You can't buy this gold mine with money; and no one can give it to you; you must work for it, and work hard, too, Willie."

"O, grandma, I'll do anything, sure? See how big and tall I am." And Willie actually grew six inches taller all at once, by standing on his tip-toes.

"You can't get your gold mine in a hurry, either," went on grandma. "You must get it little by little. It isn't like some gold mines, that are full of wealth at the beginning—you must fill this mine yourself."

"Will it take long to fill it, grandma?"

"Yes, a number of years. Each day you can add some valuable bit to it, and by and by, lo! you will have an inexhaustible treasure. No one can steal your mine from you, Willie, and you can never dig it dry."

"My!" exclaimed Willie, with sparkling eyes. "When can I begin to get my gold mine, grandma?"

"At any time! You have already begun to fill your treasure-house, and by going to"—

"I know, grandma," interrupted Willie. "It's an education that you mean; that's the gold mine."

"And isn't that a fine one, Willie?"

"Y-e-s, and I'm going to begin now to fill it up. Hurrah for grandma and the gold mine!"

"And the school, too," added grandma.

Why, of course," laughed Willie.—Presbyterian

when you ask for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Go to a reliable dealer. He will sell you what you want. The ones who have something else to urge upon you in its place are thinking of the extra profit they'll make. These things pay them better, but they don't care about you.

None of these substitutes is "just as good" as the "Discovery." That is the only blood cleanser, flesh-builder, and strength-restorer so far reaching and so unfailing in its effects that it can be guaranteed. In the most stubborn Skin, scalp, or scrofulous affections, or in every disease that's caused by a torpid liver or by impure blood—if it ever fails to cure, you have your money back.

By Actual Proof.

Dr. B. W. Richardson, the noted physician, says that he was once enabled to preach an effectual temperance lecture by means of a scientific experiment. An acquaintance was singing the praise of wine, and declared that he could not get through a day without it.

"Will you be good enough to feel of my pulse as I stand here?" asked Dr. Richardson.

The man did so.

"Count it carefully. What does it say?"

"Seventy four."

The physician then went and laid down on a sofa, and asked the gentleman to count his pulse again.

"It has gone down to sixty four," he said in astonishment. "What an extraordinary thing!"

"When you lie down at night," said the physician, "this is the way nature takes to give your heart rest. You may know nothing about it, but the organ is resting to that extent; and if you reckon the rate, it involves a good deal of rest, because in lying down the heart is doing ten strokes less in a minute. Multiply that by sixty, and it is six hundred; multiply that by eight hours, and, within a fraction, there is a difference of five thousand strokes, and as the heart is throwing six ounces of blood at every stroke, it makes a difference of thirty thousand ounces of life during the night. When I lie down at night without any alcohol, that is the rest my hearts gets. But when I take wine or grog, I do not allow that rest, for the influence of alcohol is to increase the number of strokes. Instead of getting repose, the man who uses alcohol puts on something like fifteen thousand strokes, and he rises quite unfit for the next day's work, until he takes a little more of that 'ruddy bumper,' which he calls 'the soul of the man below."—Young People's Leader.

Wanted to Know How He Knew.

"Last Sunday," said the clergyman to his congregation, "some one put a button in the collection bag. I won't mention names. I will merely say that only one individual in the congregation could have done so, and I will expect the same member after the service to replace the buttom with a coin of the realm."

After church a well to-do but close fisted individual sought an interview with the clergyman in the vestry.

"I—er," he began hesitatingly, "must apologize for the—er—button incident, which I can assure was an accident. I happened to have the button in my waist coat pocket, together with a shilling, and took out the former by mistake, However, sir, here is the shilling."

"Thank you," said the clergyman, taking the shilling and gravely handing him the button.

"By the by, sir," said the man, "I can not understand how you should have known that it was I who—er—committed the—er—much to be regretted mistake."

"I didn't know," replied the clergyman.

"Didn't know! But you said, sir, that only one individual in the congregation could have done so."

"Just so. You see, sir, it is scarcely possible that two individuals could have put one button in the bag; is it, now?" said the clergyman with a bland smile.

It was so much easier for the button contributor to say "good day" than to answer this puzzling question that he made his bow at once.—Selected.

In purchasing canned goods observe whether the head of the can is concave. A bulging appearance shows decomposition.

Rub white of egg over the bottom crust of pie-plant, berry or other pies, to prevent their becoming soggy and indigestible.

Unless the varnish has been taken off by heat, spots may be removed from furniture by rubbing vigorously with sweet oil and turpentine in equal parts. Afterwards wash with warm soapsuds and polish with crude petroleum oil.

Teapots should be washed and dried after each meal, and once a week have a strong solution of washing soda boiled in them, rinse and dry well. Such management insures delicately flavored tea properly made.

Breathing.

Breathing is the first and last act of man, and is of the most vital necessity all through life. Persons with full, broad, deep chests naturally breathe freely and slowly, and large nostrils generally accompany large chests. Such persons rarely take cold, and when they do, they throw it off easily. The opposite build of chests is more predisposed to lung diseases. The pallid complexion and conspicuous blue veins show that oxygen is wanted, and that every means should be used to obtain it. Deep breathing also promotes perspiration, by increasing the circulation and the animal warmth. Waste is more rapidly repaired, and the skin is put into requisition to use the waste materials. Many forms of disease may thus be prevented, and more vigorous health enjoyed."—Chamber's Journal.

A brand of wisky is called "Horn of Plenty." On this a temperance writer remarks that they have chosen the name wisely, for out of the thing designated shall come

Plenty of poverty, plenty of pain,
Plenty of sorrow, plenty of shame,
Plenty of broken hearts, hopes doomed and sealed,
Plenty of graves in the potter's field.

A Novel Work Bag.

This is made of the crown of a straw hat, which may be dyed and varnished, painted, or left in its natural state. Line the inside of the crown with silk of a harmonizing shade, continuing the silk beyond the straw sufficiently to form the bag. Finish with a hem wide enough to admit double runners of narrow ribbon with which to draw up the mouth of the bag. Feather or horn-stitching, or other decoration, may be used on the silk, and an embroidered star is pretty on the crown.—American Agriculturist.

My God, I thank Thee Thou hast made
The earth so bright,
So full of splendor and joy,
Beauty and light;
So many noble things are here,
Noble and right.
—Adelaide A. Proctor.

A little girl was playing with her pet kitten a few days ago. Pussy suddenly stratched her mistress's hand, whereupon the latter exclaimed: "Kitty, give me that pin at once!"

The devil is not much alarmed about the preaching in any church where he can run the music.—Ram's Horn.

Ralph Waldo Emerson called Sunday "the core of civilization."

FRAGILE, THIN, AND DELICATE women find that Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription builds up their strength. The makers take the risk of selling it on trial. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in the case of every afflicted woman, they'll return her money.

Nervous or General Debility, Dizziness, Faintness, Displacement, Internal Inflammation and Ulceration, Bearing-down Pains, and all womanly weaknesses or ailments are cured by the "Prescription."

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Dear Sir—My wife suffered from laceration of the womb and inflammation—she was completely bed-ridden and lingered about one year at death's door. Local applications were given her and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription; she gradually regained strength and continued to do so until she recovered. I am convinced that any case of womb disease can be certainly and permanently cured by the use of your remedies.

WEAKENED BY OVERWORK

A Well-Known Lowell Grocer
MAKES USE OF
Ayer's Sarsaparilla
AND SOON RECOVERS STRENGTH.

"A year ago, my partner died, and the whole burden and responsibility of a large grocery business fell upon me. The increased care and hard work so taxed my strength that I became all run down, had no appetite, was weak, nervous, and endured all the torments which headache, indigestion, and total loss of energy could inflict. The medicine recommended me did no more good than so much water. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being favorably brought to my attention, I tried it, and, in a short time, began to feel better. I continued to take this medicine for two months, at the end of which time I felt like a new man. My appetite, energy, and strength returned, and all traces of headache and nervousness disappeared. I am convinced that if I had not taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I should be totally unable to attend to business."—WM. H. BROWN, 33 Gorham St., Lowell, Mass.

THE light turned on the startling act making it unlawful to give a mortgage, reveals more than is in the act itself.

Before this we never dreamed that our legislative department is so loose that any one who can bribe a set of clerks can get a bill passed, or keep one from passing. Bills have to pass three readings in each branch. But law makers would rather make a show of having them read—having only their number and title announced—and stay in session only from 10 a. m. till 2 p. m., four hours. Working is working, and a day's work is a day's work; and the fact that one is working for his State does not make it right for him to work four hours for a day, does not make it any less reprehensible to hurry over matters that affect the whole people.

It seems that there is doubt whether the mortgage bill ever passed the House or was even before the Senate. If it was not, the clerks were careless or were bribed. And not only the clerks, but the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate, for their signatures are to the bill, according to law, as evidence that the bill had passed three readings in their respective branches.

There are people who say the Democrats passed the bill. If this is so, the responsibility is on the dominant elements in the legislature, and the shame upon them and the Democrats.

It has been said in one paper that the author of the bill offered it in spite and in a spirit of retaliation. If this is so, he ought to be driven from the face of the earth; if it is not, he ought to make the paper apologize.

No matter how we look at it, the law is evidence of something criminal—criminal carelessness, bribery or forgery.

We do not think it will do great harm, because it is so easy to get around laws—trust laws, for instance,—that we cannot but believe that a way around this one will be found. If not, the plain duty of the Governor is to call the Assembly back. It might do the Democratic party good in some quarters to let this law work hardship, but wherever there are newspapers, we promise the people will be taught that the party which has the opportunity of saying the State from this burden and fails to use it, that party is more guilty and meaner than the careless fellows who let the bill slip in among their enactments.

INDUSTRIALLY North Carolina is growing faster than any State. Every week we hear of new cotton factories and enlargement of others. The fact that this growth is not accompanied with a sudden influx of miscellaneous immigrants is encouraging. Our factories will probably be manned with native labor. It will not be so hard to educate the children of workers as it would, were they foreign, or even from other States.

In the opinion of many the time is not far distant when this State will be the theatre of great mining enterprises. More gold than has ever been taken from California is in our western hills, but it cannot be mined because it can be separated from the pyrites only at great cost. Men are working now to get a method of lessening the cost of this process; and the announcement that they have succeeded is hopefully looked forward to.

When the State becomes thickly populated, the market for our farm products will be nearer to the farms, thus making prices better. When there are enough factories in North Carolina to consume our cotton, enough people to consume our meat, flour and meat, this will be the richest State in the South, and farms will be worth fortunes. And it all may come true, if half our water power is utilized, and only a beginning is made toward getting the mineral wealth from our hills.

It seems that the State is certain to become thickly populated; and more thickly than any State in the South, since it has more to grow on.

With all these things the State will not go far forward unless native North Carolinians take the first steps. If the North Carolina money that vanished in Virginia "boom-towns" had been put into North Carolina resources, many investors would be better off and our State would be richer. Outside capital will not come in until it becomes known that North Carolinians are successfully investing in the State.

The development of North Carolina is the opportunity and the duty of the young men of North Carolina.

NEXT to Baptist churches, the RECORDER takes it as its peculiar aim to hasten the day when the State will be dotted with schoolhouses, public schools, academies, boarding schools and institutions of general education. We hope to see the time when there will be a Baptist school teacher wherever there is a Baptist preacher, and a schoolhouse by every church.

Through Wake Forest all this must come. The State can give us politicians and lawyers enough for any people, but we have but one place from which we can get schoolteachers and preachers just as we would have them. It seems to us that Wake Forest exerts as much influence through her sons who become teachers as through her preachers,—and with proper support this influence will be even larger.

SOME one remarked that educational work is not so well done now as it was. And in truth one happens upon many college graduates who can hardly spell, and cannot write a paragraph. We do not know if this has not been true ever since colleges became so numerous and graduates so abundant; but we are sure that methods of teaching have been greatly improved—so greatly, in fact, that it almost amounts to a revolution.

The trouble is not with the teaching, but in sending young men to college before they are prepared,—making them try to compose Latin before they can write in English. These same young men find themselves after graduating unfit to do any genuine work, and forthwith determine to drop down to school teaching—with no ideal at all and no aim except to make a living until an opening appears, or to get experience.

A man who teaches school as a last resort, is a fraud, as big a fraud as the merchant who deceives his customers by putting rock dust in his flour. A man should not be permitted to drop down to schoolteaching; if anything, it must be a step up. The man who goes into this work for experience is an impostor, and he will get a sad lot more of experience than he set out for. The men and women who are teaching because they are fitted for the work and because they have chosen it for their lifework, are as a rule very poorly paid, and the reason is to be found in the competition of fellows who use the profession for a makeshift or a punching bag.

So, unfit teachers not only retard the development of their pupils, but degrade the profession and crowd out the better fitted.

A "monthly record of current events" kept by a great magazine, one that does thoroughly whatever it sets out to do, usually contains about seven items. The reader may be interested, if he will test the magazine's judgment by trying to recall the occurrences of the last thirty days which seem worthy of permanent record.

And yet the dailies lie on our table, four, eight, sixteen and thirty-two large pages, respectively, each containing all the news, each with something the others failed to get, all crowded—apparently. Searching through them, one is as liable as not to complete a day's task vainly, if other than diversion and passing interest have been sought.

When one comes to think of it, seven events of permanent interest within a month are by no means a poor record; and it follows that much of time and paper is wasted on the great dailies. A page or more to a foot-ball game, two to a prize-fight, one for a double murder or a summer-resort sensation or the trial of a notorious character or a horse-race or base-ball or to pretentious interviews with little politicians or doubtful rumors about big ones, and columns on columns are filled with matter of still less interest and no importance at all; while none of them gets so much as a mark in History.

The size of newspapers, however, like the show-bills along our streets, is not to the managers' liking, but according to the demand of the public. The average well-to-do man is an unfortunate victim of an abnormal appetite for anything novel or special or seemingly so. The clear-headed manager, therefore, makes a point of getting in something special, and if there is nothing to get, the public enjoys it quite as much if he offers a commonplace occurrence well-disguised. If there is anything, in it goes with due position and space and editorial mention; if there is nothing there must be something, at least in the papers. A few papers stoop to fabrication occasionally, and some are terribly sensational; but usually the papers are honest, going no farther than to make an inconsiderable occurrence interesting, giving it attractive head-lines and stretching the reading out to fit the forms; and they tell the truth a thousand times for every untruth, and with a few exceptions they make haste to get the latter corrected as soon as it is discovered.

If newspapers printed the news and could vary their size according to the day, there would be great saving of the reader's time, the miller's paper and the publisher's purse. But this is not practicable, and, moreover, if it were, the public would prefer the larger papers on general principles.

No one reads a sixteen-page daily all through and through. They tire one out quickly. Immense, diffuse, strained, and endless; the head-lines and brief editorials are as much as one can afford to compass. Telegrams concise and well-headed, locals bright and plenty of them, with literary matter, correspondence, articles, editorials, clippings all short enough to be gotten on four or six pages, is an ideal that is more nearly attained by the dissatisfied, aspiring small dailies than by the big, wearisome exponents of metropolitan journalism, or their burdened pretentious imitators.

God.

BY CALVIN S. BLACKWELL

God is behind all time. "In the beginning"; when was that? Through what immense eras the imagination must travel to reach it! What a mystery is time, stretching ever backward, past the hour when at the laying of earth's foundations "the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy." Past the hour when both the morning stars and the sons of God were called into being! But when in thought we have reached this dateless period, when we have even gone beyond it and found ourselves in a vast void where no star shines and no seraph sings, even then we find ourselves in the presence of God.

We think of all things and persons coming into existence, but the thought of the birth of God is one which the mind refuses to entertain. He is the great I Am, to whom moments and months, days and years are alike. "He is the high and the lofty one that inhabiteth eternity, and whose name is holy." Let us bow in reverence before him. "Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations." "Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting thou art God."

We may depend upon him, for his arm is never dried up, nor does his strength fail. "There is no wrinkle on the brow of Eternity."

God—what is his action, what is his life? These questions spring up as from a slumber at the sound of God's name. As soon as the mind recognizes the existence of a being, it asks how that being lives. Still more so in regard to God, who is the Being of all being. This very greatness creates within us a thirst for a knowledge of him, so much the more ardent because his action is the model of all action, and his life the pattern of all life. What, then, is the life of God? How does he employ his eternity?

These doubtless are bold questions. Nevertheless they are questions which our hearts ask of our heads and men ask of each other. But how are we to get an answer? How are we to penetrate the divine essence in order to catch a glimpse of the incomprehensible movement of eternal, infinite, absolute and immutable spirit?

Three doctrines stand before us, each with a pretended answer. One of these affirms that God is condemned by the sovereign majesty of his own nature to isolation dreadful to imagine; that, alone, he contemplates himself, seeing only himself and loving himself, which has no other object but himself; that in this contemplation and this love, eternally solitary, the nature and perfection of God's life consists.

According to the second doctrine, the Universe shows us the life of God, or rather it is in itself the life of God. We behold in it his permanent action, the scene upon which his power is exercised, and in which all his attributes are reflected. That God is not out of the universe any more than the universe is out of God.

The Bible doctrine condemns these two systems. It does not admit that God is a solitary being eternally employed in a sterile contemplation of himself; nor does it admit that the universe, although it is the work of God, is his proper and personal life. It soars above these feeble ideas and bears us on the wings of its inspired words beyond all the conceptions of the human mind, teaching us that the Divine life consists in the coeternal union of three equal persons, in whom plurality destroys solitude and unity destroys pantheistic division—three whose thought corresponds, whose love is mutual, and who in that marvelous communion are identical in substance, distinct in personality, associated in ineffable light and love. "There are three who give testimony in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost, and these three are one." Do not falter. These are his own words concerning his essence and inner life. Be confident: "for he that followeth me walketh not in darkness, but shall have the light of life." Again, we say, be confident, count upon God, who has proposed nothing to us unnecessary to be believed. He has hidden marvelous treasures in the most obscure mysteries of Revelation, just as he has obscured the diamond's fires in the depths of the earth.

God is behind all space. What a solemn mystery there is in this idea of space! What awe seizes upon the soul as the eye looks through the telescope at shining clusters of worlds, across immeasurable and inconceivable distances, to other suns and systems as they seem to revolve around the brightest of the Pleiades! Is that to us faint star the center of the universe? Is it there that God sits enthroned? Is that the one stable and unmoving orb? Or is that moving, too? Where is the center? Where is the circumference? Though a human spirit should reach the last world that revolves around the great unknown center, it would not have come upon a tenantless void. It would still be in the presence of God, in the hollow of whose hand all worlds and suns and systems lie. "Whither, O Lord, shall I go from thy Spirit? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there. If I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me; thy right hand shall hold me."

God is Spirit. His first act is, then, to think. His mind thinks thoughts equal to itself. They measure the abyss of things to know, that is to say, the abyss of the infinite. God thinks, and he sees himself in his thought as in another, so akin to him as to be one with him in substance and likeness. In contemplating his thought, in beholding his image, in hearing his Word, he is able to utter in the ecstacy of the highest, the most perfect paternity: "Thou art my Son; to day have I begotten thee." To-day, which is neither past, nor present, nor future. Time and being are the same with him. For God thinks to-day, and engenders his Son to day; he sees him to day; he hears him to day; he lives to-day in that act of ineffable paternity—an act which has neither beginning nor end. It was over this act that John heard the Father soliloquizing in heaven, and began his sublime gospel with it: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." When Paul was caught up into the third heaven and saw and heard such unspeakable things, there was this impression made upon his mind and transcribed upon the sacred page, "Who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature." And again, "The brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person."

Truth is the first name of God; Justice is the second.

Now, it is easy to conceive that there may be men for whom truth and justice are nothing but philosophical speculations; men who shut themselves up in the proud solitude of their own thoughts, and build upon them for themselves glory systems that bear their name. But it is not so with poor and suffering mankind; it needs truth for its nourishment, justice for its defense, and it knows that the real name of both is the name of God, and that the real strength of both is the power of God. The poor and the afflicted have never been deceived herein. When they are oppressed, they lift up their hands toward God; they write his name upon their banners; they pronounce to their oppressors that last and solemn expression of the soul that believes and hopes: "I cite you before the tribunal of God."

"We have a three-fold intuition of God: a negative intuition in nature; a direct intuition in the ideas of truth and justice; a practical intuition in human society. Nature, in manifesting characteristics to us incompatible with a being existing of itself, causes us to mount up to its source; the ideas of truth and justice name God to us, without whom they would be nothing; human society, which can not do without him, proves to us his existence by its need of him."

Besides these there are other evidences which the hand of Deity scatters from time to time on the road of nations. He strikes with his thunders and rends the veils; he gives so full and deep a consciousness of his presence that a whole nation sometimes utters from its inmost heart that unanimous and involuntary cry, "It is the hand of God!"

"Above the sea of human needs
Above the mounts of loftier deeds;
Where proud ambition dies to go—
There is God.

Below the purposes of men,
Below the search of curious ken;
Below the silver and the gold,
With hands to steady and uphold—
There is God.

Beyond the wide horizon's reach,
Beyond the utmost bounds of speech;
Beyond the broad circumference
Of circling sound and kindling sense—
There is God.

Within the gales that whistle by,
Within the seasons as they fly;
Within the reach of infant hand,
Within the hearts that understand—
There is God.

Behold, He came to men of old
In dreams and visions manifold!
Behold, revealed in larger view
To those who seek His will to do—
There is God."

It is only from the standpoint, God is love, that the magnitude of creation, and the mystery of revelation can be appreciated.

1. "His omnipotence is the arm of his love.

2. His omniscience is the medium through which He contemplates the objects of His love.

3. His wisdom is but the scheme of his love.

4. The offers of the Gospel are but the invitations of His love.

5. What are the threatenings of the law but the warnings of His love?

6. The miracles of Christ are but the condescensions of His love.

7. What were the sighs of Christ but the breath of His love—the tears of Christ but the dewdrops of His love—the prayers of Christ but the passionate pleadings of His love!

8. What was the incarnation but the grand climax of His love!—love laboring, sympathizing, sorrowing, bleeding, dying, rising, reigning on the throne of the universe."

The duty and blessedness of man is to strive to know that God is love, and return a part of it in work and worship.

Oh that "ye may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God."

How broad is that love? So broad as to reach all the intelligence of this world, and all the possible creatures of all other worlds.

How long is that love? From everlasting to everlasting, from the backward ages through the eternal years—from the alone to the alone.

How deep is that love? So deep as to fathom the lowest pit of our woe. Its sounding line goes down to the last condition of the race. And who shall say it does not drop through into the abyss?

How high is that love? Higher than the imagination can conceive, loftier than a seraph's pinion can soar. Up its awful summits we may climb in the white light of eternity, and never cease to ascend.

If we can thus be brought to know his love, our work and worship will be like Christ's, always ready to ascend to God and go out to men notwithstanding the thorns and the sneers.

From His cross He reached His pierced hand and lifted the old world from its base. He transformed it, and all men and things. He gave to poetry the highest theme; He gave power to art; He guided the hand of Raphael, and the chisel of Angelo; He gave unwonted pathos to the brush of Rubens, and refined the coarse genius of Murillo. He drew confessions of love from men of thought. He has gathered around his cross a great multitude which no man can number, and one song rises from their various voices, "Thou hast loved us and washed us from our sins." The chorus so rises in marvelous harmony because one love animates them all, and one—King of Love—has set up his throne in the hearts of all.

North Carolina and the Seminary—No. 3.

BY REV. R. W. SPILMAN.

Hear what the students now at the Seminary say about locating in North Carolina.

J. G. Blalock: "I prefer working in North Carolina to working in any other State. I have been identified with the work of the State, and have learned to love it."

H. Y. Blalock: "I have not yet decided where I will spend my life. I have some thought of working in the Northwest."

E. D. Cross: "I had rather work in North Carolina, my native State, if the Lord so direct. I know the people and the needs better and feel that I could do better work there."

W. R. Cullom: "I love North Carolina as I love no other place on earth. I love North Carolina Baptists as I love no people on earth, and it is my decided preference to give my life to the building up of the Lord's Kingdom on earth as they represent it."

T. J. Hudson: "I would like to return to North Carolina, and expect to do so, if I can get work to do."

R. G. Kendrick, Jr.: "I will be glad to work in North Carolina this next summer, and if the way opens when I complete my course, I would like to return to my native State for permanent location."

J. W. Millard: "Other things being equal, I far prefer to work in North Carolina."

W. M. Murray: "I shall be pleased to come back to the Old North State when my Seminary course is finished. If I can get work in North Carolina during vacation I shall come back."

T. H. Piemona: "I would be pleased to return to North Carolina. I would consider a proposition from any church in my State."

W. H. Reddish: "I had rather work in North Carolina than any place on earth."

J. D. Robertson: "I feel more attached to North Carolina than any other State, and feel now that I would be glad to return to the State when I finish my school days."

W. H. Sledge: "What I am Wake Forest has made me—I owe all to North Carolina. I feel that I would love to tell the story of the cross in my native State."

Whose fault is it that our students do not return? I lay the matter before the Baptists of North Carolina. Are these students to return to their native State, or are they to turn away from their State, as so many before them have done? How much longer are we going to continue the suicidal policy of this wholesale exportation of our young preachers? If our students do not return, the responsibility is not to be laid at their door. They wish to return. Shall they come? Let us wait and see.

Kinston, N. C.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10, 1895.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

THE RECORDER is interested in schools next to churches. It wants to see a Baptist academy near every Baptist church. Will Baptist teachers, Baptist principals, Baptist trustees, send us information about their institutions. It will help the schools; and it will help us to get a complete list of them; it will help the cause, to increase and encourage this part of our work. We would like to have the name and address of every active Baptist school man or school ma'am in the State.

THE general subject of pastoral calls is hard to handle—now-a-days—without offending some one; there are many people so expecting to be hit that every time a gun fires they jump. Let every one be assured that we have no particular person in mind.

Bro. Spilman has brought up the subject. He writes in a very practical way of the relations of Wake Forest men, Seminary men, and the Baptist churches of North Carolina. We believe God is using him to turn a stream of Seminary men into our State; although it ought to be said that there are more Seminary men in North Carolina than any one who was not at the Seminary dinner during the Charlotte Convention would think. (There were about forty men at the dinner).

Let us say, by the way, God still calls pastors. When he stops, the churches will have to give up their faith. This being so, the churches ought not to be interfered with. It is not at all wrong to see that a man's name is favorably mentioned to a church, but we do not think one should try to use influence or friendship to get a man called.

The RECORDER recommends Seminary men in a general way, just as Bro. Spilman speaks for them. It would be ashamed of its presumption, if it tried to influence a particular church to call a particular man. That is the church's business and God's.

While God has given many North Carolina men to other States, men educated with North Carolina contributions, he has also brought into our State worthy and efficient sons of other States—which any one will perceive by looking around. We do not say that these will make up the percentage against returned Seminary men, but it ought to be taken into consideration.

Furthermore, while sons of other States have become identified with us—so identified that they are of us thoroughly—North Carolina men have gone to other States because they could get better fields. A place to work is not the only thing, as Bro. Spilman says; there must be support, for young graduates usually have debts to pay. North Carolina needs many more Seminary men, but she cannot offer them enough to enable them to pay their debts, and in God's providence other States get them. He sends other men to our State—some of them Seminary men. It is his way.

In the world industrial, supply and demand regulate workers. In the world religious this cannot be, since the regions demanding most have least to pay. China needs all the men who will go out of the Seminary in a century, and Africa will need all in the next, but they will not get them. If, however, China had work for ten thousand mechanics to do, she would get them in a month. Supply and demand are not factors in the ministry. A man cannot live by making converts as a mechanic does by making iron into implements.

North Carolina needs all the Seminary men she can get; but she should not complain, if God sends all her sons to China or Virginia. Nor should she let it be complained that she has no use for Seminary men; for she has. She may not have a thousand dollars a year for each of them, but she has something. The young men ought not to expect a thousand dollars a year. We do not say they do. They are no more than honest, however, when they ask for enough to live on and lay something aside to pay education debts. High salaries in the ministry have glazed the eyes and destroyed the lives of many young preachers. Ambition and wealth and preaching are not compatible. The Christ-life is a life of self-sacrifice.

We hope the Lord will so put it into the hearts of our people that every one of the young men who speak on another page will be given an opportunity to work in this State on at least a living basis.

ANY one having a copy of the Wake Forest Student in which the Historical Address delivered at Wake Forest in June, 1893, will confer a favor by communicating with the author of the Address, Rev. Wm. H. Whitsitt, D. D., Louisville, Ky.

FOOT-WASHING.

Foot-washing was an act of hospitality, whose origin may be traced to the earliest times. The custom grew out of the necessity of the age as an expression of courtesy and common civility. The good old folk did not wear kip boots or Congress gaiters, but were content to do the slow work of their leisure lives on sandals, consisting of a board or skin tied to the feet. When they could not afford such luxuries, they wore nature's most ancient shoes, made of their own skins. In either case, after traveling along dusty highways, guests would feel the need of water to remove the dust that had gathered on their perspiring and exposed feet; hence a courtesy of life reaching back to days immemorial. We notice it first in the family of Abraham, when the three angels, in the form of men, appeared to him, to whom he said, "Let a little water, I pray you, be fetched, and wash your feet." When the angels came to Sodom, Lot said, "Tarry all night, and wash your feet." Laban gave water to wash the feet of Isaac's servant. When Jacob's sons went to Egypt for corn, they received this mark of civility; for, "the man brought the men into Joseph's house, and gave them water, and they washed their feet." Christ said to Simon, as a rebuke for his neglect of the common courtesies of life, "I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet, but she hath washed my feet with tears." Paul considered it an evidence of the ripened sainthood of a woman, "if she have washed the saint's feet." The Saviour seized upon this beautiful courtesy, not to institute an ordinance, but to impress most wholesome and far-reaching truth. In spite of the example of the Apostles and the early churches to the contrary, some denominations of Christians have misconstrued this touching episode in the ministry of Jesus into a religious rite; and this, too, in the face of the fact that it is never mentioned as such, and is never associated in Scripture with baptism or the Lord's Supper.

Many have understood Christ as simply teaching an impressive lesson of humility, and have then dismissed the subject. We think, however, that the lesson of humility is subordinate and incidental, whilst the fundamental truth he sought to teach is service the measure of greatness. It was at the Paschal Supper and just before the communion. The shadow of the cross had already fallen over the Redeemer's path, and on the morrow the beloved Master was to close his life in agonies and blood. Yet, though it appears well-nigh incredible, on the night of the betrayal, his enemies itching for his blood, in a few hours of his tragic death, there arose a bickering among his disciples as to who should be the greatest. Jesus, in order to give them and us a rule for the settlement of such a question, rose from supper, and laying aside his garments, poured water into a basin, and, with a towel girded about his loins, began to wash the disciples' feet, as was customary at the time of observing the passover. Not one of those thoughtless and ambitious followers had remembered this long-established custom; and instead of thinking of feet, were disputing about who should be head. Yet, we must bear in mind, that inasmuch as the great Leader was so soon to be removed, they may not have been actuated solely by ambition, but that very naturally they would consult as to who should take the lead in their movements. Christ proposed a test that is of universal application in the kingdom of God: "He that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve." Not to "exercise lordship," but to do service is Christ's measure of greatness.

The foot-washing took place a few moments before the communion; so that we can but think that when Jesus said "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter," he had in mind some deeper truth than humility. There was something they did not then grasp, something to be revealed later on. This was the atonement; otherwise, how are we to understand Christ's language to Peter, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me!" Jesus uses two distinct words for wash; one meaning to bathe, the other to wash the hands or feet. So that when he says, "He that is washed (bathed) needeth not save to wash his feet," he teaches that a man is regenerated but once, but once washed from his past transgressions, that yet he needs the constant, daily cleansing of his feet which come in daily contact with the earth—once and forever saved when washed in his blood, but in continual need of cleansing from the soiling influences of the world. The foot-washing settles a question that has perplexed many pious people, namely, was Judas ever converted? The Saviour says, "Ye are clean—but not all," showing that the traitor had never experienced the new birth, and that he was, therefore, not clean; had never been bathed, had never been saved.

Let us draw this wholesome lesson from the Saviour's words and act, that as the noblest service evinces the noblest character, and as he, the greatest, humbled himself to achieve salvation, the greatest service to men, we should likewise esteem it our sublimest duty to accomplish the most far-reaching good to our fellows, thus securing the only abiding title to greatness.

IT IS not often the case—which makes the matter worse when it is—that men are too charitable toward one, too anxious to help him along by speaking a good word for him. That it sometimes happens, however, almost any religious newspaper will testify.

A wandering "brother," claiming to be a Baptist preacher, and presenting plausible evidences, must be taken in and probably given an opportunity to preach. A pastor's means of finding out an unknown man's record are very limited. And he is the more easily imposed upon by one who has letters from pastors known to be good men. For this reason men should not be given letters of commendation until something of them and their former lives is known.

At intervals the RECORDER has to deal with impostors. We usually find them good with letters from men, and sometimes the columns of the RECORDER itself have contained letters from pastors innocently commending them.

It is one of the functions of a live paper to keep the churches and the ministry informed of these things; and we always do it, in spite of many temptations to let poor fellows slip away quietly; for if not exposed, there is no telling where they will turn up next, or how much harm they may do.

It is a good rule not to recommend a man unless you have known him or some of his associates at least a year.

THIS week is known to the church of Rome and her children as "Passion Week." It is the anniversary of the culmination of Christ's earthly career, the most momentous period of his life.

Baptists very rightly forbear to approve the observance of days. But Prof. Harris points out in the Baptist Teacher for April that "certainly, if we are to note any Christian anniversaries, the eight days that end with Easter have a stronger claim than any other season." The main reason is, that of the many days and seasons sacred in Roman Catholic and Episcopalian calendars, this season approximately corresponds to the period of the year which it is represented to, when "Jesus went up to Jerusalem, suffered in our stead, and rose again."

"In the year A. D. 30," says Prof. Harris, "the relative positions of sun and moon were nearly the same as in the year 1895. The Passover then was on Friday, April 7; this year it will begin on Monday, April 9." The resurrection of the Lord, being the keystone of every Christian's faith, is of necessity continually brought into the mind of Christians. The Lord's day should be kept by us all as religiously as if it occurred but once a year, instead of once a week; but even then we should not put these matters out of mind during the week. For on this principle one may keep forty days in a year and have no thought for the others. This is the great danger of set days, and no doubt Paul saw it, when he characterised observance of them as "weak and beggarly rudiments."

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

WARRENTON.

I spent last Tuesday in Warrenton. The day was too bright for a large crowd to be at court. The farmers who have had little chance to work were, as a rule, at home.

Judge McIver, who had a slight attack of paralysis some months ago, has greatly improved, and we hope to soon see him restored to his former good health. It was very pleasant to hear in what high esteem he held Bro. W. E. Daniel, the recently elected solicitor of this district. However, those who know him would be greatly surprised if he should fail to sustain himself in any position he might occupy.

Bro. Taylor was in his usual good spirits. I found him in the hands of a tailor: his last year's measure was too small for him now. I suppose he uses largely of Bro. Fleming's "new process" flour. He grows in more ways than one. I know of no pastor in the State who is sustaining himself better. He will attend the Southern Baptist Convention in Washington, and will pursue just the same methods in regard to the young people in his church after that meeting that he does now.

Dr. Fleming says: When a preacher decides to preach a sermon on business, he ought to consult with the brethren, but while he sticks to the gospel, he can "go it alone." This is worthy of a place in your scrap-book.

Bro. J. R. Rodwell has taken charge of the Record in Warrenton: he is well qualified to make an interesting and valuable paper. A column of Sunday reading will be furnished by Bro. Taylor. I wish more of our local papers would do this. As a rule, it is hard to get any news of the churches from our county papers.

As usual, I am indebted to Bro. N. L. Shaw for some subscribers and renewals for the RECORDER.

Dr. Thomas said he was sick, but we would not have thought so. He gets old slowly. It is always a pleasure to see him and hear him talk.

The Union Meeting, if not held at Macon, will meet with the church in Warrenton.

SCOTLAND NECK.

At this place I expected to spend only one day, but there is no knowing what a day may bring forth, especially a day in March. All day and all night the rain pours down. But why should I complain? I am within Dr. R. M. Johnson's beautiful home, plenty of wood and coal, an easy lounge, complete even to a soft pillow on which to rest my head and wait till the coming of sunshine. I suppose this provision of the Doctor's goodness has not been more fully occupied since the week Bro. Rice Carroll was with him a year or so ago.

The RECORDER has more subscribers in Scotland Neck to the number of Baptists there than any other town in the State except one. One copy to every five members in a church is a good showing. Here there is a paper to every three members.

The church has been greatly improved since my last visit. They now have an abundance of rooms for the separate classes in the Sunday-school, and also a nice room in which a free library will be placed for the use of all the members. Bro. Biggs' heart is set on this, and no one who knows him and the others who are interested in this will doubt its success.

Bro. Vann is in his usual health, and when I left was making good use of the short time left to add to his record for duck and turkey shooting.

I always find Bro. Vann anxious to help me in my work, and it is largely due to this interest on his part that the RECORDER is so well patronized. If the brethren for the next two years will show the same interest they have for the past year, we will easily have ten thousand subscribers.

Dr. Liverman not only takes the paper for himself, for he yet persists in being a bachelor, but pays for two copies besides.

Only a few years ago I was in school with Bro. N. B. Josey. Now he contributes seven to the membership of the Scotland Neck Sunday-school.

Bro. J. P. Futrell is much interested in his farms just outside of the town. This has become a fine trucking section, and cotton will hardly ever get its former place in the farms in this section.

Bro. W. A. Dunn, one of the finest and most successful lawyers of his age in the State, is always to be found in his place at the prayer-meetings and Sunday-school.

Bro. A. McDowell, sometimes at the factory, sometimes in the bank and sometimes in the store, is always full of business, but not too busy to consider every want of his pastor and to inquire if his mother and sisters are reading the RECORDER.

I was sorry to hear that Bro. Frank Shields and Dr. Whitehead were sick.

Bro. Hilliard, who has done worthy and continuous editorial work on the Democrat, has had a hand in all the enterprises and improvements of the town. He extended his usual kind offices during my stay in the town.

WELDON.

Here I found Bro. Stringfield assisting Bro. Harmon in a series of meetings which promised to be of interest to the church. Bro. Harmon has done a fine work here, and the brethren greatly appreciate his labors both as preacher and pastor.

The Bertie Union met with the church at Bethlehem. Bro. W. B. Shaw was elected Moderator, and Bro. A. J. Cobb, Secretary. The meeting looked more like the West Chowan Association than such Union Meetings as we have attended. I counted twenty ministers present on Saturday, and there must have been at least one thousand people. One hundred dollars was raised to carry on the Colportage work in the Union.

Bro. W. V. Savage was present from the Tar River, and the brethren raised about forty dollars to aid in the completion of the church at Bethel. He preached a most excellent sermon on Sunday.

Bro. Mills was on hand with a dozen orphans, and gave a nice entertainment. The brethren were delighted to see him and gave him a good collection at the close of the exercises.

Bro. T. G. Wood was up from the Chowan. He was one of the brethren who felt at home, for he had spent a number of years of successful work in this Association.

Bro. Scarboro met me at Pendleton and carried me to Murfreesboro: and after spending some time with him, I put in a day at WINTON.

The Chowan Baptist church was organized here Sunday night. Two churches and two academies are in this town of about five hundred inhabitants.

The following resolution introduced by Bro. J. B. Boone was passed by the Bertie Union Meeting: "Resolved, That we, the Bertie Union Meeting, do hereby declare our appreciation of the very devoted and consecrated life and the exceedingly valuable labors of the late Dr. John A. Broadus, and that we also express our sense of the sad loss of one who was easily foremost among the Lord's servants in America."

NOTES.

There is more interest in raising funds for the endowment of Wake Forest than we have heretofore known.

Profs. Prince and Wilson have a fine school for boys in Scotland Neck. These young men are competent, faithful workers and will merit all the patronage they will receive.

Alphabetical Societies would have stood a poor showing for endorsement at the Bertie Union. Some interesting letters will appear in the RECORDER soon.

There have been but two deaths among the girls at Murfreesboro for the past twenty years.

Bro. W. P. Taylor: "The BIBLICAL RECORDER cannot only be of service to the denomination, but it may as no other paper can help the entire State."

Is it not a dangerous experiment for a preacher to undertake to remain in charge of a church where any considerable minority is against him?

....Rev. R. J. Willingham is helping Pastor Hatcher in a meeting in Grace Street church, Richmond.

....The latest is a "Pan-Baptist Council." Well, we hope they will get out of breath after awhile.

....Nine persons were received into the Fayetteville Street Baptist church Sunday morning last—five by letter and four for baptism.

....All the papers are speaking well of Bro. Blanchard's work wherever he appears. We follow him with interest. He is sowing for a rich harvest.

....A collection for Missions—Home and Foreign—in every church in North Carolina this month. Brother pastor, this can be done, if you will. It depends on you.

....The Seminary Magazine for this month will be a Broadus memorial number. There will be deliberate estimates by many able men. It will pay any one to get a copy.

....Rev. A. B. Earle, D. D., died at his home in Newton, Mass., recently. He was a widely known evangelist and twice held meetings in Raleigh with the First church.

....North Carolina is pulling up toward her share of the Home Mission burden. Brother pastor, let us see to it that every church has a chance to help in this matter.

....It is reported in the Evangel that there were three hundred professions in a meeting held by Rev. Jno. T Edmundson—who has many friends in North Carolina—at Milton, Pa.

....The whole country honored Rev. S. F. Smith, D. D., April 8, the venerable Baptist author of our national hymn, "Our Country 'tis of Thee." He is eighty-seven years old.

....Rev. W. V. Savage is aiding Pastor Sanders in a meeting at Murfreesboro. Bro. Savage is one of our ablest preachers and Bro. Sanders one of our safest pastors; they will be blessed.

....After much discussion it has been decided that this, the nineteenth century, will end with the end of the year 1900, and the next, the twentieth century, will begin Jan. 1st, 1901.

....Bro. P. Oliver writes: "Hope you will continue to oppose the unnecessary, unscriptural, human organizations of the day, until all will agree to come back to the one institution of Christ—the church."

....No doubt our readers have missed the letters from Brazil, since Bro. Porter came back; and they will be glad to know that we have engaged Rev. Solomon L. Ginsburg of Campos, Brazil, to write occasionally.

....We are glad to give an account of the Shaw University exercises which occurred recently. This is a magnificent institution and promises inestimable usefulness under President Meserve's vigorous administration.

....Bro. Tucker of Asheville, president of the Western North Carolina Convention was in Raleigh last week. He was very glad that the Asheville First church had called Dr. Felix and was anxious for him to accept.

....The motto of Broadus was "Trust in God and Work." This reminds us of another motto given us by a former brother the other day, "Trust in God as though you could do nothing, and work as though works would save you."

....According to the Year Book there were 175,000 baptisms in 1893, and 205,000 in 1894; contributions in 1893 were $12,560,000; in 1894, $11,670,000. An increase of membership and a decline in contributions would ordinarily be anomalous.

....We have received an invitation from Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Currin to the marriage of their daughter, Dionie, to Rev. Wm. Cornelius Tyree, Thursday afternoon, April 18, 1895, at the Baptist church, Oxford, N. C. This is very good news that will be heard gladly in two States, Virginia and North Carolina.

....We thank Richmond College for an invitation to attend the "Thomas Museum Lectures," eighth course, to be delivered by the distinguished Prof. C. T. Winchester, beginning April 9th.

....The following figures show Baptist increase by steps for a hundred years: 1792, 65,845; 1812, 172,972; 1832, 384,936; 1840, 571,291; 1851, 770,939; 1860, 1,016,184; 1874, 1,633,980; 1885, 2,507,753; 1895, 3,637,421.

....Rev. W. R. Gwaltney of Wake Forest came in to see us last week. He reported all well at the College, and said he was especially gratified with the activity of the young men in the Monday night prayer-meeting.

....The doctrine of Foot-washing has given trouble in some quarters. We offer an editorial on the subject this week. We have an article ventilating the question by a convert from the Foot washers, which we hope to print soon.

....Rev. L. N. Chappell of Chinkiang, China, from whom we publish an earnest letter this week, will return to North Carolina shortly, on account of the failure of his wife's health. He will of course return to his field as soon as possible.

....Revs. J. M. Hilliard and N. B. Orrell will hold a meeting at Bunker Hill, a mission point, beginning Saturday before the fourth Sunday in this month. We are under obligations to Bro. Hilliard for representing us at the Piedmont Union.

....The total value of Baptist church property in the United States is $80,285,034 The value of Baptist church property in North Carolina is $1,485,767. This does not include any except strictly church property, houses of worship, furniture and land.

....When the clipping entitled "The Evangelistic Reformer", printed last week, was found drifting through our exchanges, we had no idea it was of North Carolina origin. We have learned, however, that it was written by Pastor Blackwell of Elizabeth City.

....We are glad to hear of the improvement of the health of Dr. J. L. Carroll of Chapel Hill. He is one of the denomination's pillars in North Carolina, and is good for many more years of effective work. Dr. Thos. Hume has been helping him in his work lately.

....Revivals are becoming more and more frequent. The RECORDER will appreciate accounts of them. We want to present a full record of the Baptist work in North Carolina, and we hope the brethren will not be backward in helping us, because some of the work is done through them.

....Our Record for April reports one addition by baptism to the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle, eleven by letter; two dismissed by letter, and fellowship withdrawn from two. The Sunday school now numbers 1,006, the average attendance during March being 486.

....Rev. C. M. Billings writes from his new pastorate, Greenville: "Our work is moving off nicely. Congregations good and increasing. One young man presented himself for baptism last Sunday night. This church has a bright future, if the members continue to work as they have begun."

....The China-Japan war may be regarded as ended; and all the sensational talk of danger to missionaries ends with it. The fact was, as we pointed out in the beginning, our brethren were about as far from the war as if they had been in America, we often getting news of it before they did.

....We have no objection to publishing the "correction" relative to the Richmond B. Y. P. U. We may state, however, that we quoted our words from the Evangel, which quoted the Norfolk Landmark. Moreover, in the Religious Herald a statement has been published which bears on the subject, and which we hope to submit to our readers.

....There has recently been right much preaching in Raleigh about "sanctification," and in some of the churches persons have professed it. Dr. Carter, in his church prayer-meeting talk last week, remarked: "I have said but little in the recent discussion of sanctification because I have seen no indications that any of you are in imminent danger of professing it."

....We sympathize with the esteemed N. C. Christian Advocate, and thank God that our brethren are less "progressive." Last week our contemporary cleared its tables by publishing everything it had on the subject of individual communion cups, and hopes "the brethren will favor us for a while with contributions on other subjects." The Advocate is very sensibly opposed to change.

....Rev. Junius W. Millard has been called to Henderson. Bro. Millard graduated with the A. M. degree from Wake Forest in 1892 with honor, having received recognition as a writer and speaker. He will have completed a thorough and full course at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary next June. Should he see it in the line of duty to come to Henderson, we will be very glad.

....The members of Buckhorn Baptist church have shown their appreciation of their pastor, Rev. C. W. Scarboro, by presenting him with a handsome purse with which to purchase a new suit. They doubtless had in mind the Southern Baptist Convention, which meets in Washington in May, and, as their pastor hopes to attend, they propose for him to go in good style.—Bertie Ledger.

....A brother sends us the following: "The Flat River Union Meeting held at Creedmore, Granville county, N. C., was an interesting and profitable meeting. Twenty five dollars were given to Rev. J. R. Pace to save the Baptist meeting house at Battleboro; and $9.80 to Foreign Missions. The congregations were large, but still a great many brethren who ought to have been there, were not."

....Rev. J. F. Love's tract, "The Baptist Position," is for sale at the Baptist Supply Store at Raleigh.

....Bro. S. B. Barnes writes that Newsoms and Boykins, Va., have called Bro. Burrows of South Carolina.

....Rev. C. W. Glidewell was ordained to the full work of the gospel ministry at the Pilot Mountain S. S. Association.

....Rev. J. C. Sorrellls, who has belonged to the "Regions Beyond" eight years, writes that he will hold a meeting at Cedar Creek, Rutherford county.

....Pastor T. J. Taylor of Warrenton goes Thursday to Jackson, Ga, to hold a series of meetings for Dr. G. W. Gardner—known to all RECORDER readers.

....The meeting held by Rev. J. T. Jenkins at the Baptist church closed Monday night. The preaching was all the time earnest, the attendance unusually large, and the interest great. There were many professions of faith, and about twenty-three accessions to the church.—Monroe Journal. Pastor Moore baptized twenty one Sunday.

....Missionary R. E Neighbour is assisting Pastor Jones in a meeting at Salisbury; Bro. Pruett of Charlotte is preaching at McAdensville; Pastor Harris is being assisted by Rev. J. H. Shore at Yanceyville; Pastor Johnson is holding meetings at Lumberton; and Bro. Adams has been helping Pastor Richardson at Leaksville. Brethren, let us hear from these meetings.

....Baptists will not worry, if the law in the new charter of Raleigh, taxing church property, be enforced. Taxation of church property is a good and defensible principle. However, those who drew up the Raleigh charter say they intended to have taxed only such property of churches as is not used for church purposes. The law will be duly construed in good season, and until then it is hardly wise to draw conclusions.

....Rev. W. C. Overton of Harrellsville fell dead March 31st, the Charlotte Observer says, when getting ready to take leave of a congregation to which he had been preaching a funeral sermon. Bro. Overton was fifty six years old. He had not been a regular pastor in some time, on account of ill health. He was a good man who quietly did his best for God. We sympathize with his relatives.

....Rev. R. Van Deventer writes, "Yesterday (31st ult.) we had, I think, 150 present at our Y. P. meeting and studied baptism, the place, the mode, the symbol." All this without National or Southern organization; just as we have been saying. Bro. Van Deventer continues, "House crowded last night, would not hold the people. Many went away." We hope to accept Bro. Van Deventer's invitation to come up to Burlington and see his young people at work.

....Rev. J. A. Campbell writes: "Our Union was decidedly the best we have ever had, I think. The discussions were unusually good, the attendance large, and the entertainment all that could be asked for. It was such a great joy to such a noble band of brethren and sisters where only a few years ago we sent a missionary for the first time. We have been having a feast of good things. March 15th Dr. Taylor of Wake Forest gave us at the Academy one of the best lectures we have ever had. Although the night was dark and rainy, the Academy was filled with people to hear the fine address on 'The Making of a Man.' I will not attempt any report of the speech. I judge of its greatness by the effects on my students. All of us have been helped by it, and 'the end is not yet.' We have now enrolled 201 students this year, and have about fifty-five boarders, more than twenty of whom are boarding in 'clubs.'"

....The brethren made us glad last week. Our circulation went up about fifty. There are many evidences of activity in behalf of the RECORDER, and no wonder, since we are meeting the brethren half way with our trial offer. Almost every week awhile back some sister sent us a subscriber; we keep looking for others. Bro. J. M. Beatty, a newspaper man and a staunch Baptist, got nine subscribers for us at the Union Meeting at Clayton; Rev. J. W. Suttle sent us three, this being by no means the first list he has sent us lately; Rev. L. R. Dixon sent one with a renewal, Bro. C. C. Jones of Cameron sent one, Rev. J. A. Campbell sent two, making eighteen he has sent, Rev. J. A. Stradley, who has done as much as any other man to make the RECORDER a success, sent three and a renewal, Dr. Durham brought us a club of five from Jonesboro, and reported a fine Union Meeting and a good day's work at Roseboro, where the brethren intend to have a church, Rev. J. M. White sent two news ones, and reported the Union Meeting at Swift Creek briefly, "attendance medium Saturday crowd Sunday"—when Bro. White preached,—"collection for Home Mission."

....Rev. Charles A. G. Thomas writes: "We had a good Union Meeting. I never attended a better. Here in Greensboro we have had professions every Sunday night for the past month, and the interest continues without any unusual effort. Brother Lane preached for us yesterday morning (31st ult.). He is a man of good parts and very earnest in his work. We expect much of him in his labors as missionary in the Piedmont." Bro. Thomas asks this question: "May it not be that many brethren are like Bro. Bridges, they have regions around them to work rather than beyond? This is the case in Piedmont Association. We have five churches and about thirteen mission points. Some work must be given to the regions around as well as the 'regions beyond.' I am sure all the brethren are in sympathy with Bro. Jones' suggestion, but demands near by keep them from volunteering to go to other points. May the Lord bless the regions everywhere, as well as beyond and around." If we understand the "Regions Beyond" plans, any one who holds a meeting at any of the thirteen mission points (for instance) that Bro. Thomas mentions, belongs on the roll.

....Dr. Durham will leave Raleigh next Thursday, via Washington, for Swan Quarter, Rose Bay, and other points in Hyde county. He will, next Sunday, preach the sermon at the dedication of the new house of worship in Hyde county, and will be in that section about twelve days. Bro. Lamberth and Bro. Caddell will accompany Dr. Durham. We hope to get a full report of this occasion from Rev. Josiah Elliott, the man who has sacrificed so much and worked so hard to get this foothold in Hyde.

....There have been seventeen professions at Caraleigh Mills, and the meeting is still in progress. The converts are mostly grown people. Last Sunday afternoon and night four men from twenty-two to sixty years of age claimed a hope. Rev. A. D. Hunter is being helped in the work by Bro. John T. Pullen and the members of Fayetteville Street church, which is a live, active church. Dr. Durham preached for the West Raleigh church Sunday night, so as to let the pastor continue his services in this meeting.

....Baptists own a great deal of educational property, and they should be proud of it. The following are the latest figures: Theological seminaries, seven, total value of property $3,514,108, instructors 67, pupils 937, endowment $2,418,550; universities and colleges 35, total value of property $19,370,888, instructors 722, pupils 9,385 (preparing for ministry 946), endowment $10,557,158; seminaries for education of women 27, total value $3,780,047, instructors 407, pupils 3,433, endowment $1,188,471; seminaries and academies co-educating 56, total value of property $3,845,146, instructors 397, pupils 12,774 (preparing for the ministry 466) endowment $1,229,400; institutions for colored races 34, instructors 259, pupils 4,808 (preparing for ministry 371), endowment $125,000, value of buildings and property, $1,259,750, total value of property $1,417,438. The grand totals are as follows: Number of institutions 159, number of instructors, males 1,119, females 734, pupils 31,337 (preparing for the ministry 2,715), value of grounds and buildings $14,499,782, amount of endowment $15,513,579, value of libraries and operators $1,914,263, amount of gifts in 1894 $1,375,059, volumes in libraries 884,867, total value of property $31,927,624. With these institutions sending out a constant supply of forces, we are bound to go forward.

A Noble Example.

How can any one read the following letter without first thanking God that there are such people in the world, and second praying that the Lord would multiply the number of such among His saints until the land should be full of those ready to deny themselves for the Master's cause "much to their spiritual benefit."

Let such an example stimulate all North Carolina to the highest devotion to the cause of Missions. I. T. TICHENOR.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 1, 1895.

Rev. Dr. I. T. TICHENOR, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Brother:—About ten days ago you wrote a letter to "The Pastors, First Baptist church, Asheville N. C., care of J. H. Tucker, "in which you ask that our church take a collection for your Board at once. We had already taken steps to this end, and many of our members had agreed to observe a self-denial and give our savings to the Board.

You know that our debt and sending Miss Lottie Price to China have greatly drawn on our resources, and about the only way we could now help our Home Board was to save by denying ourselves; this we have done, much to our spiritual benefit, and the result is we will send you between $50 and $75. In addition to this my wife has written to all the Ladies' Societies of our Convention, emphasizing the importance of immediate action, giving in detail the needs of the Board, and urging a good collection for you at once. Some have already responded, and we hope others will.

In addition to the above, I have written a letter to the Western North Carolina Baptist for this work. I have requested the editor to send you a copy of this paper containing the letter.

Hoping the brethren will pay this debt at once, I remain fraternally,

J. H. TUCKER.

Only a Few Days—Help Now.

Dear Recorder:—Please permit me to call the attention of our churches to their duty to the heathen once more, during this Conventional year. A few days more will determine our contribution. We have intended all the year to give something—let us do it now. What we do, or what we fail to do, will effect the condition of the Board's finances. "But the nobles put not their necks to the work of their Lord." I wonder if 157,000 nobles in North Carolina have put their gifts in this work this year and their shoulders to this wheel!

I cannot write of large sums from the few strong churches or rich brethren; but I can beseech each one and beg every one to come up to the help of this work and give as the Lord has given to you.

Let North Carolina Baptists be not satisfied with giving many sons and daughters, but let her lay her gold as well as her life on this altar. R. VAN DEVENTER.

Help Coming on the Debt.

Dear Bro. Editor:—Perhaps you think I am importunate and that I have already written enough to your readers; but bear with me, the case is an important one. Kept at home by providential circumstances, I must speak again of the work which rests on my heart. We thank God for the gifts which are coming in. Let me take courage and press the work at every point.

I call on every pastor and ask him to help. I call on every Sunday-school teacher and officer, on every lover of God and his cause, and ask them to help. Let no one read this and throw it aside, but each send $1.00, $5.00, $100, or whatever each one can. Get others to help also. Our books close for the year April 30th, but we are having heavy payments to meet almost daily. Let no one try to excuse himself, but help with others who are making heavy sacrifices for the work's sake. God loves this work. He gave his Son for the lost. We are working with him and he will bless us. Remember his word, 2 Cor: 9: 6, "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." Yours in His service,

R. J. WILLINGHAM, Cor. Sec.

Sunday-school Missionaries.

At a meeting of the Board of Missions and Sunday-schools, Feb. 26th, 1895, there was appointed a committee of three to formulate a plan of the work to be done and report at the next meeting of the Board on the following:

"Resolved, That the Board of Missions and Sunday-schools be instructed to appoint a Sunday school missionary or missionaries to labor in the bounds of the North Carolina Baptist Convention."

The above resolution was adopted by the last Convention, and is printed in the minutes on page 57.

The report given below was made to the Board, April 2nd, and, after due consideration, was unanimously adopted:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

"Your committee appointed at the last meeting of the Board to report a plan of work for the Sunday-school missionary or missionaries provided for by a resolution of the Baptist State Convention of 1894, page 57 of the minutes, beg to submit the following:

FIELDS.

1. The Convention to be divided into two sections—Eastern and Western.

2. The Eastern Section to include the Pee Dee, Montgomery, Sandy Creek, Piedmont and Beulah Associations, and all of the Associations east of them.

3. The Western Section to include the Union, Stanly, Liberty and Pilot Mountain Associations, and all the Associations in the Convention west of them.

SCOPE OF THE WORK AND DUTIES OF MISSIONARIES.

1. To gather and tabulate by Association the Sunday-school statistics within the Convention.

2. To secure in each and every Baptist Sunday-school, and in each and every Union Meeting, and in each and every Association, some suitable brother to co-operate with the missionary and to represent the general work in his school, or in his Union Meeting, or in his Association.

3. To secure the organization of new schools in churches where there are no schools, and at school-houses and central points in the destitute territory where schools ought to exist.

4. To encourage the use of the best Sunday school and mission literature, the purchase and distribution of the Scriptures, the purchase and use of suitable Sunday school libraries and song books; and in these things, so far as practicable and to the best interest of the Convention's work, to co-operate with its Supply Store.

5. To encourage the liberal support of the general Sunday school work of the Convention, and to secure, so far as possible, regular and special contributions for it.

6. To impart needed information about the Sunday-school work in the Convention, and to make full quarterly reports to the Board of Missions and Sunday-schools of the work done, progress made, expenses incurred and collections secured.

7. To forward, at least monthly, to the Treasurer of the Convention, all collections made, or proper vouchers therefor, to the Board."

THE COMMITTEE CONTINUED WITH INSTRUCTIONS.

At the meeting of the Board, on April 2nd, the committee was continued with instructions to secure, by correspondence and otherwise, information about the work, and the most suitable and available brethren for the work. The Board is to meet at the call of its President on the request of the committee so soon as the committee is ready to make a report with nominations. The committee would be glad to have suggestions from any brother interested about the work to be done and suitable men who could be secured to do it. Please send such suggestions to some member of the committee at an early day.

Closing Exercises of the Professional Schools of Shaw University.

The closing exercises of the graduating class of the Missionary Training School occurred Wednesday evening, March 28, 1895. There were six graduates—one, Miss Estey Carolina Fleming, from the Congo Free State, Africa, entered Shaw about six years ago. She will return next June to her native land and enter upon missionary work among her own people. Dr. J. W. Carter, pastor of the First (white) Baptist church, Raleigh, delivered the address, which was able, practical and instructive.

The closing exercises of the Leonard Medical School and School of Pharmacy, took place on the evening of March 27th. The salutatory—Milestones that Mark the Progress of Medicine—was delivered by Mr. W. T. Fuller, Danville, Va. Mr. J. M. Benson of the School of Pharmacy delivered the class oration. Mr. E. S. Haynes of New Amsterdam, British Guiana, was the valedictorian of the Medical Class of '95. These young men gave evidence of well trained and disciplined minds, and proved themselves worthy of the honors conferred upon them. To the regret of all, Hon. John C. Scarborough, who was to deliver the annual address, was detained at home on account of sickness. Dr. A. W. Curtis, in an interesting and impressive speech, conferred degrees upon eight graduates of the Medical School and five of the School of Pharmacy. It was stated by the Medical Faculty that this was the best class in scholarship that has ever graduated from this department of the University.

The closing exercises of the Law School were held on Thursday evening, March 28th. Mr. W. B. Hunter of Raleigh was the salutatorian. Subject: Motive, the Cause of Human Action. Mr. W. S. Miller of Nashville, Tenn., delivered the oration. Subject: The Legal Status of the Negro of America. Mr. Raphael O'Hara of Newbern was the valedictorian. Hon. D. M. Furches, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, made the address before the Graduating Class and Mr. T. R. Purnell of Raleigh conferred the degrees.

On each occasion there was a large and appreciative audience. All the friends of Shaw were delighted to see Hon. Elijah Shaw, one of the warmest friends and strongest supporters of this grand institution, on the rostrum at the side of President McServe, on the evenings of the closing exercises of the Medical and Law Schools.

Never were the indications of substantial growth and progress of the different departments of Shaw University more marked than on these occasions. COR.

Information Wanted.

McDOWELLS AND IRWINS.

Editor Recorder:—I am getting material for a history of the McDowells and Irwins of America. The McDowells and Irwins of North Carolina, having been prominent in the Revolutionary War, I would be glad to correspond with any of either name who will give names, residence, and incidents connected with their families and ancestors.

Gen. Robert Irwin of your State was one of the twenty-four signers of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence.

Supposing that a number of your readers would be interested by name and ancestry in aiding me to get this information, I ask that you kindly publish this call and oblige

I very much enjoyed Dr. Pritchard's masterly sermon on Christian Union. It was a manly, solid, statement of the Baptist position, breathing the spirit of the Divine Master, and ought to have a wide circulation.

Broadus Memorial Services in Richmond.

DR. HIDDEN'S FINE ESTIMATE.

The memorial meeting held at the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon in honor of Rev. Dr. John A. Broadus was a popular tribute to a good and great man.

Seated on the pulpit rostrum were Rev. Drs. Hatcher, Hiden, Ryland, Dill, Landrum, Tupper, Cooper, Thomas, Harris, and Willingham, and Rev. Messrs. Mercer and Tupper. All of these ministers took part in the services, which were impressive throughout. Dr. Hatcher presided. The speaker was impressed by the large number of snow-crowned heads, mean and momen, who knew Dr. Broadus well, had heard him at his best, and cherished in their hearts the deepest affection for him. They were met to pay a tribute to one of the simplest, yet strongest, of men. Dr. Hatcher referred feelingly to the fact that Dr. Broadus's last visit to Richmond was just one year ago this day, when he dedicated the new Grace-Street Baptist church.

AS SCHOLAR AND PREACHER.

In conclusion Dr. Hatcher presented Rev. Dr. J. C. Hiden, who spoke of Dr. Broadus as scholar and preacher. The law of heredity, Dr. Hiden began, has made a great stir in the philosophical world of late. I do not sympathize with the views of the extreme doctrinaires on this subject, but there is doubtless something in the law, as expounded by its more sober and rational advocates. Some forty five years ago, during my childhood in Orange county, Va., I used to hear of a Whig politician, Major Edmund Broadus, who had evidently given trouble to the Democrats across the Rapidan, in Culpeper. The great champions of Democracy in that region were Governor William Smith—"Extra Billy" he was familiarly called—one of the adroitest politicians and stump speakers that Virginia ever produced; and old John S. Barbour, one of the most splendid orators in Congress. Major Broadus was not a professional man, and nobody ever thought of him as an orator, and yet the two famous Democratic speakers found it hard to hold their own against his plain, pointed, popular "talks" to the country people, who assembled on court-day to hear the candidates. It was largely through his influence that Culpeper, which was one of the "close" counties, was kept for years steadily voting for a Whig delegate to the Legislature.

He was a staunch Baptist; and, in conducting the canvass he had made up his mind that it was not right to "treat" the voters to "drinks"—a practice which, I am ashamed to say, was quite common among candidates of all parties. His friends remonstrated, saying "The party will be defeated, and you will lose your seat." But Edmund Broadus stood firm, and was elected. Indeed, he was never defeated in any contest before the people.

AS FATHER, LIKE SON.

In John A. Broadus's "Sermons and Addresses" we have some work of the son of the old "wheel-horse of whiggery" in Culpeper, and the same vigorous common sense, the same absence of mere display, the same intuitive skill in putting things—all so characteristic of the father—are strikingly manifest in the son. In the address on "College Education for Men of Business" these qualities are pre-eminently displayed. It is beyond all comparison the best discussion of the subject that I have ever seen.

As a scholar Dr. Broadus was equally distinguished for breadth and for accuracy. He never ceased to learn. He hungered and thirsted after knowledge. When Toy came from Germany, loaded with Sanskirt, Broadus was soon sitting as a pupil at his feet, diligently studying the strange old tongue, for he had already seen that it was the key to unlock the rich treasures hid away in the vaults of comparative philology, and it stirred his scholarly soul to know that now, for the first time, he had the opportunity to become acquainted with the elder sister of every language spoken and written in cultivated Europe—ancient and modern.

As a New-Testament scholar he was especially pre eminent. His intimate acquaintance with the nicest points of Greek is admirably applied in his commentary on Matthew. It was with a very genuine delight that I read that commentary straight through very soon after it left the hands of the printer.

His simplicity was, perhaps, his most marked characteristic. Even when speaking or writing upon the most recondite subjects, and for scholarly hearers or readers, he used plain English. In addressing an audience at the University of Virginia he used scarcely a word that would puzzle the plainest man. His splendid "Memorial" of our honored old professor, Gessner Harrison, is almost child-like in its simplicity, and it is perhaps the noblest monument erected by a son-in-law to his father-in-law since Tacitus immortalized Agricola.

STOOD IN THE FIRST RANK.

As a preacher Dr. Broadus stood in the very first rank in his generation. His exegetical sense was, so far as I know, unsurpassed. As an expository preacher I have not known his equal. Many of his published sermons are models of painstaking and scholarly exposition; and yet they are singularly free from dry, technical, professorial details. They do not "smell of the lamp," but the thoughts seem to flow—and what is better, they do flow—right out of the text in its proper connection. Some of these sermons I have heard coming "mended" from the lips of the great preacher, when he was in his best mood. Others I have read in pamphlet, or in newspapers, as they have appeared in one form or another, during the last thirty-five years. But, though the book ("Sermons and Addresses") fell into my hands just when I was in the throes of removing from one field of labor to another, I was compelled to find—almost to make—the time to read it straight through, with the greatest relish, from cover to cover. For [illegible] a year I heard Bro. Broadus regularly, and I have often said that I would prefer him as a constancy to any preacher I ever heard. He was gifted with a fine imagination, and he used it with wonderful skill, especially in realizing Biblical scenes, countries, and characters. His sermon on "Job" and on "John the Baptist" were splendid monuments to his skill and power in this direction. His description of the beheading of John, and of the reception of the bloody head by the dancing daughter of Herodias was one of the most powerfully dramatic that I ever heard from any speaker.

"He was a man, take him for all in all, I shall not look upon his like again.

The Beggar's Feast—A New Year's Scene.

BY REV. L. N. CHAPPELL

"For ye have the poor always with you; but me ye have not always." These words of our Lord are true of the Chinese people so far as the poor are concerned, and they are, alas, without Christ! China is a beggared nation, poverty stricken, suffers dreadfully from famines when thousands perish; and even in prosperous years, many perish on the streets of hunger, cold and the diseases attendant upon abject poverty. The great mass of China's four hundred millions are poor; and according to our ideas of poverty in the prosperous West, more than half of the population are abjectly poor, and lie awake at night, wondering how they will keep the gaunt wolf from the door. How shall we exhort them "not to be anxious about what ye shall eat and what ye shall drink," when this is the supreme thought, the grim, carking care that is eating out all the happiness from life; which is paralyzing the hearts of thousands, crushing out all good, generous, unselfish emotions, and is making this poor people more and more materialized, hard-hearted, unsympathetic, selfish, envious and brutish in heart and mind. We are not surprised to see that the beggar class is a large one, and that their condition is indescribably wretched, filthy, immoral, and sickening to eye and ear. We should expect to see them dying like dogs on the street, of hunger, cold of the most loathsome diseases, in rags and nakedness, in the most pitiable and heart-touching helplessness and friendlessness. They are accounted by their countrymen not only unfortunate, but cursed out of heaven, suffering the punishment due to their wickedness, and unworthy of human pity. All money given to them is to secure merit to the giver, and not because of love or pity.

A man dying on the street, no matter how needy his case, will not be received under any roof, fearing lest the vengeance of heaven, fallen on this reprobate, will be diverted to the inmates of this house.

On Chinese New Year I beheld a sight I can never forget, nor can I describe the emotions which arise in my heart. It is the Beggar's Feast prepared for them by the Christian community, of Chinkiang, and at which it is my duty to be present and see that it is properly managed. Gathered together in a squalid, filthy house, called the "Beggar's Home" or resort, are seventy-five or one hundred of the most pitiable human beings I ever saw. Old and young, male and female, little children of all ages, in all imaginable sorts of filthy rags and in semi-nude condition, huddled together and shivering in the winter's cold, they crouched there looking up into my face more like wild animals than human beings. And when I think that these are they for whom Christ died as well as for me, and that he loves their souls and bodies, too, my heart is inexpressibly sad, and I think, "Is there no hope! Can the gospel reach such as these! Yes, it was to such beggared blind, sick, lame, dumb, palsied, leprous ones as these that Christ came. He was the friend and Saviour of the poor, the sinner's friend who was not afraid of the most polluting touch. And shall we shrink from doing what we can!"

Miss McKenzie has come with me to play on the organ. I talk to them of Jesus. We sing "Jesus loves me, this I know." Some eyes are filled with tears, and we hope that the message of Jesus' love has touched some hearts. We pray to God to bless the food. Then comes in the food, one great tub of steaming rice and one tub of boiled pork, with a kind of sauce in a large iron bucket. Oh, how eagerly they crowd around, bringing old gourds, broken crocks, bowls, dirty baskets, bags, their old dirty hats, and various nondescript vessels to receive their share of rice and meat, always begging that the vessel be piled a little higher; and then hurrying off to gulp it down ravenously like half starved beasts, and then to come again. Our hearts are overcome, and we must leave this scene before the feast is concluded.

Dear friends, can you not help us do something for these poor people of China! They may be very poor and far gone in the scale of human being; but the love of Jesus can save the lowest and the basest. Think of the pit of iniquity from which we were saved.

In God's sight were we so very far removed from them! Is there no sympathy in your hearts, ye redeemed souls! Can you not help send others! Can you not come! Are the times hard, and are you poor in this world's goods! Think of their poverty. Beside their poverty, are you not ashamed to think of yours! Think of starving souls and starving bodies. Can you not make some sacrifice to save some of these among the perishing millions of China!

I feel sure that if the real condition of these poor people were known by our brethren and sisters, that more would be done to give them the gospel. It is not because the books and papers do not tell of it. Oh! read and think, and pray and give! Give yourselves and all you have to Jesus, to be used as his blessed Spirit shall direct.

was a living skeleton; the doctor said he was dying of Marasmus and Indigestion. At 13 months he weighed only seven pounds. Nothing strengthened or fattened him. I began using Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites, feeding it to him and rubbing it into his body. He began to fatten and is now a beautiful dimpled boy. The Emulsion seemed to supply the one thing needful.

the price, Pure White Lead is the best and cheapest paint, because of its great spreading power and durability. Properly applied, it never chips or scales, thus forming the best possible base for subsequent repainting. The price of Pure White Lead is now lower than ever before in this country (see list genuine brands).

Tint the White Lead to any shade of color desired with the National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead tinting colors, prepared especially for this purpose. Send for pamphlet giving information and color-card. It is free.

Concerning the Report.

It is with very great pleasure that we present to the Society the best report they have enabled us to send out for more than a year and a half. Mrs. J. A. Briggs, the Secretary, expressed the gratification and surprise of the Central Committee in a word when she said, "It is splendid."

The causes for this great improvement are not far to seek. At the presentation of our annual report in December, many of the Societies were, we believe, grieved and astonished to learn how a little laxness here and there had injured, not only their own Society's work, but that of the organization as a whole, and resolved from that time, with hard times or in spite of them, to take new hold upon the work. The result proves that something besides hard times will be to blame if in the future we fall back to the former level of contributions. What this something is, we leave each one to decide for herself.

While before the year and a half of which we speak we had had, perhaps, six quarterly reports as large as the one now presented, we have never had one which showed so large an amount given through boxes to the frontier missionaries. This is probably the largest amount for this purpose which we shall have to chronicle this year. But the end is not yet. There are at present eight letters from frontier missionaries in the hands of Societies, which are beginning to prepare boxes for them, and two others are asked for. But for all this, good as it is, we could have wished that, at least, the boxes reported this quarter, had been sent three months before. Few reached their destination before Christmas, and much suffering which might have been relieved was thus entailed upon the missionaries and their families. Only to-day we are in receipt of a letter from another State requesting us to urge the Society to send their boxes in September. We do this most heartily and emphatically. "He helps twice who helps quickly."

The fulfilment and disappointment of hopes generally go hand in hand. While the total amount reported exceeds our expectations, that given as a Christmas Offering to China falls below. We had hoped that this Offering would reach $500. Before Christmas we wrote to each Society asking each to give a certain amount. Some tried and fell a little short; some tried and reached the mark; some tried and went over it,—and from the results it is evident some did not try at all. Unlike the report of boxes, we have twice made a better Christmas Offering. In 1892 we gave $367 03; in 1893, $361.34; in 1895, however, we dropped much below the other years, giving only $144 98. Thus it will be seen that the report made now is $311.19 (eleven dollars having been reported last quarter), though not equal to our hope, is yet not very far behind the largest we have made.

What will strike all who have been in the habit of seeing the Woman's Missionary Reports previous to this, as a feature, is heading each Association in which there are Vice-Presidents, with the name and address of these officers, with the number of Societies organized by them during the quarter. It must not be thought that those who report no Societies organized have not been at work. This is only one tangible result of such work. It must be remembered, too, that during this quarter the weather has not been such as to encourage organization. In view of this fact the number of new Societies reported is quite remarkable. Next quarter we hope for even a larger number.

It will be noticed, of course, that there are only nine Vice-Presidents mentioned, in as many Associations. This is not as we would wish, or as it should be; but so far we have been unable to find ladies willing and able to undertake this work in other Associations. As soon as such are found, the vacancies will be filled. The number has been decreased during the present quarter by the removal to other Associations of Mrs. Van Deventer, Vice-President of the Tar River Association, and Mrs. Johnson, Vice-President of the eastern half of the Pee Dee Association. Their places will be hard to fill.

Between Ourselves.

It is too early yet to say to what extent the week of self-denial for Home Missions was observed in the Woman's Missionary Societies of North Carolina. Later we hope to be able to report more fully of this matter.

In the First church, Raleigh, a most touching letter from a frontier missionary was read, and the whole congregation was asked to join in the week of self-denial, that others, suffering like privations, might be relieved.

A mother in the Robeson Association writes that her two little boys denied themselves to the extent of thirty cents each. The mother's denial amounted to $2 50, but she says, "I feel that our children have put us to shame."

One very gratifying result of the week has been to stimulate interest in what Dr. I. T. Tichenor calls "the blessed work of box packing." Although more boxes have been sent by our North Carolina Societies than ever before, eight others are now in course of preparation.

The W. M. S. of the First church, Wilmington, decided, says Mrs. W. P. Oldham, to have a prayer-meeting on each day of the week, each lady in the meanwhile trying to deny herself of something. This Society has packed a splendid box for a frontier missionary this winter, and has just sent off a box to the Orphanage.

Miss Grace T. Brown, Vice-President of the Central Committee for West Chowan Association, Mrs. J. Hartwell Edwards, Vice-President of the Robeson Association, and Mrs. Frank Bennett, Vice-President for the Pee Dee Association, all urged the Societies in their respective Associations to observe the week of self denial.

Mrs. J. A. Randall, Secretary of the Society at Aberdeen, says: "We are observing the week of self-denial, and are making great efforts to secure a nice contribution for the Home Board. Our Society has decided to send a box to a frontier missionary with a small family, and we are determined that every article therein shall be new and serviceable. The Society is small, but our meetings are very interesting."

It is a significant and touching fact that the first Society to report funds raised during this week was the Society in the fire-plagued town of Kinston. During the week Mrs. R. H. Lewis wrote: "We are observing a week of prayer and self-denial, and hope to send you at least $5.00 next Monday; but our people have been greatly reduced financially by recent incendiary fires." On the Monday following, Miss Draughan sent nine dollars and five cents as the self-denial fund. She adds: "Another fire last night. Kinston seems to be doomed." We trust not, indeed.

Any number of instances of interest in the week might be given. Let the following suffice. A mother says, since reading about the home missionaries, "Elsie is saving all her doll things, and says her best belongings shall go into the box for the missionaries children." In another household a little boy and girl begged so persistently that they were allowed to give up their breakfast porridge as their particular self-denial.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

Our children, relations, friends, honors, houses, lands and endowments, the goods of nature and of fortune—nay, even of grace itself—are only lent. It is our misfortune, and, it may be added, our sin, to fancy they are given. We start therefore, and are angry when the loan is called in. We think ourselves masters when we are only stewards, and forget that to each of us it will one day be said, "Give an account of thy stewardship."—Bishop Horne.

O trust thyself to Jesus when some truth
thou canst not see,
For the mists of strife and error that veil its form from thee:
Then is the time for waiting on him to guide
thee right,
Then is the time for singing, "The Lord shall be my light."—Sel.

The consolation of God, the joys of the Holy Ghost, are these still waters by which the saints are led—streams which flow from the fountain of living waters and make glad the city of our God.—Henry.

Half Price to Ministers!

Sermons, Addresses and Reminiscences,

BY

Rev. THOS. E. SKINNER, D. D.

In order that every minister in North Carolina may have an opportunity to place this valuable and interesting book in his library, and for the purpose of introducing it, we offer it to ministers, by mail, postpaid, for sixty five cents (65).

Fifty cents for the book and fifteen cents for postage.

The book contains 450 pages of clear print, on good paper, and is handsomely bound in cloth. The regular price of the book is $1.15, by mail, and is considered very cheap at that.

Our offer to ministers is to send the book by mail for 65 cents. We shall keep this offer open for a limited time. If you want the book, send your order at once. Address,

EDWARDS & BROUGHTON,

Publishers, Raleigh, N. C.

Read What is Said of the Book.

Dr. Charles E. Taylor says: "A most valuable contribution to the religious literature of North Carolina. If the book shall have the wide circulation which it deserves, I believe it will be used of God for the awakening and conversion of very many."

Dr. J. B Gambrell, President of Mercer University, Georgia, has the following to say in "The Index": "The whole book is juicy, soulful and helpful toward a wider range of things and a better spiritual life. It is a good Sunday book. The Sermons deal with matters of life and death, and the Addresses touch on many practical topics, while the Reminiscences, especially of the author's conversion and spiritual life, are rich with a heavenly flavor."

"Every pastor, and especially every young Baptist preacher in North Carolina, ought to have a copy of Dr. Skinner's book. If I had the means it would be a great pleasure to me to send a copy of it to every young preacher in the State."—C. Durham.

Does Your Boy Need Britannica?

Youth

It is the Formative period. It is then that the mind is freest from care, the imagination unhampered, the memory most retentive, the eye brightest, and the nature most susceptible. What a boy reads in this period becomes so indelibly impressed upon his nature that it becomes a part of his very character.

This is a time when a parent's responsibility is greatest. It is not enough to tell the boy what he ought to become. Most boys are not overly susceptible to didactic teaching. You can usually lead him a mile easier than you can drive him a rod. See that he has the proper surroundings, and a little encouragement, and it is surprising how readily he develops a taste for the best in literature. Let that taste be developed, and there is little danger as to his future.

It was

Dr. Philips Brooks

Who said, "Show me what books a boy reads, and I will read you his destiny."

How important it is, then, that your home should be provided with books of the highest character.

Fairy tales, and even, perhaps, "Buffalo Bill" stories, have their place as developers of a taste for reading, a sort of starter with, as it were, but unless the boy soon shows a preference for the stronger meat of practical knowledge, history, travel, etc., you may be sure that he is mentally unsound, or that there has been something radically wrong in his education.

The Encyclopedia Britannica has rightly been termed "the concentrated essence of the whole world's wisdom." Let your boy read its interesting pages, and he will soon look with disdain upon "trashy" literature. We are continually underestimating a boy's capacity for large ideas. There is nothing so attractive as truth. Give him the material out of which to construct large ideas. Put Britannica in the home, where he can consult it continually, and as he attains manhood he will find no place in literary or professional life to which he may not aspire.

Seize the present opportunity to provide a proper library for your home. It requires an investment of but Ten Cents a day. If you order from THE CHARLOTTE OBSERVER while it may be had at introductory prices.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

A Loan & Trust Company has been started at Salisbury, and stock subscriptions are being solicited for an insurance company at Raleigh.——The Methodists will build a second church at Concord.——Another party of Northern mill men has been prospecting in our State; they were reported as particularly well impressed with the mills at Henrietta.——Large catches of fish from our eastern waters are reported. The trucking season has also opened.——A decline in the price of monazite has been effected. A process of mining it that is thorough and cheap is said to have been invented.——The Confederate monument at Raleigh has been completed; it will be unveiled May 20th.——Hon. Montford McGeehee, ex-Commissioner of Agriculture died March 31st, at Raleigh.——A $100,000 cotton factory will be erected at Salem by the Southside Manufacturing Company.——The handsome First Presbyterian church at Charlotte will be finished this week. The Methodists will build another church at Charlotte.——Jas. S. Wilcox, a Republican politician who killed the Democratic registrar in Pasquotank county last October, was tried before Judge Boykin at Elizabeth City last week. Wilcox was found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to 15 years in the penitentary. His case was appealed and he was released, pending the appeal, on a bond of $10,000.—Charlotte Observer.——The Methodist Protestant church at High Point is nearing completion.——A new cotton mill at High Point is probable.——Mr. Robt. I. Rogers died suddenly at Durhan April 4th.——A new cotton factory will be put up at Thomasville, says the News.——Supt. Leazer recently bought two car-loads of mules for the Penitentiary.——The Supreme Court has relieved the restless condition of the State brought on by the anti-mortgage law. As foreshadowed last week a decision to the effect that this law is operative only so far as to prevent preferences in assignments was handed down, Justice Montgomery writing it, the Chief Justice and Justices Clark and Furches agreeing, Justice Avery dissenting on the ground that no properly constituted case has been before the Court, in which opinion Justice Clark concurred, but was more desirous of relieving a distressing situation than prolonging the trouble on a technical matter. It seems that the law never passed either branch of the Assembly, and therefore, that one of the clerks is to blame.

In General.

City elections held in many States April 1st went mostly Republican.——A $40,000 fire occured at Lynchburg, Va., throwing one hundred men out of employment April 2nd.——The Southern Railway boycott and the Seaboard Air Line cut rates continue, although efforts are being made to bring about a settlement.——It has been asserted on considerable authority that the Supreme Court will decide that an income tax is constitutional.——The Cuban troubles continue, and Spain is sending over troops to overcome the rebellion.——Minister Ranson has reached Mexico in poor state of health.——Richmond, Va., will build a monument to Gen. J. E. B. Stewart.——$5,000,000 iron works were set in motion at Lorain, Pa., last week——By authority of the recent congress the President has appointed a committee to investigate the Nicaragua canal proposals.

A Pretty Face

is the result of a healthy physical condition. "Beauty is but skin deep" yet it greatly depends on a clear complexion, free from wrinkles and hollow cheeks.

Health always brings wealth of beauty. A healthy state of the system comes with Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a medicine prepared for woman's ailments—it cures those derangements and weaknesses which make woman's life miserable.

A woman who neglects to take proper exercise is particularly prone to excessive congestion, debility and a sluggish circulation. This is the time we advise the "Prescription." In all derangements and displacements of the special organs which result in "signs of inflamation," in catarrhal discharges from the linning membranes, and in distressing irregularities—this medicine is guaranteed to cure, or the money will be returned.

Notes from Caldwell Association.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—The fourth session of the Caldwell County S. S. Association convened with Union church on Friday before the 4th Sunday in March. Bro. H. M. Croom was chosen Moderator, and Bro. G. M. Icenhour, Clerk. The annual sermon was preached by Bro. Croom.

The brethren think this the best session in the history of the Association. The subjects all related to S. S. work, and were warmly and interestingly discussed.

Bro. Isaac Oxford was present, hale and hearty. He took an active part in the work of the Association. He is in his eighty-fourth or eighty-fifth year, and promises to live a number of years yet. We all wish he may be permitted to reach one hundred. We have another aged minister in this county, Bro. Edmond Tilley. He is near eighty, but not so stout as Bro. Oxford. For a number of years he was one of the most active pastors in the county, but has not been in the pastorate for some years.

CHURCHES.

I am still trying to serve Lenoir, Lower Creek, King's Creek and North Catawba. Owing to the severe winter through which we have passed, I had to miss some of my appointments, and much of the time had small congregations, and as a consequence, the churches are cold, and we have not done much for the Master. I have recently taken collections in all my churches for Home Missions, and we will do what we can in this month for Foreign Missions.

Two of my churches are almost a unit for the Gospel Mission, and two are divided. In these we use envelopes, requesting the contributor to designate on the back of the envelop whether the contribution is to go through the Board or to the Gospel Mission, and we carry out the wish of the contributor strictly. There is no unpleasantness or friction whatever.

Three of my churches have evergreen Sunday-schools, and the other has started up, and I hope may become evergreen. At North Catawba and Lenoir we have excellent superintendents; at the former, Bro. R. L. Moore, and the latter, Bro. Jos. Powell, Jr. These brethren have worked up an interest in their Sunday schools equal to any I know in this part of the State. At Lenoir, Bro. Powell's school is well-nigh the equal of any in the town. At this point we had hoped to have Bro. J. D. Hufham conduct a series of meetings for this spring, but up to this time I have failed to hear from him. You may put me down for a week's meeting somewhere during the summer or fall, if not providentially prevented. I am thinking I will do the work in Ashe or Alleghany, but can't speak definitely at present.

OTHER CHURCHES AND PASTORS.

Bro. J. M. Shaver is pastor of Union church, and is loved by his people. He is a good preacher and a devoted Christian.

Bro. J. H. Nelson is pastor of Piny Grove church, and has been instrumental in greatly increasing the membership of the church.

Bro. C. C. Pool is pastor of Yadkin and Blair's Fork churches, preaching at Yadkin on Saturday and Sunday 11 a. m., and Blair's Fork Sunday afternoon. He is a good preacher and an earnest worker. He is about fifty years old and has baptized about two thousand persons. Last August he baptized forty persons in two weeks.

Bro. A. J. Crisp is pastor of Mt. Grove and Zack's Fork churches.

Bro. Dean Crisp is pastor at Rocky Spring, Greene Valley and John's River churches.

Bro. W. R. Bradshaw is pastor at Granite Falls, and has been called to the pastorate of Globe, but I am not advised as to his acceptance.

Bro. H. M. Croom is not, at present, pastor of any church. He has recently visited Glen Alpine, and it is rumored that he may locate there.

Yesterday we buried an excellent young man, J. C. Smith, member of Lower Creek church. He was twenty five years old and an exemplary Christian. He died of consumption contracted, he thought, while living at Asheville.

The RECORDER is full of good things of late. I have been a close reader of its columns for twenty years and am confident it was never better than now. May it and its editor live long to enlighten, comfort, lead and help its readers.

Fraternally, I. W. THOMAS.
Hibriten, April 3, 1895.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones, —— place; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews, ——; Rev. R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges; Rev. I. W. Thomas.

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

Rev. T. Bright will canvass North Carolina in the interest of the Seed Sower. The paper is non denominational, and bids fair to do a good work for the cause of Temperance and Sabbath observation.—Forest City Ledger.

There are two Baptist parties arranging to make pilgrimages to the Holy Land this summer by way of Europe.

Completely Paralyzed.

PHYSICIANS ARE ASTOUNDED BY A PECULIAR CASE.

A YOUNG MAN STRICKEN WITH LAUNDRY'S PARALYSIS AND YET RECOVERS.

(From the Times, Philadelphia, Pa.)

Stricken with Laundry's Paralysis and yet cured. That means but little to the average laymen but it means a miracle to a physician. Such is the experience of O. E. Dallimore now a resident of Madison, N. J., and a rare experience it is.

"Yes, it is true that I had Laundry's Paralysis," said Mr. Dallimore to a reporter, "or else the most celebrated physicians of London were mistaken.

"It was on the 15th of March, this year," he continued, "when I was in New York city, that I first felt the symptons of my trouble. I experienced difficulty in going up stairs, my legs failing to support me. I consulted a physician who informed me that I had every sympton of Locomotor Ataxia, but as the case developed he pronounced it a case of Laundry's Paralysis and knowing the nature of the disease advised me to start for my home and friends. I gave up my work and on April 1st started for London, Ont. A well known physician was consulted but I grew rapidly worse and on Saturday, April 7, several eminent physicians held a consulation on my case and informed me that I was at death's door, having but three to six days to live, still I lingered on, by this time completely paralyzed, my hands and feet being dead, I could hardly whisper my wants and could only swallow liquids. Oh, the misery of those moments are beyond all description and death would really have been a welcome visitor.

"Now comes the part that has astounded the physicians. Rev. Mr. Gondy, a clergyman who visited me in my last hours, as he supposed, told me of the marvelous cures of paralysis that had been performed by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I started to take the pills about April 28 and a week after that felt an improvement in my condition. There was a warm, tingling sensation in the limbs that had been entirely dead and I soon began to move my feet and hands, the improvement continued until May 28 when I was taken out of bed for a drive and drove the horse myself. By the beginning of July I was able to walk upstairs alone and paid a visit to Niagara.

Slowly but surely I gained my old health and strength leaving Ontario for New York on October 11 and beginning my work again on October 26, 1894. Cured of Laundry's Paralysis in eight months." To confirm his story beyond all doubt, Mr. Dallimore made the following affidavit.

Sworn and subscribed before me December 8, 1894. AMOS C. RATHBUN, [SEAL.] Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2 50.

Conference (?) of Young People's Societies.

At the request of numerous brethren who have signed a call for a Conference of friends of the Young People's Movement to be held in Washington, D. C., to consider the question of organizing a Southern Union in close touch with the Southern Baptist Convention; we would announce that arrangements have been made to hold such a Conference. The meetings will be held in the First Baptist church,—the first session being at 10.30 a. m., on Thursday, May 9th, 1895.

A Correction.

Editor Biblical Recorder:—In your issue of March 27th, you state that the Board of Managers of the B. Y. P. U. of Richmond and Manchester have "expressed a desire for the closest possible alliance with the Southern Baptist Convention that can be effected without letting go the International B. Y. P. U." I am sure that you will be glad to learn that you are misinformed. The Board has never published its views on the Southern Union question, but has appointed a committee to formulate them. This committee has not yet reported. I do not undertake to say what view the Board will adopt, but I have talked on this subject with its members; and no such sentiment as your misinformation led you to impute to us would for a moment be tolerated by any one of the Board. Our Baptist instinct and training, and the constitution of the B. Y. P. U. bind us first to the local church; and the Southern Baptist Convention is far dearer to us than the B. Y. P. U. of America. The only question with us is whether loyalty to the Southern Baptist Convention requires us to cease convening in annual mass-meeting with our brethren of Canada and the North.

The Piedmont Union.

The first session of this body met with the Buchanan church. Every church was represented except Liberty. Bro. J. D. Hackney came as a visiting delegate from Franklinsville, Sandy Creek Association. Bro. M. A. Adams was elected Moderator, and Judge W. H. Eller, Clerk.

The introductory sermon was preached by Bro. Adams. It was an interesting and inspiring sermon and struck the key-note of the meeting.

The attendance was good every day. The attention to the speeches was serious, and the hospitality of the people was elegant. There were a number of speeches made by Elders Moore, Hackney, Adams, Lane, Kallam and Thomas, and by brethren G. W. White, R. W. Brooks, Judge W. H. Eller, Dr. C. A. Rominger, and Prof. J. Y. Joyner. I have never seen better work done in a Union Meeting, and have never seen more spiritual power manifested. It was, taken altogether, one of the best Unions I ever attended.

Brethren J. L. Lane and Kallam are our missionaries. They are doing good work, and the outlook is hopeful. We have five churches in this Union: these employ two missionaries and have about thirteen mission points. The visible results of this meeting of our Union was the organization of a Sunday-school, and two candidates were received for baptism into the fellowship of Buchanan church. One of these was from a Pedobaptist church.

The next meeting of the Union will be with the Sunny Side Mission near Reidsville.

The work in the new Association moves along very well, and we hope in a few years to see a number of self-sustaining churches at our mission points.

Buchanan church has only sixteen members. Bro. R. R. Moore is pastor. Since the last Association meeting this church has raised and paid in eight dollars for Associational missions. This church seems to have taken on new life and we hope to see the work develop rapidly at that place.

many mothers believe, is the most precarious in a child's life; generally it may be true, but you will find that mothers and physicians familiar with the value of the Gail Borden Eagle Brand Condensed Milk do not so regard it.

Southern Union, Eastern Association.

This body met with Haw Bluff as per appointment. Introductory by Rev. R. E. Peele. Seven ministers present. Three good sermons, and subjects well discussed.

Hospitality was unbounded. We tip our hats to those of other denominations who kindly assisted in entertaining.

We believe there was a flame of love kindled in the hearts of many who were present that will be felt for many days to come.

Contributions: From the churches for Associational Missions, $8.12; Saturday for Orphanage, $10.28; Sunday for Associational Missions, $6.69. Total, $25.09.

Please Correct.

Dear Recorder:—Please correct the statement made in your paper of the 27th ult. about the Broadus Memorial No. of the Seminary Magazine. Bro. Millard wrote before we had decided exactly what we would do. The book will contain nearly, if not quite, 100 pages; two good pictures of Dr. Broadus at different periods of his life; one of the inside of his study and of each of the Seminary buildings. The articles will be by some of our best men, and present almost every phase of the great character. I learn that a complete life will not be published for quite a while, perhaps several years. We are trying to furnish a comprehensive sketch in this Memorial number of the Magazine. It will be substantially bound. To meet the increased expense we have raised the price to twenty five cents. Clubs of five or more to one address, sent in by April 15th, twenty cents each. Subscriptions may begin with this issue at the regular price, $1.00 a year in advance. Send orders to C. T. Taylor, Bus. Mgr., S. B. T. Sem., Louisville, Ky.

HATCH—BURKE—On March 20th, 1895, at the residence of the bride's mother, by Rev. L. R. Dixon, Mr. J. B. Hatch and Miss Fannie Burke, all of Chatham county, N. C.

GRIFFIN—BENNETT—On March 28th, by Rev. J. A. Bivens, Mr. J. Bright Griffin of Meadow Branch and Miss Viga Bennett, daughter of Rev. J. L. Bennett.

DIED.

HICKS—Bro. Calvin B. Hicks died at his home in Goldsboro, N. C., on March 31, 1895, in the sixty-third year of his age. He united with the church about nine years ago during a meeting conducted by Rev. J. E. Hutson, and was baptized by the late Dr. Theo. Whitfield. He was a man of excellent character and humble faith. He bore his protracted affliction with fortitude and beautiful Christian resignation. He leaves a devoted wife and dutiful children to mourn their loss.

PASTOR.

LLOYD—Deacon Henry Lloyd departed this life at his home in Chatham county, N. C., on March 8th, 1895, in the sixty-second year of his age. For forty years or more he had been a faithful member of the Baptist church.

Bro. Lloyd was one of the best men of my acquaintance. May's Chapel church has sustained a great loss in his death. The funeral services were conducted by the writer, at his home, in the presence of a large concourse of people, after which the body was laid in a grave near by. He left a wife, five daughters and one son. May the Lord bless them all!

Healthy Exercise

That's what the work of washing clothes and cleaning house amounts to when it's done with Pyle's Pearline. Little or no rubbing; no drudgery; less annoyance; more comfort; more cleanliness; more economy; and a large saving of wear and tear on all sides. You'll find directions on back of package, for easy washing. It will cost you five cents to try it. Every grocer has Pearline—nothing else gives satisfaction to the millions of women who use and have been using PEARLINE for years—women who rely on their brains to save their backs.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous. 169 JAMES PYLE, New York.

A Prayer for Guidance.

Gently lead us, loving Saviour,
'Mid the gathering shades of night;
Gently lead us till the morning,
Ushers in the welcome light.

Lead us when temptations gather,
When in jeopardy we stand;
May we, then, Thy footsteps follow,
Guided by Thine unseen hand!

Lead us while engaged in service,
Toiling in Thy vineyard wide;
From delusive schemes preserve us
That our labors may abide.

Lead us in affliction's shadows
When our earthly comforts fade;
Claiming, then, Thy precious promise,
May our minds on Thee be stayed!

Lead us gently, gracious Saviour,
Till we gain the promised rest;
Lead us through death's chilling shadows
To the mansions of the blest.

—J. M. Hawley.

An Oriental Story.

An Eastern king was once in need of a faithful servant and friend. He gave notice that he wanted a man to do a day's work, and two men came and asked to be employed He engaged them both for certain fixed wages, and set them both to work to fill a basket with water from a neighboring well, saying he would come in the evening and see their work. He then left them to themselves and went away.

After putting in one or two basketfuls, one of the men said:

"What is the good of doing this useless work! As soon as we put the water in on one side it runs out on the other."

The other man answered:

"But we have our day's wages, haven't we! The use of the work is the master's business, not ours."

"I am not going to do such fool's work," replied the other, and throwing down his bucket he went away.

The other man continued his work till, about sunset, he exhausted the well. Looking down into it, he saw something shinning at the bottom. He let down his bucket once more, and drew up a precious diamond ring.

"Now I see the use of pouring water in to a basket," he exclaimed to himself. "If the water had brought up the ring before the well was dry, it would have been found in the basket. The labor was not useless, after all."

But he had to learn why the king had ordered this apparently useless task. It was to test their capacity for perfect obedience, without which no servant is reliable.

At this moment the king came up to him, and, as he bade the man keep the ring he said:

"Thou hast been faithful in a little thing; now I see I can trust thee in great things. Henceforward thou shalt stand at my right hand."

Is not this a good lesson to teach us to be faithful in the small duties of each day, as well as the large ones; to do everything, no matter how small, as unto our heavenly Master! Little acts of duty or kindness go a great ways when done for Jesus' sake.—Ex.

A Question of Balances.

The French Canadians are not without a considerable sense of humor, and they highly appreciate the following story, told of a prosperous baker in a town not far from Quebec:

The baker was in the habit of buying his butter in pound balls, or rolls, from a farmer with whom he did a good deal of business. Noticing that these butter balls looked rather small, he weighed them, and found that they were all under a pound in weight. Thereupon he had the farmer brought before the magistrate and accused of dishonest practicies.

"These butter balls," said the judge to the farmer, "certainly weigh less than a pound. Have you any scales?"

"I have," answered the farmer.

"And have you weights?"

"No, no weights."

"Then how can you weigh your butter balls?"

"That's very simple," said the farmer. "While I've been selling the baker butter, I've been buying pound loaves of bread from him, and I use them for weights on my scales!"—Selected.

To understand the way to rest is of much importance as to know how to work. The latter can be easily learned; the former it takes years to learn, and some people never learn the art of resting. It is simply a change of scenes and activities. Loafing may not be resting. Sleeping is not always resting. Sitting down for days with nothing to do is not restful. A change is needed to bring into play a different set of faculties, and to turn the life into a new channel. The man who is burdened with care finds relief in something that is active, yet free from responsibility. Above all, keep good natured, and don't abuse your best friend, the stomach.

Let there be
No further strife nor enmity
Between us twain. We both have erred!
Too rash in act, too wroth in word,
From the beginning have we stood
In fierce, defiant attitude,
Each thoughtless of the other's right,
And each reliant on his might.
But now our souls are more subdued;
The hand of God, and not in vain,
Has scourged us with the fire of pain.
Let us kneel down, and side by side
Pray, till our souls are purified,
And pardon will not be denied.

—Longfellow.

Benjamin Franklin.

At the beginning of the last century, when Queen Anne sat on the throne of Great Britain, there were ten British colonies strung along the Atlantic coast of North America. These colonies were various in origin and ill-disposed one to another. They were young, feeble, and jealous; their total population was less than 400,000. In the colony of Massachusetts and in the town of Boston, on January 17, 1796, was born Benjamin Franklin, who died in the State of Pennsylvania and in the city of Philadelphia on April 17, 1790. In the eighty-four years of his long life, Benjamin Franklin saw the ten colonies increase to thirteen; he saw them come together for defense against the common enemy; he saw them throw off their allegiance to the British crown; he saw them form themselves into these United States; he saw the population increase to nearly four millions; he saw the beginning of the movement across the Alleghanies which was to give us all the boundless West and all our possibilities of extension. And in the bringing about this growth, this union, this independence, this development, the share of Benjamin Franklin was greater than the share of any other man.

With Washington, Franklin divided the honor of being the American who had most fame abroad and most veneration at home. He was the only man (so one of his biographers reminds us) who signed the Declaration of Independence, the Treaty of Alliance with France, the Treaty of Peace with England, and the Constitution under which we still live. But not only had he helped to make the nation—he had done more than any one else to form the individual. If the typical American is shrewd, industrious, and thrifty, it is due in great measure to the counsel and to the example of Benjamin Franklin. In "Poor Richard's Almanac" he summed up wisely, and he set forth sharply, the rules of conduct on which Americans have trained themselves for now a century and a half. Upon his countrymen the influence of Franklin's preaching and of his practice was wide, deep, and abiding. He was the first great American,—for Washington was twenty-six years younger.—Brander Matthews, in St Nicholas.

A horse will travel four hundred yards in four and one-half minutes at a walk; four hundred yards in one minute at a gallop. The usual work of a horse is taken at 22 500 pounds raised one foot per minute for eight hours per day. A horse will carry two hundred and fifty pounds twenty five miles per day of eight hours. An average draught horse will draw 1,600 pounds twenty three miles per day on a level road, weight of wagon included. The average weight of a horse is 1,000 pounds, and his strength is equivalent to that of five men. The greatest amount a horse can pull in a horizontal line is nine hundred pounds, but he can only do this momentarily; in continued exertion probably half of this is the limit. He attains his growth in five years, will live twenty-five, average sixteen years.

Oh, how many hearts are breaking!
Oh, how many hearts are aching
For a loving touch and token,
For the word you might have spoken!
Say not in the time or sorrow,
"I will soothe their grief to-morrow."
Prove your friendship, lest they doubt it;
Go at once; be quick about it!

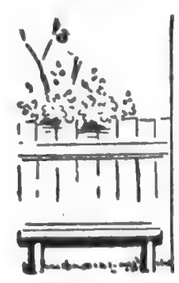
The Dark Side.

There are millions of foreigners in the United States to-day, multitudes of whom are as degraded as any heathen, and still they pour in upon us—a quarter of a million, a year. Of every ten of our own population, three are foreigners, or childen of foreigners.

In one State, not in the far West, there are over 200 neighborhoods entirely destitute of religious services by any denomination.



In several States more than half of the people can neither read nor write.

In some towns there are not forty people who ever professed Christ, multitudes of children who never hear the name of God except in oaths, and who do not know what a Sunday-school is like, and mothers who say that for twenty years they have buried their dead without a prayer at the grave, wondering if there are any real Christians anywhere.

In some 1,300 communities between the Mississippi and the Pacific, not one word of the gospel has ever been spoken.

While $1,000,000 has been spent for missions, $900,000,000 have been spent for intoxicating liquors, and millions more for tobacco, opium, etc.

To what do these facts point? Can it be, "Millions for Mammon, coppers for Christ?"—Home Field.

AYER'S PILLS

A friend speaks through the Boothbay (Me.) Register, of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me any relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are in need of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills. I am perfectly confident that they will do good."

"As a family medicine, I consider Ayer's Pills superior to all others. In my family, I have used them for years and never known them to fail. Can commend this medicine to mothers, as being mild, pleasant in action, and yet effective."—Mrs. U. I. PUIG, San Diego, Texas.

IT IS well that the people of the United States do not mistrust our Supreme Court. In these times of incessant and heedless insinuations, open charges and suspicions, no breath of scandal touches this highest tribunal. God grant that it may always be so; that when this Court decides that a law is unjust or unconstitutional, the people, one and all, may accept it as a decree from heaven.

The Court has had the income tax law under consideration several weeks. As any kind of a decision would not personally affect the people of this State, little or no concern, comparatively, has been felt; for the same reason, perhaps, announcement of the decision has not created any stir; and for the same reason, also, let it be said, the people of North Carolina would rather the Court had decided that the law were entirely good and proper.

But the Court has spoken. The wisdom and honesty of the decision is not to be questioned. The Justices investigated the matter thoroughly, heard arguments from ablest advocates, took their own time and reached a just decision. Briefly, it is that the law on the whole will stand, that the principal on which it is based is just; but that incomes derived from rents and from State and municipal bonds are not subject to it.

No one knows how much the tax as intended would have brought into the Treasury; some said $12,000,000, some said $50,000,000; the papers are now saying that the President and the Secretary of the Treasury are disappointed, because the income derived will be only about half as much as it would have been, had the Court not interfered.

THE frequency of questions of constitutionality is remarkable. When all other resources have been exhausted, the opponents of a measure are likely to question its constitutionality, and not infrequently with success. It is remarkable how widely one may misunderstand the main stay of our government, how widely two may differ, how ignorant of it both may be. Not one man in ten thousand in North Carolina can stand a thorough examination on our State or National Constitutions. It has really been very difficult to get a copy of the former.

If anything shall be taught in our schools, let it be knowledge of our government. Intelligent citizenship is the safeguard against a thousand ills. The Constitution of North Carolina should be thoroughly known to every child in the State and every man. It may be good policy to leave certain matters of law to lawyers, but it is improvident not to master so much of it as pertains to citizenship.

WELL, well, well, if we were not opposed to foreign words we would shout "Eureka," without apology! The "First Weekly Weather Crop Bulletin issued by the North Carolina State Weather Service, constituting the Meteorological Division of the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station, week ending Monday, April 8th, 1895," etc., etc., brings the timely information, which all the State will be relieved to learn is official and beyond doubt, that "the past winter in North Carolina was very cold and wet," and that "the season is now very backward." If any one in North Carolina has not been aware of these things several weeks, he ought to be added to our choice accumulation of government leeches and set to writing about the weather as it was week before last.

It is nothing less than presumption for a set of well-kept government officers who have had government shelter during the "very cold" past winter to come out of their shells in this bright spring sunshine, and tell people whose bones are still chilled from the exposure which honest living made necessary, that the weather has been very cold.

Of all the impositions on our government, this weather crop business is the most blatant and defenceless. It is enough to make one laugh at the brazen effrontery that sends out this bulletin with the priceless information of how the wind blew or the rain fell at Soda Hill, for instance, week before last.

What the farmers need to know is how much is going to fall, how to economise, and how to get honest prices. Last year's birds' nests are worth fully as much to the farmers of North Carolina as information of how much rain fell last week.

When a State undertakes to run a farm periodical, it is time for the others to give up. The publication by the State of The Bulletin (not the crop bulletin) ought to be protested against; not because it is in competition with other papers, for it is too weak to compete with anything, but because it is contrary to the principles of good government and has not even the virtue of usefulness to commend it.

These are only two features of our North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station for the relief of needy "scientists." There are others that ought to be exposed. The system of taxing fertilizers and examining them is the outgrowth of wrong principles of government. It is an oppression of the farmer (for he has to pay the tax in the increased price of the fertilizers). If left to themselves the fertilizer companies would deal honestly with the farmers for the same reason that the paper makers give us fair weight; they know that cheating would lose them trade. A fertilizer maker knows it is his advantage to help bring a good crop. Cheated once, it is the farmer's fault if the same man cheats him again. A censorship of the press is just as commendable as a fertilizer inquisition.

The people of this country should use every opportunity for fighting back office-making, and ridding the land of Paternalism, the name that stands for that palpable calamity, too much government.

AT BEST, religious papers have to strain a point to keep from protesting against intercollegiate ball games. Not one in a hundred of their readers approve them; and the temptation is strong to denounce the custom, and stronger still to let the games go on without a word.

It is well to reflect, however, that being on the ground and in contact with the students and their circumstances, college faculties are in far better position to act wisely in this respect than the general public. So, whatever the RECORDER'S private opinions, it is aware that college faculties—if not ordinarily—are in this matter, at least, more capable of assuming an intelligent position than an outside person.

Nevertheless, there are times when a paper may make pertinent remarks on the subject. When college teams become so colored with professionals that nothing less than a microscope and a chemical analysis will determine what college a team represents, it is time to say a friendly word.

The people of North Carolina have been almost persuaded that fair and open and clean intercollegiate contests are impossible. For several years every game was characterized by hilarious conduct before and during and after, by betting, and, with an exception or two, by serious squabbles, some of them so serious as to break up the games. The college boys can do better. If they could realize what an impression they have made on the public, they would do better, if only to save the game from condemnation.

So far this year, there have been no serious squabbles, no betting so far as one could see, and no unbecoming behaviour; but professionalism has come to be so common that seven teams were recently represented in a contest between two colleges; and it is a well known fact that a State institution employs a man in its athletic department mostly for his ball-playing qualities.

These practices will have the effect of making intercollegiate athletics obsolete in this State; and this will be brought to pass more quickly than any length or frequency of denunciation of athletics, which are themselves, under proper control, of benefit to all growing boys and to any one else whose occupation is confining.

NO WONDER so many social students are fearing that the family as a factor in society is losing ground. Between clubs, secret orders, societies for the prevention of this, that and the other, social circles, functions, etc., on the one hand, nurses, schools, reformatories and the like, on the other, the youngster of to day gets nothing of that family discipline, has opportunity to acquire nothing of that respect for the God-ordained social order, in which the heroes of the Old Testament grow up.

Schools cannot take the place of the family—which latter, let it be emphasized, is the one divine social institution; and if clubs and social sets lead fathers and mothers to leave their duties to other hands, a plague of depravity will fall upon us, as surely as the plagues blighted Egypt.

Not long ago a mother was asking a school teacher, who had half a hundred children to care for, to teach her boy to use his right hand. Instead of reproaching herself for her child's awkwardness in this respect, she was charging the matter to the teacher. How much easier it is for children to learn such things at home, where there are seldom as many as fifty ill trained children to look after. How careless to let a child come of school age before he is taught to use his hands!

School teachers have their sphere, and, in some people's opinion, clubs and social sets and the like may have theirs; but the former should not be overburdened with the duties for which God instituted the family, and when the latter begin to overshadow the parents' sense of duty, it is time to rise up for their abolition.

There are so many insidious rivals of the home that it becomes us all to be on our guard, lest in its displacement our civilization be thrown sadly backward.

Moses.—No. 2.

BY REV. J. O. ALDERMAN.

HIS FLIGHT AND CALL.

In dealing with the second forty years of Moses' life, I shall consider two things, viz, his choice and consequent flight, and his call.

At the age of forty, being fully determined to serve Jehovah and to remain a Hebrew despite all the temptations of the Egyptian court, he visited his people. His heart burned within him at the injustice and oppression heaped upon his brethren; and consequently he slew an Egyptian that was unjustly oppressing and abusing a Hebrew. This of course made his choice final and irrevocable and his flight necessary. Having chosen, he began to act and as a result had to flee for his life, leaving civilized Egypt, leaving pleasant surroundings, leaving home and friends and loved ones to seek safety in the wilderness.

Often a similar lot befalls men that choose and stand by God and righteousness. The choice of God and adherence to righteousness brings upon them seeming ruin and undeserved trouble. But we may learn a beautiful lesson from this part of God's dealings with Moses. God was working out his own purposes.

Moses had been well prepared at home under his mother and at court in intellectual matters. But he was not yet sufficiently prepared for his great mission. He needed further preparation.

He must learn to depend upon God and not upon his own angry sword. His warlike spirit that would smite down at a blow an enemy must be changed into meek submission to Jehovah. It was not Moses but Jehovah that was to be the king and great general.

He needed specific and positive geographical and topographical knowledge. He had received general training in geography in Egypt. But he must know more positively and intimately the geography of the Sinai peninsula, for later he was to lead the Israelites through that region of dangers and trials. He needed to know the best routes, the best water supplies, the best pasturage for the flocks, and also the dangers to be encountered; for it was no small thing to lead a million and more of men and women and children with their cattle and other baggage through a wilderness constantly threatened with drouth and starvation and hostile attacks from Bedouin tribes. Hence, by God's providence he went before to visit the wilderness and so to learn it thoroughly, for he lived in it forty years.

He needed also to have friends on the way when he should later lead his people that way. Here again we see God's providence. Moses married a daughter of Reuel, a great Sheik in the Sinai peninsula, and so became intimately connected with his powerful tribe. Also by living for forty years among them he developed and deepened the ties of friendship so that in after years during the march, Moses was more than once befriended and aided by the powerful tribe of Sheik Hobab.

But he needed above all a higher moral and religious development. He was not simply to lead an army to battle nor to rule as king over an organized and prosperous nation. But he was to lead a horde of slaves from slavery and poverty to the land of Canaan, and in the mean time to organize them and give them a civil code, a moral code, and a religious code. To perform this task required the highest degree of moral development and appreciation of Jehovah. Hence it was that he must spend forty years in the wilderness, divorced from the demoralizing influences of Egypt and her dense population and be present with God in his shepherd life in the Sinai peninsula. In the wild rugged regions here, looking down from mountain heights and up at the clear heavens above, alone with nature and taught by God himself, Moses must have made rapid strides towards that sublime moral and religious character that he only in all the world's history has displayed. Such preparation could have been secured nowhere else. And after forty years of this kind of training, eighty years in all, he arrived at such a degree of perfection that under Jehovah he was ready to lead the greatest expedition of history and to develop the sublimest code of laws ever known to the world.

Being at last at the age of eighty and fully prepared for his great mission, he stood reverent at the burning bush in Horeb and heard the call of God. Finally, God fully revealed to Moses his great mission. But Moses could hardly comprehend or believe, so great was the mission given him. But finally, Moses, after much converse with Jehovah, saw and felt his position. Surely it must have been a supreme moment in his life as he realized that Jehovah indeed spoke to him and that he was to go and deliver his people from hard and cruel bondage.

In rapid memory he reviewed his checkered life, its early home associations with mother and father, its later splendor and brilliant prospects at the palace, its contest between earthly ambition and loyalty to God and his people, his thrilling indignation and deep sympathy as he looked upon the oppression of his brethren, his final and determined choice of God and his people, his forced flight, his forty years wandering in the rude and rugged wilderness, his doubts and misgivings at such misfortunes, and his utter inability to succor his down trodden people. But from this rapid memory he awakes to the glorious promise. He sees God's hand in it all now. His great swelling heart thrills with joy at the prospect. He is to deliver his people from bondage. He is to do a great work for Jehovah his God Jehovah is to be his present and constant helper. Jehovah is to triumph gloriously.

Raphael's Transfiguration.

BY MRS V. L PENDLETON.

"The Transfiguration" has been one of the lessons studied by the whole civilized world during the last quarter. We have learned that not Mt. Tabor, as tradition has it, but one of the spurs of Mt. Hermon was probably the scene of this glorious manifestation of the divinity of our Saviour.

Mt. Tabor is a lofty mountain at some distance from the scene of his labors, and was at that time garrisoned by Roman soldiers; while Mt. Hermon is near Cæsarea-Philippi, and of easy ascent; so we think that it is there that, weary in body and depressed in soul, our Saviour went "apart to pray."

Peter, James and John were with him, and "He was transfigured before them, and his face did shine as the sun, and his raiment was white as the light, and behold, there appeared unto them Moses and Elias with him. Behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them, and a voice out of the cloud which said, This is my beloved Son; hear ye him." What a wonderful picture the inspired writer has given us!

"Raphael the Divine" has transferred it to canvas—the finest picture ever painted by mortal hands.

As I wandered through the galleries of the Vatican, I paused long in the Stanze, those four rooms whose frescoed walls were begun by Raphael when twenty four years of age, and continued throughout his life—alas! too short to fully complete them.

I would like to speak of the "School of Athens" which represents the greatest philosophers of the ancient world; or of "Poetry," with its assemblage of Greek, Roman and Italian poets; and Oh! how I would like to describe "The Deliverance of St. Peter"; the wonderful effect of light and shade; how through the grated window we see the whole interior illuminated by the rays of light proceeding from the angel who is awaking the sleeping apostle. But I pass softly on, and stand before "The Transfiguration!" It is indeed the perfection of art.

Our Saviour seems to float on the air with grand, incomparable dignity and serenity; the face beams with ineffable tenderness and sadness. There he stands between heaven and earth, the mediator between God and man, celestial light enfolding him and shining forth a halo of divine glory.

Moses, the great lawgiver of Israel, and Elijah, the greatest of prophets, are looking up to him, whose gospel supercedes all law and all prophecy. The shekinah cloud overshadows them, and as the voice of the mighty God is heard saying, "This is my beloved Son, hear him," Peter, James and John blinded by the dazzling brightness have prostrated themselves upon the mount, but Raphael understood the nature of these apostles; for the one who is trying to peep through his fingers in spite of the mysterious brightness, we conclude at once is the impetuous Peter; while he who shades his eyes with his hand, ready to gaze again upon the glory of his Lord, is the beloved disciple, while James has fallen on his face, awaiting the divine command to arise.

Deep solemnity pervades the scene, and the effulgence of light that emanates from the Divine One seems to scintillate and glow as no pictured light ever shone before.

It was only in the last of his Holy Families, "Madonna di San Sisto," in which the face of the Madonna is an etherealized likeness of Margarita his beloved, that he has accomplished anything to compare with the celestial glory of "The Transfiguration." It is a two fold picture. At the foot of the mountain is the world with its suffering, its anxieties and its failures.

The father has brought his demoniac son to the disciples, who, trying in vain to cast out the evil spirit, point upward to the top of the mountain where the great "Healer" has gone. The agony of the father; the horrible, distorted countenance of the demoniac child is portrayed with terrible force; while the beautiful kneeling female figure in front with graceful blue drapery and clear-cut features seems an impersonation of Pity imploring divine aid. Kneeling apart from the three disciples on the mount are St. Julian and St. Lawrence, put there at the request of Lorenzo de' Medici, in honor of his father and uncle who were named for them. Only the upper part of this picture was finished when Raphael was stricken with fever and died. Well might all Europe mourn, and even the Grand Pontiff exclaims, "Ora pro nobis," and burst into tears, when he heard of the death of the great master. He lay in state at his palace near the Vatican with this grand picture—the colors still wet—placed at his head:

"And when all beheld
Him where he lay, how changed from yesterday,
Him in that hour cut off and at his head,
His last great work, when entering in they looked,
Now on the dead, then on that masterpiece—
Now on his face lifeless and colorless,
Then on those forms divine that lived and breathed,
And would live on for ages, all were moved,
And sighs burst forth and loudest lamentation."
—Rogers.

This picture was then carried in the procession to the Pantheon where "Raphael the Divine" was buried beneath the altar near the inscription to Maria da Bibiena, to whom he was at one time betrothed. Whether her early death, or his attachment to Margarita, his first love, prevented this marriage, history does not say, but it is most probable that his devotion to art satisfied his soul. It has been over three hundred years since he was placed there, yet I stood by the altar and read with emotion his epitaph, "He lived exactly thirty-seven years, and died on the anniversary of his birth, April 6, 1520."

Living great Nature feared he might outvie
Her works, and dying fears herself to die."

Raphael's pupil, Gilio Romano completed the picture at the request of the great master. It was placed in the church of St. Pietro in Montorio for which it was painted. It was carried to Paris by Napoleon, but was restored to the Italians in 1815 and placed in the Vatican. It is conceded to be the finest painting in the world, and for the privilege of keeping it at the Vatican museum of art, the government pays an annual pension to the church of S. Pietro in Montorio.

We will look again at this picture. At the foot of the mount the compassionate apostles, the weeping maiden, the agonized father, the demoniac boy tell a most touching story, but on the top of the mount we see the prophets and apostles illumined with celestial light, and in the blessed Saviour, it has been beautifully said, "We seem to behold that effulgence of eternal glory, that spiritual lightness, that air of divinity which will one day bless the eyes of the elect; and in the blessed head we see at once the last perfection of art and the last work of Raphael."

"Jersey Settlement"

BY REV. HENRY SHEETS.

THE OLD "JERSEY" BAPTIST CHURCH AND SOME OF ITS HISTORY.

Sometime previous to 1755, probably not many years, a colony from the State of New Jersey came down here and settled in what was then Rowan county, now Davidson, on the Yadkin river and mainly on the south side of the Southern Railway.

There is much of absorbing interest connected with this 'Settlement." It is indeed a fine section of country. What it must have been when the colony came is described by Lawson in his history of North Carolina. He made a journey from Charleston, S. C., to Pamlico Sound in North Carolina, in the year 1701. In this route he crossed the Yadkin at "Trading Ford." He calls the Yadkin the "Sapona river." He also tells us that there was an Indian town just below the Ford, which is on the famous "Jersey lands." He says: "Coming that day about thirty miles, we reached the fertile and pleasant banks of Sapona (Yadkin) river whereon stands the Indian town and fort; nor could all Europe afford a pleasanter stream .... One side of the river is hemmed in with mountainy ground, the other side (Jersey lands) as rich a soil to the eye of a knowing person with us as any this western world can afford."

The ancient and celebrated "Trading Path" (leading to Trading Ford) extending from Virginia to the Catawbas and other tribes of Southern Indians was just north of the section of which we write. It is not improbable that the people composing this colony had learned of the beauty and fertility of this section from traders who came down here from the States north of us.

We can somewhat understand why these people would leave their native State and come down here—800 miles, where they would be subjected more or less to tribes of hostile Indians.

Much time has been spent in correspondence with parties in New Jersey trying to ascertain when the colony left there, how many composed it, and how many of them were Baptists; but there seems to be no record concerning their emigration, either in religious or secular history. The best historians know nothing of the early movements of the colony. We know that Benjamin Miller preached here in 1755. Elder S. J. Yerkes, pastor at Plainfield, N. J., offers the following plausible suggestion: "The Scotch Plains (Baptist) church was organized in 1747. The first pastor of the church was Benjamin Miller who remained with the church until his death in 1761. During

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1895.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

Is it intellectuality or spirituality that you or your pastor needs?

DR. BROADUS thought that missions, the prayer meeting and the Sunday-school were good exponents of a church's condition. Apply the test.

PREACH the gospel to the poor. That is what Christ did. Let us have a long list on the Regions Beyond Roll. Where is the layman who will set the example by sending in his name?

THE Board of Education is in need of funds. Churches and brethren who have made pledges are urged to make payments on them as soon as possible. The young men, many of them, have to be supported on a cash basis, and the expense is about $300 a month. The debt is running up; but Brother Mitchell is hoping for relief. Help him, brethren.

WE are encouraged to believe that our churches will be more and more careful in selecting men to conduct revivals. It is always safe to get a pastor from a church in the State; and in no case do we advise getting a man who is not known to be sound in belief and doctrine. Such is the state of affairs that almost any kind of a man can "come highly commended."

WE DO hope and pray that many delegates and visitors from North Carolina will attend the Washington Convention. It will do us all good to be there.

Remember it may be a long time before the Convention meets so near us again, and certainly a long time before it meets in the National Capital.

We wish every pastor in North Carolina might be there. The churches have only a few more days to think about it.

THE RECORDER is interested in schools next to churches. It wants to see a Baptist academy near every Baptist church. Will Baptist teachers, Baptist principals, Baptist trustees, send us information about their institutions. It will help the schools; and it will help us to get a complete list of them; it will help the cause, to increase and encourage this part of our work. We would like to have the name and address of every active Baptist school man or school ma'am in the State.

"THERE is no occasion to * * * foolishly clamor for Scripture texts, and foolishly try to produce them."—The Baptist Courier, April 11, 1895.

Instead of making a new Bible, you see, they are going to do without any Bible at all. That reminds us, a man remarked the other day that there are two kinds of denominational papers: One dispenses the Gospel, the other dispenses with it.

To speak of standing squarely by God's Word as foolishly clamoring is worthy of Ingersoll, whose allies, indeed, the monists, the advanced scholarship and the new age brethren unconsciously are.

WE WILL promise almost anything, if the Baptists of the South will come to the relief of the Boards and send them to Washington with unburdened accounts. But this must be done, before new policies can be pursued.

We do not believe in debt-making; but these took us unawares; and we all believe in debt-paying.

The one policy now is to pay the debts. After that we will do what we can to prevent debt-making or high pressure on the Boards or the churches.

Let every pastor do what he can to arouse his people to the demands of the present crisis. And remember ONLY THIRTEEN DAYS—two Sundays—remain.

THE individual churches must settle the Y. P. question. Conventions cannot settle it, conferences cannot.

There is but one way. The churches are supreme. If one wishes to join in with the S. Y. P. U. A., it cannot be prevented; if it wishes to join in to make a Southern Union, it cannot be prevented.

God still speaks through the churches that are truly his churches; and there is no going before or behind what they do.

Let the Y. P. movement be kept in control of the churches by leaving the movement in the hands of the churches. Let no Convention presume to set apart another organization, or to urge such a step. The churches themselves can speak in this matter; and it is their right to speak.

"WHAT HAVE THEY SEEN IN THINE" PULPIT?

Quite a number of ministers having concluded that Apostolical Christianity is a failure, and that the Gospel as preached by Paul is unfitted for the present age, have sought to adjust the evangels to the march of the nineteenth century by remodelling or repairing them. There are some men who can do this. Not a few can crack the whip of progress and quicken those slow Apostles, Matthew and John, until panting with speed, they keep step with the acceleration of the day. Hence, we have quick methods, lightning repentance, easy salvation. Instead of the old story of Jesus and his love, we have the new story of the stereopticon and its pictures; instead of the cross as the drawing power, it has been found by the modern clergyman that there is a "more excellent way" manifested in serio comico-politico diabolico-social lectures and bewitching mannerisms. And, too, that word "personal magnetism" is of much repute these days; it substitutes certain ancient phrases in an old book we've seen, such as faith, grace, truth, and Holy Spirit. We are not disposed, however, to wage war on terms, only it has occurred to us that some people noted for personal magnetism do not appear to be quite so noted for personal religion.

If we may trust our observation, the preaching that does the most good, is not the magnificent glitter of rhetoric, or transcendent flights of moonshine, but the humble eloquence that takes its rise in a full heart. Here is the lack of the modern pulpit. Our ministers, for the most part, do not preach as did their fathers. They have, to be sure, more books, but not more Bible. They have more grammar, but not more grace. They have more culture, but not more Christ. Do not many ministers, instead of looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of their faith, look rather unto a telling anecdote, the beginner and ender of their fame?

This is a tremendous age of levity in the pulpit. The "sacred desk," in not a few cases, seems no longer either sacred or serious. The press reveals the most shocking incidents as taking place under the very horns of the altar. Many ministers claiming that the pulpit should mould the world, show plainly that the world is moulding the pulpit. Ah, brethren, a little refined humor, and very little of that, may occasionally prove as wholesome seasoning; but fun, coarseness, slang, jesting, do not befit the tongue of high heaven's ambassador. "Thy speech bewrayeth thee," may be said of many besides Peter, and in quite a different sense. Spirituality and frivolity do not appear to us to be closely allied; but are rather as the Jews and Samaritans, who had no dealings with each other. It is a great mistake to suppose that people have to be tickled with tales. When abiding religious interest springs up in a community, it cannot, in our judgment, be traced to pulpit fun and oddity, but to pious reverence for God, and sincere desire for the salvation of men, existing somewhere in the church—and at length honored by the Holy Spirit.

Many of the sons of Levi, as the sons of other people, are somewhat amenable to the charge of loving the praise of men more than the praise of God. How clerical flesh doth love a little flattery—and it need not be so little either! Ambition is the bane of many a pulpit, the ruin of many a ministry that promised well. It is quite often true that a preacher, whose nerves are strung on a high key and his spiritual aspirations on a low one, measures his usefulness by the size of his congregation. This fact is proved by his report of his work. He tells with intensest satisfaction of the assembled multitudes crowding aisles, galleries, filling all available space, packing Sunday-school room, taking all the chairs, hundreds standing, hundreds turned away, giddy throngs disappointed, crowds, myriads, hosts unable to get room in windows, on steps or steeple! Crowds! glory!! resignation!!! Who killed Cock Robin?

Yes, that empty pew! it is one of the problems of the modern pulpit. We have all heard the plaintive song of "the vacant chair;" but that is quite a lively melody compared with the dirge of "the empty pew." Yet, shall we empty the pulpit to fill the pew? Shall we degrade the glorious Gospel of the blessed God to a level with the poor trash of human philosophy and the sounding brass of sensationalism? Brethren of the cloth, pause long enough to mark the distinction between the foolishness of preaching and the preaching of foolishness—and the pews will take care of themselves.

MAY it never be said of a North Carolina church that it starved a pastor out. We do not know anything weaker or more unchristian than to treat a pastor coolly and keep back contributions. The thing to do is to tell your pastor why you object to him, and pray with him for yourself and him.

"THE BAPTIST POSITION."

We find that it is desirable to make an effort to distribute Bro. Love's sixty-one page tract, "The Baptist Position." It is meeting with favor wherever it is read. Conditions in North Carolina inspired Bro. Love to write it.

We will send the tract to any subscriber who sends us two dollars before June 1st, with request for the tract; and to any nineteen weeks trial subscriber who sends five cents extra.

Any pastor sending us five dollars at one time in new subscriptions (whether nineteen weeks, six months or yearly) will receive twenty copies of the tract for distribution.

The work is bound in durable paper and well printed; it will be a source of strength to many churches.

THE Baptist Female University is the most popular undertaking of our Convention since the plans for Wake Forest College were laid.

The proposed institution has no enemies. There is no opposition to it. There are many working and praying for it, and they have contributed of their means towards making it.

Last week the Board of Trustees had an encouraging meeting and took steps which mean that there will be a North Carolina Baptist school for girls in the near future, if the North Carolina Baptists will say so substantially.

Bro. Stringfield is out among the people working hard. He needs all the sympathy and encouragement we can give him; but he also needs solid responses to his efforts. He and our institution are worthy of all we can give him.

If a start can be made, we shall not fear for the development of the institution; and, brethren, we can at least make a start. Let us go ahead with this work.

....Raleigh is divided into four wards. Baptists own all the churches for whites in two of them. Would that we had a house of worship in reach of the Northern suburbs.

....Evangelist Hutson, who is also a good pastor in Richmond, has been holding successful meetings at Greenville, S. C., and is now at Rocky Mount, N. C., with Brother Howell.

....The Chowan Baptist church, Winston, N. C., made a fine beginning when it gave $35 00 to the Wake Forest Board of Education.

....We have received from the American Baptist Publication Society a volume of most valuable sermons by Rev. B. H. Carroll, D. D., of Waco, Texas.

....Rev. A. H. Porter writes from Pollocksville, "the prospects are right hopeful here in this eastern section. What we need is more pure, sound preaching."

....Pastor Cashwell conducted interesting services at Newton last Sunday and Sunday night. Received one member by letter and three for baptism.—Hickory Mercury.

....There are more Baptist preachers in the United States than of any other church except the Catholics. The figures are, of the former 3,637,431; of the latter, 6,231,410.

....A dispensary liquor plan is in operation at Waynesville; and from all accounts is working better than anything that has been tried, except straight-out prohibition.

....Brethren, after all, we need not worry about the debts. The question is, Is North Carolina going to send up her share? And that is not so hard to answer, if we will only try.

....A correspondent says "Rev. Rufus Weaver's temperance lecture at Archdale was appreciated and enjoyed by all." We need more temperance preaching and lecturing.

....Rev. Joseph Walker, D. D., an aged Baptist preacher of Virginia, one of the godly brethren of the old times, died at Scottsville, Va., recently. His life was a very useful one.

....We were glad to see Rev. J. E. Smith and wife of Granville county in Raleigh. Last Sunday Bro. Smith preached a fine sermon at the Soldier's Home. He is much encouraged in his church and school work.

....Our contemporary across the line evidently has the Methodist idea of what conferences are for, that is, to do what the big ones have decided they want done, not to give the people opportunity for saying what is best.

....We have received three excellent articles from brethren and sisters whose efforts at the Union Meetings were so liked that they were requested to publish them. We will present them to our readers as soon as possible.

....Amid all the changes that the Seaboard Air Line is making, we are especially glad to know that our friend and brother, General Passenger Agent T. J. Anderson will continue in that office. They could get no better.

....The Wake Forest Student for March presents a picture of Rev. J. B. White, third President of the College, with a sketch of his life. Rev. Jasper Howell, Jr., contributes "Fame, the Thirst of Youth," a well-written oration.

....We thank Prof. E. Lee Fox, principal, for a kind invitation to attend the annual exercises at Friendship High School and Business Institute, Alamance county. The literary address will be delivered by Prof. W. J. Ferrell of Wake Forest.

....The latest, according to Dr. Lafferty, is a woman's Bible. He says the woman suffragists are actually arguing that one of their great obstacles is a Bible translated by men; and are now preparing a Bible interpretation by women only.

....Rev. J. B. Hawthorne gives notice that he will try to effect a compromise on the Y. P. question by a set of resolutions deferring the matter. The Convention cannot compromise such matters. We do not believe in compromises anyhow.

....If a report in the Wilmington Messenger of April 14th is true, Evangelist Oakes is not only of loose doctrine, but also loose in character. His failure to answer plain but pertinent questions in the RECORDER was enough to arouse any one's suspicion.

....We have been informed that Dr. Felix will accept the call to Asheville. He is a strong preacher and pastor, and is the kind of man our Asheville people need. It is stated that Dr. Felix will supply the Brantly pulpit, Baltimore, several weeks yet.

....Rev. M. A. Adams is holding meetings at Reidsville; Rev. W. V. Savage is helping Pastor Saunders at Murfreesboro, Rev. W. J. Langston of Yorkville, S. C., is helping Pastor Jones at Gastonia, and Missionary Neighbour is helping Pastor Jones at Salisbury.

....Rev. Wm. J. Sholar of the Noble Street Baptist church, Brooklyn, has resigned that charge to accept an offer to become assistant pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist church, Brooklyn. Brother Sholar is a North Carolina man whose course we follow with interest.

....Rev. J. E. Greene, the principal, has our thanks for an invitation to attend the annual exercises of the Intercollegiate School, Ronda, N. C. We see the names of Revs. J. H. Lamberth and J. A. Wray on the tasteful program, and that means a good and profitable time.

...."Christian Union from a Baptist Standpoint," preached by Dr. Pritchard and printed in the RECORDER, has been put in tract form. We have heard many good opinions of it, several brethren, competent to speak, saying that it deserved to be kept as the Baptist position on this important question.

....Our readers will be glad to know that Rev. Junius W. Millard has accepted the call to Henderson. He is one of our brightest young men, as speaker or writer, energetic and consecrated. We are very glad to get him back to North Carolina. Bro. Millard is known to our readers as he was the Louisville correspondent of the RECORDER several sessions.

....Rev. O. C. Horton writes from East Durham: "I have been preaching here nightly since last fifth Sunday. Some interest is being manifested, and signs are hopeful." Rev. G. J. Dowell is helping him now.

....Rev. C. B. Justice, who is a safe and godly man, says of the "Regions Beyond" effort: "I think the suggestion a good one, that will result in much good." Brethren, let us see to it that the gospel is preached everywhere in North Carolina. God will bless us if we work.

....It is very much to be desired that those who will make contributions to the Royall Chair endowment, make known to Prest. Taylor as soon as possible how much he may expect. The quicker this is done the better in every respect. The endowment is very much needed.

....A sister writes from Leaksville: "The pastor of our church, Rev. J. B. Richardson, was assisted in a series of meetings by Bro. M. A. Adams of Reidsville. Twenty-five happy converts was the result of the meeting. Bro. Adams preached with great power, and the Holy Spirit accompanied his labors."

....The receipts of the Missionary Union for the year just closed indicate that the appropriations have all been met, and the debt of last year reduced by about $10,000. The Home Mission Society, which began the year April 1st, 1894, with a debt of $101,456.66, closes the year March 31st, with a debt of $108,799 30.—The Watchman.

....Dr. Robinson of Clayton was a pleasant visitor in Raleigh last week. He spoke enthusiastically of the recent Union Meeting at Clayton, especially commending the work of brethren Newton, Mashburn, Cowan and Cree of Wake Forest. He says Bro. Cree is working to have fully as good a Union with Shiloh church next time.

....Rev. J. R. Pace writes from Whitaker's: "I attended the Flat River Union at Creedmore, Granville county. A good meeting; good people; kind brethren and sisters. I asked them for $35 to pay off a debt on our house of worship at Battleboro, N. C., and in a few minutes it was raised. I will hold a meeting at Hobgood, N. C., next week. Bro. G. M. Duke will assist me."

....By urgent request of the congregation of the First Baptist church, Rev. C. A. Jenkens has decided to continue his pastorate during this month. His members regret ever so much to give him up, as under his pastorate the church has considerably increased in membership. No minister who has ever preached in Goldsboro has been more generally beloved, nor could the departure of any be more regretted.—Headlight.

....After Dr. Marvin, his physician, had pronounced his case hopeless, during the last few days Dr. Broadus was at times unconscious of what was going on around him, except when roused by being addressed. At such moments he lay singing in a low tone, "To sing my great Redeemer's praise." He is singing it now. His whole blessed and blessing life sang that praise.—Western Recorder.

....Bro. R. H. James writes from Reuben, N. C.: "Bro. N. S. Jones of Salisbury seems just now to think of a work that we old preachers have been doing for twenty years in our part of the State. Three-fourths of our churches were planted by such work. Now let the town and city preachers come out and do some work without money and without price, as we have done: then the Lord will be pleased." And don't forget the laymen, Bro. James, in town and country.

....Rev. J. L. Smith writes: "I will say in regard to Bro. N. S. Jones' proposition for missionary work, I know it to be a good thing. I have made it a point to have one extra appointment for the last twelve years, and with the assistance of one other ordained minister have built two new churches and one old one revived within an area of twenty square miles. I shall continue to work in this way. I preach at Staley every first Sunday evening and shall hold a series of meetings there some time this year."

....The large congregations that have attended the twice-a day services at the Baptist church in this town for the past ten days demonstrate conclusively that the religious sentiment in the community is much stronger than many people had supposed. Pastor Johnson has been preaching at 4 p. m. and at 7:45 p. m., and the church has been full at all the services. He is an earnest, consecrated pastor, and his labors are being richly blest in the awakening, conversion and establishing of our people.—Lumberton Robesonian.

....Rev. J. T. Betts of French Broad church, Asheville, writes: "The meeting at the West End church, conducted by Bro. R. E. Neighbour, closed their work with about 150 professions of conversions and 70 additions, mostly by baptism. These with the 25 who were received at the French Broad church make nearly 100 additions to the two churches. There were over two hundred professions in the two meetings. We can most heartily commend Bro. Neighbour as an evangelist, and hope the brethren will keep him busy while he is in this country."

....We thank the following brethren for new subscriptions sent last week: Rev. O. C. Horton, East Durham, Rev. J. M. White, Apex, Rev. J. T. Jenkins, Winston, Rev. G. M. Webb, Shelby, Rev. Geo. J. Dowell, Durham, Bro. N. L. Shaw, Warrenton, Rev. K. O. Horner, Rev. Blakely H. Matthews, Plymouth, Rev. N. P. Stallings, Moyock, Rev. J. E. Greene, Ronda, Bro. J. J. Welch and Sister L. P. Freeman, New Hill, Rev. H. D. Harrill, Forest City, Rev. O. L. Stringfield, Rev. D. W. Thomasson. This is a fine list, and we are proud of it. We expect to see it lengthen now that we have made the "Baptist Position" proposition.

....Raleigh Baptists were very anxious to begin building up in the Northern part of the city just as they have so successfully done in the Southern. A lot was bargained for; but this, that and the other delayed and overshadowed the matter. The Methodists got a lot, built a nice church; and they have just had a meeting in which there were many professions of religion. The membership of their new church is upwards of fifty already.

....Five thousand dollars have been raised for the enlargement at Durham. It is a wise plan our brethren are following, not to go into this work until there is safe assurance that the entire amount needed can be gotten. We Baptists have a strong set of preachers and people at Durham, all of the former being men in their prime, and we are sure they will hold their own in the preachers' association which has lately been organized.

....There has been a wonderful work of grace in the Calvary Baptist church, Roanoke, Va., since Rev. L. G. Broughton became pastor. It will undertake the support of Bro. E. F. Tatum in China, and is already supporting a worker in Mexico, although before Bro. Broughton took charge less than $100 was contributed for missions; and a commodious new house of worship has been built besides. We do not know if we ever heard of such growth.

....Rev. J. A. Campbell of Poe's, the energetic principal of Buie's Creek Academy, was in Raleigh on a brief visit last week. He secured Hon. John C. Scarborough to deliver the annual address before his school May 23d. This institution has done a great deal for this section of our country, and no one takes more pleasure in Bro. Campbell's success than the RECORDER. We were glad to have his approval of our efforts to get up a list of the Baptist schools and Baptist teachers in North Carolina.

... The venerable Dr. H. A. Tupper of Richmond has two sons whose usefulness to the Baptist denomination may exceed the noble record of his life. Dr. Kerr B. Tupper is one of the first Baptist preachers in the North or West, and Dr. H. Allen Tupper is, though young, keeping up the family record by able pastoral work in a leading Baltimore church. He is in North Carolina just now—at Morehead—on a recreation trip, and, incidentally, taking notes on North Carolina for the benefit of the people who are so unfortunate as not to know anything about our State. We were very glad to see him in Raleigh, and to hear that his father is in excellent health and spirits.

....Dr. Crawford has sent us the copy of the circular letter of Rev. Mr. Greene which he received, and also his answer to said circular. It seems incredible that any Baptist, and especially any Southern Baptist missionary, should have issued such a letter. "Shi li" is the term now used by all the Pedobaptists in China, and that means "washing ceremony." But even that is too baptistic, it seems, and not neutral enough. In regard to this, Mr. Green says in his letter: "'Shi li' seems no longer to be neutral, but some think it might be accepted." He suggests a word which means "water ceremony." That is neutral enough with a vengeance!—Western Recorder. We have never seen Bro. Greene's circular letter. We saw in the Examiner that he retracted certain parts of it. In an article in the BIBLICAL RECORDER he gave our readers to understand that he advocates use of the phrase "washing ceremony." There is a mistake somewhere.

....That executive committee of the B. Y. P. U. of Virginia should take a few lessons in the art of meaning what it says. From one set of resolutions, all of us being fairly good readers and honest, the Landmark, the Evangel, the Religious Herald and the BIBLICAL RECORDER misrepresented it; and two of the committee, the Religious Herald informs us, do not agree with the chairman in his statements of what the resolutions meant. Certainly we, who are not acquainted with the changes in the English language that the new age brethren have effected, are excusable. The truth is they played the young politician, and made a bungle of their work. They tried to appear loyal to the Southern Baptist Convention and at the same time could not conceal a nervousness lest something be done to sever them from the B. Y. P. U. A. or weaken the hold of that organization in the South. We are ready to make an agreement with our contemporaries not to mention B. Y. P. U. A. resolutions again until they are warranted to keep their color and we have received a new age dictionary.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination in not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones, —— place; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews, ——; Rev. R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges; Rev. I. W. Thomas; Rev. J. M. Hilliard; Rev. N. B. Orrell; Rev. J. C. Sorrells; Rev. C. B. Justice; Rev. J. L. Smith; Rev. S. B. Barnes; Rev. E. C. Bobbitt.

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

THE ROYALL CHAIR

first, of course. The work moves on. But there's no boom. Boom days are past for the present. Perhaps, on the whole, the success that is born of such sacrifice and hard work will be worth more when it comes. Will it come? Yes, assuredly, sooner or later. I wish it could be sooner instead of later. The Executive Board of the Bap. Ed. Society will meet in Washington in May. What joy it would be if we could report then that the $20,000 had all been pledged, and the notes all closed up as required by the conditions of their offer! Scores of brethren have told me that they are going to help. But they have not been ready to make definite promises. And, surely, no one can blame them for their hesitancy. The financial future has seemed uncertain. But now the money-wise people are saying that better things are ahead. The clouds are surely lifting a little and some streaks of blue sky are visible. Is it not possible for us to make a rally all along the line within the next thirty days and close this thing up? We are more than half way through. If all who really wish to help and who can help during the next three years will indicate their purpose now, we can soon report success. If you could use some of our notes, let me know by postal card. And if you have any of the notes and are fully and finally decided that it is not your duty to fill them out, please return them. They are all numbered and we wish to use them until the whole series is filled out.

SOME BOOKLETS.

Two or three have recently been published by Wake Forest Alumni. "Thoughts on Inspiration" by Rev. J. B. Solomon of Kentucky is a thought-provoking discussion. The distinction between revelation and inspiration is clear and helpful. The chapter on "The Bible as a Unique Book" ought to be valuable to one whose faith is wavering. Bro. Whitsitt of our Seminary furnishes the Introduction, and declares therein that he has "found such satisfaction and profit in perusing the valuable treatise which follows." The author's hypothesis which identifies the "Serpent" with the "missing link" is ingenious, but hardly likely to find acceptance.

Bro. J. F. Love of Suffolk, Va., is the author of a small volume which clearly states and ably defends "The Baptist Position." He is fortunate in being able to use a style which is easy and natural, yet not undignified. This booklet is likely to have a wide circulation.

Bro. Archie Robertson has recently written a pamphlet on Seminary training for college graduates. Like all of his work, this is well done. It has given me pleasure to place a copy in the hands of each of our Wake Forest theologues.

Another non resident North Carolinian, who happens to be a Trinity man, Dr. S. B. Weeks of Washington, D. D., has published a Bibliography of North Carolina history. It is the result of years of patient research, and while incomplete, it is by far the most accurate and exhaustive list of authorities that has yet appeared. No man of his age—for he is still young—has made such numerous and valuable contributions to the historical literature of our State as Dr. Weeks.

SCHOOL-TEACHERS.

I know of a score of young men who desire positions. Some wish permanent places. Others wish vacation work. Some are graduates; others are undergraduate students. Some have had several years' experience; others but little. I shall be glad to put these gentlemen in correspondence with parties who wish to employ teachers. And I know of several young ministers who desire to do missionary work or supply vacant pulpits during vacation. Some of these have had the advantages of one or more years at our Seminary.

LASTLY,

the endowment of the Royall Chair. Remember that it is possible for this work to be completed within thirty days. Shall we do it?

Baptist Notes from Virginia.

News is not at all scarce along Baptist lines in Virginia at this time. The churches are in good condition. Many great revivals and many souls saved. Rev. W. W. Hamilton at Bonsack near Roanoke has recently had the greatest meeting in the history of his church; and at present is engaged in a great meeting at Bristol, Tenn.-Va., with Rev. G. S. Williams, who was once the successful pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church, Raleigh. Some two hundred professions.

Dr. Hatcher of the Grace Street church, Richmond, is now holding a fine meeting. Drs. Landrum and Hutson of that city have just closed good meetings. Dr. Wright of Leigh Street is to begin in a week a meeting with your correspondent to help him.

In Norfolk there has been a great work of grace. It began with Dr. Hall's church. We were permitted to labor with those good people. Dr. Wharton, E. B. Hatcher and W. F. Watson next followed. We were permitted again to labor in this great city this time with Dr. Wharton. It was a precious work, a good people and a great pastor. The Lord gave us about two hundred souls. Dr. Hatcher was with his son Eldridge at same time and had a good meeting. Watson had Bro. F. H. Martin of Scottsville (another North Carolinian who is over here doing effective work for the Master). We heard Bro. Watson say in the Minister's Conference in Norfolk that Martin was "a real good preacher"; there is no doubt about the correctness of this remark. Norfolk has been greatly blessed by these meetings. While we were there we met many old "Tar Heels." There was Judge Eure who was so long an honored Judge on the North Carolina bench. He is very much beloved in Norfolk, very fond of his church and his church of him. Dr. Wharton, his pastor, says he is one of the best of men. Dr. Lankford is another popular North Carolinian. He has one of the best practices in Norfolk. He is a surgeon of fast-growing reputation. His dear wife, who was so popular, had just died, and certainly no man has ever had more sympathy than has Dr. Lankford. We never knew her, but she must have been a woman of rare good qualities. Bro. Killinger and family also live there and are among the best members of Freemason Street. They have a son at Wake Forest. We also met our old friend, Dr. E. B. Ferrebee, who is making his way into a fine practice. But we can't mention them all. We were glad to find them all doing well and that they still take the RECORDER.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES.

There is a wide difference of opinion in Virginia about the Washington Conference. Many of our leading pastors are opposed to a distinct Southern organization. There seems to be little need for it. If any organization is needed, let it be national, and have the South represented in the literature. This is what many think. As for me I am frank to say that if we are not careful we will kill the movement with a lot of worthless machinery.

THE BAPTIST POSITION.

Bro. Love's "Baptist Position" is meeting with very favorable comment. We have read it and heartily believe in it as we do in Love himself.

We are glad to be able to report that our church, Calvary, has undertaken the support of Bro. E. F. Tatum in Shanghai, China, and the money is in hand for his first year's salary. Our ladies are also supporting a native Mexican lady missionary. Only a year ago we gave only forty dollars to Foreign Missions. This is done beside building a church, &c.

TO THE CONVENTION.

While not representing any railroad, I want to say a word about a trip to the Convention at Washington, D. C., especially to the brethren in that part of North Carolina from Greensboro west. The trip via Roanoke over the N. & W. is decidedly the finest route for comfort and scenery. Delegates can leave Greensboro, come over C. F. & Y. V. to Madison, make quick connection with N. & W. from Roanoke, or from Mt. Airy join the N. & W. at Walnut Cove. At Winston they can take this train and join the other delegates at their places and arrive at Roanoke at four o'clock of Wednesday, spend fours looking around the "Magic City" with its many attractions, also attend prayer meeting and see our new church. At 10 p. m. of the same day, we will all join the great Baptist train from the South and over the magnificent Shenandoah Valley road go into Washington, getting there by breakfast.

Coming back, we will have day travel, and I want to say to my friends that a prettier scenery has never been looked upon than along this route. It is the opportunity of a life time. Fare from Greensboro the same as over any other route.

I will be glad to see our friends from Winston, Greensboro, Mt. Airy and other points. Let me know and I will engage sleeper, &c. I will give you a big time in Roanoke during those four hours.

LEN. G. BROUGHTON.

What it Means.

We asked Bro. Chaudoin of Florida, and the State Secretaries of other States, to tell the Baptists what it would mean to their mission work in these States if the burdensome debt of the Home Board should compel it to withdraw its aid from them. To this the Florida Witness makes reply as follows:

"This cutting loose from us of the Home Board contains momentous questions for us. It does not mean simply a stoppage of progress. It means many wrecks and much wreckage. We have read that in the olden time the now effete Spanish nation expected an easy conquest of England; but its splendid armada was wrecked within sight of the English people. From that time the power of Spain was broken. Let us adapt this analogy to our work in this State. With the help of the Home Board, the cause of Florida has steadily, surely gone forward. We have, within the last few years, felt that the State must needs be ours. But alas! the fate of the Spanish armada impends over us."

So it would be in Louisiana, in Arkansas, in Texas, in Indian Territory, in Oklahoma. The fate of the Spanish armada impends over half the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention. Let our brethren everywhere understand this crisis. Lift the burden of debt from the Home Mission Board. That frees our mission work in all these States from the threatened disaster.

I. T. TICHENOR.

Rev. S. W. Oldham Ordained.

By the request of the church at Lystra, Mt. Zion Association, on the first Sunday in April, 1895, a presbytery, consisting of Dr. Hume, I. S. Boyles and J. M. White, met at said church, examined and ordained to the gospel ministry, Bro. S. W. Oldham.

Bro. Boyles preached a helpful sermon. Bro. White offered prayer. Dr. Hume delivered the charge.

A large congregation heard gladly the Word, and with much interest witnessed the ordination.

May it be God's good pleasure to make Bro. Oldham an effective worker in his vineyard.

Burlington and Other Churches.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—A few items from this part of the State may not be without interest. Bro. Van Deventer is doing a good work in this town. Of course, every one who knows Bro. Van Deventer expected this. He began a series of meetings last night. May God bless these special services in the salvation of many.

When I took charge of the church here, two years ago last January, I found the church in debt to the amount of more than $600. The panic of the first year and ill health the first half of last year made it impossible for me to raise this money until the 15th of last August. That day I began; and, after doing a great deal of hard work, I paid the debt the 15th of December, then amounting to more than $660. The day following, the third Sunday, I preached my farewell sermon. The first Sunday in January Bro. Van Deventer began his work. There is need of much work being done here, and our pastor is doing it efficiently. This work promises much fruit.

Our church at Haw River continues to grow: we now have ninety members. It will be remembered that we organized last June a year ago with thirty three. The first Sunday in next month I expect to baptize three candidates that are now awaiting the ordinance.

Two weeks ago we entered into a contract with a builder to have a house of worship erected. The house, without its furnishings, will cost us $1,575. I hope to be able to raise two-thirds of this amount in and immediately around the town. The balance I shall have to get elsewhere.

Beginning Friday before and including the fifth Sunday in June, the Mt. Zion Union Meeting will convene with us. On Sunday of this meeting, we expect to dedicate our house of worship. I take this opportunity of asking your Corresponding Agent to be with us then. We don't want him to fail to put in his appearance.

At Graham, we have received several members recently, and we expect to receive others in the near future. During the year, we expect to re paint and otherwise improve our house of worship.

At Mt. Adar, a mission church, eight miles north of Mebane, where I began to preach in December last, there is a wide field of usefulness.

I am again pastor at Cane Creek in Orange county, where I preached five years before I came to this place. We had a happy reunion the last third Sunday.

Well, I'll not write more now.

Fraternally, JOHN C. HOCUTT.

Organization of a New Church.

A council of ministerial brethren were invited to meet in Winton, N. C., on the evening of the 31st of March, 1895. The council, consisting of Revs. John Mitchell, D. D., A. Cree, C. W. Scarboro, L. M. Curtis, J. B. Boone, Samuel Saunders, T. G. Wood and W. V. Savage, met in the Winton Academy at 7:30 p. m., and organized by choosing Dr. Mitchell, Chairman, and Rev. J. B. Boone, Secretary. Rev. A. Cree preached from Rev. 15: 2, 3 and 4. The chairman then called for a reason for the constitution of the church. Dr. W. J. Gatling submitted a brief statement in behalf of the brethren proposing to organize.

Letters were presented containing forty-two members—seventeen males and twenty-five females. The letters were examined by the council and approved.

A church covenant was read and adopted by the brethren. Articles of Faith (the New Hampshire Confession) were read and adopted.

George A. Brown was elected Church Clerk. Brethren Thomas D. Boone, T. J. Matthews, H. B. Vann and George A. Brown were elected Deacons. The name, "Chowan Baptist Church," was adopted for the new organization.

The council, by unanimous consent, approved the organization and recognized the Chowan Baptist church as a church of our Lord Jesus Christ.

An appropriate charge was delivered to the church by Bro. T. G. Wood. The right hand of fellowship was given. Benediction by Bro. L. M. Curtis.

University Summer School.

The Summer School at Chapel Hill affords unusual opportunities to young men and women desiring University education, as well as to teachers and those preparing to teach. Instruction will be given mainly by University professors, in English Literature, Anglo-Saxon, History, Latin, Greek, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry and Chemistry. Teachers will be given an opportunity to see exemplified by experts the best methods of teaching all the subjects usually taught in the preparatory schools. Certificates of satisfactory work and attendance, duly signed by the President of the University and the professors, will be given to those who complete the course and stand the examination. Miss Mathilde Coffin, of Detroit, Michigan, a celebrated teacher of young children, will have charge of the primary work.

The tuition fee of $5 00 admits to all instruction during the five weeks session of the school, June 25th to July 26th, 1895. Apply to Pres't Winston, or E. A. Alderman, Chapel Hill, N. C.

No small objection which young folks had to the old-time spring medicines was their nauseousness. In our day, this objection is removed and Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the most powerful and popular of blood-purifiers, is as pleasant to the palate as a cordial.

A goodly number of communications are crowded out of this issue.

Up to Date Testimony.

CONCORD, N. C., April 2, 1895.

Dear Sir:—Your letter asking my experience to hand and I hasten to reply, feeling that it is due not only your company but the suffering public to testify to the great merit of the Electropoise.

In March 1892, my father, mother, brother, two sisters, myself and several darkies on the place took a kind of bowel trouble, which was so destructive in its nature and so unyielding, that all the medical skill at our command failed to cure a single case amongst us. In November of that year my mother died a victim of this disease. In October, 1894, my father died with it after two years and eight months of great suffering. In June, 1893, I bought an Electropoise and at once began its use. Almost at once I began to feel benefited, and in the course of a few months felt like a new creature.

In addition to the chronic bowel trouble I had dyspepsia so badly that I was perfectly miserable for an hour or two after each meal. This at once disappeared and I ate whatever I wanted with impunity.

I tried everything I could hear of, but all to no avail until in the kind providence of God, I was induced to buy an Electropoise. I am sure that if I had not gotten an Electropoise that I would have been a dead man now, instead of being able to say, I am a well man, and thank God and your company for it. I take pleasure in recommending the Electropoise to all sufferers and believe it a panacea for almost all diseases. Have not had to pay a doctor's bill since I bought it. Money could not buy mine if I could not get another. It is my "family doctor."

This is the first testimonial I have ever written and I write it because I want all suffering humanity to be benefited. I know what it is to be deceived and would not testify to the merits of the Electropoise if I did not know that I was safe in doing so. Am willing to be qualified before a Magistrate as to the truthfulness of what I have written can write to any minister in the Western N. C., Conference (of which I am a member) or to any one in Laurinburg, N. C., where I was raised and ask for a statement of my veracity.

Believing that I have done my duty in writing this testimonial, I am

Gratefully yours,

W. H. L. MCLAURIN

A Wonderful Cure for Cancer.

There is no further need to cut cancers out with knives or burn them out with plasters. Dr. Mason, Richmond, Va., has a cure for this dreadful disease that surpasses all other methods in rapid healing and permanent cure. It will not be worth while, however, to write to the Doctor unless you are tired of quack medicine and so-called cancer doctors who use knives or plasters. Dr. Mason does not compete with such. His remedy is painless and soothing, and the only one suitable for the aged or weak. The relief is immediate and the cure rapid. It seeks out the disease growths and destroys their vitality, causing the cancer to pass away, leaving only an ordinary healthy sore, which rapidly heals.

Dr. Mason has two methods of treatment—"Home Treatment" and "Personal Treatment." "Home Treatment" is for cases where the patients can be cared for at home without any other cost than the medicines, fully as well as to go to Richmond for "Personal Treatment," by the Doctor. The cost for "Personal Treatment" is less than half the cost of "Home Treatment," and for those who can be cured in a few weeks. When writing, describe the case fully, and direct letter to Dr. Scott Mason, 709 E. Clay Street Richmond, Va.

his pastorate, the party referred to in your letter must have left New Jersey. Now supposing they were members of his church, it is not unlikely that he accompanied or followed them for the purpose of organizing them into a church."

We quote some of the names of the parties who came, as they have been handed down: they are the McKoys, Merrills, McGuires, Smiths, Moores, Ellises, Marches, Haydens, Wisemans, Tranthams, and many others. The late Gov. Ellis of this State, we are told, had his ancestry in this colony.

"Appointed, that one ministering brother from the Jerseys, and one from Pennsylvania, visit North Carolina."—Hist. Philadelphia Association, 1755. But this was agreed to in October, 1775. It seems that Benj. Miller was here earlier still. Here follows, perhaps, the very earliest printed record of Baptist work at "Jersey Settlement." It is from Foote's Sketches of North Carolina. Speaking of Mr. McAden, a Presbyterian minister, he says:

"On Wednesday, Sept. 3d (1755), he set out for the Yadkin (Jersey church). Note, at this date it was sometimes called the 'Yadkin,' or, the 'church on the Yadkin.' Next morning, came to Henry Sloan's at the Yadkin Ford (Trading Ford), near the church where I was kindly entertained till Sabbath, rode to the meeting-house and preached to a small congregation. Here there appears to have been a congregation of some strength that had a meeting house, but had become divided. Many adhere to the Baptists that were before wavering, and several that professed themselves to be Presbyterians; so that very few at present join heartily for our ministers, and will in a little time, if God prevent not, be too weak either to call or supplicate for a faithful minister. O may the good Lord, who can bring order out of confusion, and call things that are not as though they were, visit this people! One cause of the divisions in this congregation arose from the labors of a Baptist minister among them by the name of Miller."

The author is writing for Presbyterians and mentions the Baptists incidentally. A little later on he wrote as follows:

"After visiting Second Creek, and preaching at Captain Hampton's, he passed on to the Yadkin, and having crossed it with difficulty, he lodged with his former host, Mr. Sloan, and preached in 'the meeting house' on the second Sabbath of January, the 11th day (1756), in company with a Mr. Miller, the Baptist minister from Jersey, of whom as a Christian man he speaks favorably."

This is all the information concerning Benjamin Miller's work here. In the above, we find that there was a "meeting house," but it is not stated that there was a Baptist church constituted—it does not seem that there was one as yet. There are some statements which are not easily reconciled. About this time, perhaps a little before, John Gano entered the ministry. Early in his ministerial life, he made a tour of North and South Carolina, preaching. Soon after his return home, he says: "I was induced to engage in a second journey. I therefore set out, and, when I arrived at the Yadkin, in North Carolina, I was strongly solicited to move among them. They sent two messengers to my church to give me up."

He says further on: "I called a church meeting to give the church at Yadkin an opportunity to present their message, which they did, and used all their influence with the church to no apparent success." But afterwards they reconsidered it and left it all with Mr. Gano, who decided at once that he ought to go. "I at length took leave of the church and my friends, and started on a long, expensive and tedious journey; and, through the goodness of God, arrived there in about five weeks, after traveling about eight hundred miles. We met with a favorable reception from the people, and Col. G. Smith received us in his house, where we continued until I built a house. The people met, and determined on building a meeting house, which was completed in a few months. As there was no other place of worship near, and there was a great collection of inhabitants of different denominations, they all attended, and it became generally united. In order that all might be concerned upon necessary occasions, we appointed a board of trustees, some of each denomination. They continued to be united while I remained there, which was about two years and a half. Before I left the place, a Baptist church was constituted and many additions made to it. During my residence in this place, we were blest with another son, who was born Nov. 11th, 1758..... The reason of my leaving this place was the war with the Cherokee Indians. I had a captain's commission from the Governor; but there being no immediate call for my services, and my family being much exposed, I concluded it was expedient to move back to New Jersey. I therefore resigned my commission, and left this place, under the protection of a kind providence, arrived at my father-in-law's, at Elizabeth-Town, with my wife and two children, after being absent two years."—Autobiography of John Gano. We have this quotation: "Soon after he returned from this excursion (his second tour South), he was invited by an infant church in North Carolina, which he had raised up in a place called the Jersey Settlement, to remove and become its pastor."—Benedict, Vol. II., page 318.

Gano himself says that it was constituted before he left there; Benedict says an "infant church in North Carolina which he had raised up," &c.

It is quite probable, owing to the fact that there were so few churches in the State at that time and no available minister, that the Baptists here were recognised as an "arm" by the mother church from whence they came, and that they exercised all the prerogatives of a church. And it is most likely true that Mr. Miller's visit there in September, 1755, was the first visit ever made there by a Baptist minister. Mr. Gano says he was here about two years and a half. As he was here in November, 1758, it is not likely that circumstances favored his return before the spring of 1759; so that it seems he must have come to North Carolina in the fall of 1756. He says the church was constituted before he left—probably in 1757. As the church was probably menaced by the Indians—so much so, that Mr. Gano felt that the safety of his family demanded that he return to New Jersey; it is a reasonable presumption that the organization never had another pastor—admitting this, in connection with the unfavorable surroundings, it is supposed that they did not hold together many years.

Morgan Edwards, writing in 1772-73 and speaking of the formation of Shallow Ford's church, says: It "began with a few from Little River, (and) the remains of Jersey Settlement church." It is a source of regret that a church, starting so early in our denominational history in the State with a favorable following—for it seems that the community was largely Baptistic—should come to such an untimely end. But, though the organization died so soon, we have abundant reason to believe that Baptist principles did not cease to live on in that community till the present. Baptists are somewhat like clover in one respect; if they once get a good hold, they are hard to kill out.

Of the organization that soon took the place of the first, we will tell in our next.

The Easter number of the New York Ledger surpasses in beauty and interest any previous issue of that famous periodical. The cover is ornamented by the figure of a beautiful young woman, arrayed in the freshest of spring costumes, surrounded by cupids bearing flowers and musical instruments, enveloping her with the odors and airs of springtime. The listening attitude of the figure is full of suggestions and prophecy of the future. The contents of this number of the Ledger are in keeping with the beautiful cover. It has a charming story, entitled "An Easter Lilly," by Elizabeth Olmis; an Easter poem by Adelaide Proctor; an Easter sketch, entitled "The Commander's Easter," by Rhodes Campbell; a breezy bicycle story, entitled "On Wheels," by Virginia Niles Leeds, author of "The Summer Man;" a humerous poem on A Plate of Buckwheat Cakes," by William R Barber. The first chapters of a new serial, entitled "Little Kit," by Effie Adelaide Rowlanns, author of "At a Great Cost;" the continuation of "Jack Robbins of America," by Seaward W. Hopkins, author of "In the China Sea." In addition to these It is replete with delightful editorial matter, appropriate miscellany, poetry, children's stories, correspondence, science, and the always interesting department for wives and mothers, entitled "The Woman's World." The Easter number of the New York Ledger contains twenty-eight pages, beautifully illustrated, and is sold for only 5 cents.

Look Out

for breakers ahead when pimples, boils, carbuncles and like manifestations of impure blood appear. They wouldn't appear if your blood were pure and your system in the right condition. They show you what you need—a good blood purifier; that's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It carries health with it. All blood, Skin, and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. It invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood, and rouses every organ into healthful action. In the most stubborn forms of Skin Diseases, such as Salt-Rheum, Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, Carbuncles, and kindred ailments, and with Scrofula in every shape, and all blood taints, if it fails to cure, you have your money back. And that makes it the cheapest blood-purifier sold.

The Homiletic Review for April comes to hand as usual well filled with interest material. Rev. James Doughlas, of London, writes a most readable article on "The Spirit of Man," showing most conclusively to the candid mind that man's very constitution holds in itself the strongest of arguments against the claims of materialism. Drummond's Ascent of Man" is the subject of an able criticism by George P. Mains, D. D., of Brooklyn. The exegetical article of the month is from the well known pen of Prof. W. Garden Blaikie, D. D., L. L. D., of Edinburg, and treats of St. Paul's Pastoral Counsels to the Corinthians." The Sociological Section is crowded with the helpful material from the pens of Dr. J. H. W. Stuckenberg and Rev. B. F. Kidder, Ph. D. Chaplain C. O. Batemen, U. S. A., furnishes the Living Issue discussion, which is on the subject of "Disarmament of Nations."

is not a secret remedy. It is simply the purest Norway Cod-liver Oil, the finest Hypophosphites, and chemically pure Glycerine, all combined into a perfect Emulsion so that it will never change or lose its integrity. This is the secret of Scott's Emulsion's great success.

It is the happy combination of these most valuable ingredients, materially increasing their potency; hence the great value of Scott's Emulsion in wasting diseases. We think people should know what they are taking into their stomachs.

We direct special attention to the following remarkable statement:

For many years I suffered from Catarrh, which destroyed my hearing, and for 25 years I was so deaf that I could not hear a clock strike by holding my ear against it. I had tried every known remedy, and nothing gave me the slightest relief. I obtained Dr. Moore's treatment, and in three weeks my hearing began to improve, and now I can hear common conversation across a room; can hear a clock strike in an adjoining room, 30 feet away. I think I am entirely cured, and my hearing permanently restored.

Woman's Missionary Department.

President Woman's Central Committee of North Carolina, Miss FANNIE E. HECK, Raleigh, N. C.; Secretary, Mrs. J. A. BRIGGS, Raleigh, N. C.

Two new narrative leaflets, telling of the work of the Home Board, have been published and will be sent free on application to Miss Fannie E. Heck, Raleigh, N. C.

In one moment—while your eyes follow these word—twenty-three souls in China will have passed into eternity. Ere you throw this paper aside, in one brief hour, fourteen hundred souls in China will have "sunk to christless graves," eight hundred souls in India, passed out into darkness, and seven hundred in Africa gone past recall!

There is nothing new in this. Perhaps you have heard these things until you are weary of them. It may be they will pass now as unheeded as the sigh of a summer wind, and you will turn untouched to the interest nearest you. But some will heed and ponder, and in the silence of unshed tears will cry, "Help, Lord!"

You cry for God to help. God cries to you to help,

Seven thousand soldiers of the cross have gone into the far fields to help, a little army of the Lord sent to contend with the hosts of Satan 165,000 times as great. Every large missionary organization pledged for the support of this handful of soldiers is deeply in debt for their support. For the pitifully small corps for which Southern Baptists are responsible, thirty-seven thousand dollars will be needed by April 30th, 1895.

Well, let it pass, say some. Recall the laborers now so few; recall them though they have been so signally blessed of God this year; recall them, though they fight valiantly and well to please him who has called them to be soldiers. Let it pass. We are safe and saved. We know of this salvation and are blessed. Let it pass; it is nothing to us.

No; let it not pass! Listen, ye, that sit at home. Look and see. Seven thousand Christ soldiers on foreign shores, and more than four thousand volunteers at home, who pray us to send them, raise their trembling hands to heaven "calling God to witness that their skirts are free from heathen blood." The blood guiltiness fall, then, where? Upon our God? Never. Upon us? Yes. Upon those who sleep at ease in Zion. Can we, shall we, bear this guilt? God forbid. Recall our handful of missionaries, who are but one to every 12,500 who stay at home! In actions, not in words, let us cry again, God forbid, and in the days now upon us meet the needs of our God-commissioned soldiers with cheerful, ready gifts. And when this is done, as done it can be, remember, of our own number there still stand a hundred praying, waiting to be sent, saying, "Not upon us, but upon you, be the blood of those who might have been saved by us. God be our witness, that we would and ye would not."

Indians in North Carolina.

The Eastern Cherokees number 1,500. Methodist and Baptist missionaries have in the past labored among them, but have both withdrawn, and three ordained Indian ministers preach to the Indians. The majority of the Indians who are church members are Baptists, there being but a few Methodists. The Rev. Owens—Baptist—was engaged as a missionary here about three years ago, but meeting with much opposition he was obliged to give up the work, which was no doubt, about yielding an abundant harvest. I urged him to return and resume the work, assuring him of my full support and help in every possible way. As the most of these Indians are inclined to the Baptist church, I would prefer a Baptist missionary to be sent here to labor among them, believing he could accomplish good and take up the work where it was dropped. The Indian ministers preach regularly in the different settlements to the Indians, but they are not educated men. I think a good and able missionary should be sent here as I consider a very great and much needed work can be done. I would be glad to see a self-sacrificing man sent here who would go out into the homes of these poor people and teach them the true path of righteousness and the proper and better life to live, instructing them in the ways of cleanliness as well as holiness. His wife could be of great assistance in teaching the Indian women in their homes.

The Eastern Cherokees are the remnant of the great Cherokee nation that refused to go west in 1835, preferring to live on those steep mountain sides, and struggle for an existence rather than cultivate the rich praries of the Indian Territory. They are very poor generally speaking, living in one-roomed log houses without windows, and hardly any furniture, in which they cook, eat and live, storing corn, beans and other stuff between and under the three or four beds that may be in the room. A few are in better circumstances, having larger houses and barns. They are self supporting for the reason that the United States has never given them any help except the establishment of the schools, and they are therefore obliged to earn their own living and pay their taxes as other citizens of North Carolina. I have tried to get them a saw mill, carpenter, farmer, field matron, so that I could build them better and healthier homes, teach them how to farm and live as civilized and intelligent whites. But the Department could not grant me those requests because the appropriations allowed were insufficient. I consider money expended here will bring greater results in advancing these Indians and christianizing them than in the West, because these Indians are ripe for instruction, and they are workers, never having been fed or clothed by the government. I am very glad, however, to report that the last Congress gave us $5,000 for new buildings, which will give us a capacity for 150 pupils, and I hope to soon double the capacity of the four day schools. The Commissioner, and Superintendent of Indian Schools, are very anxious to help us all in their power. My appropriation is for only eighty pupils, but last year I averaged 135, after sending about forty to Carlisle and Hampton. This year I am taking only 100.

There are 400 children of school age on the reservation. We are in great need of larger buildings and an increased appropriation In behalf of these poor and needy people I would certainly recommend any help your Society could give them, and would suggest that the Baptists again take up their work here and send a missionary to give his entire time among them.

Please excuse the irregularity of this information, which I will not call a report. I will be pleased to write you more fully at some future date.

A Meeting at Deep Creek.

The meeting of the sisters in connection with the regular Union at Deep Creek church was a new feature, but one highly approved by the majority of the people.

The meeting was conducted by the efficient Vice President of the W. M. U., Mrs. L. C. Bennett, who arouses all with her missionary zeal, assisted by Miss Emma Tarleton as Secretary.

After the reading of a part of the twelfth chapter of Luke and a prayer by Mrs. Bennett, the roll was called by the Secretary and the following Societies were represented: Deep Creek, Morven, Mount Beulah, Wadesboro, and the Wadesboro Chapel. The good reports from each Society encourages us and stimulates us to even greater work. Mrs. Bennett in her paper on "Woman's Part in Mission Work" gave us scriptural instances of the same kind of work that we are trying to do, and showed us so plainly that it is woman's duty to assist man in the great work of saving souls, and that each of us could do something, that we could not but feel that it is our duty to help. And the next paper, "Individual Responsibility," by Mrs. W. J. Huntley and read by Miss Polly Crowder deepened the conviction that no one was to be excused from her part of the work. Miss Tarleton's "Christian Giving" was the same dear old picture touched up by a new artist to suit the present times, and left no doubt in our minds that giving was not only the duty but the privilege of every Christian.

As the Deep Creek Society had not observed the week of self-denial, Mrs Bennett urged them to do it and receive the blessing.

She then told about the box the Wadesboro Society are packing for a home missionary, and related to them a little story of a sacrifice made by an old woman to be able to put something in a missionary box, which so touched the hearts of her hearers that a contribution was made to it.

The meeting was closed by a chain of prayer thanking God for the meeting, and asking his blessing on what was done.

Unlettered History.

Early settlers of New York and New England were familiar enough with the savage wampum, but wholly misconceived its use. They supposed it to be a sort of money, because it was so highly valued, and used it themselves for that purpose. The savages had no conception of money as exchange, and valued their strings of wampum, because they had for them a varied ceremonial significance. Belts and strings were used for many purposes for which civilized people use writing, such as to declare war, to confirm peace and to convey information of various kinds when sent by messengers from tribe to tribe. Many of these uses are noted by Parham, Fiske, and other historians of early America, but none of these attach much importance to the most esoteric and important use of wampum, as a record of historic events, or to the obvious conclusion that each of the different articles of which a belt was composed was a special sign, like the pictures of the Aztec writing, and that the entire belt conveyed a connected relation to the instructed savage.

This is the more strange because the history of native races of America, furnishes almost an exact parallel in the quipus of the Peruvians. These were bunches of knotted cord, the knots of which had a special meaning to the adepts, who were charged with preservation of rare traditions. Neither quipus nor wampum were writings proper. They were simply aids to memory, with which their successive custodians were taught to remember and recite traditions handed down from one generation to another. What was called "reading the wampum," was simply reciting from memory national traditions, the nature and order of events in which was indicated by the arrangements of articles in it. The wampum strings, or belts, were made of shells, stones, quills, pieces of bone, carved pieces of wood, etc., attached by raw-hide thongs to stout pieces of rawhide. Each shell, stone, or other article, attached to the rawhide, meant something just as the letters on a printed page mean something to us. A certain number of middle-aged men in the tribe were taught each year to interpret these symbols, and so faithful were they to detail, that generations would pass, and the history would grow in length and intricacy, and still the wampum-keepers of the tribe would read it as we read a printed book. There are now in existence among the descendants of the Iroquois of New York several valuable and curious wampums, recording the history of early wars among the tribes, and with the whites. The pre-Columbian wampum has probably all been lost, and it is presumed that there are now no Indians who could interpret it if it could be found. These records have but little historical value, therefore, because their ground is better covered by the records of white settlers.—Portland Oregonian.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

S. S. Association at Jonesboro.

Dear Recorder:—We have just closed a lively session of our Sunday-school Association. The brethren entered heartily into the work, and, with the assistance of brethren Durham and Hatcher, made the discussions practical and interesting.

Very much to the regret of us all, only one fourth of the churches were represented. Few of these made good reports. Efforts were made to stir up the pastors along the line of this special feature of Christian work.

Minutes will be printed for distribution, and papers read by Miss Lizzie Brooks and Mrs. B. W. Hatcher are requested for publication, with the hope of increasing the interest in S. S. work within the bounds of the Sandy Creek Association. Here let me ask pastors, and friends to use these publications judiciously, and let them do a noble work.

This session has been a very remarkable one for the expressed sentiment against the pastors. We take it as a kind reproof of negligence. The laymen were in a majority, and they were bold and free to express themselves. Pastors, let us report ourselves at the next meeting, and, with our presence and a good showing of works, prevent such grave charges as were made against us during this session. One hour's speech was full of charges against the preachers of our Association, because of our indifference and hindrance to the Sunday-school work. What a record! how sad that such was the case! I do hope and pray that we may be more diligent in the Lord's business, and, when we meet again in session, have more favorable reports. Think about it.

HOTEL AND BOARDING HOUSE RATES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31, 1895.

To Delegates and Visitors to the Southern Baptist Convention, Greeting:

The churches of our denomination in the District of Columbia are gratified that their invitation to the Southern Baptist Convention to hold its session for this year at the National Capital had been accepted. We will do all in our power to make the session pleasant and profitable to all who attend. We will furnish free entertainment for the officers of the Convention, the presidents and secretaries of the Boards, and returned missionaries. The house of worship of the First Baptist church, 16th street above Scott Circle, has been selected for the place of meeting, and the Ebbitt House, corner of 14th and F streets, for Convention headquarters.

We have endeavored to secure ample accommodation in hotels and boarding-houses at reduced rates for all who desire to attend. Rates will range from $2.50 to $1.50 a day, while some boarding-houses will receive delegates and visitors at $1.00 a day.

At the Ebbitt House the rates will be $3.50 a day, with accommodation for fifty persons at $2 00 a day with two in a room. Delegates and visitors will obtain these rates on the presentation of a card of introduction from the Committee on Assignment. Those who expect to attend will please write as soon as possible to the undersigned, giving the full names and the number of those for whom entertainment is desired, stating whether Mr., Mrs., or Miss, the rates preferred, and the time of arrival in Washington, and the Committee on Assignment will do its utmost to furnish comfortable quarters.

These terms apply also to all attending the meetings of the American Baptist Education Society, the Woman's Missionary Union, and the Young People.

Address all communications to—

Half Price to Ministers!

Sermons, Addresses and Reminiscences,

BY

Rev. THOS. E. SKINNER, D. D.

In order that every minister in North Carolina may have an opportunity to place this valuable and interesting book in his library, and for the purpose of introducing it, we offer it to ministers, by mail, postpaid, for sixty five cents (65).

Fifty cents for the book and fifteen cents for postage.

The book contains 450 pages of clear print, on good paper, and is handsomely bound in cloth. The regular price of the book is $1.15, by mail, and is considered very cheap at that.

Our offer to ministers is to send the book by mail for 65 cents. We shall keep this offer open for a limited time. If you want the book, send your order at once. Address,

EDWARDS & BROUGHTON,

Publishers, Raleigh, N. C.

Read What is Said of the Book.

Dr. Charles E. Taylor says: "A most valuable contribution to the religious literature of North Carolina. If the book shall have the wide circulation which it deserves, I believe it will be used of God for the awakening and conversion of very many."

Dr. J. B Gambrell, President of Mercer University, Georgia, has the following to say in "The Index": "The whole book is juicy, soulful and helpful toward a wider range of things and a better spiritual life. It is a good Sunday book. The Sermons deal with matters of life and death, and the Addresses touch on many practical topics, while the Reminiscences, especially of the author's conversion and spiritual life, are rich with a heavenly flavor."

"Every pastor, and especially every young Baptist preacher in North Carolina, ought to have a copy of Dr. Skinner's book. If I had the means it would be a great pleasure to me to send a copy of it to every young preacher in the State."—C. Durham.

Says Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, "are the mile-stones whereby we measure our progress through life."

Do you want to be somebody? If you do, there is no time to lose. This is the age of "Go!" The man who does not know things will be as surely left in the race as a horse who starts with a bucket of water in his interior department. Your friends will be sorry, but they can not stop to wait for you. There is no middle course. We must go forward or backward. In the crisis of life, the man

Who Hesitates Is Lost

How to succeed—that is the great question. The most important thing is to know what you want to do, and then do it well. No half-measure.

Whatever your business, trade or profession, make yourself master of it. To useful knowledge comes smiles. Study the practical part of your business first and embellishment your mind afterward. But you will say: I work hard all day, and I have no time nor money for a library wherewith to educate myself, and no time for lectures or lessons.

Now Listen:

If your room is only six feet by four and your income the smallest, you can furnish it with the best library in the world at a cost that will surprise you by its insignificance. That library contains of all works ever written, but that one work covers the entire field of human knowledge. It is a work worthy to be your guide through life. It is the new up-to-date edition of the Great Encyclopedia Britannica, and if you are a subscriber to The Observer you can have it at your own by the simple saving of sometimes a day. NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

Heavy freshets carried away many bridges in central and eastern counties last week.——Considerable excitement has been aroused in Raleigh and other towns by the summary dismissal of certain Seaboard Air Line officers and employees.——The coroner's jury at Asheville held Jesse Summer for the murder of two boys April 5.——The six per cent interest law is in force. Raleigh banks are lending at that rate, but are very careful.——Mormons are proselyting among the very ignorant classes in Wake County.——An Episcopal minister at Raleigh preached last week in advocacy of prayers for the dead.——Judge Hoke has reversed a decision, so that the Blackwell Durham Tobacco Company will be required to list and pay taxes on $300,000 in property which it has been giving in and paying on in Philadelphia.——A seven pound nugget of gold, worth $1,500, was recently found in Stanly Co.——I. H. Williams, yard conductor, was run over and killed April 10, in Charlotte, on the C. C. and A. Railway.——A $27,000 cotton fire occurred at Charlotte last week. A warehouse and 848 bales were burned. Insured.——The capacity of the Raleigh cotton Mills will be doubled.——Another attempt (the fourth, we believe) to destroy Kinston property by fire was made, but failed last week. Kinston is one of the best towns in the State and we hope the fire bugs will be caught.——Two brothers named Cross were killed, and a certain Newman was injured, in a trouble that grew out of a dance given by the brothers, in Cherokee County recently.

In General.

A new telephone corporation to compete with the Bell Company has been organized.——Martial law has been declared in Cuba; a governor general is on his way from Spain. The number of insurgents is 3000, divided into bands.——The troubles between the Seaboard Air Line and the Southern Railway, have not yet been settled, although they have been placed before the Inter State Commerce Commission. The Southern will also cut rates.——The ex-Queen of Haiwaii has been placed in prison, and all possibility of restoration is passed.——The Overseers of Harvard University have decided that the game of foot ball can be permitted if present objectional features are removed.——Japan has issued an ultimatum to China, which the latter will probably accept, thus ending the war.——Ten men were killed, four injured in the collapse of a building at Wheeling West Va., 9th inst.——Dr. R. H. Smith, a respected professor of Ancient languages in Randolph Macon College, Va., (Methodist) has resigned on the ground that he does not believe in the divinity of Christ, the existence of the Holy Ghost or the inspiration of the Scriptures.——The Standard Oil Trust is creating a sensation in oil districts by largely increasing the price of oil. It has gone up from $1 15 to $2 00 a barrel in a week.—— It has been estimated that the gold production last year was $170,000,000; $43,000,000 being from the United States.

Ordination of Bro. C. W. Glidewell.

A presbytery was called during the Sunday school Association of the Pilot Mountain Association, consisting of Brethren P. Oliver, R. N. Crews, H. A. Brown, C. C. Haymore, S. F. Conrad, R. M. Loftis, and J. H. Lamberth, for the examination of Bro. C. W. Glidewell in regard to his experience in regeneration, evidences of his call to preach, and views of doctrine, preparatory to being set apart to the ministry by ordination.

Bro. P. Oliver was called to the chair, J. H. Lamberth was elected Secretary, and Bro. A. Brown conducted the examination.

A motion was adopted to accept the candidate's experience, evidences of his call to the ministry, and that he be ordained to the full work of the ministry.

On Sunday, March 31st, 1895, at Bethel church in Stokes county, N. C., Rev. H. A. Brown preached the sermon from Acts 20: 28. Rev. R. M. Loftis delivered the charge. Rev. P. Oliver presented the Bible. Bro. Glidewell dismissed the congregation.

PURIFY THE SYSTEM OF CATARRHAL IMPURITIES AND CURE IS CERTAIN.

Spring time is most favorable to the cure of Chronic Catarrh. Hundreds of letters are received, testifying to extraordinary cures.

Wm. Mandel of Sleepy Eye, Minn., writes; "I have been troubled with chronic catarrh for thirty five years and had tried nearly ev ery catarrh cure known, until by accident I was advised by a friend to give Pe-ru-na a trial. In one week from the time I took the first dose I began to feel like a new man. I kept on using it for some time and I am entirely cured. I have no symptoms of chronic catarrh whatever. I am 74 years of age and am sure Pe ru-na is the best medicine I ever used and would not be without it in the house for anything."

The Pe ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio, are offering free, post-paid, two medical books, one on Catarrh and Catarrhal diseases, the other on Spring Medicines and Spring Diseases. These books contain the very latest and most reliable information on these important subjects.

A Pastor and Wife Made Happy.

Dear Recorder:—On the third of this month a few of the good sisters of White Lake church caused myself and wife to re joice for their liberality. You ought to have seen them coming, some walking, some on carts, coming with smiles on their faces, with good th ngs for their poor pastor. It was God coming through those dear sisters in answer to prayer according to his promise. How happy they must have felt because the Lord had given them the "wherewith" to make their poor pastor's heart glad. Dear sisters, "it is more blessed to give than to receive"; so I hope you got the greater part of the joy. What a blessed thing it is to be handmaids of the Lord!

Trust Him, brother, trust Him, sister. All of His precious promises are to those who trust Him. I have enjoyed many of these blessings, and expect to enjoy many more; yea, I want to fall heir to them all.

Don't study your condition nor circumstances, but study the Master's will. Let us deny ourselves and take up the cross and follow him daily. Self is hard to deny; we can deny others much easier than we can ourselves. The Saviour says we cannot be his disciples if we do not deny ourselves and take up the cross and follow him daily. He wants us to overcome self first. Self is the greatest enemy we have. Our Saviour, it seems, shows special love for us by telling us who our worst enemy is, and by giving us means to destroy him. I am glad that he is so near to those who have denied themselves for his sake. I have been troubled much, but the Lord has delivered me from it all. Many times have I fallen, but the Lord has lifted me up as many times.

His way is a busy way. He was always busy doing good. Go and do likewise: feed the hungry, clothe the naked, visit the sick, give drink to the thirsty, bind up the broken-hearted; and the Master says, "I am with you alway, even to the end of the world."

Brown's Iron Bitters

They point a way to relief and health, and they are genuine!

SWEET WATER, TEXAS.

For twelve long years I was a great sufferer from kidney and other troubles, and at times was confined to my bed. I tried a number of medicines recommended by sympathizing friends and prescribed by physicians without receiving the least benefit. Then I gave Brown's Iron Bitters a trial, and two bottles brought me off my back. Today I am well and hearty. W. T. COOK.

and then this:

TEN BROOKS, TENN.

After being under the care of a physician for eight years, I commenced taking Brown's Iron Bitters with the result that I am entirely cured. It is the best remedy I have ever taken, and I certainly wish that every woman suffering as I did could know its value.

An Alpena Miracle.

MRS. JAS. M. TODD, OF LONG RAPIDS, DISCARDS HER CRUTCHES.

IN AN INTERVIEW WITH A REPORTER SHE REVIEWS HER EXPERIENCE AND TELLS THE REAL CAUSE OF THE MIRACLE.

(From the Argus, Alpena, Mich).

We have long known Mrs. Jas. M. Todd, of Long Rapids, Alpena Co., Mich. She has been a sad cripple. Many of her friends know the story of her recovery; for the benefit of those who do not we publish it to day.

Eight years ago she was taken with nervous prostration, and in a few months with muscular and inflamatory rheumatism. It affected her heart, then her head. Her feet became so swollen she could wear nothing on them; her hands were drawn all out of shape. Her eyes swollen shut more than half the time, her knee joints terribly swollen and for eighteen months she had to be held up to be dressed. One limb became entirely helpless, and the skin was so dry and cracked that it would bleed. During these eight years she had been treated by a score of physicians, and has also spent much time at Ann Arbor under best medical advice. All said her trouble was brought on by hard work and that medicine would not cure, and that rest was the only thing which would ease her. After going to live with her daughter she became entirely helpless and could not even raise her arms to cover herself at night. The interesting part of the story follows in her own words:

"I was urged to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and at last did so. In three days after I commenced taking Pink Pills I could set up and dress myself, and after using them six weeks I went and commenced working. I continued taking the pills, until now I begin to forget my crutches, can go up and down steps without aid. I am truly a living wonder, walking out of doors without assistance."

"Now, if I can say anything to induce those who have suffered as I have, to try Pink Pills, I shall gladly do so. If other like sufferers will try Pink Pills according to direction, they will have reason to thank God for creating men who are able to conquer that terrible disease, rheumatism. I have in my own neighborhood recommended Pink Pills, for the after effects of la grippe, and weak women with impure blood, and with good results."

Mrs. Todd is very strong in her faith in the curative powers of Pink Pills, and says they have brought a poor, helpless cripple back to do her own milking, churning, washing, sewing, knitting, and in fact about all of her household duties, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2 50.

The Union at Benson.

The Union Meeting of the Little River Association met with the Baptist church at Benson, N. C., March 29th, 30th and 31st.

The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. J. A. Campbell from Rev. 14: 1, "These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth." The missionary sermon was preached by Rev. W. G. King from Luke 10: 2—"Therefore said he unto them, the harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest." These two brethren seemed to be filled with the Holy Ghost and preached the Word in its purity and power.

There were several important questions discussed, and the Spirit seemed to be with all the brethren in every speech they made. The church was greatly built up in the faith by the meeting. The church at this place has been richly blessed. "The truth is mighty and will prevail." We have a great deal to thank God for, and praise be unto his name for all his benefits. May God continue to bless the brethren and sisters who visited Benson. Come again. Will they pray for us that we may be enabled to do more for the Master and his cause in the furtherance of the gospel than ever before?

May this be a year of great prosperity in Israel, in the spread of the gospel and in the salvation of many souls. Brethren, let us pray that the Lord will send laborers into his harvest, and that he will keep us near the cross, following the Lamb that bled and died for our sins. Pray for us and our work here. Yours in Christian hope,

L. E. REAVES.

From the Newbern Baptist Church Missionary.

Dear Recorder:—I have been thinking of sending you a few dots for some time. In Craven county I have been doing mission work for the above church for about two and a quarter years.

When I began this work it was entirely mission. There was not a Baptist organization or house of worship on the field. We now have three organizations—Cove, Truit, and Vanceboro. Two houses of worship have been erected at Cove, and the other at Spring Garden. The last mentioned is not complete yet, but it is so we can use it. We have a candidate awaiting baptism at this point. We have also arranged to organize a church here on the 2nd Sunday in April. The pastor of the parent of this Mission enterprise, Rev. Rufus Ford, will aid in the organization, and in a series of meetings which is to follow.

Bro. Ford has been a most excellent co-operator in this work. He has visited and preached at all the important points on the field, and has shown an untiring interest all along the line, giving of his time, talent and means to its support. Our relations in the work have been most harmonious, there not being a single note of discord since I have been here. With regret, I announce the fact that he has offered his resignation as pastor of the Newbern church. The church has declined to accept it, but he may leave yet. Go where he may, the Lord's cause will prosper in his hands as far as he can reach,—and he can reach a long way. He is small physically but large mentally and spiritually.

The Atlantic Union that convened here the last days of March was well attended. Bro. Ford preached the introductory sermon. Your humble scribe was chosen Moderator, and Rev. R. D. Carroll, Secretary. The topics on the program were all well discussed.

Rev. A. H. Porter's address on the "Church's Relation to the Pastor," was excellent. The Union requested him to have it published in the RECORDER.

The Union decided to hold a Sunday-school Chautauqua, including the 5th Sunday in June, somewhere down on the coast; and appointed the following committee to make all necessary arrangements: Revs. Rufus Ford, Newbern; B. W. Spilman, Kinston; R. D. Carroll, Winterville, A. H. Porter, Pollocksville, and the undersigned. Those wishing information as to terms, etc., may obtain it by corresponding with any of the committee. Rev. Spilman preached the missionary sermon. Bro. Porter of Jones and Bro. Fry of Pamlico also preached. These brethren have recently located in this Association. They are all good men, well adapted to the work in their charge, and I feel sure the Lord's cause will prosper in their hands.

Pray, brethren, for eastern North Carolina, and for the success of the brethren the Lord has put in charge of his work here.

Yours fraternally,

J. W. ROSE.

MARRIED.

ELLIOTT—SHANNONHOUSE—On April 2d, 1895, in Hertford Baptist church, by Rev. Josiah Elliott, Mr. W. O. Elliott of Edenton, N. C., and Miss Addie Shannonhouse of Hertford, N. C.

DIED.

KESLER—Sister Minnie Kesler died at the home of her brother, Rev. M. L. Kesler, in Red Springs, N. C., Monday, Feb. 11th, 1895. Her's was an angelic spirit, and earth was too cold and cheerless for such a flower. Minnie's frail body sleeps, waiting the resurrection morn, but her sweet Christian influence lives to be felt by all who knew her.

W. J. F.

GROCE—Died at Tempting, Moore county, March 13th, George Groce, son of Deacon C. D. and Sallie Groce. He was a dutiful son and a loving brother. He was baptized into the fellowship of Cool Spring Baptist church Oct. 2d, 1892, by Rev. W. M. Gilmore. He leaves a father, mother, brother and two sisters to mourn their loss; also many relatives and friends. He had just entered his twenty-first year.

C. C.

SHARP—On Tuesday evening, April 9th, 1895, about eight o'clock, the soul of Milton S. Sharp returned to God who gave it. He was a believer in Christ and a member of Bethedon Baptist church, and we trust that our loss is his eternal gain. He leaves a wife, three children, and a large circle of relatives and friends, to all of whom we extend our deepest heart-felt sympathy, and commend them to God who alone can heal their broken hearts. He was a native of Orange county, N. C., and was in the thirty-ninth year of his age.

J. M. LOYD.

WRIGHT—Gamaliel Wright, at his residence near Shiloh, Camden county, April 5th, aged fifty-five years. Bro. Wright leaves an aged wife, with whom he lived for more than fifty years, and five children, to mourn his loss. The church at Shiloh and the entire community will miss our brother. He came into the church late in life; though not what would be called a very active member, this can be said to his praise, and it is much to say, his seat was always filled when the church met, and his purse was always opened when money was needed for the Lord's cause—two of the very best evidences of a good heart.

R. R. OVERBY.

BAKER—The death angel visited our community March 6th, 1895, and gently bore away to a brighter, happier home one of our brightest jewels, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Laura and Thomas Baker. She was noted for her quiet, amiable disposition. She professed faith in Christ in a revival of religion at Saint Johns, and though she never joined any church, she exhibited much of the meekness that beautifies a Christian life. 'Tis sad to give her up, but consoling to know "That God doth naught amiss,

And as he has ordered this,
We have naught to do but still Rest in silence in his will."

IDA BRITTON.

WILLIAMS—Brother R. D. Williams was born in London, England, Nov. 20th, 1830, and died at his home in Moore county, Jan. 7th, 1895, in the sixty-fourth year of his age. He was a member of Friendship Baptist church for several years, and lived an exemplary life. The writer had a conversation with him the evening before he passed through the "gates of death." He said: "The heighth of my ambition has been to live without enemies." I think he did so. "I have been thinking over my life, from the time I joined the church, during my illness," said he, "and if I had it to live over I don't think I'd make any change." He seemed to be perfectly resigned to the Lord's will. He left a wife and one daughter to mourn their loss. Their loss is his eternal gain. By request of the family I preached his funeral March 31st. The Lord bless and comfort the bereaved family.

K. C. HORNER.

Tributes of Respect.

The following are the resolutions of respect of the Baptist church at Fairport, N. C., on the death of Bro. J. W. Chappell:—

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to call from our midst on March 12th, 1895, our Bro. J. W. Chappell, we bow submissively to his will, knowing that he doeth all things well.

Resolved 1. That in his death the neighborhood has lost a good neighbor and faithful citizen.

Resolved 2. That the church has lost a strong and faithful member.

Resolved 3. That the church extend their sympathy to his beloved companions and friends.

Resolved 4. That a copy of this be spread on the church record, and a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER and county paper.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

Precious Promises.

BY REV. T. J. TAYLOR.

Thy precious promises, O Lord,
Are food for hungry souls;
They give the weary-laden rest,
And make the wounded whole.

They fill with hope despairing hearts,
And strengthen drooping faith;
They bring the joys of heaven near,
And light the darkest path.

They comfort those who walk in grief
Beneath the chastening rod,
They raise the fallen from the dust,
And lead them up to God.

They point to living streams, that flow
Fresh from the throne above,
Where thirsty ones may drink their fill
Of everlasting love.

In every phase of human life,
Thy promises are given,
To guide and help and comfort all
Who run the race to heaven.

According to thy promise, Lord,
When ended is the strife,
Thy saints shall serve thee near thy throne,
'Mid scenes of endless life.

Then let me live, and feed upon
Each promise rich and sweet,
And daily find the help I need
At my Redeemer's feet.

Celebrated Characters.

The Youth's Companion relates that at a school in England there was a boy who was particularly dull in figures. In all matematics he was a perfect dolt; but as he continued in school he developed a fine ability in the languages, literary and general information. The master of the school relates that he was the slowest mathematician he ever had, except another boy who had the greatest difficulty in working ordinary examples multiplication and division. The former boy was Arthur Stanley, afterward so celebrated as Dean of Westminster, and one of the most noted writers of his time. The latter was William E. Gladstone, one of the most conspucious figures of the age, who, in spite of his slowness in figures, distinguished himself as Chancellor of the Exchequer of England, and afterward as Prime Minister. Perhaps Sir William Hamilton, the distinguished metaphysician, would have found in these facts a confirmation of his theory that the classics and not mathematics are the best means of education.

The Companion has also some interesting gossip about Queen Victoria as a girl. She was kept under very rigorous training by her governess. One day when she had been practicing on the piano, unwillingly, the governess remarked to her that there is no royal way to piano playing. Soon after she left the room. Instantly the little Princess jumped from the stool, closed the piano, locked it, and putting the key in her pocket, remarked, "You see there is a royal way to be mistress of the pianoforte."

When she was seventeen years old two of her cousins, brothers, came over from the Continent to visit her. It had been suggested to her beforehand that it was hoped she would choose one of them to be her husband. They remained there some weeks. She made her choice, which proved to be so happy a one for herself and for England, but so discreetly did she bear herself, that when they went home neither Prince Albert nor his brother knew which had the preference.

The story of the Queen's childhood confirms the impression that she is possessed of unusual qualities. It is her personal character that has made her reign remarkable.

Inviting Christ into the Kitchen.

It is noticeable that when ripe-minded, eminent men become Christians they show a simplicity and sincerity perfectly childlike; and there is no fearlessness like that of a child in matters of the heart.

An eminent legal gentleman who had been skeptical until middle life was so impressed by a sermon preached in his hearing that he was led earnestly to examine the truths of religion, and finally to embrace them. Strong in his new life and happy with the sense of pardoned sin, as soon as he reached home on the evening of his conversion he surprised his wife by saying: "I have found Christ, and I must set up my family altar. Let us go into the drawing room and pray together."

His wife was a Christian woman, and might have been expected to assent at once; but it happened that the drawing room was occupied, and the guests not being Christians she felt that their presence might interfere with devotion. "There are four lawyers in there, husband," she said. "Hadn't we better go and have prayers in the kitchen?"

"Wife," said he, "this is the first time I ever invited Jesus Christ to my house, and I am not going to invite him into the kitchen."

He went directly to the drawing-room, greeted the lawyers, and said to them: "My friends, I have just been convinced of the truth of Christianity. I have found out that Jesus Christ died on the cross for me. I have given myself to him, and now I am going to invite him to my house. While I offer my first family prayer you can remain if you will. I leave it to your choice."

The lawyers all declared they would be glad to remain, and they did so, while their host conducted his devotions. Noble was the example he set them there and then, and his act contains a lesson for every one. Whoever of whatever you have with you, give Christ the best room.

The man of whom this story is told was Judge McLean, of Ohio, afterward Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Blessed!

Beautiful: a modest and obedient child.

Mary's Prayer.

Little Mary's mother had occasion to correct her the other night. Mary was very angry; and when she said her prayers, instead of asking God to bless papa and mamma, as she was wont to do, she said "God bless papa, and don't bless mamma."

Her mother took no notice, and Mary jumped into her bed without her good-night kiss. By and by she began to breathe hard, and at length she whispered, "Mamma are you going to live a great while?"

"I don't know," was the answer.

"Do you think you shall?"

"I cannot tell."

"Do many mothers die and leave their children?"

"A great many do."

"Mamma, said Mary, with a trembling voice, "I am going to say another prayer," and clasping her little hands, she cried, "God bless papa, and the dearest, best mamma any little girl ever had in the world."

That's the way, children: If you knew your mothers were going to die very shortly, you could not be half kind enough to them. But do you know that, be they long or short lived, there lies before you, written so plainly that he who runs may read, "Honor thy father and thy mother?"

Remember that every wrong committed against loving parents will, when they shall have passed from earth, bite like a serpent and sting like an adder.—Well Spring.

How Church Membership Helps.

A writer in the Advance described a meeting at which a large number of persons gave written answers to the question: "What advantage is there in being a member of the church?" Possibly some of our readers have asked or been asked this question, and will find help in the testimony of others. Here are some of the answers:

1. Church membership has helped me to carry out duties that otherwise might have been disregarded.

2. The feeling of fellowship with many serving the same Saviour, has kept my heart warm and love strong for the Master.

3. Less conceited about myself; more respect for others' convictions.

4. (In a young man's hand.) It has been a help to me to think that I am, in a very small way, responsible for the church and my fellows. It has greatly helped me by giving me chances to work, and has kept me in good society.

5. (In a woman's hand.) The step for me was a test of love to Christ, and, if not taken then, God only knows what the result would have been.

6. It has made more real to me the fact that I belong to Christ.

7. Church membership has increased my sense of responsibility and broadened my sympathies.

8. It has helped me to have a greater interest in, and love for, those about me.

9. Helped me to have a higher idea of life and to get nearer to it.

10. It has made me stronger in resisting bad thoughts.

11. Value it for the sense of oneness in Christ, of unity of purpose and life with all members of "Christ's church." The church points to the cross.

"The Devil Shouted."

Luther writes of a great Satanic anniversary at which his emissaries were convened to report the results of their several missions. "I let loose the wild beasts of the desert," said one, "on a caravan of Christians, and their bones are now bleaching on the sand." "What of that?" said the Devil; "their souls were all saved." "I drove the East wind," said another, "against a ship freighted with Christians, and they were all drowned."

"What of that?" said the Devil, "their souls were all saved." "For ten years I tried to get a single Christian asleep," said the third; "and I succeeded, and I left him so." Then the Devil shouted, and the night stars of hell sang for joy.

Satan puts a high estimate upon sleepy professing Christians. One put thoroughly to sleep is worth ten years' effort. Beware of the Satanic opiate, by whomsoever administered.—Christian Standard.

Cheerfulness.

'Tis well to work with a cheerful heart,
Wherever our fortunes call;
With a friendly glance and an open hand,
And a gentle word for all.

Since life is a thorny and difficult path,
Where toil is the portion of man,
We all should endeavor, while passing along,
To make it as smooth as we can.

Traveler Henry Hudson's Experience.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc., none impress me more than my own case, and I conscientiously believe it to be my duty to let people know it. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."—HENRY HUDSON, James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

LET it be noted that although the announcement was sent over the State during the Legislature that the American Tobacco Company would be brought to face the anti-trust law this April, no word of the matter is now to be heard. The promised trial was to be upon the laws of the United States, and Attorney General Olney was going to stand by District Attorney Glenn. We shall see.

In the meanwhile we are growing sore with the humiliation of having an anti-trust law of our own State trampled under foot. We are tired of hearing it suggested that money can get done anything it wants, which may be true in some sections, but we hope not in North Carolina.

Friends and brethren, if Trusts once get their clutches on our laws, our State is gone. It will take a generation to shake them off.

The American Tobacco Company enjoys certain privileges which it will be well for the people of the State to hear of, since the privileges are supposed to be given by will of the people and at no little cost.

It is not altogether inexplicable, considering the handy way in which the National and State anti-trust laws and an anti-trust Legislature have been over-ridden, but it is none the less unjust that taxes are not paid on the American Tobacco Company's stock as on other stock held in our State. There are letters before us from responsible sources, showing that stockholders of this Company resident in Durham county did not list their stock for taxation up to August, 1894; and then in response to a written notice they did list the stock at only twenty-five cents in the dollar. In October following, the Board of County Commissioners had the stock listed at fifty cents in the dollar. This was not pleasing to the stockholders, however, and for some reason, at a later meeting of the Commissioners the valuation was changed and the stock listed, as originally, at twenty-five cents on the dollar.

Let the reader think how convenient it would be to list his stock or his property at twenty five cents in the dollar. Certainly if a great and greedy corporation can openly say how much taxes it will pay, the same privilege should not be denied small property owners. Might does not yet make right.

To show how bold this action was, let us quote the market prices of the listed stock: June 1st, 1893, the common stock of this company was quoted in the markets at 59½ on the hundred, or more than twice the Durham county listed valuation, the preferred stock on the same date went at 88 on the dollar, or more than three times the Durham county listed valuation; June 1st, 1894, the common stock was quoted at 83½, the preferred at 99 They are getting fatter.

The American Tobacco Company was organized in the spring of 1890. It has been required to pay back taxes on its preferred stock for 1891 and 1892 at a valuation of 20 cents on the dollar, the common stock not being listed.

The people of the State are not personally concerned with Durham county; but when they find that State taxes are collected according to the Durham valuation, they will be concerned. We interviewed Treasurer Worth about this matter. He told us he "never heard tell of it" before we mentioned it to him. We wrote to ex Treasurer Tate about it. He answered, "It is true that last year, in response to an inquiry from the county commissioners of Durham county, I decided that the stock of the American Tobacco Company was a subject of taxation in the hands of resident holders, the same as other stocks and bonds."

It hardly requires a lawyer to perceive that there is wrong here. It is plain enough. We can go no further; but there are officers of the law, and the people are sovereign still.

THE first lesson a young man should learn, says some wiseacre in an educational publication, is that he knows nothing. Wiseacres are good (providentially so, perhaps,) at giving impossible advice; else they would do harm.

Let a child or youth or young man or middle-aged man or dotard get to thinking that he knows nothing, and the world will make a foot-ball of him without so much as asking permission. The fact that there are people, young and old, who seem to think that they know all that is worth knowing, does not warrant one in flying to the other extreme to try to make imbeciles of the rising generation.

It is well to be aware of one's weaknesses, one's needs and all that, but the young man who hopelessly resigns himself to be looked upon as without authority or influence worth considering, while he may learn a great deal, will never learn enough to make up for loss of confidence in himself. Too little self confidence is as undesirable as too much.

Dread of responsibility, which is engendered by self distrust, is the underlying force in the making of tramps. It is not laziness. One shrinks from undertakings on which important interests depend. The self-distrustful young man who yields to such an impulse becomes a tramp, or resigns himself to clerical work—only a cog of the wheels with course set out, directed and driven, a hireling forever.

Some one has said that the times are against the making of a man; that boys are made now-a-days into parts of myriad fingered mechanisms, only one or two men appearing among ten thousand. We do not know; but if individuality is growing less and less frequent, it is a result of such doctrines as that which is purposed to make dependents of reasoning beings, by depriving them of the right to think for themselves, to know what they know, and hold to what they believe.

"SOUTHERN LITERATURE (1579–1895)," is a new book by a Southern woman. Southern people are always interested in things Southern; but this book will be a disappointment to many.

As a field for a text book of literature the South is not rich, not at all. The most patriotic of us will have difficulty naming ten men or women of Letters so scholarly, capable, pure or strong, as to command a place in a Literature. In fact, an American text book of literature to be just, would have to confine itself to a score of men and women.

In the book before us a great many names, some pictures, a few not too creditable extracts, with little or no biography, have been catalogued. Although long years could be well spent in study of possibly five Southern men of letters, it is sheer vanity to try to make it appear that our literature has more than a hundred representatives.

The Southern essayist, romancer, singer, historian, dramatist and novelist, have, all of them, yet to appear. A text-book of "Southern Literature" just now is premature.

Schools had better keep on using the American editions of the English text books Literature until the South has had time to make her title too clear to be overlooked by the writer of any text book of Literature.

SOLOMON must have anticipated Napoleon and the American civil war when he spoke of the endlessness of making books. Certainly all that can be said and a good deal that cannot, has been said several hundred times in as many books on these subjects. But the supply of new treatises continues to grow; and the public takes to them with a zest pleasing, at least, to publishers' hearts.

"The South, Constitution and Results of Union," by Dr. J. L. M. Curry, is the latest book on the subject that we have seen. A long time ago a wise man advised us never to read a word about the war until we were grey-headed, "for," said he, "by that time it is possible that a man born in the second generation after the war will have written a reliable history of the struggle."

Dr. Curry makes an able book from the Southern point of view; we do not say he is wrong, but he is liable to be prejudiced. We may believe all he says and claims, but we cannot approve the introduction of sectional books in our schools.

This generation has upon it the responsibility of the development of the South. We all may take it for granted that our fathers and elder brothers were right, and go on with the work. No matter now for causes and justifications; let lovers of musty records beguile themselves with these matters, when we have become so prosperous that we can buy books, build libraries and maintain historians. Of the war we need to be mindful now only for the old veterans. Truth will not suffer by time, nor will Honor.

Dr. Curry writes gracefully; the style of the ready speaker that he is. His work will be regarded as one of the strongest statements of the Southern side. And while grown men and women may read it to good purpose, as a text-book, it may warp the patriotism of school children. Let them rather read United States History.

The Modern Craze for Movements.

BY REV. S. M. BROWN.

The corrupting of the churches of our Saviour in all ages can be traced to the influence of some special craze which began with this godless world and finally seduced many of the Lord's people. The down-fall of God's ancient people is, in so many instances, traceable to their pandering to the godless nations and peoples about them. They commingled with them, became enamored of their spirit, adopted their methods, and were corrupted and destroyed by their idolatry.

If you will observe many of the "movements" which are now becoming the "fads" in so many quarters, and which are making so many of our brethren "drunken with the wine of their fornication," you will readily perceive how much of the word and its corrupt ways are incorporated into them. "Banners," "badges," "brigades," "marching," "salutes," "Unions." How contradictory this seems to some of us, of the spirit of Him who "did not strive nor cry, whose voice was not heard in the streets," and who it seems never donned the livery of the world in which to do his work.

It seems to me perfectly natural that the world should have its "movements," its organizations; for the world's strength is in itself. But the Christian's strength is not in himself nor in his brethren. The "Lord is his strength." The only organization or union which he needs with his fellowmen is that which simply facilitates, as far as it may, his union with his God. The whole world is organizing itself into trades unions, and every class is separating itself from every other class. They say it is for self-protection—(it is, however, working the greatest harm to our American people; for society is a unit, and the well-being of all its parts is inseparably connected with the well being of the whole); but the Christian does not protect himself; "God is his refuge."

God's people are "not of the world"; they cannot, therefore, adopt any of the world's ways. Out of the comes our woman's societies in our churches. These godly women have intended good, but I am sure that their societies have and will work harm to the cause of Jesus, and to the very cause of missions which they are endeavoring to foster. The men are more and more turning over the mission work to them. They do not permit their wives and daughters to carry the "pocket book," and the wife is often tempted to make her contribution as small as possible for fear the husband will be displeased. The husband declares that his wife is not so deeply interested in the work of the home church and he proposes to give his attention to that, while his wife attends to Foreign Missions for the whole family. Again, to work apart in missions is detrimental to both the husband and the wife. The wife needs the calm, clear judgment of the husband, and the husband the warm tender love and zeal of the wife. They must study missions, pray for missions, and contribute to missions together. Everywhere in human life the woman is the complement of the man. But you see this independence of woman is one of the "fads" of the world at this time.

Out of the organization craze comes our

YOUNG PEOPLE'S ORGANIZATION.

Each class and parcel of human kind must just now have its "union," its "brotherhood," its "society," its "band." There are hundreds of organizations in our city—engineers, brakemen, barbers, grocerymen, tailors, hardware and implement merchants, lawyers, doctors, carpenters, horseshoers, etc. It is an endless list. This is the craze of the day.

Now, the Lord's people want to pattern after the world. It is a great mistake. I believe that we as ministers ought to set our faces against it like flint. These worldly organizations are arraying class against class, profession against profession, industry against industry, capital against labor. The whole land is being filled with jealousy, envy, hatred, strife, anarchy. Instead of promoting co-operation, they are sowing seeds of disintegration. It seems it will not cease until the country is plunged into bloodshed.

The churches are suffering the same way. We have our woman's conventions, our Sunday-school conventions, our young people's conventions. Our general associations and State conventions are about to fail, they are becoming effete. They are old——(fogy). We are beginning to gather some of the fruits of these trees we have been planting.

I read all our leading religious papers in our Southern country. There is more interest taken just now in a proposed conference about organizing a young people's society in the South than there is in paying the crushing debts which are upon the Boards of our Convention. You could not convene a great number of our leaders a day before the Convention to consider the payment of the debt. All the Lord's people should be together. I offer the following reasons for not having even a young people's meeting in your church:

1. It will create prejudice in the minds of the young against the old. If the young did not think their meeting an improvement upon the regular meetings of the church, they would not want it.

2. The young people's meeting will degenerate for want of the wisdom and piety of the more experienced.

3. If the young need training, those who have been trained must be present to train them.

4. The meeting of the old and young together is helpful to the old.

5. With separate meeting they will soon have separate tastes, ambitions and desires, which will lead to disintegration and weakness.

6. Two meetings take twice as much time, toil and expense as one.

The young people in one church wanted to hold a kind of theatrical performance in the church. The older members opposed it. The young people went down in the city and gave the play in a hall, and then became offended and disbanded their organization.

At another young people's meeting one young man told another that the girls did not like to hear him "testify"—and the two young men had a fight in the church yard. These things occurred under my own observation.

We had the beginning of all this in Missouri more than ten years ago. I know of some of our good pastors who have been unsettled by this young people's craze. I want to warn my brethren in my native State. If your young people need development, let the whole church have a meeting for that purpose. Why not? Don't take the young people off and organize them apart from their parents. My experience is that some of the churches are trying to have too many meetings. The young ought to be at home with their parents nearly every night in the week. Let us make our homes what they ought to be as schools of training in the Christian life. Oh, when will men cease to think they are wiser than God? God makes parents responsible for the religious training of their children, but our wiseacres say no—the young people's society. The family—the church—these are God's organizations. He is wiser than we. Let any brother in North Carolina show me one verse of Scripture authority in support of this young people's craze. It is not enough to say that we have no Scripture authority for some things we have. Shall our departure from the teaching of God's Word in one respect be offered in justification of a still further departure? No, let us call a halt right now and return to the "old paths."

THE CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON.

Yes, our young people need training. They have been sadly neglected in many places. At Washington in May let us appoint a committee to report in the Convention upon the training and development of our young people. Let them take the whole question under consideration. The Sunday-school may be made more efficient. Then the whole church might have a special meeting one night in the week for that purpose, but let them not forget that God holds parents, not conventions nor churches for that matter, responsible for the religious education and training of their children. I think a general revival of the Bible doctrine on this subject would be helpful if we could sweep away these human inventions, innovations and presumptuous obtruders. Brethren, just the Ark alone—it will not topple over.

Oh! my dear old BIBLICAL RECORDER, thou hast been a comfort and strength to me since I first began to read. Thou hast been orthodox and fearless all the years—thou dost merit thy name "Biblical RECORDER" in view of thy position on all these subjects. I bend my knees in prayer for thee and for thy editor. God cause thee to be in health and prosper even as thy soul prospers.

"Jersey Settlement"

BY REV. HENRY SHEETS.

THE OLD "JERSEY" BAPTIST CHURCH AND SOME OF ITS HISTORY.

PART II.

In our last we showed that the church which was first constituted, about 1757, finally disbanded, and the "remains" were merged into Shallow Fords church. While the first organization did not remain in tact, it can hardly be said to have died; were not the smoldering embers of divine truth, only awaiting an opportunity to burst forth into a live, interesting church? From some cause, the other denominations—the Presbyterians and Episcopalians—never did rally.

It was about twenty-five years between the time when John Gano left them and the constitution of the present church. This was constituted October 16th, 1764, by Elders Drury Sims and William Hill, and it was styled "The Church of Christ at the Jersey Settlement Meeting House."

It began with a membership of fourteen, including the pastor. Drury Sims was installed as pastor at the time of its constitution, and continued with them a little more than five years.

The church was then without a pastor for some three years. Thomas Durham, a young married man in the prime of life, had recently moved his membership here. He felt called to the ministry, and was accordingly ordained as pastor of this church in January, 1793. Soon he gave the church three Sundays of his time. No mention is made of his salary further than in 1795 the church "agreed to make up money enough to purchase a negro to support Brother Durham." This was, most likely, all that he received for his services.

The records are not clear and definite in their statements, but it appears that he remained with them as pastor until October, 1812. Again they seem to have been pastorless until July, 1817, when Elder Nathan Riley of Tom's Creek church was called to the pastoral relation. He was succeeded by Elder James B. Badgett, who died in 1827. The church then extended a "unanimous" call to Elder William Dowd in June, 1827, who served the church till 1833. He was followed by Josiah Wiseman, who was ordained to the pastoral oversight of this church in February, 1833, in his fifty-first year. He served the church till his death in October, 1844, with the exception of two years, which were occupied by Elder Paul Phifer. Since then, the following ministers have served as pastors, viz: Wm. Turner, Amos Weaver, E. Allison, J. B. Richardson, J. B. Boone, J. H. Booth, S. H. Thompson, Henry Sheets, and since 1889 Thomas Carrick has bishoped the flock. Three of the above named pastors, Allison, Boone and Booth, were with them only one year each. The late venerable Wm. Turner preached by far the longest of any one pastor—he having preached there twenty-six years in all—at three different calls.

This church reached out to assist destitute neighborhoods and established two "arms," one at Reed's Cross Roads at as early a date as February, 1795, and the other at Holloway's early in 1796. At both these points there are good, strong churches. About 1797–98 they seem to have been without a house, as they met for worship with the arms of the church. They met occasionally at the Jersey Settlement place and discussed the building of a house. The Yadkin Association met with this church in October, 1799, and they held the session with the arm at Holloway's that year. They, however, got their new house in the year 1800, when they discontinued meeting (only on particular occasions) at these other points.

It is almost certain that this church first united in an associational capacity with the Old Yadkin Association. This body was constituted a branch of the Virginia (Strawberry?) Association in October, 1786, about two years and a half after the Jersey church. In its organization it was composed of eleven churches, and it is reasonable to suppose that Jersey joined in at first. A list of the churches composing this body was not made till 1791, when we find Jersey enrolled. She remained in that body till August, 1816, we find this record: "The church unanimously petitioned the Yadkin Association for a letter of dismission." This is accounted for: the Pee Dee Association had just been formed (October 19–21, 1816,) of all the churches belonging to the Sandy Creek Association on the southwest side of Deep River. This being more convenient, she decided to unite with this body. With it she worked till the Abbott's Creek Union Association was formed at Liberty Meeting House, in Davidson county, N. C., on Saturday before the second Sunday in November, 1825. With this body she cast her lot and labored for the Master's cause till September, 1833, when the Association divided, a majority of the churches going into Hardshellism. But Jersey was not one of them. She, with six other churches, remained loyal to the Lord's work. So far as appears from the church records there was not a ripple upon the wave to disturb here serenity. But she has this record to her credit Sept. 18th, 1833—"Church met, contributed $4 88¾ to Robert T. Daniel, Missionary of the Baptists." This shows where she stood in regard to aggressive denominational work.

This church carried on all its business meetings without a moderator till August, 1804, when "a plan was adopted by the church in consequence of disorder that a moderator be appointed to admonish and keep order." Our brethren used to be opposed to moderators over religious bodies; it seemed to partake too much of the world to arise and address the chair. Doubtless these brethren leaned in the same direction. It was not as fancy as they first imagined, but born of sheer necessity. Before the war this church had large numbers of slaves in her membership, and for their accommodation large and well-arranged galleries had been provided for occupancy. Many of them always attended, and were eager, anxious listeners. During the year ending August, 1834, one hundred and sixty-three additions were made to this church by baptism—most of these, perhaps, from amongst the slaves.

Nearly all the old "landmarkers" of this church and community now rest in the city of the dead. A new generation, of an entirely different type, take the place largely—mainly—of the people of whom we have been writing. It is hard to realize the change that has taken place in the Jersey Settlement and in the Jersey church within the last twenty years. And it is now in a state of rapid transition. It can scarcely be imagined what the change will be are another generation passes from the stage of action. Perhaps the greatest mistake this Settlement and church ever made was the neglecting to build up and sustain a school of high grade, such as their means would have richly justified.

Where the peace is which Christ gives, all the trouble and disquiet of the world cannot disturb it. All outward distress to such a mind is but as the rattling of the hail upon the tiles to him that sits within the house at a banquet.—Leighton.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 1895.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

IS IT you or your pastor who is failing? Think about it the next time the spirit of complaint begins to crop out.

IT IS encouraging to hear such good reports from so many schools in our State. Educational interests are undoubtedly waking up.

With the meagre provisions for public schools, private enterprise and private sacrifice must do much, if our State is to go forward educationally as it should.

The school year about to close has been a most prosperous one; but many have not had the support that they deserve. Every father and mother in the State ought to take it as their duty to give their children the advantage of schooling next to the necessities of life. And it is a duty not only to the children, but to God and the State.

THE authority of the individual church is about to be overshadowed in some quarters, we fear. A step in this direction is a step towards Rome.

Our associations, conventions, and their adjuncts, are instrumentalities entirely dependent on the will of the churches. They are a means of unity and concert of action. But in no case is their authority above that of the individual church.

It is frequently suggested that this, that and the other be left to the Southern Baptist Convention. One can see how that body can express the opinion of a large number of churches, but it cannot kill or make alive.

LAST week it was announced by telegraph that Dr. J. B. Gambrell wished to have it understood that, while he signed the call for Y. P. Conference (!) at Washington, he is an advocate of the National B. Y. P. U. He was under the impression that a conference —not a rally for a set plan—was to be held. There are many who, like him, gave their names to this call thinking that a conference on the subject would do good and could not do harm. But they have been paraded as seeking a Southern B. Y. P. organization.

This way of doing things would injure the best cause in the world; and we are not surprised that with the approach of the Convention it becomes more evident that the movement will wisely be left to the churches.

So long as the churches have the societies to deal with, they will do good. Once without the direct control of the only ecclesiastical authority in our denomination, there is no telling what will come.

THAT evangelists are sent out, we do not doubt; but is there not a distinction between evangelists and revivalists? What is an evangelist, anyhow? One who carries the Gospel—to those who are without it. And a revivalist; it is plain that he sets out to feed the lambs which, for some reason, have not been flourishing. There should not be the frequent need for revivals that there seems to be. And churches should not use the time and talent of evangelists when there are godless communities sorely in need. What are pastors and church-members for anyway? Cannot they carry the gospel through and through their communities?

It seems to us that everything argues that revival work should be done by pastors, helping one another; and that evangelistic work should be done in destitute communities instead of in churches, and that the aim should be to plant pastors instead of aiding pastors already settled.

A GOOD name is all a newspaper has. Sixty years of faithfulness have won for the RECORDER a name for reliability that any one would jealously guard. Our news may not always be the freshest, but it is seldom incorrect; and after all, that is better. No one can can say that the RECORDER ever denied a worthy person or cause a fair hearing. We have never hesitated to make corrections, whenever we saw a mistake; and it has never been our misfortune to commend an unworthy man, although we have had to tell the truth about some to the displeasure of their friends.

A paper always makes enemies by taking a stand against a man; for most men have friends who are blindly loyal. But it becomes necessary once in awhile to do this; and, disagreeable as it is, there is no other course when it is probable that the denomination may be injured in the public eye or imposed on.

Charity is an admirable and most desirable quality; but there are other considerations. And while individuals may exercise charity at all times, a public organ cannot, when by so doing a good cause will suffer.

ODD CHURCH-MEMBERS.

Some years ago a happy pastor reported, as the result of a successful series of meetings, that fifty odd members were added to the church. Seeing that he did not mention any other accessions, we have concluded that none but the fifty odd members were received. This odd collocation of terms is suggestive. Why are so many church members odd? Is their oddity due to the twenty odd sermons they heard, the forty odd prayers offered for them, or the dozen odd methods they witnessed? At any rate, our churches are filling up with odd members. The Baptist Year Book discloses the astounding fact that last year there were in the Baptist churches of the United States forty five thousand odd excluded members and nineteen thousand odd erased members, making sixty-four thousand odd people passing into and out of the church. That wise and stern book of statistics makes no conjecture as to the tremendous number of the same sort of people still sustaining a nominal connection with the kingdom of God.

So many odd people entering the church must seriously affect its religious tone. Turning back so many unripe characters to the world, must also affect the morals of society. The church appears, like a quack medicine, to do its work very imperfectly. The Gospel no longer, in the estimation of many, seems mighty to save. Christianity is made to bear the opprobrium of practical failure. Disgorgement is a weakening process; disease may require it, but it is the sure symptom of a deranged system. It seems to us that to reduce the vast number of odd members received annually into the churches is, we may almost say, the problem before the denomination to day. Evangelistic methods may have to be reformed or discarded; more care may have to be exercised in receiving members; pastors may have to preach more Gospel. At any rate, let us bear in mind the fact that an excluded man is commonly a damaged man, and that, to the extent of his influence, he has damaged the church, and will damage the community to which he returns as a religious failure or fraud.

We don't wish, however, to be understood as asserting that there are no odd people at large—some of them very large in Zion. Here is one of them. He leads the choir on Sunday, and the German on week nights. He is a queer contradiction; claiming to be on his way to heaven, he keeps awake all night at the dance, and goes to sleep during divine service. He is more punctual at the circus than at the church, thinks more of the clown than his pastor, and the minstrels than his brethren. But let us not be surprised at this; for his father, too, is one of the oddest of church people. Instead of family prayer, he has instituted progressive euchre, which has proved so thoroughly progressive as to exclude such old literature as Moses and the prophets and the Gospel, and in the place thereof to introduce Corbett and the Base-Ball Players and the Police Gazette.

Here is another. She is a first-class, polished, accomplished fault-finder. She impugns the motives of everybody else. She envies her better sisters. Poor thing! unless she is made an officer in a little society or placed in charge of a table at a festival, her complexion shows the green hue of jealousy, and she threatens to leave the denomination—open wide the gates, and prepare "songs of loudest praise!"

Here is another odd-fellow. He gets sanctified at every revival; he reconsecrates himself two or three times every year; he gets so good as not to need the usual means of grace; he absents himself from prayer-meeting; he absents himself from the communion; he has not time to visit the sick; he is too much engrossed with perfection to give to the poor, and is too near the starry portals to contribute to missions.

And first cousin to him, is the liberal man. He loves everybody. What a whole-soul fellow he is! He is larger than doctrine, larger than the church, larger than the apostles—about the size of a gnat's eye. With him it makes no difference what church a man joins; for one is as good as another, and he almost wishes he had not joined any —so do his brethren.

Here our story must end; for the family of odd church-folks is very large, and the bare mention of their names would require a volume. The best remedy for some of their oddities, is patience; for others, a wholesome discipline.

ALL that can be said on the mission debts has been said. If pressing appeals avail anything, it will be seen in the Board's reports. We earnestly urge every one to give something for these objects as soon as possible after these lines are read. Read Dr. Hume's burning words.

HERE comes Dr. Nunnally of Tennessee with another realization of "What next?" He wants a "Church Building Board" to be set up by the Convention. No, brother; there are forty-seven reasons against you, more or less. Our Home Board and State Board are successful and adequate church-building boards. We have all the boards we want. We cannot stand the extra expense of another board.

In the name of our Lord and Saviour, let us get down to working for the salvation of the unsaved and the glory of God, with what we have; and let us quit planning and talking. We seldom speak of the "need of the hour," there are so many; but we venture to suggest that more real praying less planning, more work less complaining, more faith less improved methods, more Gospel less personal exaltation, are some of the needs of the hour.

A PROHIBITION organ will probably be started at Raleigh next month. Such a paper can do great good. If it devotes its energies to preaching against intemperance, if it strives to secure the nomination for office of anti-saloon men, if it will do its utmost to foster the growing sentiment in North Carolina against saloons and dram drinking, it will fill a noble and fruitful calling.

But, if this paper allows itself to be imposed on by men who are prohibitionists for office, if it allows itself to be made the organ of a set of incompetent office-seekers, it will do more harm than good.

If North Carolina is ever to be rid of saloons and whiskey, it will be by the creation of such a wholesome public sentiment, by so arousing the Christian people to the responsibility of supporting saloon candidates, that no party can afford to offer a platform to the people without a prohibition plank.

There are only a few people who do not know that office seeking prohibitionists have done more to injure the cause of prohibition in this State than all the saloons.

Let us begin right this time, and "hew to the line."

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

MOREHEAD AND BEAUFORT.

This is not the best time for a traveling brother to come here. The brethren farm on the bay and in the ocean, and this is not their harvest time. The fresh water streams are now giving out a great abundance of the "finny tribe," but the season here will be later. "Croakers" are plentiful, it is true, but people don't like "croaker" fish any more than they like croaking men or women.

Bro. Porter was preaching at Pollocksville when I was here, assisting his brother in a protracted meeting. Now why not this or some other brother assist Bro. Porter at Morehead? The brethren here want a meeting, as the following indicates: Telegram No. 1 from a brother here—"Can you come to Morehead and assist us in a meeting of days?" Telegram No. 2—"I refer you to Dr. ——, President of the N. E. S; I am under his direction." Telegram No. 3—"Dr. ——, President N. E. S: Can we get Bro. —— to hold our meeting!" Telegram No. 4—"You can have Bro. —— two weeks at $50 per week, you paying all expenses." While the above may not be a literal reproduction of the correspondence, it is substantially what occurred, and is evidence at least that these brethren want a meeting; but I am glad to say they do not want it on any such conditions as the above correspondence would make. Lecturers and lecture bureaus may have their plan to gratify, please and instruct, but when it comes to letting and subletting men to preach the gospel, it is quite another matter, and those who carry on this sort of business will hardly find work with Bro. Porter and his people. It will be seen that this gospel had at least a price on it—$50 per week and expenses; so whether the brethren are taking croakers, cat-fish, sturgeon or whales, the gospel as dispensed by N. E. S. is all the same. As a final paragraph, the reader is referred to John 2: 16.

I found Bro. Moore in Beaufort in a fine humor. He is much loved by his people, and is doing most acceptable work in every particular.

Bro. J. D. Davis was the first brother I met. He is always in place, which is near the water's edge. He told me that Brother Moore was out visiting and it might be sometime before he returned, as he did not confine his visits strictly to the brethren who were sick, nor to the sisters who were married. However, he returned in due time and helped to renew my old subscribers and also to get others who have not been getting the RECORDER. He will attend the Southern Baptist Convention. We hope many of our pastors will do likewise. A little effort and a small outlay on the part of our churches would send many a pastor to Washington, who would return stronger and better fitted to do his work.

NEWBERN.

I thought of stopping here only a few hours, but the brethren are anxious that I should go with them a few miles in the country where a church was to be organized on Bro. Rose's field. This is the fourth church organized in Craven county within the last two years.

In speaking of the faithful and successful work done here by Bro. Rose, Bro. Ford said that Bro. Rose is an evangelist such as the Bible describes, a man who goes where there is not so much as a shelter to keep the rain and sun from off his head, and there preaches the gospel and teaches the people. He is a Paul-like evangelist. This work of Brother Rose was started by the Newbern church, which pays the entire expenses of Bro. Rose while he labors in this destitution so far as Baptists are concerned. Though Bro. Ford has decided to leave here, he will ever be able to look upon this work with pride and satisfaction because he and his brethren in Newbern began it.

We can but regret that Bro. Ford sees it in the line of duty to leave Newbern. The brethren are and have been greatly pleased with him as their pastor; and on the other hand, Bro. Ford has appreciated the brethren for their solid worth and because of their kindly affection for him and his family. Why brethren with such relations should find it profitable to separate must be referred to some one else for an answer. We hope some of our churches may see it to their interest to call Bro. Ford, so that he may remain in the State where he has done faithful and efficient for a number years.

KINSTON.

It made me sorry to see Kinston. In the last two months the business portion of the town has been entirely destroyed. Our Baptist brethren have lost more than $100,000; yet Bro. Spillman says they never contributed more cheerfully, notwithstanding their losses.

I spent a night pleasantly with Dr. Lewis, who, for the past six weeks, has been on guard night and day trying to apprehend the supposed burners of the town. This is indeed a terrible experience and has almost proved too much for Sister Lewis, whose life is made up of cheerful words, sunshine and smiles.

The brethren are thanking Bro. Spilman for his articles in the RECORDER.

GREENVILLE.

Here I find the brethren looking for Bro. Oliver, and Tuesday night he is there and preaches to a good congregation, though the rain poured down as it seldom does.

Bro. Billings is fast getting acquainted with his people, and has an opportunity to do a fine work. They frequently refer to their pastors who have been there for the last fifteen or twenty years, and it would be hard to tell which one they liked most. Bro. Billings worked hard to get all his people to take the RECORDER, and as a result thirty copies of the paper will go to this office—a fine showing for this church.

NOTES.

Few men can excell Bro. John Mitchell in selecting the best brethren—well, this is as far as he pretends to go. When I left Newbern Bro. Mitchell was sitting well back in a nice phæton, and the owner, Hon. C. C. Clark, was driving him from place to place, taking a collection for education. [This is not a notice to the brethren generally that this is a standing arrangement of Brother Clark's.]

Bro. H. B. Duffy is encouraged in the special work he is doing to support Bro. M. C. Callum in Japan. He encloses a note in my letter which Bro. Kesler has just paid off for this work and wishes others may do likewise.

Bro. J. C. Whitty said to a poor preacher a day or so ago, "You go on and preach to those people, and twenty-five dollars is my part of your salary."

Bro. T. J. Mitchell says that, next to the BIBLICAL RECORDER, every Baptist who is able ought to take the Western Recorder. When Dr. Eaton comes to Newbern, he will find a disciple in the home of Bro. Mitchell.

Bro. Kesler and his brethren are just completing their new church at Lumber Bridge.

The brethren at Laurinburg are delighted with the prospect of Bro. Blalock becoming their pastor.

"THE BAPTIST POSITION."

We find that it is desirable to make an effort to distribute Bro. Love's sixty-one page tract, "The Baptist Position." It is meeting with favor wherever it is read. Conditions in North Carolina inspired Bro. Love to write it.

We will send the tract to any subscriber who sends us two dollars before June 1st, with request for the tract; and to any nineteen weeks trial subscriber who sends five cents extra.

Any pastor sending us five dollars at one time in new subscriptions (whether nineteen weeks, six months or yearly) will receive twenty copies of the tract for distribution.

The work is bound in durable paper and well printed; it will be a source of strength to many churches.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Rev. L. R. Pruett of Charlotte is holding meetings at McAdensville.

....Rev. C. S. Cashwell administered the ordinance of baptism at Newton last Sunday.

....The Warrenton Baptists, says Charity and Children, are preparing to build a new house of worship.

....The Gazette says the colored Baptists of Gastonia have almost completed their new house of worship.

....Evangelist J. T. Jenkins will assist pastor Blakely H. Matthews at Plymouth in a meeting beginning next Sunday.

....Bro. Caddell describes the workings of the National Evangelization Society in another column. It will repay careful consideration.

....Rev. Frank Dixon has baptized eighteen converts at Hartford, Conn., since a meeting by his brother A. C., of Brooklyn.

....Rev. A. G. McManaway has resigned his Little Rock, Ark., pastorate, to become secretary and treasurer of Ouachita College of Texas.

....Dr. C. A. Rominger will speak on the Sunday-school at Bro. Lamberth's Ephesus church, Person county, the first Sunday in May.

....Send us five dollars in new subscriptions and get twenty copies of Bro. Love's 62 page tract, "The Baptist Position." This offer is designed for the especial benefit of pastors.

....Bro. N. B. Broughton will lecture on the Sunday-school at Hephzibah church the first Sunday in May. Pro. Pippin and Bro. Boyles have charge of Stanhope High School at Finch, N. C.

....We look for a large North Carolina delegation at the Convention. Pastors, we know, will appreciate any help their churches may give them; and it will be money well invested.

....From a letter received the 20th we learn that missionary T. C. Britton of China is also coming home for a season. He and Bro. Chappell are probably on the way now. We shall be glad to see them.

....Revs. S. F. Conrad and J. T. Jenkins are in a meeting at Ramseur. Rev. H. A. Bagby of Richmond is helping Pastor Vann at Scotland Neck. Rev. L. G. Broughton is helping Rev. W. L. Wright at Richmond.

....The good news from Burlington continues. Bro. Van Deventer has been holding a meeting of unmistakable spiritual power, and there have been many conversions. When we heard last week the meeting was still going on, a great many showing interest.

....Potecasi High School, of which Bro. N. W. Britton is principal, is doing good work in that section. They have a good building, and have enrolled sixty seven pupils. There are some young men in the school who will enter Wake Forest.

....We have received another appeal from the B. Y. P. U. A. for the Founding Fund. The Northern boards completed the year with heavy debts—near half a million dollars in all. Oh, do give us a S. B. Y. P. U. to pay our Southern Boards out!

....It is a matter of personal grief to us that Dr. J. L. Carroll has suffered a relapse and is now in Baltimore, undergoing treatment. Many friends all over the State will join us in prayer that he may soon be with us again in his usual health and usefulness.

....Rev. I. S. Boyles preached Saturday, Sunday and Monday at his last appointment at Stanhope; and there were six conversions and four accessions to the church. Stanhope is a good working church, and under Bro. Boyles ministry it promises to grow into a strong Baptist point.

... We were glad to see "North Carolina Jottings" in the Examiner last week by that growing newspaper man, Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas. He is becoming a real factor in the making of our weekly denominational literature. One of his recent sermons was reprinted in five States.

....Bro. Mills and his singing class of orphans have returned from a successful trip down east. No sickness at the orphanage. Charity and Children will be glad to know that one of its late apprentices is doing well on the RECORDER in a position which prominent living men have held.

....Rev. W. B. Harrell of Dunn writes: "You may put me down for a meeting of days (D. V) in the Regions Beyond during the moon-light nights in the latter part of August next, (about the 27th), at the South River Public School-House (Page's) in Sampson county, a region of country destitute of gospel privileges."

....At last accounts, Rev. L. Johnson's meetings at Lumberton had resulted in the baptism of eight happy converts. "We are praying and expecting that others may be ready to follow their Lord in baptism," writes Bro. Johnson. It is seldom one sees more good suggestions in a letter than in that in this paper from Bro. Johnson.

....Prof. Chas. O. Ball has sent us an invitation to attend the annual exercises of Pinnacle School and Commercial Institute, May 20th and 21st. Rev. J. H. Lamberth will preach the annual sermon, Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas will deliver the literary address; there will also be debaters', essayists', orators', and declamation contests.

....Bro. W. Mitchell of Bertie, one of the Wake Forest men of 1891, is now pursuing a course in the University of Maryland with a view to practicing medicine, we hope in North Carolina. The Mitchells of Bertie have long been known as strong Baptists and substantial citizens, and we have no doubt Wayland will live up to the name.

....The current Alumni Quarterly, a University of North Carolina publication, is unusually interesting. It contains a full account of the gifts to the University in recent years, with pictures of Dr. Deems, and Rev. J. P. Mason and wife and their daughters. We wish the alumni of all our institutions could recognize their duty to support and help make their college publications.

....Rev. S. M. Brown has been out of North Carolina many years, but those who remember him know that he is one of our godliest preachers. His article on our first page this week is strengthened by the following facts: Five years ago Bro. Brown began his church in Kansas City. There has never been a society in it. But he has received six hundred members since he began with six; and every young man in the church will lead in prayer meeting. The church has never had an entertainment to raise money, but has given nearly $15,000 since it began. These solid facts are worth all the promises men can make.

....Roman Catholics have just raised, says the Atlantic Baptist, $8,000,000 for missions among our negro population. We have not heard anything so alarming in a time. The ignorant classes fall easy victims to Rome's superstitions. Let us counteract any possible result of this kind by vigorous work among the negroes.

....The annual catalog of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary has been received. The enrollment is 267, Wake Forest College being represented by ten young men and our State by thirteen. It contains the truest picture of Dr. Broadus that we have seen. It can be had on application to Dr. Wm. H. Whitsitt, Louisville, Ky.

....Rev. W. C. Tyree and Miss Delonie Currin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Currin, were married at Oxford last Thursday by the friend of the groom and pastor of the bride, Rev. J. S. Hardaway. The happy event was the occasion of much congratulation. A reception was given Brother and Sister Tyree in Durham. With many others, we wish them all happiness and usefulness through life.

....At the recent Convention in Georgia a committee was appointed to consider the advisability of discontinuing the policy of reserving a part of contributions to Home and Foreign Missions for expenses of the State Board. Rev. J. L. White was selected to preach the next sermon. By vote of 46 to 44, after a struggle, a resolution, recommending Y. P. organizations in the churches and a meeting of delegates next September, was passed.

....We would judge from the leading editorial in last week's Religious Herald that that paper is on the fence. It seemed to have abandoned its contest for the churches and went off after the B. Y. P. U. Now it seems ready to break with the B. Y. P. U. We wonder if the Herald would like for us to tell why we think it went off after the B. Y. P. U.; we think we have the key to the matter.—Atlantic Baptist. Come over, brethren, and let us compare notes; we have an opinion in the matter, too.

....Rev. C. W. Blanchard came in to see us from an extended and very encouraging trip for Wake Forest. More than one hundred and fifty young men have given him their names as intending to come to Wake Forest next September. Bro. Blanchard is meeting with very gratifying responses to his efforts. We hear good reports on every hand. The attendance at his addresses has been very good. Bro. Blanchard wants it understood that he is not the kind of agent who comes solely for money, but to sow seed among the people.

....The following from the Evangel, organ of the Evangelization Society, received since Bro. Caddell's letter came in, appears to contradict the latter's statement of the Morehead City case: "Will not our financial friends bear this in mind? Our friends everywhere will bear us witness that we do not urge the financial part very strong, nor do we ask any set amount of money for the services of our Evangelists; but it takes money to pay our men, and we would like to have help from any whom the Lord has prospered." We will get the straight of this.

....In reply to a request to make known its position on the women speaking question, our neighbor, the Baptist Courier, piously quotes Paul's well known words on the subject, and says it stands on the Scripture. We are glad the Courier has come back to Scripture, but we are still in the dark as to its interpretation of Paul and the women; for while, in our opinion, there can be but one interpretation of Paul's words, the Courier intimates that there may be two, but absolutely refuses to give what it believes to be the interpretation of these Scriptures. The Courier reminds us of Dr. Broadus' reply to a student who asked him how Mr. Beecher stood upon the question of inspiration. The Doctor replied that he did not stand at all, he just capered around generally. Come now, brother Courier, and tell us yes or no, whether you approve women speaking in mixed assemblies. Any one can caper around.

....Bro. Henry Sheets writes: "At the Liberty Union Meeting at High Point, March 30th, a letter was presented from Reed's X Roads church, requesting the ordained ministers of the Association present to sit as a presbytery with their pastor, Elder J. M. Hilliard, to examine, and, if found worthy, to set apart Bro. Jefferson Lanning to the full work of the ministry. The ordained ministers sat as a presbytery: Thos. Carrick, J. A. Summey, J. D. Newton, H. Morton, Rufus W. Weaver, N. B. Orrell, S. W. Hall and Henry Sheets. The presbytery was organized by calling Thos. Carrick to the chair and requesting Henry Sheets to act as Secretary. The examination proved entirely satisfactory. On Sunday, March 31st, Bro. J. D. Newton preached the sermon; Bro. R. W. Weaver offered the prayer; H. Sheets delivered the charge; Bro. J. A. Summey presented the Bible. Benediction by Bro. Lanning."

....The Anniversaries of the American Baptist Missionary Union, the American Baptist Home Mission Society, and the American Baptist Publication Society will be held this year at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., beginning Tuesday, May 28th, and closing Monday, June 3rd. The Missionary Union will hold its sessions May 28th and 29th; the Home Mission Society May 30th and 31st; the Publication Society June 1st and 3rd. It is expected that the Woman's Home Mission Society will hold its Anniversary Monday, May 27th. Railroad rates have been secured by which persons attending the Anniversaries, paying full fare to Saratoga, obtain return tickets at one-third fare. A full program covering the entire sessions may be expected later. Communications regarding hotel accommodations, etc., should be addressed to Frank M. Hewitt, Esq., Chairman Local Committee, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

....We will publish next week, along with other interesting matter that we desired to get into this issue, an account of the Georgia Convention by Rev. G. W. Gardner of Jackson, Ga., whom Rev. T. J. Taylor is aiding in meetings. Bro. Gardner wrote hurriedly last week: "The meeting is growing and getting a stronger hold daily. Several grown men have been coming up for prayer." By the way, we failed to note last week that the poem on our eighth page —"Precious Promises"—was composed by Bro. Taylor when in a meeting at Wake Forest last year. It is full of gospel comfort, and beautifully expresses the Christian's faith.

....Missionary D. W. Herring writes writes from Chi Ning, China, Feb. 25th: "The war is still on. We hear, however, that commissioners of peace, composed of Japanese and Chinese, with a delegation of English, Americans and Germans, have met somewhere in Manchuria to try to arrange terms. I do hope it may be true, and the war may close. This disturbed state is not only against our peace of mind, but against the work. It will also entail great suffering upon the people if it continue long. The English Baptists and American Presbyterians, our nearest neighbors in cities one hundred and two hundred miles away, are having to go to the ports Shanghai and Sien Tain for safety; but the scare has not got out this far yet, and I am still hoping none of us of the Gospel Mission will have to leave our post, having just got settled down comfortably. If our communication with you all should be cut off, our friends need not conclude that is the end of us. We are rejoiced over the arrival of Misses Humphries and Sullivan, and hope they are an earnest of the hundred we are praying for."

....Rev. J. R. Jones writes from his new Virginia field, Boykins, Va.: "Our welcome over here has been most hearty and substantial. We have been on the field nearly a month, and thus far we are charmed with the country and the people. The brethren know how to make a pastor and his family feel good, and they do it. Already I have fallen mightily in love with these Virginia Baptists, and am beginning to feel that I can make a right good Virginian. But I am still glad to hear from home every week, and so the RECORDER, that has been a welcomed visitor to me for more than twenty years, is more welcome than ever. Our church in Cape Charles has only a small membership; but they have some good workers, and I feel hopeful of our cause there. The church in the country of which I am pastor in connection with the Cape Charles church, has a large membership, and seems to be a very active church. I regard the field in all respects a very choice and hopeful one. Bro. P. H. Pernell is one of the most popular men in the county, and is doing a good work."

....Bro. A. C. Cree writes from Wake Forest: With the opening of the spring the College is showing new life. Examinations only five weeks off. Profs. Lanneau and Royall have recovered from recent sickness. Rev. Jasper Howell is now pastor at Franklinton, preaching there twice a month. His people are growing in zeal and good works. One of the most hopeful signs for Wake Forest's future is the increasing interest on the part of the young men in the prayer-meetings and Bible bands. There is no religious service held at College that evinces more spiritual power, and certainly no classes are more enthusiastically and beneficially attended than the voluntary classes for the devotional study of the Bible. The plan adopted by the students is as follows: each class is studying the life of Christ using the harmony of the gospels prepared by Dr. Broadus; each member of the class makes a daily devotional study of the Scripture assigned for the next meeting; each class meets once a week and discusses the ground they have been over during the week; and every other Sunday evening some one is invited to deliver a lecture to the classes en masse on a subject connected with their study. Dr. C. E. Taylor will lecture on the miracles of the New Testament and Dr. J. H. Gorrell on the Bible and its different versions at the next two meetings. All Bro. Millard's friends at College were glad to learn that he has accepted Henderson."

....Rev. C. J. Thompson writes of the good work that has been going on in his College Hill church, Lynchburg, Va.: "We have just closed a sixteen days meeting at our church which has been to us a season of rejoicing in spiritual things. Dr. F. C. McConnell of the First church of this city preached for us seven nights during the meeting, and his sermons were of unusual power and effect. The writer preached through the remainder of the meeting. Rev. G. W. Argabright of the First church rendered us valuable service in our music and by his excellent Bible readings at our morning meetings. We had no excitement, but a deep spiritual work. As to results, the works of grace seem to be very much revived. We had more than seventy professions of faith in Christ, and half that many backsliders to renew their vows and obligations to the Lord. It is not yet determined how many will unite with our church. Those already in sight will run up our membership to from 550 to 600. My work with this people since September last has been very pleasant and encouraging. Before our meeting, we had during the past few months forty additions to our church. The good work goes on; Dr. McConnell has already begun a series of meetings with his people at the First church, which starts off well. He will conduct the meetings himself. He is power enough with the Lord to do that sort of thing."

Attention is called to the statement of the condition of the Preferred Accident Insurance Co.; this is one of the safest of accident companies, offers liberal terms. It is represented by Mr. C. C. Crow, Raleigh, N. C., who will cheerfully respond to inquiries.

How Stands the Debt?

HELP NOW, BOOKS CLOSE APRIL 30.

Only eleven days remain until our books close for this Conventional year. Money has been pouring in, yet thousands still remain to be paid. We feel that at least ten thousand more ought to be given to be added to what has already come in and is on the way. Who would not help in this great work! Oh that we might go up to Washington with rejoicing. Having given, let us give again. God has graciously blessed us; many baptisms have been reported this year both on the foreign fields and at home. Let us show our gratitude to him. Let each one send a contribution at once. Some could send $100 or more. One thousand could send $10 each. The time is short. Our books close April 30th. Act at once. Let each do his or her duty. Wait not till property or opportunity is gone, or your heart has grown cold.

Let us all continue to pray and pay till the debt has been rolled away.

R. J. WILLINGHAM, Cor. Sec.

From Bro. Livingston Johnson.

Dear Recorder:—Will close our meeting tonight. Have been going on ten days. There has been a quiet work of grace that has had its influence on the church and on the town.

You know when a preacher goes to a new field, it takes the people sometime to get acquainted with his style of preaching, and it takes the preacher sometime to get accustomed to preaching in a new place. I thought the quickest way to get rid of the feeling of "newness" all round would be to preach twice a day for a week or ten days. I feel that that object has been accomplished, and that we are better acquainted and in more hearty sympathy with each other as pastor and people than we could have been in six months by having only Sunday service. Then the members seem to be revived and strengthened. Several have told me that they have been greatly benefited. Quite a number have manifested an interest in their souls, and there have been several happy conversions. I did not "count," but suppose there were at least ten or twelve professions. Will open the doors of the church to night for the reception of members.

Am well pleased with the work so far, and am praying daily for wisdom and guidance that we may make the most of our opportunities. Our W. M. S. raised between twelve and fifteen dollars as a "self denial offering."

In March I attended for the first time a Union Meeting of the Robeson Association. Was not prepared for such a gathering. It looked like a young Association. In this Association at each Union Meeting they discuss one of the objects of the Convention, and during the quarter following, take collections for that object in all the churches This strikes me as a very practical way of keeping the objects prominently before the churches and of keeping the people informed as to their importance.

Some of the leading pastors were not present. Bro. Pittman, the venerable Moderator of the Association, was not there, owing, we suppose, to feeble health. Bro. Smith, who is usually sound as a dollar in health (and in other respects), was unwell and unable to be out. Bro. Proctor, the consecrated lawyer and Clerk of the Association, was detained by the severe illness of his mother, who is still critically ill. Of course we missed these brethren very much, but still we had a good meeting. The pastors whom I met impressed me as earnest, godly men, who have the Master's work resting on their hearts.

Bro. Blanchard made us a "pop-call." He dropped in for a few hours on Saturday and made a telling speech for Wake Forest.

Bro. Kesler preached a strong sermon on Sunday to a vast congregation. By the way, I doubt whether there is a man in the State doing a better or more important work than Kesler. He is serving a group of churches in an old Scotch Presbyterian community, where the people are cultured and educated. We need our strongest men in just such places. It is foundation work and does not make the show that would be made on some other fields, but the coming years will tell how wisely and well he has wrought. I happen to know that he has had invitations to larger fields, but he has shown his wisdom and consecration by remaining. I hope all vacant churches will take notice and keep "hands off," for we can't spare Kesler.

ROBESON INSTITUTE.

I must say a word about Robeson Institute before I close. Dr. Hufham said in his great speech at Charlotte that one of the needs of Wake Forest is more "Baptist brag." I am sure that is true of the school here. I never knew a school that did the class of work they are doing here with so little said about it. I don't know where the blame lies. I suppose the modesty of the faculty and trustees have kept them from "blowing" it. As a patron, I think I can afford to say a few things. On a beautiful lot in the heart of the town there stands a two-story brick building that would at once attract the attention of the stranger and cause him to ask, "What building is that?" And the resident Baptist proudly replies, "That's the Robeson Institute." The building is excellently ventilated and the heating arrangement all that could be desired. It is well furnished and equipped with the most modern desks, maps, charts, globes, blackboards, &c. But this is only the machinery. To run this machinery they have some choice brain power.

Prof. Ducket, a life long educator, is principal. Wherever he has taught, he is held in highest esteem. The excellent work he is doing as principal of Robeson Institute, is only adding to his already enviable reputation. Colonel Toon has charge of the intermediate department. He is as thorough in the school room as he was valiant on the battle-field, and those who were under his command during the late "unpleasantness" know that that is putting it as strongly as it can be put. Miss Johnson from Pennsylvania has under her care the primary department. All who have ever taught know that it requires peculiar tact or gift, or whatever it may be called, to interest and instruct the little "tots." This gift Miss Johnson possesses in a very eminent degree. Miss McIver presides over the musical department, and her patrons speak very highly of her method of instruction and the progress of her pupils.

No man can estimate the good that this institution is destined to accomplish. It certainly will be a very powerful agency in giving to the Baptists of this section strength and influence. There is a crying need for just such schools as this all over the State. If at some central place in every Association there were a school of high grade, the masses of our people—who, in all probability, will never attend college—would have within their reach educational advantages that they do not now enjoy, and these schools would act as feeders to Wake Forest and the Woman's College. If we had such schools all over the State under the control of the associations, more room would have to be provided at Wake Forest whether State aid is withdrawn from other institutions or not.

Now in the mean time, until you get such a school in your own Association, just send your children along to Lumberton. Board is cheap, the town exceedingly healthful, and no more moral community can be found. No whiskey is sold in the county. Haven't seen a drunken man since I came to Lumberton. With very best wishes,

LIVINGSTON JOHNSON.

Lumberton, April 11, 1895.

Eighty-eight Baptised.

Dear Recorder:—A much used argument of the Pedobaptists against immersion is the frivolous one that it was a physical impossibility to immerse 3,000 persons in a day, and therefore the pentecostal converts must have been sprinkled.

On last Monday Rev. G. W. Holland, pastor of the First Colored Baptist church of Winston, baptized eighty eight converts by immersion in Belo's pond, the time occupied from beginning to completion, being less than nineteen minutes.

The report of the event in our daily paper stated that the pastor had an assistant. He had a man to assist him in raising the candidates from the water, but this simply relieved the pastor of some physical exertion but made no difference as to time required.

A very little figuring will show that show that twelve men like Rev. Holland could have baptized 3 000 persons by immersion in less than one hour. J. D. H.

Union Meeting at Clayton.

The Union Meeting of the Eastern Section of the Raleigh Association, was held with the Clayton church March 29th to 30th inclusive.

Friday, the 29th, was Sunday-school day. A goodly crowd was in attendance at the opening service. R. H. Gower was made Moderator, and J. M. Beaty, Secretary.

N. B. Broughton conducted a short song service. He was assisted by Messrs. Cheek and Edgerton, cornetists, from the Raleigh Tabernacle church.

The subject for the day—The Sunday-school—was very ably discussed, in its different phases by Bro. N. B. Broughton and others. The Sunday-school discussions were supplemented by an interesting address on Bible Study by Rev. A. C. Cree, which was very much praised. Mr. Cree also preached in the evening.

Saturday was Education day. Rev. O. L. Stringfield and Bro. N. Y. Gulley made able speeches in behalf of the education of our girls; while our duty to our boys in this matter was made very plain in an interesting address by Rev. A. A. Pippin.

Rev. A. M. Simms spoke on Ministerial Education and Hon. J. C. Scarborough on General Education. All these were very able efforts and were well received by the audience.

Sunday's session was devoted to missions. The day was beautiful and the church inadequate to accommodate the large crowd.

Mr. J. M. Beaty told of the mission work in our own Association.

Home Missions of our Southern Baptist Convention was discussed by Rev. H. H. Mashburn.

The Foreign Mission sermon was to have been preached by Rev. J. G. Pulliam, but, on account of sickness, he was detained at home. Rev. Mr. Cowan kindly consented to preach in his stead and delighted the audience with a masterly discourse. The sermon was a fitting close to the work of one of the most successful Unions yet held in the Raleigh Association. The attendance was large, the discussions were all interesting, spiritual, and helpful, and, it is believed, the cause greatly strengthened.

Our Sunday school had an increase of about thirty pupils last Sunday, the result of Mr. Broughton's stirring Sunday school addresses.

Clayton would be glad to welcome the Union meeting again soon.

DAVIS & WILEY BANK, Salisbury, N. C. Manager Ætna Life Insurance Co., Raleigh, N. C.

Dear Sir:—It gives me pleasure to acknowledge the prompt payment in full of the policy for $10,000 held by Mr. S. H. Wiley in the Ætna Life Insurance Company. Mr. Wiley died July 2d, 1894. The proofs were forwarded July 6th, and the Company's check in full settlement was sent July 13.

Yours truly,

(Signed) THEO. F. KLUTTZ, Executor.

P. S.—I consider Mr. Wiley's life insurance the best property that he had.

That Foreign Mission Collection.

The time is short. Souls are perishing. Eternity is at hand. The Foreign Mission Board is but the agent and representative of the churches of Christ in rescuing these millions of heathen. Do we feel our responsibility? Are we doing anything to prove it? Have you as an individual, has your church through your influence come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty? The simple good news of salvation would avail against sin and corruption, against worn-out philosophies and race prejudice, if only they heard it; but how shall they hear without a preacher? Shall we not send others as well as pay those now in the field? Christians have been prophesying that the end of the century would see the greater part of the world brought to Christ, but if the Lord is to use them towards this blessed consummation, why this seeming indifference? We pray, come, Lord Jesus. We sing of the glorious reign of the King and of the signs of it, and yet are we not practically antimissionary? How shall we cure ourselves of such criminal apathy? Would it not be well to begin, before next Sunday and then pay our vows in the Lord's house and our money into the Lord's treasury, that our noble Secretary may be aided in raising the Board from under that load of debt?

Do we know that this next is our last Sunday before the Southern Baptist Convention? Is it not right that we should plead for our Secretary and the Lord whom we serve? Brother pastor, plead with the people and send the money on Monday.

THOMAS HUME.

Liberty Baptist Union Meeting.

This body convened with the Baptist church in High Point embracing the last three days of March. We had fine weather for the occasion. Pastor Carrick preached the introductory sermon at night, instead of in the morning, as is usual.

Only ten churches were represented. We note with pleasure that nearly every pastor in the Association was present.

The queries were discussed with the usual interest. Reed's church sent up a letter asking the ordained ministers of the Association to sit as a presbytery to examine brother Jefferson Lanning, and if found worthy, to set him apart to the ministry. He passed a very satisfactory examination and at the close of the Sunday morning service, he was ordained to the full work of the ministry.

The next session will be held with Jersey Church in June: Brother R. W. Weaver to preach the opening sermon. Brother H. Morton preached Saturday night. At the Methodist church on Sunday morning Brother Thos. Carrick; at night, Brother J. M. Hilliard; in the Baptist church in the morning, Brother J. D. Newton; at night, Brother Henry Sheets.

High Point church, under the leadership of their young and gifted pastor, Brother R. W. Weaver, is moving toward a point of efficiency in the Master's work that challenges the admiration of every lover of Zion.

THOMAS H. BRIGGS,
Treasurer Wake Forest College.

Raleigh, April 20, 1895.

Brother J. D. Robertson writes from the Seminary that both faculty and students are pressing on with renewed zeal under the increased responsibility. Rev. J. W. McCollum and Dr. Harris have been lecturing to the students on missions. "It is hard," says Bro. Robertson, "for any one who has been here to give any idea of the work and benefit one receives. The best and only way is to come and realize it." The next Seminary Magazine will be a volume of estimates of Dr. Broadus. It sells for 25 cents and every one ought to get it.

We have just received from Lord & Thomas, their new book about religious publications. It is tastefully printed on heavy plate paper, well and tersely written and filled with valuable information from one handsome cover to the other.

Its publishers are anxious to place this book in the hands of every general advertiser in the country. Write inclosing stamp to Lord & Thomas, 45 Randolph Street, Chicago.

Echoes from East Durham.

BY REV. O. C. HORTON.

"A thing is never too often repeated which is never sufficiently learned." This, together with your permission as editor, will allow me to come in the RECORDER with other than "vain repetition," such as the heathen use, I hope. There are voices that need an echo, so they may be heard twice if no more.

I have been reading a tract by Rev. J. F. Love, pastor of First Baptist church, Suffolk, Va., entitled "The Baptist Position, with Scripture Verifications," which I hereby pronounce a good thing for some Baptists and all Pedobaptists to read. If the latter do not like it after the first reading, why just keep on reading until a taste for the truth is acquired, and then all will be well. I like it; yes, I do. "Why?" do you ask? Well, I like any one in this day of Babel confusion that has a position, well defined, knows where he is, and can tell others by the use of such terms as will drive away the fog of sophistry, so you can see him and those with him. Brother Love seems to believe something, knows in whom and what he trusts, and would have others equally wise with himself on the themes he writes in his little book. No one's position seems to be so little understood by some as that of the Baptists, and that makes a need for our brother's work in this short, convenient and cheap form; only ten cents per copy.

You will give me space for a few quotations from this tract, and I will echo another voice afterward.

Under the heading, "Sentiment Versus Truth," I cull the following:

"Whenever any man begins to say of any thing God commands, 'It don't make any difference, or it don't mean that,' you may be sure that a rigid application of Scripture would overthrow his creed. A man who has a Scriptural creed will insist on measuring creeds by Scriptural standards, and that the Scriptures mean just what they say."

Truly, it is very bad for one's Scripture to give out about the middle of an effort to defend his doctrine and practice by the use of it! It is somewhat like breaking one's sword in the midst of a contest which gives the opponent with a whole sword every advantage. Bro. Love's sword remains whole, and seems to brighten and sharpen by use. Let us hear him now on "sweet" charity:

"What is charity? You can be charitable and not sanction error. No man, indeed, has Scriptural charity who encourages one in error. Scriptural charity, so far from countenancing or fellowshiping error, demands that I shall condemn it. Whether is it more charitable to tell a brother he is wrong or to say the Bible is a lie?"

But you must buy the tract and read it for yourself, thoughtfully and prayerfully, in order to get what the writer designs to give.

WHAT IS AN EMINENT SCHOLAR?

Another voice declares "that infant baptism (or sprinkling) must be right because endorsed by so many eminent scholars." This, you see, is a kind of single-handed and second-handed new translation of what learning says—no Bible within reach, or it will not answer the purpose. The need of very eminent scholarship in the interpretation of the Scriptures is generally conceded by the most devout and intelligent students of the word, but not of the kind referred to by the one seeking to establish "infant baptism" thereby.

Some recent writer asks, "What is an eminent scholar?" Then he proceeds to answer: "Smith writes a book or delivers a lecture attacking some common view of the Scriptures, and straightway the newspapers quote his most trenchant sentences and unfounded denials, and print interviews with him, and in a few months Smith has become an authority. A good deal that passes for eminence is simple notoriety; and with some people an authority upon a matter is the man with whose name they happen to be the most familiar." If this writer has hit the truth instead of giving us a burlesque, then an appeal to scholarship for the settlement of a controversy, which can only be answered by the Scriptures, is very unsatisfactory. Such a method of settlement will not do. Read further objections to such a scholarship settlement of a Scriptural (?) subject: Says the same writer, "It is hard to find an error or an absurdity which has not had the endorsement of so called eminent scholars. There are people who have but a faint idea of the number of things a learned man does not know; and an humble Christian who has studied his Bible, and compared Scripture with Scripture may be a much better and safer expounder of the living oracles than a learned doubter who professes to be a critic, when in truth he is a skeptic or an infidel. Due respect must be paid to scholarship, but something more is needful, namely, faith in God, and a good training in the school of Him who is meek and lowly in heart. Without the knowledge of God's love and the possession of his Spirit, the most learned will continue to miss the mark, because "God hides some things from the wise and prudent and reveals them unto babes. For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent. The foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men. The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. Now we have received not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God; that we might know the things which are freely given us of God. Which things we also speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual." Oh that the Spirit of God may teach us what to learn, how to learn it, and how to use what we know for God's glory, and the good of all mankind.

Southern Baptist Convention.

The fortieth session, fiftieth year, of the Southern Baptist Convention, will, at the invitation of the Baptist churches of the District of Columbia, be held in the meeting house of the First Baptist church of Washington, D. C., beginning Friday, May 10, at 10 a. m.

The Annual Sermon will be preached by Rev. Geo. B Eager, D.D, of Alabama, or his alternate, Rev. A. B. Miller, D. D., of Texas.

An Historical Semi Centennial Sermon to be preached by Rev. W. H. Whitsitt, D. D., of Kentucky.

LANSING BURROWS,
OLIVER F. GREGORY,
Secretaries.

JONATHAN HARALSON, President.

RAILROAD RATES.

The Southern Passenger Association, the Associated Railways of Virginia and the Carolinas, the Seaboard Air Line, the Southern Railway, the Norfolk & Western R. R, and all other lines south of Washington, together with all Railroad lines in Texas, have granted rates of "one first class fare for the round trip;" tickets to be of iron clad signature form, limited to a continuous passage in each direction; to be sold May 7th and 8th, final limit for return fifteen days from date of sale. No official notice has yet been given me of reductions by any Western lines or from the territory of the Trunk Line Association.

Further announcements will be made as information is received, or I will take pleasure in giving any information in my power by letter if stamped envelope is sent for reply.

These rates apply to delegates and visitors to the American Baptist Education Society, the meetings of the Young People's Societies, and the Woman's Missionary Union.

OLIVER F. GREGORY,
Secretary in Charge of Transportation.

HOTEL AND BOARDING HOUSE RATES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31, 1895.

To Delegates and Visitors to the Southern Baptist Convention, Greeting:

The churches of our denomination in the District of Columbia are gratified that their invitation to hold its session for this year at the National Capital had been accepted. We will do all in our power to make the session pleasant and profitable to all who attend. We will furnish free entertainment for the officers of the Convention, the presidents and secretaries of the Boards, and returned missionaries. The house of worship of the First Baptist church, 16th street above Scott Circle, has been selected for the place of meeting, and the Ebbitt House, corner of 14th and F streets, for Convention headquarters.

We have endeavored to secure ample accommodation in hotels and boarding-houses at reduced rates for all who desire to attend. Rates will range from $2.50 to $1.50 a day, while some boarding-houses will receive delegates and visitors at $1.00 a day.

At the Ebbitt House the rates will be $2.50 a day, with accommodation for fifty persons at $2 00 a day with two in a room. Delegates and visitors will obtain these rates on the presentation of a card of introduction from the Committee on Assignment. Those who expect to attend will please write as soon as possible to the undersigned, giving the full names and the number of those for whom entertainment is desired, stating whether Mr., Mrs., or Miss, the rates preferred, and the time of arrival in Washington, and the Committee on Assignment will do its utmost to furnish comfortable quarters.

These terms apply also to all attending the meetings of the American Baptist Education Society, the Woman's Missionary Union, and the Young People.

Address all communications to—

M. M. SHAND, Secretary,
Department of State, Washington, D. C.

Southern Railway Company.

The Southern Railway has made very low rates on account of the following occasions:

To Washington, D. C., and return, for the Southern Baptist Convention, one limited first class fare for the round trip; tickets to be sold May 7 and 8, good for fifteen days.

For any further information, address Chas. L. Hopkins, T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C.

The Journal of Education inquires: "How is this for the schools of America? New York City has a third of a million children in the public schools, and the truant officers in 1893 made more than 40,000 visits upon children whom they thought ought to be in school. They discovered but seventy-three children in the entire city in the whole year who were not in school because of poverty. Think of it! In that year of notoriously hard times, a third of a million children in the schools of one American city, but seventy-three kept out from poverty, and but fifty-three who stubbornly would not go to school!

No Secret About It.

Physicians have had the formula of Scott's Emulsion for 20 years and know they can always depend upon it as being exactly the same. It contains the purest Norway Cod-liver Oil, the best Hypophosphites and chemically pure Glycerine, made into a perfect Emulsion that does not separate or grow rancid like other so-called Emulsions. There have been many things presented as substitutes, but there is nothing that can take its place in Consumption and all wasting diseases.

Don't be persuaded to accept a substitute!

Woman's Perfect Health

can not be maintained without the greatest care.

From childhood to old age it should be guarded jealously—by parents—husband—loving friends.

Have something always at hand! Something that will strengthen—invigorate—cure at critical times.

Brown's Iron Bitters

has been woman's friend for twenty years—it never fails—it does give the much needed strength—enriches the blood—tones the nerves.

Are you a woman? Then remember that you can (after all else fails) fall back on BROWN'S IRON BITTERS with certainty of relief. It is a comforting thought—has been comforting to many—may it prove so to you!

Look for crossed Red lines on wrapper.

Two new narrative leaflets, telling of the work of the Home Board, have been published and will be sent free on application to Miss Fannie E. Heck, Raleigh, N. C.

The Missionary Society and Its Work.

MRS. ELLA W. DUCKETT.

What is the use of it? What good can it do?

1st. All societies are bound together by an adopted constitution and by-laws. All missionary work is naturally charitable, benevolent and kind, and should be entered upon with all cheerfulness and liberality; "for God loveth a cheerful giver." A missionary sheds or throws a light into darkness, thereby attracting many out of the darkest recesses of living into intelligent if not religious living.

2nd. One would ask, what can the Woman's Missionary Union do? It binds us together in love and in unity of thought. Then the greater number we have in it, the more love we will have in it; the more love we have in it, the more good deeds we will do. We need union, for union means strength. United efforts mean success. If one thread or member be weak, two will be stronger; three, four, five, six or many will form a tie too strong to be broken by mere criticism. Let us get several good active Christian women in a society, and we only need to mention a Christian work to be done when one and all will respond as "the Lord has prospered them," and soon the hunger, suffering and discomfort are relieved—are gone, and I assure you they do not miss the little given, but are really happy in the thought and privilege of giving.

Do not think to join a Society is all you have to do. Do not do like Elijah did after slaying the 450 priests—retire, fold your arms, and quietly wait and see if something wonderful is going to happen. Do not wait for results, for they will not come without effort. Another thing: when you are called on to take a part in the work, do not imitate Jonah, and go in an opposite direction at the time the work is to be done. Do what you find to do, and do it cheerfully and prayerfully, and I believe your meaning will be understood and appreciated, though your language is not elegant and high flown. God discerns the hearts of men, just as he did in the case of the poor, converted heathen whom a missionary found one day looking up to heaven and crying "Sunday, Monday! Sunday, Monday!" in all the anguish of his soul, these being the only English words he had learned. The missionary inquired of him his trouble; he replied in his native language that his mother was very sick, and that he was asking that God up there (pointing toward heaven) to spare her and restore her to health. God heard and answered this simple prayer of faith. We all can pray so that God can understand. We must not wish nor aspire to beautiful prayers, but genuine, heart-felt prayers.

We can make our Societies interesting by always going to the meetings (unless providentally hindered), and each one contributing a thought, a suggestion, a reading, or something interesting, for we all love to listen to the words of others.

Then again, we must give systematically each month, laying aside money for this purpose. If you grow careless and let your monthly contributions fall behind, in many cases you will become discouraged and stay away. It will do you good to meet together if you are not able to pay one cent. By no means, forsake the assembling of yourselves together. Sometimes we become despondent; the best antidote I know for this is to visit the poor and afflicted and relieve them as much as in your power lies. Compare their condition and circumstances with your own, and in nine cases out of ten it will make you wish to do more for the less favored around you.

We cannot and do not wish to fill any sphere but our own, but we can pay our mites to help sustain missionaries at home and abroad. We can read and learn of the work—then tell it to others, discuss it, and interest others.

Finally, as God spoke through Isaiah the prophet (chap. 41: 10), saying "Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." And again, "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." Deut 33: 2.

Lumberton, N. C.

Mexico.

MRS. LAURA WINSTON, MORGANTON, N. C.

To give a brief characterization of a people is a difficult task. What I shall say must be the condensation of hundreds of impressions. This thought, however, has been in my mind, that if I were able to give you briefly, first, something of that great undercurrent, over current, through and through priestly influence that envelopes and permeates the people of Mexico, I might then lead you to see what an "up hill" way Protestantism has there.

You do not get in the United States the true character of the religion of Rome. In this land the Romish church is hemmed in and modified by a powerful and active Protestantism; it does not venture to expand into full bloom and show its true color and form. But in Mexico we see how debased this church is, and how debasing is its influence on the people whom it professes to save.

To substantiate what I say, I wish to present the picture as it was drawn by a Roman Catholic, a French priest, Emmanuel Domenech. He had travelled and resided in Mexico. On account of his acquaintance with the people, he was chosen as chaplain to the expedition sent out by Louis Napoleon in 1862. He was afterwards in the cabinet of Maximilian as Director of the Press. In describing the church in Mexico, therefore, he was speaking that which he had seen and testifying to that which he knew. This is what he says:

"The clergy is in general very poorly educated, knows very little of theology, and appears to be entirely ignorant of the canon law and decrees of councils. The priests have the most absurd and erroneous ideas of morals and Catholic dogma. They traffic in the sacraments, make money out of every religious ceremony, untroubled by the fact that they become guilty of simony and liable to the censures of the church. If the laws of Rome were to be enforced in Mexico, the majority of the Mexican clergy would be excommunicated." He also says: "I affirm that Mexico is not a Catholic country because the majority of the Indian population are semi-idolaters; because the majority of the Mexicans carry ignorance of religion to the point of having no religion but form. Their worship is materialistic beyond any doubt; it does not know what it is to adore God in spirit." The worship of saints and Madonnas absorbs the devotion of the people to such an extent that they have little time to think of God. The idolatrous character of Mexican Catholicism is a fact recognized by all travellers. To convince us that such is the case, we have only to witness their manner of worship in the cathedrals during "La Santa Semama," "Holy Week or Los Ejerciceas de Samama"—the week of prayer.

It would take volumes to recount the idolatrous superstitions of the Indians which are still in existence, that indigenous race of Mexico, "gente sin razon" ("a man without reason"), as they are called by the Mexicans. They number more than one-third of the entire population. This race is slowly melting away in the northern country, but is on the increase in the south. On account of the lack of painstaking instruction, there appears in the Catholicism of the Indians numerous vestiges of the Aztec paganism. Sacrifices of turtles and other animals are still practiced by Indians in many places. In the State of Puebla they used to sacrifice, not many years ago, on St. Michael's Day, a small orphan, or an old man who had nothing better to do than go to the next world.

Need we go to the "Dark Continent" to find a more hideous heathenism?

It is said that when the railroad was being built from Tampico to Mexico City that the priest issued a leaflet and had it circulated among the poor, ignorant Indians who lived upon the railway, telling them to sell no kind of provisions to the foreigners, for their intentions were to kill them for the purpose of obtaining grease to oil the locomotives. And, also, God did not allow railroads in Mexico. The Indians are so indoctrinated into the priestly authority that it is with difficulty that they can believe any other doctrine.

It was a priest who fabricated the story of the marvelous apparition of the Virgin Saint Guaduloupe Hidalgo, whose image is found in almost every home in Mexico.

The opposition to the work of the missionary comes generally directly from the priest. The Mexicans are not much given to argument. When induced to discuss matters with you, there is a petty list of arguments in all their mouths, and you hear them without variation, in individual cases, just as they have received them from the priest. One is that their religion is the older; another, that Protestantism was founded by a monk who, wishing to marry a nun, gave up all religious principles to accomplish his end; and still another, that we are spiritualists and allied to the devil.

We find that they have not forgotten 1846, and perhaps on account of this, the story he tells them of Protestants being paid by the United States government to go to Mexico for political purposes has a marked effect. And they must not, he advises them, come under the spiritual dominion of foreigners for foreign power is dangerous to Mexico.

A curious phase of Romanism which you will meet in Mexico is that of a man passing your door selling "prayers," which are printed on a single sheet of paper, a picture of Holy Mary occupying the larger part of the first page. To her the prayer is directed. These words occur in it: "Oh, Holy Father, pardon my sins through the merits of the most Holy Virgin, our Lady, the Immaculate Mother of God, Queen of all that is created. Oh, most Holy Mother, deliver me from death through the passion of thy Son, and by the pains which thou didst suffer accompanying him on Calvary." But the grounds on which this prayer is recommended are still more remarkable. The house in which this prayer is found will never see evil, nor will the possessor of it ever be prosecuted by Justice. Reciting this prayer daily, the Most Holy Mary will accompany you in death, will receive your soul in her arms, and give you four days' notice before you die. These are bought especially by criminals when they go to rob or murder, as it delivers them from being prosecuted by justice. Thus they are taught to go praying to these dark deeds so that they will be exempt from justice; have four days' notice before death; and if they should fail, Mary stands ready to receive them because they have this prayer in their possession. They are sold for 6¼ cents, but are valueless until blessed by the priest.

Another example of the idolatry of Mexican Catholicism: About thirty miles south of the city where we live, is a ranch ("hacienda") called "San Roman." At the time of the establishment of a preaching point at that place, the members of the ranch were all devotees to "San Roman," an image of which they had in a frame, which they had been taught came down from heaven to a vessel on the Gulf. In the time of a drought they would place this image on a pole and carry it round the fields, all the people following in procession and praying to the saint for rain. Happy thought! they have since changed the name of the ranch to "Buena Nueva" ("Good News.")

All the observations which are made upon the religious opinions of the Mexicans are not limited to the ignorant classes; they extend to the upper rank of society also. A wealthy woman was dying; the wife of the attending physician in great haste demanded her servant woman to hasten to another room and implore a certain saint, whose picture hung upon the wall to prolong the life of the woman.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

What of China?

BY REV. W. E. CROCKER.

Just a few days ago news came of the fall of Wei-Hai-Wei, a Chinese stronghold on the sea near Chefoo. The telegram said, "Japanese and 25,000 strong near Chefoo." A few days later, news came along the wire from the Chinese general, saying, if Heaven didn't help him, he didn't know what he would do. A few days more, and we had the news of the fall of Wei-Hai-Wei—about 2,000 Chinese killed, they said, and "The Chinese bolted when the final assault was made." It has been said heretofore that that this fort was impregnable.

Tungchow was bombarded by the Japanese, but the missionaries went aboard a warship and were all safe. This is an invasion of the "sacred soil" by the Japanese. Heretofore they have been in Corea or Manchuria. What is coming we know not. The newspapers and western people are asking, "What of China?" What is going to be the outcome of a victorious march of the Japanese to Peking? China began the war by high-sounding words and big boasts. Now she is in trouble. Western civilization is knocking at the door of this ancient country. The tidal wave has risen in the western ocean and is leaping against the ancient barriers of Far Cathay.

What is going to be the outcome of it all? I believe it is going to open the doors for greater advancement in the East. Sir Thomas Wade, a man whose opinion has weight on Eastern questions, thinks that if the Japanese are really victorious, there will be great changes in the world and probably the Chinese empire will be overthrown. He says, in case the present dynasty falls, "I do not look for any combined action. Conflicting rebellions will break out in various parts of the empire." And further, he says, "A final victory for Japan would be followed, in my belief, by the extinction of Chinese nationality." His idea seems to be that China will be divided between the nations of Europe. "The crucial question of the future will be, not whether they will absorb the Western nations, but which Western nation will absorb China?" Strange to say an intelligent Chinaman, in a conversation the other day, had the same idea, but where he got it we do not know. He said that to be put under the rule of Russia would be bad, under England better, under America very good. Another Chinaman was asked, "If the Japanese take control of the country, what will you do?" "Oh, we will submit," he said. So long as you give a Chinaman a place to live, allow him to continue the customs of his fathers, and leave him in peace, he don't care who governs, or what trouble his country is in. Above all, he does not want to be made a soldier. The Chinese government makes criminals serve as soldiers. One man explained to me, "You see he knows he has to die anyhow, and so he makes a good soldier." Besides this, the soldiers are poorly clad, poorly paid, and poorly armed. Many of them have the best modern arms, but many have poor weapons, some even using the bow and arrow. The drill which prepares a Chinaman to occupy a place as military Mandarin, the drill which fits him to become a "brave," is by means of the bow and arrow. There is a parade ground just outside the city, and at intervals the soldiers are in training. Those who aspire to military positions go out there, and trotting around the ring on little ponies, they let fly their arrows at a target as they pass.

It is a strange spectacle to see these men diligently practicing with bow and arrow, when an enemy is invading their country with the latest improved repeating rifles and heavy guns. The Chinese soldier still has much of that disposition which some one said you see in a little fice-dog, "He tries to look fierce." His favorite symbol is the tiger. Like the American savage, he wants to strike terror to the heart of his enemy by his hideous expression.

This is a good index to Chinese character. Some one has said a Chinaman can't fight or die for an idea. He is extremely materialistic in his views of life. He does not feel protected without a wall about his town. The government tries to get the soldiers to fight by offering rewards in money—rewards for special bravery, rewards for the head of the enemy. The policy of Chinese warfare is not to give or take quarter, but to kill and torture. The Japanese along with their other qualities as soldiers fighting according to modern ideas, have adopted the principle of humanity to these prisoners of war. The Japanese deserve the praise of the world for their admirable conduct in this respect. And now we recur to the question, what of China? Christianity cannot be taken on very rapidly by a nation with safety as history shows. The only way China can be converted is by patient, constant, earnest work. It cannot be done suddenly by any great changes that may occur. I believe, however, that if the Chinese nation could be brought in some way to willingly, voluntarily allow missionaries to live in the country and preach the gospel, much more could be done. Missionaries are allowed now simply because of the power of the foreign nations. Accepting the view of the Chinaman that all things outside of China are inferior, there is no reason for our being here. We are in the attitude of a man inviting himself by force of arms. We are not welcome guests. But notwithstanding all this and the many other difficulties, the gospel is forging its way into the hearts and lives of the common people, and an ever increasing number are holding out hands of welcome to the good news of salvation from the West.

Will the present war with China help the progress of the gospel? I believe it will. It will break down, perhaps, some of the prejudice and help to prepare the minds of the Chinese for at least a patient hearing of the truth. It will give an object lesson such as this nation has never had.

This crumbling nation cannot withstand the impact of Western ideas, any more than her soldiers can withstand the onslaught of the well drilled Japanese army. May God grant that his kingdom may soon hold sway in this dark, heathen land.

P. O. Shanghai, G. M. Box, China.

Recalled Stormy Times.

"Well that looks natural," said the old soldier, looking at a can of condensed milk on the breakfast table in place of ordinary milk that failed on account of the storm. "It's the Gail Borden Eagle Brand we used during the war."

The Butterfly and the Bee.

With spring the flowers, bees and butterflies come. The butterfly is more attractive than the bee, but not so useful. They both are seen every day flitting from flower to flower. The butterfly is here and there, up and down, right and left, zigzag, irregular and irresolute. It has no purpose, save to pass a summer day in useless idleness. The bee goes from flower to flower on straight lines and at sharp angles, in a business-like way. He has a specific purpose in view. As soon as he gets his load of wax or honey he rises, circles three times, to get the points of the compass, and makes a "bee line" for home. In the bee you see a useful man with decision of character, having a purpose and a plan in life. In the butterfly is pictured the person of attractive characteristics perhaps, but lacking purpose and decision of character. C. S. B.

A Wonderful Cure for Cancer.

There is no further need to cut cancers out with knives or burn them out with plasters. Dr. Mason, Richmond, Va., has a cure for this dreadful disease that surpasses all other methods in rapid healing and permanent cure. It will not be worth while, however, to write to the Doctor unless you are tired of quack medicine and so-called cancer doctors who use knives or plasters. Dr. Mason does not compete with such. His remedy is painless and soothing, and the only one suitable for the aged or weak. The relief is immediate and the cure rapid. It seeks out the disease growths and destroys their vitality, causing the cancer to pass away, leaving only an ordinary healthy sore, which rapidly heals.

Dr. Mason has two methods of treatment—"Home Treatment" and "Personal Treatment." "Home Treatment" is for cases where the patients can be cared for at home without any other cost than the medicines, fully as well as to go to Richmond for "Personal Treatment," by the Doctor. The cost for "Home Treatment" is less than half the cost of "Personal Treatment," and for those who can be cured in a few weeks. When writing, describe the case fully, and direct letter to Dr. Scott Mason, 700 E. Clay Street Richmond, Va.

Business Men Want

Accuracy
Competeteness
Conciseness
Convenience

A Business Man

Wants to know the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. And he wants that truth boiled down.

He has no time to waste in skimming about the edges of a subject, he wants to get at the gist of the whole matter, and does not care for a hundred pages of opinions if he can get it all in a hundred lines of solid facts.

That is to say he wants the Encyclopædia Britannica, for no other work will so completely meet the busy man's needs. It has justly been called "the knowledge of the whole world compressed into five feet of book shelf."

Another Characteristic

Of the business man is that he has an eye on the dollars. If his good judgment enables him to detect the actual merit of a project before his neighbors get into line he "gets in on the bottom floor," while his less shrewd neighbor waits until all the world wants it and then he finds "the stocks have gone up."

It is this characteristic of Carolina business men that is leading them so generally to procure the Encyclopædia Britannica while it may be had at introductory rates. A thorough business man sees how the Britannica publishers can afford to permit a great paper like The Charlotte Observer, offer their up-to-date edition at introductory prices for a short time until the publit generally has become familiar with its surpassing merits. Then all will want it, and they will have to pay the publishers' regular price; while the man who was shrewd enough to purchase during the introductory period has saved just $2.00 per volume on the price of the work.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

The promise of $6 000 has been secured for a Y. M. C. A. at the State University; $30,000 is being worked for. Prest. Winston says such an institution is greatly needed.——The new house of worship of the First Presbyterian congregation at Charlotte was opened last Sunday. This congregation contributed $23,621 16 to various objects last year.——Two boards of directors of the State penitentiary met at Raleigh last week, one appointed by the late Assembly, the other by the Governor. The former, which would have Capt. W. H. Kitchin to superintend the penitentiary, was refused admission to the grounds of this institution. Whereupon the State Treasurer said he would not pay warrants issued by Supt. Leazer; but he has reconsidered this, and is paying the warrants. The courts will settle the matter.——The Legislature provided for and elected two extra judges. The Governor took the latter action as infringing on his prerogative, and appointed two judges, namely, O. P. Meares and Thos. A. Jones, to take the places to which the Legislature had elected Messrs. Cook and Ewart. The Superior Courts have decided in favor of the Governor's appointees; but appeal to the Supreme Court has been made ——A cradle manufactory will be started at Faith, Rowan county.——The debt of $1,900 on the Church of the Good Shepherd at Raleigh—the Cathedral of this Episcopal diocese—was reduced to $400 last week, and payment of the balance provided for.——Jas. R. Holland, cashier of the Merchants' and Farmers' bank of Charlotte, has assigned.——Wednesday and Thursday of this week there will be horse-racing at Reidsville, and a $1,000 purse will be offered. It is to be hoped that horse racing will never get a hold in this State.——Mayor Gentry of Walnut Cove, near Winston, gave a drunken negro severe blows on the head while resisting officers. The negro died next day, and the mayor is in jail.——The new Lutheran church at Winston, costing $15,000, has been completed.——More than 500 colored people have professed religion in Winston-Salem in the last forty days. About 200 converts are reported from a colored Baptist revival at Raleigh. ——A first class flouring mill at Raleigh has been completed. Efforts are being made to build one at Winston. Another has been set on foot at Spartanburg, S. C. ——The State Geologist has had a party of Northerners investigating the powerful narrows of the Yadkin River. The power at Weldon is being appreciated more and more.——A drunken negro was killed by a train at Greensboro the 17th inst.——Fruit has been slightly injured by frost, but not to considerable extent.——Lee Wooten, a well known farmer of Davie county, was caught in a revolving shaft and killed the 18th.——The McAnulty gold mine in Cabarrus county was recently sold for $25,000. ——A new National Bank has been organized at Tarboro.——Drunken negroes employed in saw-mills near by took possession of Bath, the oldest town in the State, last Saturday. The riot was quelled, and some of the negroes were shot, one perhaps fatally. Assistance went from Washington, N. C.——Norfleet Allen (colored) fell from the S. A. L. bridge at Weldon on the 17th, and was almost instantly killed.

In General.

The State of Georgia, which had approved $260,000 of the Northeastern Rail way bonds, found it expedient last week to buy the road for $100,000 ——Factory wages at Fall River, Mass., have been restored to the standard maintained up to August, 1894 ——The sensation of the week was the discovery of the dead bodies of two murdered young women, brutally mutilated, and hidden away in the steeple of a San Francisco Baptist church. Suspicion has fallen on a student named Durant, who, having the confidence of the church people, was given possession of keys to the apartments in which the bodies were hidden. He is in jail.——The Cuban insurgents have gained strength, despite that a General from Spain arrived last week. The United States is clearly in sympathy with the insurgents.——In a letter expressing regret that he could not accept an invitation to make an address before a Chicago club, President Cleveland boldly warned the country against the agitation for free silver. A member of the club responded, deprecating the President's attitude. Free silver demonstrations are growing more and more pronounced and frequent. A little book—Coin's Financial School—is making so many advocates of free silver that a man has been employed to expose its sophistry, if there is any in it.——Two notable men have died recently, Prof. J. D. Dana of Yale University and editor James W. Scott, the great Chicago newspaper man.——In winding up the affairs of the Whiskey Trust $1,149,443 was found missing and unaccounted for. ——W. H. Green has become manager for the entire system of the Southern Railway.——It is now said pretty confidently that receipts from the income tax will amount to more than $10,000 000 —— China and Japan have come to terms of peace. The former will pay her doughty conqueror $200,000,000 taels; cede the independence of the happy "bone of contention," the almost forgotten Kores, and also cede the island of Formosa to Japan; China ports will be opened and advancement in arts and sciences introduced. The two nations agree—this is past belief almost—to stand together in alliance, offensive and defensive, against other nations ——A libel suit against the Philadelphia Times was decided for the plaintiff the 17th, he being awarded $45,000 ——England is openly imposing on the Central American government of Nicaragua, and it is hoped that the United States will uphold the "Monroe Doctrine" and learn the old country a lesson.

Tired Women.

THE HOUSEWIFE, THE FARMER AND THE TOILERS OF ALL VOCATIONS.

Depression of the nervous system at the approach of spring is a fertile source of blood impurities. That tired feeling, which is the natural result of the depressing effect of warm weather immediately after the invigorating cold of winter, quickly disappears when Pe-ru-na is taken. Thousands are daily testifying to its priceless benefit. General lassitude, dull, heavy sensations, continual tired feelings, with irregular appetite, and sometimes loss of sleep. Pe-ru-na meets every indication and proves itself to be perfectly adapted to all their varied peculiarities. Pe-ru-na invigorates the system, rejuvenates the feelings, restores the normal appetite and procures regular sleep.

This tired out feeling is especially true of the housewife in spring time—used up, fagged out, jaded and weak. There are thousands of them everywhere. A few bottles of Pe-ru-na would do them untold benefit. As a tonic and nerve invigorator it has no equal. It builds up the nerves, it gives strength to the circulation and at once restores the appetite and digestion. No feeble woman should be without Pe-ru-na.

Did Not Bro. White Prove It?

Dear Bro. Bailey:—In a recent RECORDER I find an article written by Bro. J. M. White offered as a criticism on Dr. Pritchard concerning Judas partaking the Lord's Supper. Bro. White says Judas did not, and was not there at the time of the Lord's Supper. I might say I do not believe he was there—but I can't say, like Bro. White, that he was not, because the Bible does not say so. John says he went out, but if Bro. White will notice, he says nothing about any supper after that. The other three speak as if he was there. Luke says, "Behold the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me at the table." Bro. White has no right to say Judas was not there unless he can prove it by the Bible. S. F. BRISTOW

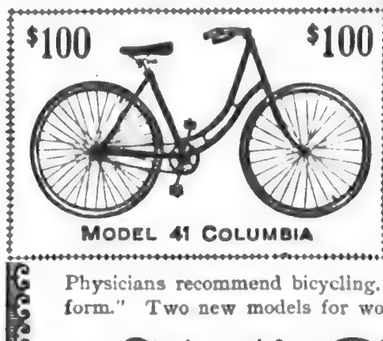
TRADE MARK.

LITTLETON, N. C., March 17, 1895.



Dear Sir:—After an experience of three years we have found the little doctor an invaluable remedial agent. We use it for whatever diseases that come along, and it has never failed to benefit the patient. It has proved a specific for Grippe, Neuralgia, Colds, and Nervousness. Indeed my wife regards it as a panacea. We have frequent calls for ours.

Respectfully, J. K. FANT (Pastor Baptist Church.)

Served in Two Wars.

THE GRIP ALMOST WON WHERE THE BULLET FAILED.

OUR SYMPATHIES ALWAYS ENLISTED IN THE INFIRMITIES OF THE VETERAN.

(From the Herald, Woodstock, Va.)

There is an old soldier in Woodstock, Va., who served in the war with Mexico and in the war of the rebellion, Mr. Levi McInturff. He passed through both these wars without a serious wound. The hardships, however, told seriously on him, for when the grip attacked him four years ago it nearly killed him. Who can look on the infirmities of a veteran without a feeling of the deepest sympathy? His townspeople saw him confined to his house so prostrated with great nervousness that he could not hold a knife and fork at the table, scarcely able to walk too, and as he attempted it, he often stumbled and fell. They saw him treated by the best talent to be had—but still he suffered on for four years, and gave up finally in despair. One day, however, he was struck by the account of a cure which had been effected by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He immediately ordered a box and commenced taking them. He says he was greatly relieved within three days time. The blood found its way to his fingers, and his hands which had been palsied assumed a natural color, and he was soon enabled to use his knife and fork at the table. He has recovered his strength to such an extent that he is able to chop wood, shock corn and do his regular work about his home. He now says he cannot only walk to Woodstock, but can walk across the mountains. He is able to lift up a fifty-two pound weight with one hand and says he does not know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for others, but knows that they have done a great work for him.

He was in town last Monday, court day, and was loud in his praises of the medicine that had given him so great relief. He purchased another box and took it home with him. Mr. McInturff is willing to make affidavit to these facts

The proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills state that they are not a patent medicine but a prescription used for many years by an eminent practitioner who produced the most wonderful results with them, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves, two fruitful causes of almost every ill to which flesh is heir. The pills are also aspecific for the troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, all forms of weakness, chronic constipation, bearing down pains, etc., and in the case of men will give speedy relief and effect a permanent cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. They are entirely harmless and can be given to weak and sickly children with the greatest good and without the slighest danger. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2 50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

S. S. Association at Farmington.

The Sunday-school Convention of the South Yadkin Association met at Farmington last Friday. Not half the churches and Sunday schools were represented, and I was the only minister present. I am pastor of the church and greatly regretted that no preacher attended. Our Sunday-school Conventions and Union Meetings ought to be made as interesting and as profitable as our Associations. They can be made so, if every church will send delegates and all the pastors will attend.

Bro. Stephenson, the pastor of the Methodist congregation, attended on Friday and Saturday, and gave us efficient aid, as did the lay-members of that congregation. Bro. Stephenson preached for us Saturday night. Brother Moses Baldwin came Sunday and preached at 11 o'clock. An appointment was made for Bro. Stephenson for Sunday night without consulting him, as he was in the country filling an appointment; but I sent him word to be sure to preach; that I am bishop of that (the Baptist) church and so appointed. He is a first rate brother and enjoyed our meeting as all the Methodist brethren did. We all enjoyed them and had a good meeting together.

While we had no Baptist ministers, we had some excellent Sunday school workers, whose addresses were very instructive and encouraging. The next Convention is to be held with the church at Statesville.

I am glad that Bro. Jones' proposition finds so many warm responses and that you have a roll for those who will volunteer to do missionary work in their own vicinities. Many of our churches have been established in this way. When I was pastor at Abbott's Creek, I preached at Wallburg, the result being a gracious revival and the establishment of an active, efficient church. Bro. Sheets also preached at the same point occasionally. He is now their beloved pastor.

Two of our Sunday schools, one at White's School-house, the other at Queen's Spring, are points at which I preached last fall. Bro. J. T. Jenkins and others preached at White's also. Both schools reported a number of professions.

I heartily endorse the move and intend, D. V., to preach at destitute points in Davie several weeks the ensuing summer and fall.

Two of my churches, Jerusalem and Farmington, have each a talented and pious young member at Wake Forest pursuing their studies to better prepare to preach the gospel. I hope to aid them and to utilize their talents for the advancement of the Master's kingdom while they are at home during vacation.

Bro. Ezra Tatum of Jerusalem, who has for many years been a devoted worker in church and Sunday-school, was prevented by feeble health from being in the meeting.

You have given us so many excellent things this year that a most valuable book could be compiled from your columns. There are two that ought to be put together in tract form and scattered broadcast over the whole land. I allude to Bro. C. A. Jenkens' article on the Lord's Supper and Rev. Mr. Robertson's sermon on baptism. The two make companion pieces, and are to the point and most convincing. Such a tract would sell, and open many eyes. Can't it be done? Bro. Jenkens' article is complete, and that Scotch Presbyterian tells the truth in such vigorous style that, coming from him, many, who will not listen to a Baptist, would hear him.

Dr. W. F. Martin, late of Cana, and his excellent wife have just become citizens of our town and will be a great help to our struggling little church. I hope in the near future to give your readers good news from the "Davie Field."

DIED.

WILSON—In Mooresville, N. C., April 10th, 1895, Mrs. Ella Wilson, in the forty-second year of her age.

Mrs. Wilson illustrated the truth of the Scripture, "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." Through many years of her life she suffered from ill health, and in other ways God in his providence frequently called her to pass through deep waters. Her unfailing patience and resignation to the divine will, her unwearying performance of domestic duties, and faithful devotion to her family in spite of sorrow and weakness, illustrated the soothing, strengthening influences of the Christian's hope and love.

She left a small family, but a large circle of kindred and friends to mourn her loss. But they may console themselves with the belief that her sufferings are over, that she sleeps in Jesus, and all is well with her.

LAUGENOUR—Samuel H. Laughenour, an old and respected resident of Colusa, died at College City Saturday evening. He was old and infirm, but his death was unexpected. Several years ago he was attacked by paralysis, and since that time he has been in feeble health, but his condition was apparently no worse Saturday afternoon than it had been for a long time. Indeed, if there was any change noticeable, he was in a more cheerful and hopeful mood than usual.

Mrs. E. C. Laugenour was in College City on Saturday, and when she left to come home he appeared to be in his usual health. Four or five hours after her arrival in Woodland, the news of his death came, and it was a painful surprise.

Half an hour before his death Mr. Laugenour asked for a newspaper. He was sitting in a chair and was left alone for a short time. A few minutes afterward his daughter Lilie went into the room and found him lying on his face and unconscious. He had evidently fallen over in an attempt to arise from the chair. At the time it was believed that he had only fainted, but a neighbor was called in and it was discovered that his heart had ceased to throb, although he had been dead only a few minutes.

Samuel H. Laugenour was a native of Salem, N. C., and at the time of his death was aged sixty-nine years, eleven months and eighteen days. He emigrated to California in 1866, and settled in Yolo county the same year. After a residence here of three years he removed to Colusa county, where he engaged extensively in farming, and in which place he has continuously resided. Over half of his life has been devoted to Christianity, and for the past thirty-six years he has been a member of the Baptist church.

The deceased was a brother of T. F. Laugenour and the late J. D. Laugenour of this city, and Mrs. Nancy Turner of North Carolina. He leaves a wife and a family of eight children, among whom is Mrs. S. A. Houston of this city.

The funeral was held in the Christian church at College City, Rev. J. T. Prior of the Arbuckle Baptist church officiating, assisted by Prof. Baker of the Pierce Christian College.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, God in his unsearchable wisdom and infallible guidance has seen that it is best to remove from our midst and fellowship our beloved brother C. W. Reams; therefore be it Resolved 1. That we humbly submit to the will of a loving Heavenly Father.

2. That Antioch Baptist church has lost a consistent, faithful and useful member.

3. That we as a church and as individuals strive to live nearer God for having known the life and death of this devoted Christian brother.

4. That we spread a copy of these resolutions upon our book; that we send a copy to the family of the deceased, and that we send a copy for publication to the Person County Courier and BIBLICAL RECORDER.

She reckons well who does her housecleaning and washing (or has her servants do this work) with PYLE'S PEARLINE.

Why? Because Pearline makes the largest saving all around; saves half the time; half the labor—more than half the wear. Do you know you don't have to rub the clothes when washed with Pearline? This saves the woman and makes the clothes last longer (besides, they look better). What can be harder on woman's health than bobbing up and down over a washboard? What can be harder on the clothes—anything harder don't exist.

Millions of women know these facts well; it takes many millions of packages of PEARLINE to supply their demands for it. You have only to prove these facts and you'll demand it. The best way is—try it. Costs little and every grocer has it.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not. 171 JAMES PYLE, New York.

The Rain Song of the Robin.

Oh, the rain-song of the robin! How it thrills my heart to hear
The rain-song of the robin in the summer of the year!
How I long for wings to join him where his carol poureth free,
And for words to beg the secret of his magic minstrelsy.

Does he sing because he revels in the fury of the storm?
In the thunder and the lightning does he find a hidden charm?
Or with prophet eye, enraptured, does he see the darkness past,
And the beauty which shall blossom when the clouds disperse at last?

When Thy rain on me descendeth, and Thy clouds about me roll,
Grant, O God, the power of singing to my tempest-shaken soul!
May I see Thy mercy shining far behind the outer gloom!
May I hear Thine angels chanting! May I see Thy lilies bloom!

—Kate Upson Clark.

"I took my sorrow where the swelling fields
Lay circled by the low, caressing sky.
The soft enchantment that the morning yields
Held all the murmurous air, and only I
Marred the rejoicing day, and drew apart.
When joy came flooding till my pulse leaped high,
I told my gladness to the wood's deep heart,
And all the forest answered with a sigh.
She heeds—sweet nature—nay, she is not dumb!
When from my prisoned soul the bars shall fall,
There waits an answer to my every cry.
Though yet her speech I may not know, in some Glad times my soul, bond-sundered, shall recall
In thousandfold the sure and blest reply."

—Hawthorne.

God's Gift.

A physician, whose life had been made beautiful with good deeds and a high faith, said once:

"If I have been happy or useful in the world, it is due largely to the effect on my mind of a chance question from a stranger.

"I was a poor boy and a cripple. One day, standing on a ball field, I was watching the other boys with bitterness and envy. They were strong, healthy, well clothed and well fed. Some of the mothers of the players sat in carriages, waiting to see the game, intending to drive their sons home as soon as it was over. I looked at them with an angry scowl, sick at heart. A young man standing besides me, and seeing, no doubt, the discontent in my face, touched my arm.

"'Say, bub! You wish you were in the place of those boys, eh?' he said.

"'Yes, I do!' I broke out. 'Why should they have everything, and I nothing?'

"He nodded gravely. 'I reckon God gave them money and education and health to help them to be of some account in the world. Did it never strike you that He gave you your lame legs for the same reason—to make a man of you?'

"I did not answer, and he turned away. I never saw him again. But I couldn't get his words out of my mind. My crippled leg—God's gift! To teach me patience and strength!

"I did not believe it. But I was a thoughtful boy, taught to reverence God, and the more I thought of it the more it seemed to me the stranger had told the truth. I did believe that God pitied me—and at last came to feel that it would please Him if I rose above my deformity, and by it be made more manly and true. It worked on my temper, my thoughts, and at last upon my actions. Gradually it influenced my whole life. Whatever came to me, I looked upon as God's gift for some especial purpose. If it were a difficulty, He gave it for me to struggle with, to strengthen my mind and faith; if it were a helpless invalid cast on me for support, or even a beggar, I thought—God has given me another chance to do his work.

"The idea has sweetened and helped all of my life. I wish I could find the man who gave me this password which has lifted my life to a higher plane, and has led me constantly to the Source of all good."

Weather Hints.

Watch the sky for what are called "mares' tails." These appearing after clear weather show the track of the wind in the sky. A rosy sunset predicts fair weather. A red sky in the morning foretells bad weather. A gray sky in the morning means fine weather. If the first streaks of light dawn are seen above a bank of clouds, look out for wind; if they are close to or on the horizon, the weather will be fair. In general, soft, delicate colors in the sky, with indefinite forms of clouds, mean fair weather; gaudy, unusual colors, and hard-edged clouds mean rain, and probably wind.

A dark, gloomy, blue sky is windy; but a bright, light blue sky indicates fine weather. Generally, the softer clouds look the less wind (but perhaps more rain) may be expected; and the harder, more "greasy," rolled, tufted, or ragged, the stronger the coming wind will prove.

A bright yellow sky at sunset presages wind; a pale yellow, wet; orange or copper-colored, wind and rain.

These are some of the most important points about weather which have been set down in the books by old and experienced sailormen.—Harper's Young People.

Now, we are builders, or we ought to be. Every one has his own share of work to do in the building of the temple of God; and a man's life has been utterly thrown away if, when it is ended, it is found that he has not added so much as a stone to the edifice. Some persons are intent on building up a business, building up a fortune, building up a reputation, but if that is all you have before you, it will be a sad thing for you in the day of reckoning.—Thaïs Davidson, D. D.

Cutting Weeds.

I was out in the orchard to-day running what we call a "weed cutter." It is a knife, about four feet long, fastened to a frame like that of a cultivator. The machine is so constructed that the knife runs about two inches underground in the mellow soil, and, if it is as sharp as it ought to be, it cuts the weeds so smoothly that they look for a time after it has gone through them just as they did before. As an Irishman might say, "They are cut but they don't know it." A friend came along while I was at work and said: "See here, Senex, there is something wrong about your cutter. That patch of may-weed that you have just passed over stands as green as ever."

"Come and look at it tomorrow," I replied. "When the sun shines on them after the connection between the root and the top has been severed, they will soon die."

Satan has knives as sharp as my weed cutter. When he tempts a young man to abandon the principal and practices of his Christian home, he does not expect him to become an open debauchee or defaulter at once. An appearance of respectability is kept up for months or even years. But the result, unless God interposes, is as sure as the withering of my weeds. The human heart must be in vital union with truth. It must be rooted in love. If separated from the source of all spiritual life, it cannot long resist the power of the world and the wicked one. It may try to flourish on such superficial principals as "Honesty is the best policy," but the time will come when they will fail.

Ever and anon we are startled by seeing or hearing of the fall of some one who had been respected and honored for many years. But that sudden withering of reputation can always be traced back to the adoption of some error or the indulgence in some vicious habit. The vitality of virtue being destroyed, the catastrophe must come sooner or later.

It is sad indeed that so many of the seemingly moral men of the world have no root. Their excellence is superficial. They flourish for a time, as my severed weeds were green for a night. But when a fresh temptation comes, its heat withers their rootless characters, and they go down.—Journal and Messenger.

A little attention is required to details in the care of sheep, if the most is to be obtained from them. Everything should be done with the idea of getting the most money from the food consumed. Not one farmer in ten does this. Rolling, hilly farms are especially adapted to sheep grazing, for on the high hilltops grass is needed to keep the water from washing the soil and fertilizers away. If heavy crops of grass could be kept there the hilly farms would be made far more profitable. The sheep are just the animals to remedy this fault.

According to the Chicago Record, the paper currency of the United States, including all kinds of notes and certificates, amounts to $1,167,405,183 in value, and is represented by 147,646,880 pieces of paper, as follows: $1 bills, 39,988,833; $1,000 bills, 2,467; $5 bills, 49,833,833; $10,000 bills, 787; $10 bills, 29,505,663; $20 bills, 11,837,471; $50 bills, 815,842; $100 bills, 824,374; $500 bills, 327,960.

A dying Scotch millionaire said to a minister, "Dominie, do you think it would do me any good in the other world if I were to give $10,000 to the kirk?" "I will na positively say that," replied the cautious divine, "but I think it is an experiment worth trying."

A Second Thought.

Look over your morning paper and you receive the impression that the world is filled with crime and disaster. You lay it aside with a feeling almost of despair. But you were abroad all day yesterday, threading miles of streets and mingling with thousands of people, and you saw no crime committed. You did see, however, enough of duty done, of kindly helpfulness, of cheerful self-sacrifice in time, convenience and service, to have filled a dozen newspapers with the recital of them. Here are columns of the papers filled for weeks with the doings of one woman who is said to have poisoned her husband. Well, you know of some wife whose daily self-sacrifice for a helpless husband would furnish materials of noble heroism for a volume; but such devotion is so common as to pass without comment. Wifely devotion is no "news," while wifely infidelity is news, and there is a deep, hopeful, reassuring meaning in it. It would be a bad world if it had to be raked all over every day to find good deeds sufficient to fill a newspaper.—Christian Standard.

In order to be successful a farmer should make his plans a long time in advance of the time when they must be put into operation. The best way is to mature a plan of operations that will require some years for fully carrying out. This brings better results than the changeable way that some have, of trying one way this year and another the next.

THE article concerning the State Normal and Industrial School and the private and corporate schools of North Carolina for young women, coming from the president of a private institution, its effect being to destroy nine-tenths of the force of a recent editorial on the subject, written disinterestedly and entirely voluntarily in behalf of the private and corporate schools, is enough to discourage one. A reply from President McIver would not surprise us, but from one of the school men whose interest we thought to serve;—ahem, the reader will relieve us by recalling what we said about the sanguine reports rotten banks give out until the crash comes, being not unmindful the while that an increase of cotton bales may mean anything but an increase of income.

But if the private schools of North Carolina are prospering as no other business—we dislike the term,—it is very well, and we are glad enough to have it so. If it seemed that adverse winds had blown blue straws in our face, we just happened to be in a sinister current, and the winds were blowing most prosperously all the while. If the private schools are prosperous and the State Normal and Industrial School is doing good work, it is well; and such facts plow through mountains of theories founded on noblest principles. There is nothing in it to us either way, and if both State and Voluntary schools are doing good work, both flourishing, there is nothing to gain by changing.

To tell the hard truth, we do not believe all this, because it is contrary to principle and common sense. If, with $12,500 of income from the State, the State Normal and Industrial School cannot educate girls at less expense to their fathers than unendowed private or corporate schools can, money will not buy cotton. If it cannot give them better opportunities, with modern buildings, equipments, and better-paid and more numerous instructors, we will go back to school and renovate our reasoning faculty.

The figures in our editorial were taken from college catalogs and public reports, and it was not printed until the highest official educational authority in North Carolina had cleared us of doubts as to certain statements.

Most of the North Carolina institutions for women would have it understood that they do not bias their students for or against any sect; they are merely Christian, and the students may attend any church they prefer. So is it at the State Normal and Industrial. It is wrong for a State to foster a religion; but we would rather have no school at all than have one that does not foster the Christian religion. So, if the people of North Carolina desire to support a Normal and Industrial School, let them insist that it be strictly a Christian institution. With us it is a question of school or no school, not of religion or agnosticism.

We could say a great deal about the sphere of the State Normal and Industrial School: it is an open question. We do know that so long as it does the most good to the greatest number without injuring other school enterprises—principle or no principle—the public will say go on. We think it is doing harm by crippling the voluntary institutions; we have good evidence, but for obvious reasons we cannot produce it.

There is enough complaint that the competion between colleges for young men has lowered standards, to make argument superfluous. That meagrely patronized schools are the most efficient, we can allow; but at the same time we do not know of any school in the State for girls that will not take as many students as it can get. These are the facts that plow through theories.

As in the beginning, and ever, we are opposed to the government undertaking to perform any function that can be as well performed by an individual or an institution. Accordingly, if we had our way we would set the Normal and Industrial School to preparing teachers, which cannot be well done by private enterprise in North Carolina, or we would not have any at all.

Again, it has been said (and it is a feeble error) that we do not know that free students at the Normal and Industrial School are required to teach. What if they are? Is there any one who will say that the small tuition fee paid by those who are not free students is enough to relieve them of obligation to the State?

Finally, gentlemen of the Board of Directors, we petition you to alter the policy of the Normal and Industrial School so that every young woman who gets advantage of the liberal provision the State has made, will be required to make some return by teaching or by other work within the confines of North Carolina for the advantages which the people have helped her reach; and we know you and every one else will recognize that our position is reasonable, just and for the public good.

THE ills of the South are so many that a professor has written a book about them; and even then he did not show the way out of them all.

The late mortgage law excitement brought into unusual prominence one of the most harassing ills that ever afflicted a people—the credit system; and probably more than one man wished under his breath that it were practicable to prohibit operations of this system by law.

The farmer who has to mortgage his crop before he plants it, in order to get fertilizer and supplies, is a slave as sure as Scripture; and his tribute to his master is as burdensome as ever slave paid.

Credit costs; and costs a great deal more than it is worth, because creditors are usually in position to make terms to suit themselves. Creditors have to lay out to make all they can, because they run so many risks of losing. Thus debts are harder on honest borrowers.

There are creditors who make a profit on the supplies which they advance the farmer, charge the farmer interest on the price of the supplies they have advanced, and then take the farmer's products for payment at such a price that they can make another profit. These are the kind of rich men that stand no better chance of getting into heaven than the camel does getting through needle-eye.

If a man begins right, he has only to keep right, and have no fear for the end. That is simple enough. Evidently, if the debt-burdened people began right, they have since gone wrong. This is true, and the mistakes have been made in the last fifteen years.

Now, it stands to reason that there is a way out of the burdens of debt, slow and hard, but sure to the man of patience and courage. "Free silver," some one shouts; but not so. Free coinage of silver would probably help, but the man who had not previously learned to economize and live to such an extent on home supplies that he will have to make no more debts, would not know the difference, if all the silver on earth should be coined into 16 to 1 dollars to-morrow. Not that many farmers do not economize, for they do; but there are many who do not, as meat and forage laden wagons passing our door testify.

If we can ever get the mortgages paid off and reach planting time with enough to live on and run the farm through summer, we will move to get a law appointing a guardian for any one who gives a mortgage or runs on time. In the meantime, much good will be done, if every one will do all he can to raise home supplies, pay debts and get back to a cash basis.

THERE was never such a war like that which Japan and China have lately come to terms on. It began with a little matter, an insurrection in Korea, which was quelled long before the war had made serious headway. But a great and ancient dispute was re-opened, Whether China or Japan should control Korea? Both countries were confident of superior strength, and the dispute became a war, the lesser nation actually winning every considerable engagement. Korea goes free and is now independent. China not only loses all dominion over this country, but has been required to pay a sum that, with the expense of the war, would have bought Japan's interest a year ago and left a good margin to buy Japan with, if it were for sale.

We do not know if ever a war treaty was signed before in which the warring nations agreed to stand by each other in the future. This means that England and Russia will lose a great deal of their power in the East.

The opening of the ports is a good omen. China will be benefitted by the war, as well as Japan. A missionary recorded the opinion when the war began that it was a part of God's plan to reclaim China. To think of God using wars is violent; but the opening of China, the alliance for mutual protection, and the good will with which the parties to the war came to terms inclines one to believe that the missionary is right.

Japan is the hero nation of the decade. It has won a title to rank among the foremost military powers. There are people who say it is stronger on water than our country; and we may have to test the matter yet.

The Female Colleges of North Carolina as Affected by the Normal and Industrial School.

BY PRESIDENT F. P. HOBGOOD.

In a recent issue of the RECORDER the future of the female colleges was painted in colors all too dark. That their patronage is not so large as it would be without the competition of the Normal School will be granted; but that they are prospering beyond any other business in North Carolina in these times of financial depression can be easily shown. A comparison of their number of boarding students for the two sessions of 1893 and '94 and 1894 and '95 is interesting and furnishes a proof of their present prosperity. To institute this comparison, I addressed letters to the following schools: Salem Female Academy, Asheville Female College, Greensboro Female College, Peace Institute, the Kinsey College at La Grange, Louisburg Female College, St. Mary's, Littleton Female College, and Chowan Baptist Female Institute. Replies from the six of these first named (and Oxford Female Seminary may be added to the number) show that the percentage of increase is from ten to forty, the average being more than fifteen. What other business in North Carolina can make a more satisfactory exhibit?

Nor do I believe that they are lowering their standards, as was intimated to be the case in the RECORDER article already referred to. On the contrary, I am satisfied that they are raising them year after year. Why should they lower them? The fiercer the competition, the more necessary it becomes to raise standards and to offer increased facilities.

The same article says: "A father has to pay only ninety dollars for the board, laundry and fuel of his daughter in the Normal and Industrial one session; in any other school in North Carolina he would have to pay $180 or $200."

I am sure the editor will gladly permit me to make a correction of a statement or two contained in this paragraph.

From a circular sent me by President McIver of the Normal School, I find that a student who pledges herself to teach a certain time has no tuition fees to pay, and her expenses for eight months are eighty eight dollars. But if she is unwilling to take on herself this obligation to teach, her expenses for board in the dormitory, tuition, &c., for eight months is $126, or $16 per month. And if being unable to obtain board in the dormitory, she has to board in a private family, her expenses will be $145 for eight months, or $18 12 per month.

This for the Normal. Now you say that "in any other school for women in North Carolina, he (a parent) would have to pay $180 or $200." In this you make a mistake; for the charges at the Chowan Female Institute and at Oxford Female Seminary are considerably less than $180 or $200. I have not the exact figures at Chowan, but at Oxford Female Seminary they are $147.50 for ten months or $14 75 per month. These are the charges for board, fuel, lights, laundry and tuition in full literary course. The Normal adds the rent of books and physician's attendance. This last item for a large majority of students here is nothing, and the cost of books when purchased does not average more than five dollars a pupil. In comparing the cost at the Normal School and at the female colleges, it is all important to bear in mind that the session of the former is only eight months, while that of the latter is ten months. So that, omitting the rent of books and physician's fees, it costs less to send to Oxford than to Greensboro—$14.75 per month at the one, $16 per month at the other.

As instrumental music and art are not taught in the Normal, I have not included the charges for these at Oxford.

Nor do I believe that the Normal will ever be able to do successfully the work now done by the female colleges. I am aware, however, that the managers are trying to make it do a kind of work not adapted to its conditions and which it was expected by but few of these who assisted in its establishment that it would attempt to do. That we need a Normal and Industrial School—one to give teachers special preparation for their work and to teach useful industries—is readily granted; but that a Normal and Industrial School can be what its name implies, and at the same time an ordinary boarding school for girls, is opposed to all common sense and all experience. And the managers sooner or later will be compelled by public opinion to confine it within its legitimate sphere.

President Lincoln once said, "You may fool all of the people some of the time, and some of the people all the time; but you cannot fool all of the people all the time." This school is now something of a fad, if you will excuse the word; but parents will soon find out in this State, as they have found in other States, that for their young daughters of nineteen and under the female colleges are offering better facilities in every respect than the Normal Schools.

In the first place, girls of this age are better taught in the female colleges. In this it is not implied that the teachers in these are more efficient than that at Greensboro. My contention is that, other things being equal, a small class can be more successfully taught than a large one, because the teacher is able to do more of individual work. And I suppose it will be granted that the classes at the Normal are much larger than those of the female colleges. Of course, in the case of advanced students with whom the lecture system is used, the size of the class does not affect the character of the teaching.

In the second place, these young girls of nineteen years and under need more restraints thrown around them during their school-life than the conditions of the Normal School will permit. What are these conditions? There are present in every Normal School a large number of matured women from twenty to twenty-five years of age who are taking special courses bearing on the methods of teaching. These women do not feel that their liberties should be abridged by having thrown around them restraints deemed absolutely essential in the female colleges. The young girls in the same school claim equal freedom from restraints, and it is impossible without serious friction to place restrictions upon one class of students and to remove them from another class in the same institution. This is not mere theory.

In the Normal of a neighboring State, serious trouble has arisen just along these lines, and it has been forced into its proper sphere because of the withdrawal of the class of patronage that did not properly belong to it.

And, too, parents will greatly prefer that their young daughters in the formative period of their character shall be in denominational colleges where the religious influence is confessedly stronger than it can possibly be in a State school under the most favorable circumstances. For if their religious faith and zeal and denominational preference be weakened, what may we expect for the future not only of our religion but also of our civilization?

And, somehow, mothers feel better satisfied to have their young daughters in a smaller school, where they think that a more watchful and tender care will be taken of them than in a large State school.

If, then, in the denominational colleges young girls are better taught, have more of necessary and wholesome restrictions thrown around them, are under stronger religious influence, have a more watchful care taken of them at every point, have no greater expense, and besides have facilities for the study of instrumental music and art not offered at all in the Normal, will they not continue to be liberally patronized? I believe they will be, and never felt more hopeful than I feel now of the future of the Seminary over which I preside.

From Sister Knight.

My Dear Bro. Bailey:—Your editorial (BIBLICAL RECORDER, Nov. 21, 1894,) in which you endeavored to answer Bro. John E. White's "other question" has been carefully read. Please allow me to speak for myself just this once.

My letter to the churches of the Chowan Association (Jan. 12, 1894) sent you for publication, and which you kindly wrote me you had withheld "on the advice of many brethren" contained the following sentences: "I send the Board a copy of this letter, but have sent no formal resignation; from my standpoint I have nothing to resign.....The churches in the Chowan Association are supporting me, and I leave the matter with you, hoping you will let me as well as the Board know your decision at your earliest convenience. I will work on as at present to the end of the year (1894), if you so desire, that there may be ample time for calm, deliberate action on the part of the churches."

As I had said I would, I at once sent off a copy of that letter to Dr. Willingham, but at that time wrote him nothing more than a few words of Christian greeting and stated that I enclosed a copy of my letter to the churches. In due time Dr. Willingham wrote to me, kindly desiring to hear from me again. However, before his letter had been received, the North China Mission had cut off my salary, without consulting me and without informing me until nearly a month after the action was taken. I was still in Pingtu, and no one had accused me, or could accuse me, of unfaithfulness to duty.

Never in the history of Southern Baptist missions has there been a similar action on the part of a Mission. Not even in case of heresy on the part of a missionary, did the Mission presume to interfere with the payment of his salary until instructed by the Board. The missionary's salary has always been considered without the jurisdiction of a mission.

I wrote to Dr. Willingham asking if the Board approved the action of their North China Mission. To this question, for a long time I had no reply; finally, under date of Nov. 19th, 1894, the Treasurer of the North China Mission informed me that he had been authorized by the Board to pay me an additional month's salary, which was for the month of April. I had already received salary for the first quarter of 1894. The amount still due me is equal to the sum of the contributions of the churches of the Chowan Association for my support from May 1st to August 13th, 1894, (the date of my receipt of the Association's resolutions). After receiving those resolutions, I wrote to Dr. Willingham as follows: "From Aug. 13th, 1894, I claim no funds which are forwarded by the F. M. Board, but I do claim, at least, as much of my salary as the contributions of the churches of the Chowan Association to Foreign Missions will cover from April 1st to Aug. 13th, 1894." Since then, as I have stated above, the Board has instructed the North China Mission to pay my salary for the month of April, and I suppose I shall soon hear that one month's salary ($50) has been placed to my credit with the H. & S. Bank, Shanghai, by the Treasurer of the North China Mission.

If the Chowan Association has allowed the Board to borrow money to pay any part of that amount which was promised, I am very, VERY sorry.

A few months after I reached China there appeared in your paper a short article headed "Our Own Missionary," which I have carefully preserved and which has helped me wonderfully, because I believed what was therein published. I remembered when I sat with bowed head and uplifted heart in the congregation assembled at Sawyer's Creek church while the brethren of the Association were passing the resolution to support me in China. After I reached here, I decided that I could and would live on the amount they had promised to raise for my support.

After all, is it our Board and not our churches which should be responsible for the management of missions? Churches which have no relation with the work nor with the missionary will very naturally decline to "foot the bill."

You say: "The missionaries of the Board in China wrote to the Board saying they could not continue to pay her (me) since she had ceased to co-operate with them."

The Board's missionaries in North China had "ceased to co-operate" with me. My mission policy was the same as I had believed in and practiced all the time, but they had changed, yes, greatly changed their policy and practice. At about the same time when I sent to Dr. Willingham a copy of my letter to the churches, I also sent a copy of the same to the Treasurer of the North China Mission. And later on, I also sent him a copy of an appeal by us who intended to continue to work on what we conceived to be Gospel Mission lines. We were not then, nor are we now, an organization.

However, lest it might be understood that I had left my post before the churches had let me hear from them, a note of explanation was attached to all the appeals which I sent out for publication. This note ran as follows: "Miss Knight will continue to work in Pingtu as heretofore, until ample time for response shall have been given the churches whose direct support and co-operation she has desired."

You know about this note of explanation, Bro. Bailey, for I sent you an appeal with the note attached for publication in your paper, but you did not publish the same. What I have written, I desire you to publish. I hope, also, to write you a news letter soon. I wrote my father to continue my subscription to the RECORDER. I do not want to do without it. Send to my address: Gospel Mission Box, Shanghai, China. We are well and happy.

Mission Station: Tai-an-fu,
January 24, 1895.

Hints to Ministers.

Make no apologies. If you have the Lord's message, deliver it; if not, hold your peace. Have short prefaces and introductions. Say your best things first, and stop before you get prosy. Do not spoil the appetite for dinner with too much thin soup. Leave self out of the pulpit and take Jesus in. Defend the gospel, and let the Lord defend you. Do not get excited too soon. Do not bawl and scream. Too much water stops mill-wheels, and too much noise drowns sense. Empty vessels ring the loudest. Powder is not shot. Thunder is harmless; lightning kills. Do not scold the people. Do not abuse those who come to church because the lazy ones stay away. Have a good time with those who do attend, and the others will hear of it and turn to see what is going on.—Dr. King.

Always look up; think of nothing but objects of the highest ambition which can be compassed by energy, virtue and strict morality. In all things do nothing on which you could not invoke the Divine blessing.—Alexander H. Stephens.

We must taste the gall if we want to taste the glory. If justified by faith, we must suffer tribulation. When God saves a soul, he tries it. Some believers are much surprised when they are called to suffer. They thought they would do some great thing for God, but all that he permits them to do is to suffer for his sake.—McCheyne.

The crossing of our wills must be received in an humble and docile spirit. There should be no gloomy looks, no peevish complaining. It is our Father who sends it. That name is enough for us. Remember that those who are walking the same way with us must be cheered, not discouraged. No matter how sick the heart, nor how fierce the warfare within, keep a cheerful face, have a comforting word for those around you. The very effort to do so will bring a blessing with it. —Selected.

Christ needs little things. He needed a child once, to set him in the midst and teach his disciples a lesson in humility. He needed a stater once—a coin worth about eighty cents—to pay his temple tax. He needed the colt of an ass. Let no one then excuse himself from the service of Christ, unless he is willing to admit that he is inferior to a child, or that he is worth less than eighty cents, or that he is cheaper in value than the colt of an ass.—Selected.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 1, 1895.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

Is it want of organization or regeneration in the membership at the root of your church's backwardness?

THE brethren are going hopefully forward with the Female University. Work is to begin right away. We do earnestly hope that the responses to Bro. Stringfield's efforts will be such as to make certainty of opening next fall.

ANOTHER issue of the RECORDER and the Southern Baptist Convention will be before us. It is very much to be desired that as many of our people as possible attend. Important questions demand the consideration of our churches. We would that every pastor in the State could be there.

The inducements to go to Washington are too many to enumerate. Such another opportunity will not soon be presented. Let us have a large delegation.

THERE will be no great regret in North Carolina that the S. B. Y. P. U. movement has gone all to pieces.

Now let us all get together and pray and work to arouse our young church members to such a realization of their duties that there will be no ground for expecting them to do more.

A brother will submit a plan in the next RECORDER which we think solves every difficulty of the movement, and at the same time allows such latitude and freedom as is necessary. It is an elaboration of the North Carolina plan.

THE Holy Spirit goes from man to man. Let him only be introduced in a community, and his influence will likely be as wide as the community itself. Many a time the Spirit's power within a single person—and that a lowly one—has been the beginning of a great outpouring.

The revival season is near at hand,—that is, the time of year in which special efforts are made to get the Spirit more strongly and thoroughly working in our churches. If a few members in every church will begin now earnestly seeking the Spirit's presence, there will not be a fruitless revival or a discouraged church in the State when the year's work is closed.

Our duty here is plain. When we have to confess to ourselves that we are so cold that we do not experience the comfortings of the Spirit, it is high time to inaugurate a period of self-examination and prayer.

CONCERNING Sister Knight's letter, but little needs be said. For twenty years or more the RECORDER has found it good business policy never to question for a moment a woman's claim to anything; if we get a letter from a sister saying payment of subscription has been sent, we mark her up, as a rule, without even looking up the books to see if we received the money. So, if we were in the Board's place, Sister Knight should receive payment of whatever she says is due her.

But this does not alter the case. Sister Knight does not deny any statement in our editorial, except that she had ceased to co-operate with the Board missionaries. Now if she has been and is now pursuing the same mission policy she "had believed in and practiced all the time," she is by precedence the first Gospel missionary after Dr. Crawford. Certainly the Chowan Association, the Board, and the RECORDER, have been thinking that Sister Knight did not become a Gospel missionary until last year. We never had evidence of it until her name appeared on the circular with those of other members of the Gospel Mission, sent out the first part of 1894.

In her communication she says she had nothing to resign, then adds that she would work on as at present, which implies that she did contemplate a change of relations. Again, she expected to get a salary of $50 a month, and then says that the amount due her is as much of her salary as the Chowan's contributions for a certain time will cover. Suppose the Chowan contributed $95 a month; suppose it contributed $100 a month. Was Sister Knight's salary ever so measured? The Board paid Sister Knight a certain amount, whether the Chowan came up to it or not; and it has paid her since she went to China a good deal more than the Chowan has contributed for foreign missions. If anything is due her, it is the salary the Board agreed to pay her per month; and, if the Board consistently can, we advise that it pay this as soon as possible, because she thinks it ought to be paid her, and because she is a woman—a good, sincere, God-serving, Christian woman.

N. T. B. C.

Since this is an age of societies, our readers will pardon us for proposing the formation of an order which, we think, carefully managed, will prove of lasting benefit to Christendom. And if there is anything on the face of the earth that needs some benefit just now, it is this self-same Christendom. Many inventions, covering spheres from the nursery to the grave, adapted to boys, girls, men, women, idiots, cranks, and sages, have been placed on the ecclesiastical market at a ready sale. There is, moreover, an active demand for still others; so we propose the N. T. B. C. Now, we anticipate some objection to our society; for, from its very nature, it supplants or else controls all other religious organizations. If it should be generally adopted by Christian people, the great question of Christian union would be fully and happily settled. Hear us, brethren of all denominations, creeds, societies, and fraternities, as we present in the N. T. B. C. the sure and rational basis of union. The aforesaid society renders unnecessary all such organizations as the B. Y. P. U., Y. P. S. C. E., M. E. Church, North and South, P. E. Church, R. C. Church, Pres. Ch., Old and New Schools, and the Y. M. C. A. It will embrace all that is good in these institutions, and omit all that is bad. It will be so peculiarly constructed as to meet the demands of humanity in all of its phases, and to furnish spiritual work to all who wish to serve God from principle. It will utilize its young people, giving them suitable opportunities for self-improvement and the exercise of their gifts. It will teach them piety rather than pertness, and impress upon their minds a further lesson, that the Church was not made wholly for youngsters, and that fathers and mothers in Israel are entitled to some respect and some part in Christian work. The officers shall be, first, a president, set apart by the society for the purpose of instructing in holy things all of its members, including youths and women. As a man called of God to his special work, he shall have an unsoiled character, and be, withal, apt to teach; otherwise he will be apt to lose his place. And secondly, pious men, who shall be filled with wisdom and the Holy Ghost, and who shall address themselves to certain temporal interests of the society. The local body shall be entirely independent, and shall be possessed of full powers to transact all business relating to its work either at home or abroad. Its members shall be received on a credible profession of faith in the Lord Jesus, and excluded on a credible evidence of impiety. The initiatory rite shall be a dipping of the entire person in water, followed by a second rite known as the commemoration. The fellowship of the N. T. B. C. will be sweet, pure, strong; the worship will be intensely spiritual, the supreme object being the glory of God and the good of man. The society will not compete with dime museums, minstrel shows, or circuses; but discarding the world's gods in the shape of an ice cream freezer and a cooking stove, will seek to bring their stomach, together with all the rest of their members, into obedience to the law of Christ.

The society shall so wisely and emphatically inculcate temperance, patriotism, good citizenship, honesty charity, and holiness, that no outside organization will be needed to accomplish these purposes under the Christian name. So completely will the N. T. B. C. meet all possible religious needs of the community, that any divergent institution must be a hindrance rather than a help to humanity. The society will provide for the poor, give Sabbath instruction to the children, afford opportunity in each week for spiritual service, and, when necessary, make special arrangements for the development of its young members.

This is the only Christian society the world needs, and the only one that can lift men out of darkness into the clearest and fullest light; for in a special way, Christ is its head, the Holy Spirit its guide, and the Bible its law-book. Then let us all rally to the support of the N. T. B. C., which being interpreted is, NEW TESTAMENT BAPTIST CHURCH.

NEWSPAPERS are often requested to answer queries. Now let a newspaper ask the reader just two: Is it right to ask a newspaper a question that seems to be a general one, when the real motive is to get the paper to unintentionally "hit" some particular person? Would it not be better to let the person concerned state his side of the case before he is discredited? Now we do not ask these questions in order to "hit" any one, but merely to set the reader to thinking. We are always glad to give information, give our opinion on disputed points of doctrine or polity, for which we have a reference library, but it is really uncomfortable to be used unconsciously to destroy the peace of mind or the influence of a brother or sister.

BRO. BLANCHARD AT RALEIGH.

The financial representative of Wake Forest College, Rev. C. W. Blanchard, delivered an address on "Christian Education" from the pulpit of the Raleigh First Baptist church Sunday. Although we knew our brother well enough to anticipate a good speech, his impressive bearing, clear and deliberate delivery, forceful diction, earnestness and fluency, surprised us. We can add our testimony to that of many others that the selection of Bro. Blanchard for this work is most fortunate. And we hope that he will be heard in all our churches, not only for the present good he will do, but for that which will surely follow.

The body of the address was of the nature of an outline of the history of the College, prefaced with well-chosen remarks on the duty of Christians to develop themselves and to aid in the development of others. God has given us capability of growth with a real and evident purpose; and he has shown us how we may secure growth.

That more than human power has been behind our College all these years was impressively brought out in a recital of the overwhelming odds against which our fathers struggled, and by which they were twice utterly disheartened. The tribute to the sainted James S. Purefoy, whom God used to save the institution, was as appropriate as it was worthy. What would have been but for this man we almost fear to try to imagine.

The present conditions demand immediate attention. The College is doing a $300,000 business on $200,000 capital. This makes debt unavoidable. Curtailment is impossible; the demand is rather for enlargement. No doubt there will be boys to educate—for the fields are full of those who would go to college, if they could, and all of them ought;—but the present effort is not so much for enlargement as for actual need. Income has been reduced; but we cannot cripple the institution. An attractive proposition has been made—$5,000 in a lump, if the 160,000 Baptists in our Convention will pledge now to raise $30,000 within three years (the pledges should be made within the next several weeks.) We cannot let slip this great opportunity. And besides, if we show that we will do what we can, it is likely that still greater sums will come in from outside sources.

In the providence of God such an opportunity has been offered us. To throw it away would have the effect of stifling the interest and chilling the ardor of the College's best and ablest friends. We cannot do this; we cannot let the College go backward; nor should we let it stand still. The denomination needs educated men and women. We must move onward and upward. In proportion as we enlarge and develop in Christian education will our denomination be strengthened.

After all, the people of our denomination must be depended on for the support of Wake Forest. The institution is for them, and outsiders will measure its usefulness by their responses to its calls.

SPEAKING of our discussion of the Young People's Movement with Dr. Kerfoot, and our publishing letters endorsing our views, the Baptist Courier says: "We would like to know if any of the Kentucky brethren endorse Dr. Kerfoot's views. Will the Recorder please tell us, and will the Recorder devote as much space to letters on the other side of the question? Will the Recorder please answer?" Just why the Courier should be so concerned on this subject we do not know, but we cheerfully answer. We have published all the endorsements of Dr. Kerfoot's articles that have been sent to this office, and three of them were from Kentucky. We have published but a very small fraction of the endorsements of our articles that have come to us. Certainly we are ready to give "as much space to letters on the other side" as is occupied by letters on our side. We believe the overwhelming majority of the Baptists of the South, especially the laymen, agree with our position on this subject. We have a multitude of letters of the strongest endorsement from prominent pastors and laymen from all parts of the land. And now we ask a question we want the Courier to answer. Will the Courier "devote as much space" to the other side as it has devoted to the advocacy of this "young people's movement?" We pause for a reply.—Western Recorder.

(The Courier took water, making a qualified answer).

We would not publish this extract if the Courier had been the only paper that tried to make the impression that Dr. Kerfoot overcame Dr. Eaton in the debate (which verily he fell far short of), and also that the Recorder was not publishing the approvals of Dr. Kerfoot's stand. Nothing is so unfair as an unfair attempt to make a fair man seem unfair.

SEND two dollars on subscription, and if you haven't got it, we will send you "The Baptist Position" free. Pastors sending a club of five dollars for new subscribers only, will receive twenty copies of the useful tract free.

"THE BAPTIST POSITION."

We find that it is desirable to make an effort to distribute Bro. Love's sixty-one page tract, "The Baptist Position." It is meeting with favor wherever it is read. Conditions in North Carolina inspired Bro. Love to write it.

We will send the tract to any subscriber who sends us two dollars with request for the tract; and to any nineteen weeks trial subscriber who sends five cents extra.

Any pastor sending us five dollars at one time in new subscriptions (whether nineteen weeks, six months or yearly) will receive twenty copies of the tract for distribution.

The work is bound in durable paper and well printed; it will be a source of strength to many churches.

This offer is limited.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....The Chowan Association will meet at Gatesville, May 21st.

....On to Washington. The prospects for a good delegation are good.

——Three more were baptized at the Orphanage by pastor Newton recently.

....Dr. Henry W. Battle will aid Pastor Weaver of High Point in meetings soon.

....Rev. C. B. Paul changes his address from Wake Forest to Davis, Carteret county.

....Ex-Gov. Taylor of Tennessee and President Kilgo of Trinity are to lecture at Wake Forest soon.

....The Baptist church at Bishopville, S. C., was recently destroyed by fire. Loss, $3,000; insurance, $1,000.

... "The very best money we spend for missions is that we spend in going up to our Conventions."—Dr. Gambrell.

....Twelve persons were recently baptized at Brookneal, Va., where our good friend, Rev. C. A. Woodson, is pastor.

....Rev. Joseph K. Dixon, one of the most prominent pastors in Philadelphia, has resigned on account of poor health.

....Rev. Thomas Muse, an aged and venerated Baptist preacher of Georgia, died at his home, Coleman, Ga., April 20th.

....Rev. G. M. Tolson has resigned the Crisfield, Md., pastorate, and after May 12, says the Evangel, his address will be Charlotte, N. C.

....The Thirty-first International Convention of Young Men's Christian Associations of North America meets at Springfield, Mass., May 8th-12th.

....In contributions North Carolina ranks eleventh in the Southern States, with an average of 18 cents a member a year. In numbers she ranks third.

....We rejoice with Bro. J. L. Sproles of West Point in the good meeting they are having. May the Lord give them a great victory.—Mississippi Baptist Record.

....Rev. M. L. Rickman, who graduated from Wake Forest in 1889, and has been doing well in the West, has changed his location from Stevensville, Mont., to Hamilton, Mont.

....Missionary Ginsburg of Brazil sends us an elaborate report of our work in his field. Progress has been made on every hand. Forty-eight accepted Christ and were baptized.

....The Examiner is running advertisements of a famous circus and a well-known proprietor of a beer-brewing establishment. The Examiner is "the leading Baptist paper" in this respect at least.

....Rev. R. Van Deventer has closed a very successful meeting at Burlington, and has baptized several promising converts. We will publish an interesting letter from him next week.

....Rev. G. L. Finch, who used to preach at Biltmore, and is now pastor at Pulaski, Va., writes that he is doing well in his new field, and is expecting Rev. J. E. Hutson to aid him in meetings next month.

....Dr. J. S. Dill of Richmond, Va., will deliver the literary address before the Scotland Neck Male School June 6th. Brethren Prince and Wilson are to be congratulated on the success they have made of this school.

....Mr. Otho K. Holding and Miss Hannah R., daughter of Prof. John F. Lanneau, were married at Wake Forest April 25th, Rev. W. R. Gwaltney, assisted by Dr. W. B. Royall, officiating. We wish them well.

....The handsome new brick church at Morganton is nearing completion. Brother Patton contemplates leaving for China next October, if passage money is raised. Ten persons united with his church by letter recently.

....We thank Revs. G. L. Merrell, G. M. Webb, A. C. Davis and B. K. Mason for sending us new subscriptions last week. We are sure if the brethren will bring our "Baptist Position" offer before the people, there will be a flood of responses.

....Rev. E. S. Alderman aided in a meeting in Williamsburg, Ky., in which thirty-three additions were reported. Bro. Alderman is from Wilmington, N. C., and he has been pastor in Kentucky many years.—Baptist and Reflector.

....The Broadus memorial number of the Seminary Magazine has been received and read. It might be called "all about Broadus." The reading of estimates of him in various walks of life by leading men who were best qualified to appreciate him will benefit one next to a study of a "Life of Broadus," such as he himself wrote of Boyce. It will be sent on application to the Sunday-school Supply Store at Raleigh, for twenty-five cents.

....Baptists at Deland, Florida, have dedicated a $16,000 house of worship.

....Pastor Boone at Windsor is being aided in meetings by Rev. C. W. Scarboro.

....Rev. C. J. F. Anderson preached at Aberdeen last Sunday, says the Telegram, and administered the ordinance of baptism in the evening.

....Rev. L. G. Broughton writes April 22d: "A great day at Leigh Street on Sunday; eighty-four persons came out for Christ; held four services—packed at every one. Meeting goes on this week."

....Rev. Mr. Hutson has been carrying on a protracted meeting at the Baptist church. There have been from fifteen to twenty conversions and the interest still continues unabated.—Rocky Mount Phoenix.

....The First Baptist church of Norfolk, Rev. E. B. Hatcher, pastor, has decided to change location, and has purchased the most desirable site in the city, at a cost of $37,000. Nearly half this amount was subscribed in one morning.

...."The Baptist Position" and the BIBLICAL RECORDER nineteen weeks for fifty-five cents to new subscribers, will stimulate our churches all over the State if the pastors will push the offer. Mention it to your people next Sunday.

....There will be an anniversary meeting at Western Prong, near Clarkton, the first Saturday and Sunday in May, Bro. J. F. Harrill writes. Bro. Arch. Johnson of the Red Springs Citizen will deliver the address and Rev. J. H. Hildreth will preach.

....Joseph Cook says that "the present deficiency in money for missions is due as much to soft times in doctrine as to hard times in business." There is truth in this, but it is also due to running after side issues and giving attention to various "movements."—Western Recorder.

....We thank Bro. J. S. Kilby, Secretary of the Board of Trustees, for a handsome invitation to the sixth annual exercises of Trap Hill Institute, May 15th-16th. Rev. J. T. Jenkins will preach the sermon, and Congressman Linney will deliver the address.

....Pastor Blackwell of Elizabeth City is being aided in a series of meetings by Rev. W. P. Hines; Dr. Pritchard has been holding a meeting at Gaffney, S. C.; Rev. N. S. Jones has been keeping up the meetings at Salisbury, since Evangelist Neighbour went to Richmond.

....A brother desires to know if the David C. Cook S. S. Literature is Union or Nonsectarian. The makers of it say that it is nonsectarian, and this is enough, since nonsectarian literature is unquestionably in effect Pedobaptist. That is why Pedobaptists are so willing to unite on it.

....A good sister writes: "To me the loss of our much beloved pastor, Rev. C. A. Jenkens, is a personal affliction; a truly godly man, he was admired by all denominations, and even by others. His life has been an inspiration to me, and that of his estimable wife also, since they first came to Goldsboro."

....We are gladder than we can express to be able to say that Dr. Carroll was not as sick as we had heard. He has returned from Baltimore, whither he went, not for treatment, but simply for consultation. His trouble is not as serious as was thought, and we expect to see him shortly in his usual vigorous health.

....A great work for the Lord has been wrought in the Raleigh Fayetteville Street Church and our out-stations since the beginning of the year. There has been a gracious revival in South Raleigh, many conversions being made. Pastor and missionary Hunter, brethren Pullen, Blake and others, have been active in this quiet but faithful work.

....Evidently we struck the quick of the South Carolina Courier. There is nothing like a man who knows he is on the wrong side, for calling names and hurling abusive epithets. We hope the good Lord will give our brethren grace to bear what their monism and other unscriptural isms bring on them, but if he does not, we will not be surprised.

....Rev. A. J. Bordeaux writes, "I have been preaching for the church (Sharon) in Pender county ever since Bro. Smith's death two years ago. They were a very small band of brethren organized and holding forth within a mile of Caintuck church; so I got get them to agree to disband, and have given them letters to unite with other churches."

....Forty copies of Broadus' Harmony of the Gospels were received for the students at Wake Forest some time ago, and we learn that Rev. Jasper Howell, Jr., has succeeded in placing forty copies of the Memorial number of the Seminary Magazine among the students. Now let them get the incomparable commentary on Matthew, and all others of Broadus' works that they can afford.

....Rev. C. S. Cashwell of Hickory, N. C., writes April 26th: "Some weeks ago Bro. J. T. Jenkins met me at Newton and preached for us there for one week, day and night. He preached well. The congregations, for the most part, were small, but we hope good was accomplished. As a partial result of the meeting, on last Sunday night I baptized three persons. We had the congregation then—'all Judea and the regions round about Jordan.' From Newton Bro. Jenkins came with me to Hickory, where the good work was already going on. Here the congregations were larger than we could accommodate. The Lord was with us in power. At the close of the meeting I baptized eight persons; since then two more. The Sunday-schools at Newton and Hickory are very prosperous. Our weekly prayer-meetings here good."

....The State Mission Board of Florida has been compelled to cancel all contracts with its missionaries on account of lack of funds, due to the freeze. Such calamities as this happen about as often as Chicago fires, and, while we sympathize with our sister State, we are sure she will bloom out as she promised into one of the hopefulest, brightest and richest sections of our country.

....Bro. T. H. Street is the man we have been looking for, and we are looking for a hundred like him. He writes, "I will join the 'Regions Beyond' for one or two weeks with some pastor." Now, brethren, let us have a great coming out of laymen and pastors in this worthy cause. Times may be too hard to give money, but work can be given, and after all that is what the Master wants us to give.

....Our Orphanage has issued a manual for 1895, writes Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas in the Atlantic Baptist; but up to date we have not received a copy. Send us one with the bill, Bro. Mills. Since the opening of the Orphanage in 1885, three hundred and fifty six children have been received; "of these 186 have been discharged and are doing well." Twenty four have been adopted. There are about 130 children there now.

....We were glad to have Rev. W. A. Smith of Cedar Rock in to see us Monday, giving good reports of his churches. Cedar Rock Academy, of which Brother Smith is principal, will have an address by that eloquent gentleman, Bro. E. E. Hilliard of the Scotland Neck Democrat, at its closing exercises May 14th-15th. This is one of our strongest educational posts, and there will doubtless be a large attendance at the exercises.

....Rev. H. A. Bagby of Richmond has been the means of a great work of grace at Scotland Neck. A large number have professed religion, and the membership of Bro. Vann's church has been increased by fifteen or more. We regret to hear that Brother Vann has found it necesary to seek treatment in Baltimore, and we hope the Baptists throughout the State will pray for his full restoration. Dr. Durham preached for him Sunday.

.....The obliging traveling passenger agent of the Southern Railway, Mr. Chas. L. Hopkins of Charlotte, came down to Raleigh last week just to tell us that the Southern Railway would run the most elegantly appointed cars to the Washington Convention, through the historic battlefields of Virginia, and along scenery second only in the East to our Land of the Sky. Schedules are so convenient that one may choose between starting in the morning and travelling in the day, or starting in the afternoon and making the trip by sleeper. Write to Mr. Hopkins at Charlotte, if you are inferested.

....If the Greenville church does not grow under the ministry of Bro. Billings it will be the fault of Bro. Billings or the RECORDER. They are working together admirably at this point, and our Greenville list is just twice as long as it was when Bro. Billings took charge, and under Bro. Lamberth it was a good list. Bro. Billings not only helped Bro. Caddell in his work, but also kept the work up and sent us three new subscribers last week with a request for more sample copies. Bro. Oliver's meeting with Bro. Billings will be reported by the latter later.

....Rev. Dr. L. G. Broughton of Roanoke, Va., is preaching a series of exceptionally fine sermons at Leigh Street Baptist church, and with telling effect. His sermon on Sunday morning was a masterpiece. He stirred and swayed his great audience with a power and pathos which reminded us of some of the best efforts of Richard Fuller. After hearing that sermon on Sunday morning, we needed no further explanation of how he has accomplished such wonderful results in Roanoke. Thus far 150 persons have professed conversion, and the work goes on.—Religious Herald.

....The corner stone of the Miller Building was laid last Wednesday. Rev. J. D. Newton read in the chapel the sketch of the family prepared by Rev. J. B. Richardson. Mr. J. A. Leach paid a handsome tribute to Miss Miller and gave the children some kind and fatherly advice. The exercises were interspersed with songs and closed with a brief address by Chairman Frost of the Executive Committee.

All then repaired to the Miller Building. Important documents were placed in the box and the stone was put in its place. Chairman Frost led in a tender prayer and the exercises closed.—Charity and Children.

....The Baptist and Reflector seems to think that the Y. P. conference at Washington is modelled after the iniquitous political caucus—and it may be; our contemporary says, "if any one attends and takes part in the conference, it is understood, we presume, that he will abide by the decision reached by the majority of the brethren present." There is no telling what some publishers would do to get the S. B. Y. P. U. started, but it is hard to believe they would have the effrontery to do anything like this. But we are not up with the new age brethren, and we are probably ignorant of the modern meaning of the word conference.

....Our people should beware how they buy books. Missionary work by agents selling books and distributing papers that are apparently written for other purposes, is a favorite method of Adventists. Another way Adventists have of furthering their aims is to claim that they are nearer to the Baptists than any other sect. This is not so; but if it were, such an argument would be confession that they think Baptists are right. Also in dealing with Adventists and Mormons, it is remarkable how they turn and twist by saying that they do not represent the part of their sect that we know about, but some other that we know nothing about. They are all of the same tribe. Let the people follow only those whom they know are worthy of their confidence.

....The Baptist Sunday-school is about to add four small class rooms to the church building in order to accommodate all the classes. The school has twenty officers and teachers, and 192 were present last Sunday. Superintendent Welch has filled his position twenty years without cessation. Rev. M. A. Jenkins is about well again, and will meet his congregation at the Baptist church next Sunday.—Waynesville Courier.

....The Religious Herald will not say whether or not we are invited to the alleged conference (?) in Washington, though it evidently believes we are not. We think we will go and give the conference (?) an opportunity to say whether we are invited or not. Many of the brethren whose names are paraded by the Herald agree with us thoroughly on the whole subject.—Western Recorder.

....The highest newspaper authority in the United States, the Geo. P. Rowell Advertising Co., publishers of the American Newspaper Directory, have sent us a certificate that "without an exception" the RECORDER has the largest circulation in North Carolina guaranteed with a $100 forfeit in their Directory. Others may claim, but we are backed with the authority and guarantee of the Rowells. Baptists should be proud of it.

....In the departure of Rev. C. A. Jenkens from Goldsboro this week, our Convention suffers a real loss. He was one of our ablest pastors. Goldsboro is one of our strongest points, and while it has been blest with unusually good pastors, it never loved one better than it loves Bro. Jenkens. Into his new field we are sure the good wishes of hosts of friends in North Carolina and the rich blessings of God follow him. Bro. Jenkens' work on the RECORDER has met with general acceptation, some of his articles drawing out many expressions of approval.

....The following encouraging report is taken from the N. C. Presbyterian: "The Executive Committee of Foreign Missions (Presbyterian) met at the Mission Rooms on April 15th. The report of the treasurer showed the receipts for March to be $17,975. The receipts for the year ending April 1st were $132,461.89. This is something over $9,000 less than the receipts of the previous year; but all debts are paid, and there was a balance in the treasury, excluding the Congo boat fund, of something over $6,000. Twelve missionaries have been sent out during the year, and all those in the field have been provided with the necessaries of life."

....In the midst of the greatest financial depression our country has known in many years our people are making good subscriptions to the Baptist Female University, and seem to do so with that cheerfulness which is truly encouraging to the Trustees. We hope all of our pastors will announce the fact that the contract for the erection of the building has been awarded and the work begun; that we have begun this work with the confidence that our people will furnish the money with which to carry it on to completion. During the next three months we are obliged to pay the contractor several thousand dollars; we therefore must earnestly ask our people to put forth every possible effort to send a contribution at once.—O. L. Stringfield, Sec. Board of Trustees.

....Three score and ten, but hearty, full of life, ready with kindly reminiscence of any man or enterprise one may recall, as full of love for his brethren as he is of years and sevenfold more, a man of God for any one to go to in time of trouble for comfort or for counsel, many days of usefulness behind him, with a shining record, a clear conscience, an abiding hope,—a man generally to be envied; that is Dr. T. E. Skinner who passed his seventieth birthday last Monday, and for whom we wish many more. Of him it can be said more truly than of any one we know that he grew up with the Baptist denomination in North Carolina, and in all the years he has been foremost to throw himself into every movement for the denomination's growth. Beyond our borders Dr. Skinner has a larger acquaintance than any Baptist in the State.

....Rev. N. S. Jones sends the following good news: "We have just closed a very precious and interesting meeting. I baptized eight last night (April 22), and there will be others. Rev. R. E. Neighbour, a returned missionary from Brazil, did the preaching. It affords me real pleasure to say that Bro. Neighbour is a safe and zealous worker for the Master. I think I can say for him the best thing that can be said for any man, and that is, he preaches the Word in love and with great earnestness. There are great possibilities before him for the Master's service. We were all delighted. We expect to have Dr. Hume to preach for us Sunday; also on the same day to help me in organizing a church four miles in the country, at Ellis' School house." Dr. Hume has been rendering valuable aid for him at Chapel Hill lately.

....Rev. O. C. Horton is at the bottom of a great deal of comfort in the RECORDER office. Nearly every week he sends a new subscriber. Last week he sent two, taking the "Baptist Position" besides, and writing, "I gather a subscriber when I can." We were glad to get the following from him earlier in the week: "Quite a number of the members of East Durham church tried to take advantage of our ignorance on Saturday evening, 30th inst. They came in on us armed with "substantials" suited to drive want from our door and make us happy with their little expressions of kindness. They laid "this and that" on our table, and took charge of every seat and almost every available spot in our home. After some sweet songs full of Christ, and words of encouragement which will be long and pleasantly remembered, they adjourned to their homes, leaving us feeling grateful for the place God has given us in the esteem and love of this people.

Delegates to the Southern Baptist Convention.

The Constitution of the Southern Baptist Convention provides for two sets of delegates in the following:

"ART. III. The Convention shall consist (1) of brethren who contribute funds, or are delegated by Baptist bodies contributing funds for the regular work of the Convention, on the basis of one delegate for every $250 actually paid into the treasuries of the Boards during the fiscal year, ending the 30th day of April next preceding the meeting of the Convention; (2) of one representative from each of the District Associations which co-operate with this Convention, provided that such representative be formally elected at the annual meeting of his District Association and his election certified to the Secretaries of the Convention, either in writing or by a copy of the printed minutes."

The Board of Missions has appointed delegates provided for on the basis of funds contributed. It cannot now be known how many delegates our Convention will be entitled to in the next session of the Convention on this basis. I give the list in the order of their applications and appointment. If more delegated have been appointed than can be seated, the last named will not be delegates. This has been the order of the Board for many years. The date of the application for appointment fixes the position of the brother's name in the list.

Certificates of said appointment will in due time be sent to each delegate.

W. C. Fields, J. W. Fleetwood, C. A. G. Thomas, O. J. Carroll, Shelly Swain, M. P. Matheny, R. H. Marsh, C. J. Woodson, W. P. Jordan, J. W. Cates, J. W. Bryan, C. E. Taylor, W. R. Gwaltney, W. L. Poteat, Walters Durham, W. B. Waff, R. Van Deventer, Jasper Howell, J. O. Adams, E. J. Edwards, E. F. Jones, T. J. Taylor, H. A. Brown, J. A. Smith, J. N. Page, Oscar Page, J. M. Hilliard, R. D. Carroll, C. J. F. Anderson, J. H. Edwards, R. A. Hedgepeth, A. R. Pittman, W. H. H. Lawhon, J. B. Richardson, J. A. Stradley, S. P. Smith, D. I. Watson, W. F. Fry, W. H. Edwards, T. E. Skinner, C. Durham, J. C. Scarborough, O. L. Stringfield, T. Bright, E. F. Aydlette, L. R. Pruett, Thos. Hume, N. L. Shaw, S. E. White, S. F. Conrad, W. T. Love, C. B. Justice, A. H. Porter, W. C. Tyree, R. T. Vann, J. O. Alderman, J. H. Williamson, J. M. White, T. H. Pritchard, C. G. McManaway, R. H. Jordan, J. A. Durham, J. W. Bailey.

No person has been appointed except on application personally, or through some one authorized to send in the application to the Board. If any name sent in has been by mistake left out of the above list, the proper correction will, if attention is called to it, be promptly made.

ASSOCIATIONAL DELEGATES.

Alexander—Rev. L. P. Gwaltney, or Rev. W. J. Bumgarner.

Atlantic—Rev. Rufus Ford, or Rev. C. A. Jenkens.

Central—Dr. J. W. Carter, or Rev. W. R. Gwaltney.

Chowan—Dr. C. S. Blackwell, or Rev. J. E. White.

Columbus—Rev. J. F. Tuttle, or T. S. Memory.

Flat River—Rev. J. S. Hardaway, or Rev. H. T. Williams.

Green River—Rev. C. E. Gower, or Rev. M. M. Landrum.

King's Mountain—Rev. T. Dixon, or Dr. J. D. Hufham.

Liberty—Rev. H. Sheets, or Rev. Thos. Carrick.

Montgomery—Rev. H. M. Ingram, or Rev. G. O. Wilhoit.

Mt. Zion—Rev. J. F. McDuffie, or Rev. W. C. Tyree.

Pee Dee—Dr. E. A. Covington, or H. C. Dockery.

Robeson—R. R. Barnes.

South Yadkin—Rev. N. S. Jones, or J. C. Turner.

Stanly—Rev. J. W. Suttle.

Tar River—Dr. J. A. Munday, or N. Biggs.

West Chowan—Rev. J. B. Boone, or Rev. A. Cree.

It seems that the other Associations did not, at their last session, elect delegates to represent them in the next Southern Baptist Convention. The Board has no authority to appoint their delegates.

Raleigh, Aug. 25, 1895.

Notes from Monroe.

Beginning the fourth Sunday in March and closing the first day of April our meeting was held at a convenient season and in the midst of beautiful weather.

Rev. J. T. Jenkins of Winston did the preaching. His sermons were direct, practical, earnest, and faithful. I have never seen a deeper interest in any meeting. The entire vicinity was stirred through and through regardless of sectarian or secular lines. The church seemed ready for a blessing and we had a gracious outpouring of the spirit. There have been twenty-four accessions to the church and there are good indications for a healthy growth in numbers and spirituality.

Bro. Jenkins deeply impressed our people. As a speaker he is graceful, fervent, and interesting. It is pleasure to record that his meetings are not gush and glitter, but the basis of a vigorous and permanent growth.

Our Union at Meadow Branch was enjoyable. This church is situated in the midst of a very prosperous community of live energetic people. It is the strongest church in our Association in numbers and wealth. Right in this vicinity some of us are already hoping to see ere long a flourishing Baptist academy, under the auspices of our Association, which shall prepare our boys for Wake Forest College.

This leads me to speak of Bro. Blanchard's visit to this section. For two hours he held the undivided attention of an audience of six hundred on Sunday forenoon at our Union. A Presbyterian merchant of Monroe told me it was the finest educational address he had ever heard and he gave ten dollars cash to the college. Bro. Blanchard visited Beaver Dam, Waxhaw, and Monroe and started a kind of an educational revival in Union county which will bear fruit in the years to come.

We are planning a vigorous campaign at destitute points in the county during the summer. I do not see any Union pastors on your "Regions Beyond" (or around, as Bro. Thomas suggests), but you may depend on the majority of them for a week or two in warm weather. When the pastors have voluntarily worked up Baptist interest at new points, we will probably employ a suitable brother to carry forward the work. Thus our associational work and the relief of destitute points in our borders can be linked together and more successfully prosecuted.

My work here in Monroe grows more and more pleasant. There are continual remembrances of sympathy and esteem. The brethren told me recently to get ready to go to Washington—they will pay my way. Occasionally we have a shadow. Just to-day we have buried Bro. W. C. McCall, who leaves a wife and six children. He is the third of our members to pass away since I came here last July. So one by one the workers die, but the work goes on.

HIGHT C. MOORE

Monroe, April 13, 1895.

Through Hyde.

At the request of Rev. Josiah Elliott and Rev. W. R. Carawan, the chief movers in the erection of a house of worship at Rose Bay in Hyde county, I planned a trip to be with the brethren there at the dedication of this house of worship.

At Washington I arrived too late, three hours behind time, to preach for Rev. D. McLeod and his people. But I went to see the Baptist house of worship which is now being remodelled. It will when finished be in three rooms. These can, when necessary, be changed into one audience room. This makes the house suitable for the Sunday-school, prayer-meetings, and the larger congregation. It will be attractive, and every arrangement and finish in good taste. Bro. McLeod and his little faithful church deserve and ought to have the help of the denomination in completing their house. Money sent them will be wisely invested for the Lord's cause in that growing town. They will need about one thousand dollars to finish it.

At Swan Quarter I was met by Rev. W. R. Carrawan, our faithful missionary in Hyde county, and taken to his home about five miles distant. Near his home is the location of the Rose Bay Missionary Baptist church of Christ. It is a beautiful house, finished, painted, and with the aisles and pulpit carpeted. There is, perhaps, no better or more attractive house of worship in the county. It is well located, and cost $1,150. This is the house, in the construction of which Rev. Josiah Elliott of Hertford put a mortgage on his little home for $500 to secure money with which to finish the building. The house was dedicated on Sunday, April 14th, free of debt. But Bro. Elliott assumed $150, in order to pay off the $450 of indebtedness due on the house the day of dedication. He had before given his time and energies gratis, and largely of his personal means to carry forward this work to its present development. He needs and ought to have this $150 sent to him in the next thirty days. Who will help this faithful, self sacrificing, wise, and successful worker?

Bro. Carrawan, by giving his time and horse and buggy, enabled me to see at no expense almost all of this rich and beautiful country. The farming lands, orchards, and many of the homes around Mattamuskeet Lake are beautiful. It is about fifty miles around this lake. There is only one road in the county, by which you enter and return, reach every town and place and home in the county. The county is noted for the richness of its soil, the great amount of corn produced, abundance of game, tame wild geese, and white black-birds.

There is in Hyde abundant room for Baptists, and we will, in the next five years, need five other houses of worship like the house at Rose Bay. Now is our opportunity in this county. We ought to use it wisely. I preached three times in the county, and met many of her kind and hospitable people. I was with Bro. Elliott in his home at Hertford and at some of his churches. He knows how to work, and he knows how to get others to work. C. DURHAM.

Woman's Missionary Meetings.

The Seventh Annual Session of the Woman's Missionary Union, auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention, will be held in Washington, D. C., Friday, May 10—Monday, May 13, at the Calvary Church Sunday-school House, cor. 8th and H streets, N. W. The hour of assembling is 9 A. M., closing at 12 30 P. M. Foreign Missions will be represented on Friday, Dr. R. J. Willingham making an address; Home Missions and Executive Committee recommendations on Saturday, Dr. I. T. Tichenor speaking. Sunday, at 3 P. M., will be held a missionary meeting, with addresses by Mrs. R. H. Graves, Miss L. Barton, Mrs. J. W. McCollum, Miss M. Buhlmaier and others. On Monday, Sunday-school Board recommendations will be presented, with address by Dr. T. P. Bell, closing with election of officers.

There will be new and interesting features which will prove very attractive. While each State is entitled to but four delegates beside its Vice-President, it is earnestly hoped that many others will be in attendance to cheer by their presence and gain inspiration to carry home with them.

ANNIE W. ARMSTRONG,
Cor. Sec. W. M. U.

The Georgia Baptist Convention.

This body met in the city of Waycross last week. The attendance was quite small, owing to the remote section in which it met as well as to the scarcity of money in this part of the country. The spirit of the meeting was quite good, and though the brethren disagreed widely upon several matters which came before them, they tried to do so in a brotherly way, and succeeded admirably.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

Dr. J. B. Hawthorne, in order to compromise with the more advanced upon this subject, offered a preamble and resolutions looking to the organization of Societies in the churches and a call for a Convention to be held in Macon next September. The resolutions met with strong opposition, especially the one looking to State organization. It was quite amusing to note the great uneasiness and impatience of the brethren who wanted the thing to go through. When a brother arose to speak who was not of this way of thinking; he was plied with questions, and made very sensible of the fact that it was greatly preferred that he should keep his seat. But Baptist will be heard, and the heretics spoke right out in meeting, and finally succeeded in getting a good hearing. No one seemed opposed to organizing the young people in societies in the churches and under the control of the churches; but the opposition was to the State organization. The matter introduced by Dr. Hawthorne was finally adopted with a majority of two, and everybody and the churches will do just as they please about this thing.

MERCER UNIVERSITY.

The report of the trustees was good, showing the College in fair condition. The co-education feature had proven a failure so far as members were concerned, only one woman having applied for admission into the department which was opened to women, and she was the daughter of the President. The report stated that, at the solicitation of the President, the trustees had decided to refer the matter of co-education to the Convention. They were unwilling to do as he wished in opening all of the departments to women, and so asked the Convention to say what should be due. A committee was appointed to report upon the matter. This committee referred it back to the Convention. At this juncture, the President realizing that his case was a forlorn one, and knowing that there would be a warm discussion, moved to postpone the matter of co-education for one year. Many regretted this, as they were ready to settle it now and forever. Dr. Gambrell has spent much time and energy in working for this thing, but unless he makes better headway in the future he is doomed to let this pet scheme of his fail so far as Mercer is concerned.

MISSIONS.

State, Home and Foreign Missions received due consideration at the hands of the Convention, and it seems that the great brotherhood of Georgia Baptists are alive to the claims of the Master upon them to send the gospel to the natives. The Secretaries of these three Boards were present, and looked after the interests as best they could.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL BOARD.

All regretted the absence of the Secretary, Dr. Bell, but Rev. Isaac J. VanNess, the editor of the Young People's Leader, made a fine impression for the work of our Sunday-school Board. He reported the work growing all the time and business increasing in spite of the hard times.

Editors and representatives of the press were as thick as you please, and they all seemed happy and hopeful. Of course, the Religious Herald man was there, and though he regarded it rather impolitic to say a word upon a question where there was a wide difference of opinion, he could not refrain from telling us how they did it in Virginia, and had to criticise severely the speech of a brother who does not always agree with the Herald man's ideas. But the Herald is a great and growing paper, you know, and must exert its benignant influence over the whole of the South with a vengeance and the North as well. Dr. Harvey looked after the Western Recorder and did it well. He did not say one word about the Kentucky plan. And there was the versatile and polished Folk of the Reflector, who, by the way, wrote the best article upon the life of Doctor Broadus, and who received many compliments upon his editorial upon the young people's movement. J. C. Porter of the Florida Witness was also on hand, and doubtless made a good impression for his paper. J. C. McMichael, proprietor of the Index, and J. F. Edens, traveling agent, looked well after our own paper. The Index is greatly loved in Georgia, and has the solid support of the brethren generally. May it continue to be so.

Manager Ætna Life Insurance Co., Raleigh, N. C.

Dear Sir:—It gives me pleasure to acknowledge the prompt payment in full of the policy for $10,000 held by Mr. S. H. Wiley in the Ætna Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Wiley died July 3d, 1894. The proofs were forwarded July 5th, and the Company's check in full settlement was sent July 12.

Yours truly,

(Signed) THEO. F. KLUTTZ, Secretary.

P. S.—I consider Mr. Wiley's life insurance the best property that he had.

"Holy Week" in Mexico.

Dear Recorder:—I am very sure that it is not a lack of appreciation of your good paper that has kept me silent so long. The truth is, as the days go by, they are so freighted with duties I seldom find time for letter-writing.

To day is Good Friday, and a dreary day the Catholics are making it. The doors of the stores are barred, and the private residences are closed and curtained. The bells that for weeks have been calling the worshipers to unusual and prolonged religious (?) worship are silenced, and to-day only the dismal matraca is heard calling the people to church to partake of the body of the Lord which they are taught is to "preserve their soul and body unto life everlasting." Since midday even the sun has refused to shine on so dismal a scene, and the wailing of the people inside of the church is heard as the body of Christ is taken from the cross and put into the casket.

In many parts of Mexico the crucifixion is enacted, Pilate and his followers going to the scene on horseback, and the cross being borne by a man personating Christ. At such times the priests preside over the performance, and drunkenness, cursing, stealing and fighting run riot.

Last Sunday was palm Sunday, and hundreds of people from the city and surrounding ranches bore to the church armsful of green boughs and herbs that were blessed (?) by the priests, and afterwards taken to their houses and made into tea, which, sweetened with molasses, was drunk and supposed to have a saving effect upon their souls and bodies. In some instances leaves from the boughs were carefully dried and saved to be used as remedies hereafter in case of sickness.

To-morrow Judases of all sizes and appearance are burned in all the cities of Mexico. These effigies are filled with combustible material, and lighted with fuse. I have just watched one being carried by my house on its way to be suspended across the street on wires. It has the head and horns of a wild animal and the body of a man. Its hands are to be filled with bread and, after the explosion, the poor who happen to be nearest will scramble for the remnants of bread scattered far and wide. Mexico has a law against religious ceremonies being allowed in the open air, but the "burning of Judas" is considered rather as a diversion.

A circus arrived here yesterday, and the company are busy preparing to have a grand show on Sunday. And now nine-tenths of these people who for a week or more have been given up to religious observances will spend the greater part of Sunday at the circus.

Those of us here who bear the name of Christ have been trying, during this week while the people are religiously inclined, to improve the opportunity to preach Christ to them. Although neither Mr. Chastain nor the native preacher is present, we have had meetings several nights in succession, first one and then another of the brethren leading. If we have not reached the Catholics, we ourselves have received a blessing.

Our little church is constantly being added to, though death has taken from us some of our strongest members. We still mourn the loss of our only deacon, our oldest member, and one of our Sunday-school scholars.

I am greatly aided in my visiting from house to house for Bible instruction, and in my work among the women in general and in the day-school by our good native woman worker, partly paid by the Woman's Missionary Society of Calvary church, Roanoke.

Mr. Chastain is still in the southern part of Mexico. He attended the Conference of the Holy Spirit in Toluca, and went from there to Mexico City with Messrs. Moody and Sankey, and then to Morelia to preach a week for Mr. McCormick.

I am glad to see that a storm is coming up: we are entirely without water, and the ground is parched and thirsty. The people here are always so glad to see a rain that when it begins to get cloudy, they say "the heavens are becoming very beautiful."

I am glad to see so much effort and sacrifice are being made to pay the Board debt. God grant that that burden may be rolled off.

I have just read Miss Hale's new book about Mexico. It is overflowing with information that every missionary society ought to know. Read it, one and all, and then resolve to do more for the cause here and elsewhere. There are many such as "Mercedes" in Mexico. Oh, send them the gospel! And pray constantly for those of us who take it! Sincerely,

LILIAN WRIGHT CHASTAIN.

Doctor Arroyo, Mexico, April 13, 1895.

Columbus Union.

This body met with the church at Benevolence, Saturday, March 30th, 1895. The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. J. F. Tuttle from Numbers 5: 2.

In the afternoon, the Union was called to order by Rev. H. Lennon, the former Moderator. Rev. J. F. Tuttle was elected Moderator for the ensuing year.

First query: Is it the privilege of every Christian to know beyond the shadow of a doubt that he has been saved by grace? was answered in the affirmative.

Second query: Is the custom of annual calls to pastors a wise one? was, on motion of Rev. E. W. Wooten, continued till next Union.

In the absence of Dr. A. McKimmon, the brother appointed to prepare a report on Associational Missions, no report was made on this subject.

On Sunday, the mass-meeting was conducted by Rev. T. J. Cobb. Sermon by Rev. J. F. Tuttle. Collection for Foreign Missions, $1.30.

Next session of the Union to be at Pleasant Hill. Rev. J. F. Tuttle to preach the introductory sermon, Rev. E. W. Wooten, alternate. A. M. KELLY, Clerk.

Why should our spirits be oppressed
When days of darkness fall?
Our Father knoweth what is best,
And he hath made them all.
He made them, and to all their length
Set parallels of gain;
We gather from our pain the strength
To rise above our pain.

HOTEL AND BOARDING HOUSE RATES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31, 1895.

To Delegates and Visitors to the Southern Baptist Convention, Greeting:

The churches of our denomination in the District of Columbia are gratified that their invitation to the Southern Baptist Convention to hold its session for this year at the National Capital had been accepted. We will do all in our power to make the session pleasant and profitable to all who attend. We will furnish free entertainment for the officers of the Convention, the presidents and secretaries of the Boards, and returned missionaries. The house of worship of the First Baptist church, 16th street above Scott Circle, has been selected for the place of meeting, and the Ebbitt House, corner of 14th and F streets, for Convention headquarters.

We have endeavored to secure ample accommodation in hotels and boarding-houses at reduced rates for all who desire to attend. Rates will range from $2.50 to $1.50 a day, while some boarding-houses will receive delegates and visitors at $1.00 a day.

At the Ebbitt House the rates will be $3.50 a day, with accommodation for fifty persons at $3.00 a day with two in a room. Delegates and visitors will obtain these rates on the presentation of a card of introduction from the Committee on Assignment. Those who expect to attend will please write as soon as possible to the undersigned, giving the full names and the number of those for whom entertainment is desired, stating whether Mr., Mrs., or Miss, the rates preferred, and the time of arrival in Washington, and the Committee on Assignment will do its utmost to furnish comfortable quarters.

These terms apply also to all attending the meetings of the American Baptist Education Society, the Woman's Missionary Union, and the Young People.

Address all communications to—
M. M. SHAND, Secretary,
Department of State, Washington, D. C.

SUBJECT FOR MAY: JAPAN.

"Bear much fruit. so shall ye be my disciples." Missionaries, 4; native assistants, 4; stations, 6; churches, 1; membership, 31; baptisms, 9. Contributions, $15.

STUDY TOPICS.—Unique position of Japan among heathen nations. Uprising of Buddhism and other religions in view of Christian missions. Danger of exaggerated views of missionary success. Language and religious pre-conceptions barriers to mission effort. A Baptist opportunity.

In talking of missions, its friends are open to two dangers—of overstating or understating. One is hardly less injurious to the cause we seek to benefit than the other. In speaking of the wonderful triumphs of Christian truth in Japan, the danger is rather of claiming too much than too little.

In a large meeting several weeks ago, one of the speakers referred to Japan as a Christian country! Let us see. Japan has a population of thirty eight million. Among these thirty-eight million there are thirty-seven thousand Christians. A simple matter of division will show that there is on an average one Christian to every thousand of the inhabitants.

Take in connection with this the fact that until 1893 the missionaries were not allowed to reside in but seven cities or to travel in the interior for missionary purposes, and it will be seen that the converts are grouped largely around a few large centers, and that much, indeed almost all of the interior, is untouched by gospel influence. A year or so ago it was said by those competent to know that only about five million of the whole thirty-eight millions had even so much as heard the gospel.

The missionaries sent out by our Board in 1889 chose for their field of work Kiusiu, one of the four large island of this thousand-island kingdom. They report this island practically untouched by missionary effort. What are six among so many!

Far be it from us, however, to lessen in thanks or thankfulness the wonders God has wrought in this land, making it the "greatest miracle of modern missions," in point of time of accomplishment, in rapid increase of converts and in its levening power in the State.

As is well known, Commodore Perry in 1854 succeeded by a bloodless victory in opening certain Japanese ports to the world of commerce and the missionary. Two hundred years before the government, by fierce persecution, had endeavored to stamp out forever all remembrance of the Catholic faith, introduced by Francis Xavier. Many hundreds—even thousands—met death rather than deny the faith so lately taught them, and many more continued to secretly teach their children this form of religion.

When the ports, which during these centuries had been closed to every nation except the Dutch, were again opened, through the length and breadth of the kingdom were found posted proclamations, which had been statedly renewed from year to year, making it a death penalty to name the name of Christ and daring the Christian's God to enter the country.

In face of such old and deep-seated hatred as this, the first missionaries began their work in 1859, the first Baptist missionary to enter the field being one of Commodore Perry's sailors, who returned to Japan in 1860.

The work progressed slowly. Not until 1873 was the first church of ten members organized. At this time there were twenty-eight missionaries of all denominations in Japan. Hatred against Christians still prevailed. Several thousand Japanese Catholics, who still secretly practiced their religion in more or less corrupt form, were discovered and thrown into cruel imprisonment. The edicts against Christianity still stood on the statute books.

In 1873, the year of the organization of the first church, the whole mood and temper of the people towards Christianity began to undergo a wonderful change. Envoys sent out by the government to visit European nations reported favorably on their forms of government and civilization. The love and pride of country which had before prompted to strict exclusion of all foreigners, now prompted to the rapid adoption of Western manners and customs, so that they might be put on a footing with the nations they saw were most powerful. The envoys returned in 1879. The same year the edicts against Christianity were annulled and the Catholic prisoners set at liberty. Public schools were organized and Western teachers invited at large salaries to teach them. Parts of the Scripture were willingly received and read by many. Converts multiplied rapidly. In seven years (1879) from the formation of the first church of ten members, the number had increased to 3,965; in eight years more (1887) to 19 825; in the next six years (1893) to 37,398. A marvellous work had been done in twenty years.

As for the progress of the kingdom, it had been no less wonderful. In February, 1889, the Mikado granted his people a written constitution, by which political rights and religious liberty were assured. In 1890 the first Japanese Parliament convened.

As early as 1888, however, a violent reaction against foreign influence set in, and added a new and in many instances a serious obstacle to mission work. The Japanese began to show that they felt they had sufficiently learned their lessons from other civilizations, and now wished to be left alone to adopt these new methods to their own needs in their own way. How successfully they had learned Western methods of war has been seen in their unbroken victories in the war with China.

The native churches have manifested something of the same desire to be left to themselves to carry on their church life, and much wisdom has been needed on the part of the missionaries to direct, without seeming to dominate, and to lead this spirit of independence into the proper channels. The young church stands in danger of schisms within and of Western infidelity and free thought without. But, although, since 1888 the increase in the church has not been so large proportionally as previous, the great work goes steadily on, the net gain in the years from 1888 to 1893 being more than eleven thousand. The argument for missions in Japan is not, then, that all have heard the gospel, but that those who have heard have so readily accepted the truth. The harvest demands ready and wise workers, and many years of progress "will be lost if the harvest wait."

While all concede that the recent war will have a most desirable effect on China and Korea in throwing these countries wide open to the gospel missionary, there is a division of opinion as to the effect upon Japan.

Below is given, by a Japanese missionary, an interesting and hopeful view of the questions:

THE BIBLE IN THE JAPANESE ARMY.

One event in connection with the war should fill the Christian world with rejoicing and prayer for God's blessing upon the Word. In an almost unexplainable way Japan has lately been opened to the Bible as never before. It should be known that in the past missionaries and Christian teachers have been forbidden to enter the barracks or to present Christianity in any way to the soldiers. A Christian young man who became enrolled in the army could keep his Testament with difficulty, and was likely to suffer much persecution at the hands of officers as well as men. A few months ago a young man who last year graduated from the Baptist theological school, on being enrolled, had the greatest difficulty in keeping his small copy of the Gospels. Now all is changed. Those in authority are doing everything in their power to have the Testament placed in the hand of every soldier. The private secretary of Count Ito aided in forwarding a large number of copies of the Testament, to be distributed through the navy. Prince Komatsu, who is at the head of the Imperial Guards, asks that 10,000 copies of the New Testament be furnished for every officer and man in the Imperial Guard. They are the picked men of the empire, he says, and should be the model men of the army. He wants every one to have a Testament. Free permission has been given to the agent of the Bible societies to distribute Testaments and to hold religious conversation in the hospitals of the army, among the Chinese prisoners, and in the barracks throughout Japan. How much this means it is hard to realize. We cannot believe that this general permission to do a work heretofore forbidden comes wholly from a new love for the Bible. Other forces are doubtless at work, but the fact that the Bible is thus circulated may tell wonderfully in the advancement of the Master's kingdom through the new and widespread reading which these thousands of copies will receive. We may well pray that the understanding of many may be opened. It is unquestionably true that the war will forward Christianity in Japan as well as Korea and China. Korea has been opened as never before to Christian teaching. The slur which has often been heard in Japan, that Christianity would make one disloyal and destroy one's love for the Emperor and for one's country, has been effectually stamped out by the loyal attitude of all Christian people. The activity of Christian people in seeking to supply the needs of the army, as well as in prayer for the army, has brought Christianity before the people in a very favorable light, quite in contrast with the inactivity of the Buddhists.—Missionary Review.

Mexico.

MRS. LAURA WINSTON, MORGANTON, N. C.

[CONCLUDED FROM LAST WEEK.]

It is expressed frequently, as a general sentiment, that the learned men of Mexico—those holding office—are virtually infidels, but Romanism has a strong hold upon the women and children. The men are disgusted with Catholicism as a disagreeable political factor. Like many in France, they have turned from it to infidelity. It is reasonable to believe this when we remember that Religion and Law no longer walk hand in hand in Mexico as before the war of the "Right of Privileges." May every Protestant lift his heart to God for the triumphal entry of Benito Juarez in 1861. Since that day the church of Rome has been shorn of its political power by which she once ruled with a proud tyranny over the whole land. Had the Constitution continued to read "Religion and Law," "Catholicism and no other religion tolerated," the mountains of Mexico would have never been beautiful because of the feet of him who is swift to bring glad tidings, the valleys would never have resounded with praises to the Triune God, nor the mirage-planes reflected temples dedicated to him "who so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Since a sojourn of nearly three years among the people of Mexico, we can understand as never before the epistles of Paul. Things in them that were hard to understand before are clearer now. The people of Mexico are very like those to whom he wrote. We often see very great zeal joined with other things that are very reprehensible, and sins, that amongst a people thoroughly taught in the Scriptures from their infancy, could not be tolerated, are largely a result of ignorance and former associations. You Christians little realize how hard it is to live a Christian life in a godless land. It is hard to keep the Sabbath in a land that makes a gala-day of this day of rest. It is hard to lead a holy life where the tendency of the religion has always been to blunt the moral senses. It is hard to be a truthful people when the very etiquette of the country is a falsehood. The Mexicans lay great stress upon their etiquette. It is one of the principal studies in all their schools. We have been astonished at the degree of politeness which we have met in the low, dark hut, floor of dirt, beds of poles, absence of extra clothing for winter for the family, children naked or thinly clad in the cold "northers," and a scant supply of wholesome food. If you were a visitor you would be greatly astonished by having a residence presented to you by every man to whom you are introduced. It is their etiquette to say, "Mi casa a sus ordenes,"—my house is at your orders, or more politely, your house is number so and so, street so and so, and ready for you at any time. If on a visit to their houses you should express your admiration of a piece of needle work of exquisite design (at which they are adepts, the love of the artistic being developed far beyond the idea of the useful) you would at once hear them say "Es Suyo," it is yours, but by no means intending that it shall be yours. What is beneath all this? A heart which is perhaps a stranger to morality, pure thoughts, and "in honor preferring one another."

The national custom of profaning God's holy day with the national sinful amusements, is another stumbling block in the way of some who purpose to love the Lord Jesus. Besides the bull-fights and cock-fights, the most characteristic of diversions for all classes is the dance. The "fandango," which is the dance in the open air at night, is attended with gambling and drinking, often with shame and murder. Nothing so universally delights the crowd as the "fandango," and its demoralizing influence is felt in every department of social life.

I know that the question is before all missionary bodies whether school work is missionary work. I do not jump at the conclusion when I say with emphasis, It is. I consider it the very foundation of all stable missionary work. Everywhere it is recognized as a fact that the rising generation is the hope of the church, and in mission fields this is peculiarly the case. If, therefore, it is considered of such importance that the schools should not be divorced from religion in a country like the United States, for example, there exists in a country like Mexico almost a prime necessity that the church should educate her children. It is a matter of great importance that they should be weaned off entirely from the superstitions of their fathers, and be protected from the contaminating influences of existing social conditions; but this cannot be done if from day to day they are associated with and controlled by those who have no sympathy with them or their opinions, but are rather hostile to both. Rome shows her wisdom by refusing to allow her children to attend other than her own schools, and by trying to get as many of the Protestant children in them as possible.

THE WOMEN OF MEXICO.

The women of Mexico viewed generally run about the same scale as in other nominally Christian countries. From the graceful Senora with manners so fine that the folds of the "mantilla" know no disorder, to the humble woman seen daily in the street shawl-draped and sad-faced, you find many answering types to women in all lands.

Though the women are much more accessible than those of China, Egypt or other oriental lands, walking unveiled and mingling in public assemblies, yet work among them is especially suited to a woman missionary. She can better bear with the petty interruptions to domestic instruction, and perhaps too, better understand feminine subterfuges. Especially is this the case in work amongst the poorer classes. Helen Hunt in her "Tid-bits of Travel," in speaking of her talk over some domestic trouble with a German frau, says so prettily, "We were only two women looking into each other's wet eyes." And it is so everywhere. In those human troubles that visit all lands, death of children, of loved ones of any tie, of poverty, sickness and shame, national barriers are broken down, and women meet on the same plane. In these common woes, they are but two women looking into each other's tearful eyes, and good is done. The best expression of sympathy and interest is to knock at their humble doors, enter and take the seat offered you, though it be but a box or a bed, sit with them, hear their simple stories of children or kindred and relieve them in sickness or poverty. It is good and it is pleasant. They will be happier for your coming and follow you to the door or outside gate with thanks and duplicated "Adios."

A SLIGHT COLD, IF NEGLECTED, OFTEN ATTACKS THE LUNGS. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give immediate and sure relief.

My experience of life makes me sure of one thing which I do not try to explain—that the sweetest happiness we ever know comes not from love, but from sacrifice—from the effort to make others happy.—O'Reily.

S. S. Convention.

Our Annual S. S. Convention met last Saturday with the Zion Baptist church. Religious exercises were conducted by Rev. R. N. Hawkins. The Convention was then organized by the election of the former chairman, Rev. A. C. Irvin, and Phillip Spake, Secretary.

The first topic, "The outcome of the S. S. work" work was ably discussed by Lovelace, Taylor, Hufham, Webb and others.

"How may the world know that one is a Christian?" was taken up and discussed at length and in an interesting manner by Taylor, Hufham Gold, Wilson, and many other brethren.

Sunday morning a large crowd gathered. The choir gave beautiful, sweet music, led on the organ by Miss Irvin and vocal by Bro. Gold.

"The Claims of Associational missions" was then interestingly discussed by Bros. Spake, Lattimore, Limerick, Webb, Irvin, Hufham and others. A resolution was then offered by Bro. Hufham that we raise for Associational missions $150.00. Pending the motion pledges were made by the various churches and individuals for $100 00.

After singing "Praise God from Whom all Blessings flow" and a short recess, Rev. Dr. Hufham preached a very strong and forceful missionary sermon. At the close of the sermon a cash collection was taken for Associational missions amounting to $12.50.

When the Convention re-assembled the query, "How to increase the efficiency of the Sunday-school work," was well discussed by various brethren. The Convention adjourned to meet a year hence with the Elizabeth church.

We heartily thank the good people of Zion for their kind hospitality to the Convention. G. M. WEBB.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

A Wonderful Cure for Cancer.

There is no further need to cut cancers out with knives or burn them out with plasters. Dr. Mason, Richmond, Va., has a cure for this dreadful disease that surpasses all other methods in rapid healing and permanent cure. It will not be worth while, however, to write to the Doctor unless you are tired of quack medicine and so-called cancer doctors who use knives or plasters. Dr. Mason does not compete with such. His remedy is painless and soothing, and the only one suitable for the aged or weak. The relief is immediate and the cure rapid. It seeks out the disease growths and destroys their vitality, causing the cancer to pass away, leaving only an ordinary healthy sore, which rapidly heals.

Dr. Mason has two methods of treatment—"Home Treatment" and "Personal Treatment." "Home Treatment" is for cases where the patients can be cared for at home without any other cost than the medicines, fully as well as to go to Richmond for "Personal Treatment," by the Doctor. The cost for "Home Treatment" is less than half the cost of "Personal Treatment," and for those who can be cured in a few weeks. When writing, describe the case fully, and direct letter to Dr. Scott Mason, 700 E. Clay Street Richmond, Va.

The Meetings in Washington

They will all be held in the House of Worship of the First Baptist Church, corner 16th and O Streets, unless otherwise stated.

The Education Society will meet on Wednesday and Thursday, (May 8th and 9th) at 8 P. M. Possibly another session on Thursday afternoon.

The first session of the Conference of Young People's Societies will be held on Thursday, May 9, at 10 30 A. M.

The Southern Baptist Convention begins its meetings on Friday, May 10th, at 10 A. M.

The Woman's Missionary Union (auxiliary to the S B. C.) hold their first meeting in new Sunday School Building of Calvary Baptist Church, Friday May 10th, at 10 A. M.

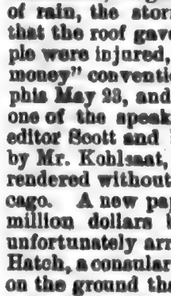
NEWS SUMMARY.



North Carolina.

The lawyers have failed to make up a case to test Capt. Kitchin's title to Supt. Leazer's place with the penitentiary, so the matter will go by suit to the courts. The case of E. D. Stanford against State Librarian Ellington is being tried this week. The Supreme Court has taken up the case of judgeships of the new criminal courts.——There was a $75,000 fire at Charlotte last week; a large warehouse and several stores were destroyed. Good insurance.——Two new mills are to be built at Concord, one by the Odell Mfg. Co., the other by J. M. Odell & Son.——Ex congressman Bunn has been appointed postmaster at Rocky Mount. ——The first convention of Christian Endeavor Societies of the State was held at Winston last week; about 100 delegates. ——It is stated in the Charlotte Observer as a scarcely known fact that the World's Fair prize for rice was won by a Columbus county farmer.——A young man named Eller is under arrest at Elkin for the murder of a young man name Latham in Ashe county.——Cashier J. R. Holland of the Merchants and Farmers' Bank of Charlotte was found last week to be a defaulter to the amount of $80,000, and also a forger. He is under arrest. The bank is a strong one and is unshaken.——Cashier W. A. Jones of the Roxboro Farmer's Bank is in the Person county jail on charges of misappropriating money, and robbing the bank by night. The doors of the bank have been closed, but only temporarily, it is hoped. ——The fish season in our Eastern waters is proving as profitable as usual. 400,000 herrings and nearly 2,000 shad were caught in Bertie county in one haul recently.——The railways have made a rate of one cent a mile for the Raleigh Monument unveiling, May 20th.——Ex Judge W. N. Mebane died at his home, Madison, the 22d ult.——Unless the people of Raleigh raise $3,000 the State Fair may not be held next fall.——Dr. J. H. Smith, Presbyterian, has been pastor at Greensboro thirty-six years.——The North Carolina Abstract and Title Company is making copies of deeds, will, etc., etc., in the larger counties of the State.——The statement that the McAnulty gold mine sold for $35,000 is incorrect; annoption on the property sold for $2,500.——The case of the North State Improvement Company against the C. F. & Y. V. Railroad has been compromised, the former getting about $200,000; the road will be organized.——The grand jury of Buncombe county has found a true bill against the chiefest of Trusts—the Standard Oil Company.——Mayor Gentry of Walnut Cove who was arrested on charge of killing a drunken negro resisting officers, has been set at liberty.

In General.

The Seaboard Air Line Railway has been granted an injunction to keep certain other roads from boycotting it until the matter can be carried to the Georgia Supreme Court.——Russia, Germany and France are much displeased with the Japan-China treaty, and the first named is making demands that will give trouble. The persecution of Stundists in Russia has not abated, as was expected after the late Czar's death. ——The Indiana soldier colony—the biggest movement of the kind in modern times—consisting of 40,000 people, is arranging to migrate from Indiana and the central West to Georgia. Ex-Gov. Northern is directing the movement.——It is officially announced that the last Congress appropriated in its late session $497,008,520.——Speaker Peele of the English House of Commons has been succeeded by Mr. Gulley. The former retires on a handsome yearly pension.——Evangelist Moody prayed for rain the 22d ult. at Fort Worth. That night while 10,000 people were assembled at the tabernacle, singing praise for the prospects of rain, the storm broke with such force that the roof gave way, and over forty people were injured, one fatally.——A "sound money" convention is to be held at Memphis May 23, and Secretary Carlisle will be one of the speakers.——By the death of editor Scott and a great stroke of business by Mr. Kohlsaat, a great political party was rendered without a political organ in Chicago. A new paper will be started with a million dollars behind it.——Nicaragua unfortunately arrested and imprisoned Mr. Hatch, a consular representative of England, on the ground that he had had part in a plot against the Nicaragua government. England resented the action and demanded seventy-seven thousand dollars indemnity. Nicaragua wished to leave the matter to arbitration; but England is unwilling, and has sent three warships to the coasts of the halting country and landed some soldiers. On general principles, the United States takes it as wise to prevent transatlantic nations getting hold in America; and is consequently desirous of helping Nicaragua. The latest advice is that the United States will not interfere.——The meat trust is running up prices; so is the oil trust; so are all trusts.

Catarrh of the Kidneys.

SOMETIMES CALLED BRIGHT'S DISEASE—DR. HARTMAN'S LATEST LECTURE.

In the course of a recent lecture at the Surgical Hotel Dr. Hartman said:

"Catarrh of the Kidneys is a very common disease, growing more and more common each year. The symptoms are pain in the back; scanty, high colored urine, containing albumen and various sediments; nausea, and sometimes vomiting; puffiness of the face and feet; dropsy of the legs; shortness of breath and general weakness, pallor and dryness of the skin, chilly feelings, alternating with fever and sleeplessness.

"A tablespoonful of Pe-ru-na should be taken before each meal, between meals, and at bed time, and enough Man-a-lin at night to produce one natural action of the bowels each day. When the disease is of long-standing heated Pe ru-na should be applied to the back in addition to the above treatment, and the diet consist principally of milk and dry toast. Avoid liquors and tobacco."

BUFFALO
LITHIA WATER
Springs Nos. 1 and 2.—Their Relative Value as Nerve Tonics, and as a Remedy in Uric Acid Diathesis, Gout and Rheumatism.

Dr. William A. Hammond, Washington, D. C., Surgeon-General U. S. Army (retired), formerly Professor of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System in the University of New York:

"I have recently made much use of the No. 1 Spring BUFFALO LITHIA WATER and in my opinion it is equal, and in several respects superior to the water from the noted No. 1 Spring. Thus, while quite as efficacious as a solvent for any excess of uric acid existing in the blood, it appears to have greater power in dissolving the deposits of urates that appear about the small joints in gouty and rheumatic persons, and in dissipating the tenderness of the bones and articulations which so generally is attendant on these conditions. In such cases I have known it to act with surprising thoroughness and rapidity.

"Recognizing the fact that the water of Spring No. 2 is an admirable tonic to the nervous system and a promotor of digestion in cases of nervous dyspepsia, I am very sure from the personal experience that the water of Spring No. 1 is superior in many cases. It's difficult to lay down any definite rules to establish the relative value of the water of these two springs when both are so good, I think, however, that the water of No. 1 Spring is especially to be relied upon in cases in which the patient is decidedly anæmic. I have definitely established this point by examinations of the blood, with a hæmacytomer and hæmotometer."

Dr. Wm. T. Howard, of Baltimore, Prof. of Diseases of Women and Children in the Univ. of Maryland, referring to Spring No. 1, says:

"Were I called upon to state from what mineral waters I have seen the greatest and most unmistakable amount of good accrue in the largest number of cases in a general way I would unhesitatingly say the Buffalo Springs, in Mecklenburg County, Virginia."

This water is for sale by druggists generally, or in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles $5.00 f. o. b. at the Springs. Descriptive pamphlets sent to any address.

The Gunmaker of Ilion

JEFFERSON M. CLOUGH REFUSES A TEMPTING OFFER FROM THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT.

HIS HEALTH WAS TOO POOR TO PERMIT ATTENTION TO BUSINESS. A GREAT SUFFERER FOR MANY YEARS BUT HAS NOW RECOVERED.

(From the Springfield, Mass., Union)

There isn't a gun manufacturer in the United States, who does not know Jefferson M. Clough, and why? Because he has been intimately associated all his life with the development of the two best American rifles, the Remington and Winchester. For years he was Superintendent of the E. Remington & Son's great factory at Ilion, N. Y. After leaving there he refused a tempting offer of the Chinese Government to go to China to superintend their government factories,—and accepted instead the superintendency of the Winchester Arms Co., at New Haven, at a salary of $7,500 a year.

It was after this long term of active labor as a business man that he found himself incapacitated for further service by the embargo which rheumatism had laid upon him and resigned his position more than two years ago, and returned to Belchertown, Mass., where he now lives and owns the Phelps farm, a retired spot where he has five hundred acres of land.

Being a man of means he did not spare the cost and was treated by leading physicians and by baths at celebrated springs without receiving any benefit worth notice. During the summer of 1893 and the winter of 1894 Mr. Clough was confined to his house in Belchertown, being unable to rise from his bed without assistance, and suffering continually with acute pains and with no taste or desire for food, nor was he able to obtain sufficient sleep.

Early in the year 1894 Mr. Clough heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He began taking these pills about the first of March 1894 and continued to do so until the first part of September following. The first effect noticed was a better appetite and he began to note more ability to help himself off the bed and to be better generally. Last August (1894) he was able to go alone to his summer residence and farm of 168 acres on Grenadier Island, among the Thousand Islands, in the river St. Lawrence, where from the highest land of his farm he commands a view for 18 miles down the river, and 60 of the Thousand Islands can be seen.

Instead of being confined to his bed Mr. Clough is now and has been for sometime able to be about the farm to direct the men employed there and he is thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for him.

These pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk. They may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

Railway Rates to S. B. Convention.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

To the delegates and others who will attend the Southern Baptist Convention to be held in Washington, D. C., the Southern Railway Company will sell tickets at the rate of one lowest first-class fare for the round trip. Tickets will be sold May 7 and 8, good for fifteen days, and if deposited with ticket agent at Washington on or before May 16th, an extension of fifteen days additional will be granted.

The Southern is the only trunk line which extends from the South into Washington over its own tracks, passing through the historic battlefields of Virginia. By this line you will pass through Danville, Lynchburg, Charlottesville, Culpepper, Manassas, and other historic points.

We have recently placed a first-class day-coach on our Washington and Southwestern Vestibuled Limited trains for the benefit of passengers who wish to use this train and do not desire to occupy Pullman cars.

See that your ticket reads via the Southern Railway. The undersigned will be glad to furnish any further information desired.

Dr. Gambrell Favors All Forms of the Y. P. Movement.

The RECORDER recently had this:

"Last week it was announced by telegraph that Dr. J. B. Gambrell wished to have it understood that, while he signed the call for Y. P. Conference (?) at Washington, he is an advocate of the National B. Y. P. U. He was under the impression that a conference—not a rally for a set plan—was to be held. There are many who, like him, [illegible] their names to this call, thinking that a conference on the subject would do good and could not do harm. But they have been paraded as seeking a Southern B. Y. P. organization."

When a brother gets into the papers at a time when there is excitement, he is apt to be put in a great many shapes before he knows it. I think I know where I stand on this whole business. Let me state myself. I am an advocate for unions in the local churches, under the control of the local churches. Then I favor a State Union in each State. Next I favor a Southern Union for the good it can do in the South, and signed the call for the Washington Conference with that in view. And lastly, I favor the International Union for purposes impossible to be accomplished by any smaller organization.

But I do not favor the organic connection of these general bodies. Let each stand in its place and do its own work. But I do favor, as fundamental in the whole business, the large recognition of the right of the local churches to determine the affiliations of the local Unions, and I will go with nothing that does not, in terms distinct and unmistakable, recognize the control of the churches over the unions in them.

I further favor more consideration and accuracy of information concerning the movement, with more toleration and prayer than are indicated by a good many writers at the present time.

Bro. Editor, the foregoing places me. I forbear to give the reasons for my positions, as that would take more time than I have to give and more space than you have to spare.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews; Rev. J. N. Stallings; R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges; Rev. I. W. Thomas; Rev. J. M. Hilliard; Rev. N. B. Orrell; Rev. J. C. Sorrells; Rev. C. B. Justice; Rev. J. L. Smith; Rev. S. B. Barnes; Rev. E. C. Bobbitt; Rev. A. J. Bordeaux; Rev. W. B. Harrell; Rev. Thos. G. Wood; Rev. Samuel Saunders; Rev. G. M. Webb.

When fevers and other epidemics are around, safety lies in fortifying the system with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A person having thin and impure blood, is in the most favorable condition to "catch" whatever disease may be floating in the air. Be wise in time.

There will be a baptizing to-morrow afternoon at the Baptist church at four o'clock by Rev. F. W. Hilliard of the Episcopal church. Mr. Beard, the candidate for baptism, has joined the Episcopal church, and preferring to be immersed, the use of the Baptist church and pool were procured for that purpose.—Monroe Journal.

DIED.

RUARK—Died in Wilmington, N. C., on Feb. 8th, 1895, sister Elizabeth Ruark, wife of deacon J. H. Ruark, in the fifty-first year of her age. Sister Ruark confessed Christ as her Saviour in 1857 and united with Orange St. Baptist church in this city during the pastorate of A. Paul Repston. She was a devoted wife and mother, a good and faithful servant to her Lord, and a diligent worker in the church. She was a great sufferer, but she endured as seeing him who is invisible. May the special care of our God be over them she has left behind. R. E. PEELE.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst on April 4th, 1895, our much-esteemed brother and coworker in every department of church work, R. I. Rogers; and while to us the death of such a friend and faithful servant is an unsolved problem, yet knowing that our Father, who rules the universe and doeth all things well, knows best, we bow submissively to his will.

Resolved 1. That in the death of Bro. Rogers our church loses a faithful member and our Sunday-school an active worker, he having belonged to it more than eighteen years.

Resolved 2. That we extend to his wife and tender little children, and also to his brothers and sisters, our heartfelt sympathy, and commend them to the God of all grace, who is the only comfort in the hour of affliction.

Resolved 3. That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the records of the Sunday-school, and that they be published in the city papers and the BIBLICAL RECORDER, and a copy be sent to the family of our deceased brother.

TRADE MARK

The following testimonial speaks for itself:—

WELLFORD, S. C., March 20th, 1895.

My Dear Sir:—After using the Electropoise six weeks on my family and a few neighbors, have realized great satisfaction in pulmonary troubles, colds and rheumatism. I am satisfied that it will, if used judiciously, break up any case of pneumonia. In fact I believe it a panacea for all human ills. We now consider the 'poise an essential member of the family.

Very truly, J. A BELL, Pastor Baptist Church.

We will gladly send hundreds more like this, as well as terms for rent and sale. Why not let us? Reliable agents wanted.

The Land O' the Leal.

I'm wearin' awa', John,
  Like snow-wreaths in thaw, John;
I'm wearin' awa'
    To the land o' the leal.
There's nae sorrow there, John;
  There's neither cauld nor care, John
The day's aye fair
    I' the land o' the leal.

Our bonny bairn's there, John;
  She was baith gude and fair, John;
And oh! we grudged her sair
    To the land o' the leal.
But sorrow' sel' wears past, John—
  And joy's a-coming' fast, John—
The joy that's aye to last
    In the land o' the leal.

Sae dear that joy was bought, John,
  Sae free the battle fought, John,
That sinfu' man e'er brought
    To the land o' the leal
Oh, dry your glistening ee, John!
  My soul langs to be free, John;
And angels beckon me
    To the land o' the leal.

Oh, haud ye leal and true, John;
  Your day it's wearin' through, John;
And I'll welcome you
    To the land o' the leal.
Now, fare-ye-weel, my ain John;
  This world's cares are vain, John;
We'll meet and we'll be fain,
    In the land o' the leal.

"Pinching Yourself to Give."

Mr. Horn often used to say: "There's one thing that lots of good people will never know in this world, and 'tis one o' the things we shan't know anything about in heaven itself—the joy of really pinching yourself to give. I often think that that is the blessed thing about being hard up, when you do give; then you feel it."

It was with a merry laugh that he would tell the younger members that, when he had been at the class meeting three or four times, he said one evening, "Put me down, please, for a penny a week." The leader looked at me through his spectacles and opened his mouth wide, and, after a minute or two, said, "What!" as if he were quite frightened.

"A penny a week, sir," I said, putting down the money for each evening I had been at class. The leader was what you might call a common sort of a man, for they are the commonest sort of people that I know. He thought that the less he could give, the better, and if he could do without giving at all, it would be better still, just as if the Lord did not see what was left behind. The man was in good work, and had no family, and yet a penny a week was all he gave. It looked so bad for a lad like I was to give so much.

"You can't afford it, Jim; you know you can't." "Put it down, sir," I replied, "put it down. There it is, and there it will be as long as ever I've got the love of Jesus in my heart."

Soon after that came the time for renewal of the quarterly tickets. The leader headed the list with what Mr. Horn used to call a "beggarly three-penny bit." "Why, the fellow spends twice as much in the week for tobacco," he would say indignantly, as if interrupting himself—"sixpence for smoke, and threepence for the work of God!"

Well, the minister went through the names, and they all sung to the low key that had been pitched till they came to my name. Then what did the leader do but lean over and whisper that I was young and could not give anything, and he had better not ask me! The minister nodded his head and took up the hymn-book.

"Please, sir, I love God, too," I said; "why mayn't I give anything!"

The minister looked at me kindly, and said, "Brother Skimes tells me that you can't afford anything."

I replied, "The rule says a shilling at least, sir, every week except in extreme poverty, and that isn't the state with any of us I am sure, and I wish you to put down a shilling for me."

"A shilling!" cried the leader, and he jumped off his seat as if some one had pricked him.

"There's the money," said I, as I put the shilling on the table. "I would afford it somehow, sir, however it might pinch me." And I looked at Brother Skimes so much as to say, "Though it should even put my pipe out."

"Ay, I used to pinch myself, too," continued Mr. Horn. "More than once I have gone on dry bread, and then done so much as any of 'em. Now and then I used to buy a lot of broken herrings for sixpence, and then I had a bit of relish. You know that there is nothing like bitters to give you an appetite, and it is when you give away what you want that you enjoy what's left. Try it. Give away half of your dinner; and then the other half! bless ye, the Lord Mayor of London might envy it. If anybody wants to taste a bit o' real joy, let 'em just go and do that. I've often turned it over in my mind that love is real true love when it has got a bit of real hard pinchin' sacrifice about it, and not till then.

"Kindness and pity will give you, perhaps, what it thinks it can do without, but love gives everything. 'He spared not his own Son'—that is love. 'Hereby perceive we the love of God, because He laid down His life for us.' Kindness and pity will send the scraps and bones to the shivering beggar at the door, but love brings him in and gives up its place and its plate and will stand behind waiting and helping. Ah! that's how the blessed Lord treated us when we came home from the far country perishing with hunger.

No old, cast-off clothes, but the best robes. No scraps—all bones and crusts—but the fatted calf. No pitiful words, but Himself. His arms about the neck and His kiss upon the cheek, and all His heart welcome us. But we, when He comes to ask anything of us, keep Him waiting at the door for an answer, and then we send Him out our miserable scrappings—just what we think we can spare without feeling it. Depend upon it, we don't know much about love if love don't pinch us now and then."
—Mark Guy Pearse, in "Mister Horn."

The Home Life of Children.

It behooves parents to give the public school teachers full authority over the children during school hours.

Our public school teachers, as a class, are humane, considerate and well qualified for their supreme task. Standing as they do in the place of parents, they cannot suffer undue interference from the parents whose place they take. Order, discipline, progress in study and habits of obedience in school depend largely upon the pupil's conviction of the authority in the class room.

The home life of the child should emphasize the right lessons it learns abroad, and correct the wrong ones. Nowhere so easily and naturally can a child be taught correct habits, neatness, politeness, respect for age, modesty and gentleness as at home. Here, above everywhere else, a child learns to speak properly; to know the meaning of words, the use of the voice, the grammar and possibilities of the English tongue.

The voice of a child is almost a sure indication of its home training, and parents and all the elders of the home circle cannot too anxiously strive to set examples of "living wells of English undefiled." Every well-trained child is sent to a Sunday school, and here again is danger suggested. The time has passed when religious habits were so undeviating and loveless and rigid as to make their observance a terror and an exasperation to the wandering minds and restless limbs of the children of the household.

But unless a healthy, wholesome piety prevails, and devotional customs are maintained, the child grows to believe that religion is for Sunday only, and the absence of it fitting for the other days of the week. Parents who have grown careless or indifferent in observance with age or multiplying cares are apt to forget the lasting influence of early impressions on children. Until they are fit to walk alone, it is the right of children to be guided. Example is the best guide.—New York Express.

On Bad Handwriting.

One of the most important things for boys or girls to learn to do is to write plainly, so that those who have to read what they write are left in no doubt as to their meaning. Several amusing stories of the embarrassment which has followed not learning to write legibly are told. One of these is of a Massachusetts clergyman who nearly got himself into a peck of trouble because of the bad quality of his handwriting. It was more than a century ago that this clergyman had occasion to address a letter to the General Court of Massachusetts upon some subject of great interest at that time. When the letter was received the Court ordered the clerk to read it, and were filled with wrath at what appeared to be these words in opening; "I address you not as magistrates, but as Indian devils."

"What!" they cried. "Read that over again. How does he address us?"

"Not as magistrates, but as Indian devils," repeated the clerk. "That's what he says."

The letter was passed around, and the judges were by no means pleased to see that the clerk had apparently made no mistake. Very angry at what they believed to be an insult, the judges passed a vote of censure upon the clergyman, and wrote to him demanding an apology. He came before them in person, when it turned out that where the judges had read Indian devils he had written individuals—which, of course, made an apology unnecessary; but the reverend gentleman was admonished to improve his handwriting if he wished to keep out of trouble.—Harper's Young People.

Household Recipes.

A Good Sauce.—One cupful of sifted sugar, half a cupful of butter, stirred to a cream; then add one large cupful of boiling milk, and a desert spoonful of ground cinnamon; stir briskly until smooth; pour into sauce-boat. May be eaten hot or cold.

Graham Bread.—To three small cupfuls of white flour sponge add a tablespoonful of molasses or sugar, half a teacup of corn-meal, salt to taste, and half a pint of warm milk or water, with enough graham flour to make a stiff dough. When light, fill the baking pans half full, and when risen, bake.

Chocolate Cake.—Four eggs, two cups flour, one-half cup sweet milk, one-half cup butter, one cup grated chocolate (Baker's), one teaspoon baking powder (heaping), one teaspoonful baking soda, one tablespoon cornstarch. Flavor with vanilla. Put together with boiled icing. When mixing, sift flour, cornstarch, soda and baking powder together.

Ginger Bread.—Work a cupful of butter until creamy, then mix with it a cupful of brown sugar. Separate the whites and yolks of four eggs, and beat both until light, frothing the whites. Stir the eggs with the butter and sugar, and add a cupful of sour cream, mixed with a cupful of molasses; before putting the molasses and cream together add to the cream two teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved in a little warm water. Measure four cupfuls of flour, and mix with it a teaspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of yellow ginger. Add this to the batter. Do all the mixing as quickly and lightly as possible. Bake thirty minutes with a moderate heat.

One shall life in God's great plan,
  How futile it seems as the ages roll!
Do what it may, or strive how it can,
  To alter the sweep of the infinite whole.
A single stitch in an endless web,
A drop in the ocean's flow and ebb,
But the pattern is rent where the stitch is lost,
Or marred where the tangled threads have crossed;
And each life that fails of its true intent
Mars the perfect plan that its Master meant.

In sending letters of business, it is absolutely necessary that you give your postoffice address in full.

The date on the label of your paper indicates when your subscription expires, and also serves as a receipt for your money.

Obituaries, sixty words long, are inserted free of charge. When they exceed this number, one cent for each word should be paid in advance.

When writing to have your paper changed, please state the postoffice at which you receive the paper, as well as the one to which you wish it changed.

Remittances must be sent by Registered Letter, Postal Order, Express or Draft, payable to the order of the Publisher.

Do not send stamps.

THE best work is done and most victories gained by those who labor under the impression that the chances are against them. A race-horse cannot break a record unless there is another horse running strong at his throat-latch. One never knows what he can do until odds have compelled him before he knows it to do all he can. A man whose path is even all the way cannot do himself justice; he never gets a fair chance. One has to be driven to do his best.

The men who succeed are those who begin to make the battle hot when the other side begins to celebrate its victory. Every real failure is first of all a failure of will. The poor boys who become great men leave thousands of rich men's sons behind, who never had a fair opportunity to develop their powers, and thousands of other poor ones, who gave up in a crisis, a thousand like which a good heart would have turned favorably.

One of the pastors in this State, an humble Christian man who would be as surprised as any one to know that we have him in mind, learned how to read by the light of pine knots in a lowly farm house; his boyhood, youth and young manhood spent in rough and unceasing work. His times were hard indeed. Many a young man, many a father grieving at his impotence to educate a son or daughter, lets slip far better opportunities than this boy had, and becomes resigned to what is called adverse fate. Our preacher, on the contrary, made use of all the chance he had, and now he is, in our opinion, the master of a literary style (though he never knew a grammar) which for genuineness, clearness and force is not surpassed by that of any other writer for this paper. And to this his struggles have added an unusual degree of common sense and knowledge of men and things in general. Suppose he had given up to "adverse fate"!

Were it possible, every young man and woman should go to school. But where it is impossible, it is none the more reasonable to give up. Study of a single book, the reading of a good paper, at odd times by snatches, is well enough where one can do no better. Indeed great leaders of college men have laid the foundation of their education in just such conditions.

PUBLIC officers, grand juries, solicitors and others, none of whose duties have we been expressly set to prescribe, walk about our streets as composed and peaceful-minded as if all their lives were a May day and there were no insolent breaking of the laws, which the people set them to uphold. We are determined that something shall be done with the institutions that seem to us to come within the definition of trusts, those unlawful examples of the "communism of self."

Somebody's duty has long remained undone. We honestly confess we cannot say whose; but certain it is that between the Governor, the Attorney General, the district attorneys, the solicitors and the grand juries, no law should be trampled under foot.

A negro in the penitentiary for stealing fifty cents worth of corn, a trust fattening off the people's leanness, is a spectacle that cannot be tolerated; it is a commentary on government more potent to undermine than all the sophistry of anarchists.

A STATE FAIR is indispensable. International or inter-State expositions are seldom worth the money that they consume, magnificent and instructive though they are; but a State fair is almost essential to real progress in agriculture or manufactures.

That many of our fairs have not been what they ought to have been, that bands and fakirs and horse-races have sometimes been the sum and substance of them, is sadly true; but the need for a real exhibition of North Carolina products in every branch of industry is none the less real. Last fall the fair was creditable, and unquestionable benefits are being reaped from it; but it was nothing like what the present authorities will accomplish, if the co-operation of the people whom a fair benefits, that is the people of the State, is secured.

Although the fair has been run by a society of stockholders, they do not make money out of it. On the contrary, they have lost so heavily that they are about to give up. We hope such a calamity to the State may be averted; and that the people will have another opportunity of showing such appreciation of the fair as will make any doubt of its future unreasonable.

UNFORTUNATE revelations of our inability to properly judge men sometimes come upon us with amazing suddenness; but we should not let them linger with us, except for a lesson; and above all we should not suffer our faith in fellowman to be shaken. The most wholesome course is to turn the mind to nobler things, and to make a rule of resisting the temptation to let appearances too strongly prejudice us one way or another.

Religion aside, moral nature aside, it is past understanding how a man with a home can commit crimes which he knows will destroy the happiness of his family and shadow his name for generations. But it is done, nevertheless; and wonder as we may, this is one instance in which, so far as causes are concerned, 'hindsight' is no clearer than 'foresight.' The making of a noble man or a criminal is in little things, first steps, insignificant good deeds, or giving up to small temptations in which it is easy to think "there is no harm;" and maybe there is none in the deed itself, but unspeakable evil and suffering is likely to be in what its repetition smoothly leads to. No man is safe unless he strives without ceasing as he grows up to present at all times an adamantine front to temptation. Such statements as these are commonplaces to intelligent men; but many seem not to have believed them.

Honesty as a policy may fail, because policy men are seldom of sufficiently strong character to consistently maintain a policy; but it is nevertheless the best policy. As a duty, it may fail; for all depends on one's sense of duty and sensitiveness of conscience; but it is nevertheless at all times a duty. As a part of one's religion it may fail, but hardly, if one's religion be alive; for religion gives true character to one's principles and makes them the guide of policy, and keeps the conscience awake to duty, incessantly repelling temptation.

But when a man who seems to have been a Christian falls, there is no reason to doubt the potency for good of his religion, even if it is granted that he was really not a hypocrite. Look rather at the tens of thousands who are stronger and stronger in their steadfastness against temptation. It is not just to make one man a test of so general a force as Christianity; no more is it reasonable to make one a test of all. To be suspicious of all men is enough to worry one to death; and it will surely make life unbearable. One can be trustful without being childish, and he can be careful, slow to make a confidant of one, without being miserably suspicious.

THE picture of a rotund, wine-soaked, bond holding sort of a worthy, standing on the shores of England, just recovering his balance after sending a foot-ball skyward with a vigorous kick, is a cartoonist's idea of England's respect for our cherished "Monroe Doctrine;" and he is not far wrong.

There is always an international squabble somewhere. Of late the lower end of North America has come forward as the subject of serious speculation. England has made a claim against Nicaragua; the latter asks for arbitration humbly, like one who has a good conscience, and if not that, like one who can do no better; but England, bully of nations that she is, has no patience for arbitration, except when the other nation is of considerable power.

According to the Monroe Doctrine (which has been given not less than a hundred meanings in the last four weeks) it is a part of our country's international policy to stand by the Western hemisphere against Eastern encroachments. But when it comes to making war with England over a claim of $70,000 against Nicaragua, it looks like our representatives may prefer to let England make a foot-ball of the boasted doctrine just this one time, on the ground of expediency rather than principle.

This Nicaragua matter is really of no great importance, but England's attitude is. To England it was well enough for the United States to consent to arbitrate her claim to what we had a clear title to, and it was well enough for England to get privileges in Bering sea by that arbitration which she should not have; and this is what makes her refusal to arbitrate this Nicaragua matter seem so insolent and overbearing.

England is notorious for taking advantage of weak nations. She is destroying China with opium, and India is stifled by her selfishness; she could prevent the Turks' massacres of the Armenians, but she finds it good policy to leave them to the merciless heathen.

We would do well to learn this nation to keep her distance from our possessions, and we could wish that the United States would drive her battle ships from Nicaragua, even if it seems inadvisable to have so great a stir about so little a matter.

A Plan for Harmony.

TO THE BRETHREN WHO WILL ASSEMBLE AT WASHINGTON, D. C., IN THE INTEREST OF OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Permit me to present the following plan which I think will harmonize all our Baptist forces in the South, and will inaugurate a blessed movement which will do great good.

Let the conference at Washington recognize the importance of the wide-spread interest in the better training of our Baptist people, especially the young, and present to the Convention something like the following:

WHEREAS, There is great need of training our young people, in fact all our people, in Baptist history, doctrine, polity, &c.; and whereas, there is at the present time a wide-spread interest in the better training of our young people, especially; and whereas, such is the importance of this work that it ought to enlist all the gifts and energies of the Lord's people; and whereas, to insure wise direction of the work, it seems that the entire membership of the churches should become responsible for it; therefore Resolved 1. That we advise that at the approaching session of our Southern Baptist Convention, and at each succeeding session of the body, a committee be appointed to report upon the work of the denomination for the better training of our young people, and that the first day of the Convention be set apart for the hearing and discussion of the report of said committee.

2 That the Convention be requested to advise the churches to provide for such special meetings and services as they may deem wise for the better training, development and utilization of the gifts and forces among our young members, and that any disposition on the part of our younger people to separate themselves from the older brethren and sisters be everywhere discouraged; but rather that the churches encourage the older, wiser brethren and sisters to take hold with the younger people, directing and helping the work of training and developing all the gifts of the churches.

3 That the Convention be further requested to continue, through the Sunday-school Board, the publication of the Young People's Leader, and that the Board be instructed to cause the policy and views of the paper to correspond with the above resolutions.

4. That the Convention appoint a committee consisting of Drs. J. M. Frost, T. T. Eaton, W. H. Whitsitt, J. B. Gambrell and Wm. E. Hatcher, who, in connection with the Sunday school Board, shall prepare and publish a series of text-books to be used in our churches in these meetings for instruction;—said text-books to treat of church history, church order, biblical antiquities, biblical interpretation, and such other subjects as may seem proper; that these publications be issued by our Sunday-school Board, be sold at a very low price, and that the proceeds after deducting expenses be divided equally between our Home, our Foreign and our Sunday-school Board.

5. That the Convention recommend that at our State Conventions and District Associations reports be made and discussions had upon the subject, and if deemed necessary, mass meetings be held and great enthusiasm be awakened throughout our entire territory.

To my mind, the above will harmonize all our forces. It accomplishes every good which is suggested by those who favor the movement, and preserves our long cherished Baptist principle—the church the unit of all organization in the kingdom of Jesus.

The Little Preachers—More Needed.

"Go tell John, the poor have the gospel preached unto them."

The great need of our State to-day is more little preachers. Yes, those little preachers "sorter like Philip," who love to preach the gospel to the poor. What would be the message of to-day? "Go tell John, lots of our big preachers must have 'inviting fields'; otherwise, they go to other States in search of such fields. It seems that they can't afford to bother and waste their noble talents on poor or common fields (the poor)."

Hence, the great need of a host of common or little preachers. Let me repeat the great demand of to-day is a host of more little, humble preachers, so that the messenger might still "tell John the poor have the gospel preached unto them."

R. Q. A. TEAGUE.

Christ asks that our love should resemble his, if it cannot equal it. A pearl of dew cannot hold the sun, but it may hold a spark of its light. A child by the sea trying to catch the waves cannot hold the ocean in a tiny shell, but he can hold a drop of the ocean water.—Stanford.

There is evil enough in man, God knows. But it is not the mission of every young man and woman to detail and report it all. Keep the atmosphere as pure as possible, and fragrant with gentleness and charity.—Dr. John Hall.

Christ-Likeness.

BY REV. JNO. T. ALBRITTON.

It should be the burning aspiration of every believing soul to be like the blessed Saviour in the promptness and cheerfulness of his obedience and the holiness of his heart and life.

Many of the Lord's people, with sadness be it said, fail, at the very threshold of the Christian life, to conform to the plain command and glorious example of their divine Master, to their own great detriment and the grief of their beloved brethren.

I mean the command to be baptized. If Christ has commanded his people to be baptized, they ought cheerfully to obey him. If he himself was baptized, we should the more readily obey, if we would be like him, and be filled with his grace and truth.

If there were a thousand modes of baptism, the believer should never be satisfied with any other than that mode to which his Master submitted. We should not care a groat for any other mode. For we may be sure that he selected the best and only mode to express the great truths which the holy rite symbolizes.

How was Christ baptized? The significance of the word used to express the act, the circumstances attending Christ's baptism, the symbolic teachings of the rite,—especially the burial and resurrection of the Saviour,—and the language used by the inspired writer in his account of Christ's baptism,—all concur in fixing upon the mind and heart of the earnest inquirer the belief that the Saviour was immersed by John in the river Jordan. Indeed, instead of various modes of baptism, there is but one mode, and the mode is the thing itself.

It is amazing to see how Pedobaptist scholarship bears testimony to Christ's immersion. Hear the following witnesses, every one of whom is a Pedobaptist:—

John Wesley came across the ocean to Savannah, Ga., in 1736, and soon afterwards, or Feb. 27, 1736, made this entry in his journal: "Mary Welch, aged eleven, was baptized according to the custom of the first church and the rule of the Church of England, by immersion. The child was ill then, but recovered from that hour."

The following extract from Moore's Life of Wesley, Vol. 1, page 425, shows that he believed immersion to be the Apostolic baptism:

"When Mr. Wesley baptized adults professing faith in Christ, he choose to do it by trine immersion, if the persons would submit to it, judging this to be the Apostolic method of baptizing. Oct. 23, 1739, he says, 'I baptized Mr. Wiggington in the river by Baptist Mills and went on my way rejoicing.'"

A few years afterwards, or about 1754, he wrote his Notes on the New Testament. I quote from the American Edition of 1812, by Daniel Hitt and Thomas Ware. His comment on Rom. 6: 4, "We are buried with him," is this: "Alluding to the ancient manner of baptizing." His note on Colossians 2: 12, "Buried with him in baptism," reads thus: "The ancient manner of baptizing by immersion is as manifestly alluded to here, as the other manner of baptizing by sprinkling or pouring of water is in Heb. 10: 22."

Adam Clarke says of Christ, in his notes on the eighth chapter of Proverbs, that he "was baptized in Jordan." In his notes on Rom. 6: 4, he says: "It is probable that the Apostle here alludes to the mode of administering baptism by immersion." On Colossians 2: 12, he says: "Alluding to the immersions practiced in the case of adults, wherein the person appeared to be buried under the water, as Christ was buried in the heart of the earth." In his notes on 1 Cor. 15: 29, he says, "as they receive baptism as an emblem of death, in voluntarily going under the water; so they receive it as an emblem of the resurrection unto eternal life, in coming up out of the water, thus they are baptized for the dead, in perfect faith of the resurrection."

The Roman Catholics defend their practice of sprinkling on the ground of tradition and church authority, frankly admitting that immersion was in most ancient times the practice of the church. Cardinal Gibbons says, in his "Faith of our Fathers": "For several centuries after the establishment of Christianity, baptism was usually conferred by immersion; but since the 12th century, the practice of baptizing by infusion has prevailed in the Catholic church." —See page 275.

Dr. Philip Schaff, the renowned professor in the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Mercersburg, Penn., at the time of his death a Presbyterian, says in his "History of the Apostolic Church," page 568, "Immersion, and not sprinkling, was unquestionably the original, normal form (i. e., of baptism). This is shown by the very meaning of the Greek words baptizo, baptisma, baptismos, used to designate the rite. Then again, by the analogy of the baptism of John, which was performed in the Jordan."

Dr. Olshausen, the learned theologian and commentator, says in his N. T. Commentary: "It is in the highest degree probable that John's baptism resembled the Christian, not only in the fact that the baptizer performed immersion upon the one to be baptized," &c.

Dr. G. C. Knapp says, in his Theology (Eng. Trans., page 486), "Immersion is peculiarly agreeable to the institution of Christ, and the practice of the Apostolic church, and so even John baptized, and immersion remained common for a long time after."

Dean Stanley of Westminster testifies: "The plunge into the bath of purification, long known among the Jewish nation as the symbol of a change of life, was still retained as the pledge of entrance into this new and universal communion,—retained under the sanction of him into whose name they were by that solemn rite baptized."

Dr. Cunningham Geikie testifies in his Life of Christ, "Immersion by one like John, with strict and humbling confession of sin, sacred vows of amendment, and hope of forgiveness, and all this in preparation for the Messiah, was something wholly new in Israel."

Dr. H. A. W. Meyer, in his note on Matt. 3: 6, says: "The thing visibly and sensibly symbolized in John's baptism was the repentance. But the immersion of the entire person answered to this, because repentance should concern and purify the entire man."

All these great men, and many more that I might quote, were Pedobaptists. How they could be such, and yet express such views of baptism, are above presented, I cannot understand. One thing we do know, however, and that is, they believed that our Saviour was immersed by John in the Jordan.

The thing for you to do, my unbaptized brother or sister, is to be baptized as your Saviour was baptized, and you should do it without unnecessary delay, if you would have the answer of a good conscience, and the peace of God filling your soul. May the Holy Spirit impress upon your hearts the blessed words of the loving Apostle, "He that saith he abideth in him, ought himself so to walk, even as he walked." I John 2: 6.

A Trip to Soochow.

BY REV. B. T. BRYAN, D. D.

Having received a special invitation from brethren Britton and Lawton, Bro. Tatum and I concluded to make a visit to Soochow, and at the same time visit our little church in Quinsan.

We engaged a small cabin on a little steam tug for $3.50 and started at 5:30 Tuesday, Feb. 26th. Our patience was a little tried by having to wait one hour and a half, four o'clock being the schedule time, but we congratulated ourselves on being on a steamboat.

We retired early expecting to wake up next morning almost to Soochow, but as usual we were doomed to disappointment. We found next morning that our little tug was pulling nine other boats about as large as itself, and had made only thirty-five miles during the night, about half of our journey. We ought to have reached Soochow by 10 a. m., but did not arrive until 7 p. m. "Time" may "fly" in China, but nothing else does, not even a steam engine.

In addition to having to go very slow, our engine sprang a leak somewhere, and kept a continual stream of hot steam pouring into our room all day. The steam condensed on the cold walls and came dripping down on us like a gentle spring shower. We cooked our dinner eggs by putting them over one of the large cracks through which the hot steam was pouring into our room. We thought it better to let the steam cook our eggs than to warm us up into fretting and worrying over what we could not prevent. Happy are those in China who know how to take advantage of every thing. Poor old China is full of leaks.

We spent a few days in Soochow, and enjoyed them very much. Bro. Britton can say of preaching, "This one thing I do," and Lawton can say the same about studying the language.

Bro. Tatum remarked that the man who selected the situation in Soochow and arranged the chapel, knew what he was doing. Father Yates showed good, remarkably good judgment in all the work he laid out for us younger missionaries. He was guided by Him who never errs. May we young missionaries be guided in building as wisely on the foundations laid for us.

Bro. Britton is preaching two and three times daily to good audiences. It was our pleasure to preach for him several times. He seemed to enjoy hearing us as much as we enjoyed preaching, for it had been so long since he had heard some one else preach, that he was hungry enough to enjoy even poor preaching.

I shall not take time to write you any more about Soochow, but leave Bro. Britton to tell you when he comes home. Sister Britton is in very poor health, and we advised them to take a vacation home this spring. She is too good a help meet and too good a missionary to be allowed to break completely down. They wish to remain here another year, and will do so if they can, but have already been advised by their physician to go home this spring, and may have to do so.

Bro. Lawton is making remarkably rapid progress in the language and will soon be able to begin preaching.

From Soochow we went to Quinsan and preached twice on Sunday in our church there. The native pastor died about five years ago, and we have not yet found a suitable man to take his place. Bro. Britton tries to visit them once a month. The first pastor gave the land, and Dr. Yates built a church and parsonage combined. Several of the members have recently died, and some have moved away, so that they now number only ten, but these are faithful. Our project

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 8, 1895.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

NORTH CAROLINA believes in the numerical system of representation at the Convention.

WHEN a man gets high enough to graduate from the Sunday-school, it is time to look into his habits—of thought, at least.

IT IS essential to keep in mind that the family—the home—is a divine institution, as well as the church. The duties of both are sacred.

STATE MISSIONS now demand the consideration of our people. In the providence of God there are always worthy objects in need. If this matter is treated now as it ought, there will be no need for alarming appeals later.

DR. G. B. EAGER will preach the annual sermon at the Convention, and Dr. W. H. Whitsitt will preach the historical sermon. The latter will be of such general importance that it will doubtless be given to the press as soon as possible.

THE Northern sisters work with balances in the Treasury: The Woman's American Baptist Home Mission Society began the year 1st April, 1894, with a balance on hand of $6,864.54, received during the year $37,531,38, and closed books April 1st, 1895, with a balance on hand of $8,538.30.

THE official account of the American Baptist Missionary Union for year ending March 31st, 1895, is as follows: Debt, April 1st, 1894, $303,595.96; appropriations for the year 1894-'5, $364,199.93; total obligations, $767,795.80. Receipts, $577,842 00. Debt April 1st, 1895, $189,953 80.

PASTORS, paying men to carry the gospel to your own people or to the children of your people, is putting a premium on Christian inactivity, on inactivity in the home.

There is such a thing as extravagance in religion, just as in anything else.

Instead of evangelising churches, let us turn our energies to carry the gospel to destitute places, at home and abroad.

THE N. C. Christian Advocate accused us of dodging several weeks ago, and asked the pointed question, whether John Wesley and Philip Schaff believed immersion was the apostolic mode of baptism. We hope the Advocate will do us the justice, since we answered the question affirmatively, of publishing the words of Wesley and Schaff, as quoted in Rev. John T. Albritton's article this week.

MAY God guide the proceedings of the fortieth session of the Southern Baptist Convention; and his blessings rest upon its delegates, the churches, and the objects for which it exists.

As an agency in the service of our Lord and Master, may its usefulness grow wider and wider until all the ends of the earth are blessed with a knowledge of the Saviour and the ministrations of the Holy Spirit.

A CONFERENCE of Baptist college presidents at Chicago in April, at which mostly Western colleges were represented, resulted in the organization of a Baptist Educational Union. In educational work there is more progress likely within the next decade than in any other channel of our denominational activity. The people are being aroused to its importance, and there are other reasons to look for immeasurable progress at no distant day.

WE ARE under obligations to the Atlantic Baptist, for kindly condemning a manifestly untrue statement sent to the Baptist Courier over an assumed name by a disreputable adventurer who seeks to injure the RECORDER because we value the reputs of our columns too highly to print his communications. He hides, or rather tries to, behind the signature, "The Many." We are sure that if he had signed his name to his article, our friends would not have been troubled any more by his misrepresentations than we were.

WE learn from the Foreign Mission Journal received Monday, that a calculation made last January indicated that the Board would report this week a debt of $50,000; but the Journal assures us "the account will stand far better than the calculation of January; it is impossible to say now how much." Last convention a debt of $20,000 was reported.

OUR FORTIETH CONVENTION.

THE Convention at Washington will not have anything of unusual interest to deal with, except the young people movement question; and so far as that is concerned, our State cannot be largely affected. Our churches are going to do in this matter as they have been doing—that is, as they please. We do not care to anticipate matters, but from the present outlook the Convention will not sanction any radical departure in this respect. The dangerous movement, inaugurated several weeks ago, to establish a Southern Union, has gone to pieces. It is only just to say that, among others, the name of at least of one of our North Carolina pastors has been prominently associated with this movement without his consent. There are possibly five pastors in the State that approve a Southern Union, and there are three or four who approve the National organization. The rest of them either say local organization, with annual meetings with our Convention, and in charge of a committee of the Convention, are sufficient, or favor none at all. We thank God that North Carolina is sounder in this respect than any other Southern State. We have in successful operation a plan that accomplishes all that is claimed for any other and yet avoids the dangerous tendencies and unscriptural departures of National or State organization.

It is to be regretted that our Boards will have to report debts; but we are not disposed to complain. North Carolina has done well. Money has not been free, but our contributions mount up encouragingly, as the figures given elsewhere show.

We hope some plan may be suggested at the Convention to clear away the debts by system, and to inaugurate such a system of contributions as will avoid high pressure appeals. So many and so pressing have they been of late, that they are failing to arouse the people. Let us all work together to raise the debts, with a view to making future debt-raising unnecessary. Systematic giving is the only remedy that we know of.

The American Baptist Education Society meeting this year with our Convention will be of unusual interest. This common ground between Baptists North and South is an object of peculiar interest to us. There is no doubt of the success and usefulness of the Society.

The report of the Monroe Conference Committee will come up for approval. It will hardly meet with opposition. The belief has become quite general that this step toward co-operation of Baptist agencies North and South is fitting and wise. The full meaning of the step inaugurated at Monroe will not be clear until general representative bodies of the denomination have approved it and a plan set in operation.

The question of union of our especial mission organs will probably be brought up. If there must be special organs, we are willing for the Boards to determine the advisability of uniting them; but it has always seemed to us that the denominational organs are sufficient for all such purposes. Surely they are used more than the Boards' monthlies. But we do not insist on any change now; first let us raise the debts.

A very important matter will come before the Board of Trustees of our Seminary—the election of a president of the institution. Any of half a dozen men will be satisfactory.

The prospect is for an unusually large attendance. We are sure it will pay all who can to go. But as the great majority cannot, the RECORDER will have two representatives present who will do all they can to make up the loss of pleasure and instruction to them.

"THE BAPTIST POSITION."

We find that it is desirable to make an effort to distribute Bro. Love's sixty-one page tract, "The Baptist Position." It is meeting with favor wherever it is read. Conditions in North Carolina inspired Bro. Love to write it.

We will send the tract to any subscriber who sends us two dollars with request for the tract; and to any nineteen weeks trial subscriber who sends five cents extra.

Any pastor sending us five dollars at one time in new subscriptions (whether nineteen weeks, six months or yearly) will receive twenty copies of the tract for distribution.

The work is bound in durable paper and well printed; it will be a source of strength to many churches.

This offer is limited.

A BIBLE CONFERENCE will be held at Old Point, Va., June 11th to 18th, in which Rev. A. C. Dixon will take a leading part. Many prominent preachers are on the program. Editor Pell of the Bible Reader says, "It will be a good time to come down and take a bath, rub up one's brains, cool off the body and warm up the heart."

INCREASED CONTRIBUTIONS.

The increased contributions by the churches of our Convention for the past five months over the same months of last year, for Home and Foreign Missions, are encouraging.

From Dec. 1st, 1893, to May 1st, 1894, the churches sent to the Treasurer, Bro. J. D. Boushall, for Foreign Missions, $1,918.89; Home Missions, $821.45; and from Dec. 1st, 1894, to May 1st, 1895, they sent to him for Foreign Missions, $2,211.59; Home Missions, $1,664.82.

This was a gain for these two objects in five months of this Conventional year over the contributions for the same objects in the same months of last year of $1,036 57. Cannot this ratio of increase be kept up for the seven remaining months of our Conventional year? It certainly can be, if all could feel it ought to be, and would say, by the Lord's help, it shall be done. Then we would go up to Greensboro next December with an increase for these two objects, during this year over the contributions for the same objects last year, of $2,477.77.

Let us all say, by the help of the Lord, it shall be done, and it will be done.

FIGURES THAT TELL THE PLAIN TRUTH.

At $147.50 a year for a young woman's education, including board, tuition, fuel, washing, lights, medical attention, servants, rent of building or repairs, etc., etc., the rate a month is $14.75. This is a rate a day of 49 cents; this is a rate of 16½ cents a meal.

Now the question is, how much less than 16½ cents must each meal cost in order that the tuition, fuel, washing, lights, doctors, servants and repairs, may be provided? Any man of family knows what these items cost.

This is remarkably cheap—past comprehension. The reader will find that it will be money in his pocket to keep his girls in school at this rate, as it is hardly possible that they cost him at home less than forty-nine cents a day, and of course if he can get education for them extra, he is just that much ahead.

This is the logic of figures. Any one can draw conclusions.

So far as we are concerned, we need not say that it is our desire to place an education within reach of every girl in the State.

But we stick to it that at less than $180 a year it is impossible to educate them. We do not know a great deal about running schools, but we do know something about eating and the cost of efficiency in the school-room.

The Normal and Industrial School by forcing (with the State's aid) our female schools to a $150 basis, is doing unspeakable harm.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

People in Western North Carolina are grateful for the fine prospect of a good fruit crop. This means much to this section of the State, and will to a great extent compensate for a shortage in other crops.

Bro. Thomas of Greensboro and some of the laymen hope to attend the Convention in Washington. He does a power of work. His people say his sermons are always fresh and interesting, and besides this he is the correspondent for several newspapers in other States.

Bro. Stringfield has had a fine day here working for the Woman's College. He captured the brethren from the first, and I judge no town in the State, according to its population, can show a better subscription.

MT. AIRY.

Here I found Bro. Lamberth nicely quartered in a choice room in the "Blue Ridge Inn." The echoes of "Tom" Dixon's lecture were still there, in fact it was the talk of the town that the foremost lecturer of the country had gotten off one of his very best efforts in a comparatively small town. Tom is really a great speaker. He has studied the art of speaking with a zeal and passion that of necessity has brought success. He would rather have an audience at his feet and play on their heart-strings than to take anybody's city.

As I started to say, Joe Lamberth is well fixed, and how he does enjoy it—a nice room, plenty of books, an abundance of good things to eat, and plenty of chances to dispense his proverbial cleverness. It is not strange that he should think he has reached his place of work. The congregations are fine and the contributions for some of the objects have already been paid in for the entire year. A number of railroad men, and others not members of our congregation, are paying liberally to the preacher's salary. Bro. Haymore, who began the work here, and on whose heart it has continually rested, has found a most congenial friend and co-worker in Bro. Lamberth.

These good brethren always send me away with renewed obligations for their special interest and real help in my work.

PILOT MOUNTAIN

is one of the prosperous little towns on the C. F. & Y. V. R. R. Several new tobacco factories have been built there in the last few years; and this time I found Bro. Mation building another, and barely had time to stop for the rain which was falling continuously. He did, however, find time to share a good dinner with me and put $2 00 to his credit on the BIBLICAL RECORDER. Bro. Haymore, the pastor there, will be glad to hear that several of his brethren are getting the RECORDER who have not been getting it.

Next I reach

with a long list of the brethren who want (!) to see me.

The factories are now at work, and I think everything brighter than three months ago. There is this about it, as was suggested by Bro. Brown, almost all the help employed in the manufacture of tobacco is from the colored people, making it hard for many of our people to get employment.

The new church which Bro. Brown and his people thought would be started and completed this year has been kept back by the panic. The present house is nearly filled by the Sunday-school, and a larger house is greatly needed. This will, however, come in due time, and the present condition of things is evidence of the good judgment of Bro. Brown and his brethren in not undertaking to build while money is so tight and times so hard. They are, however, not resting on their oars. Bro. Browder kindly invited me to go out to West Winston and see the new chapel. Here in a good portion of the town has been erected one of the neatest and most complete houses of worship I have seen in the State. They call it a chapel, and so it is; but still it might as well be called a church. I judge it will seat four hundred people. A nice Sunday school room is so arranged as to become a part of the audience room when so desired. This has been done at a cost of $2,000, and many of the brethren who could not pay money gave their time and labor to it.

Bro. Wray is getting on well at Broad Street, which is now out of debt, and the brethren are hopeful. Bro. Wray will spend his vacation with his father in Knoxville, Tenn.

Through the kindness of Dr. Watkins and Bro. Sprinkle, I was permitted to be with Bro. H. Sheets at Friendship, one of his country churches. This is a splendid brick building, built in memory of Bro. William Turner, who was pastor there for more than for forty years. It would be hard to find a better neighborhood in the State. I was told that there is not one member in this church who does not own a home.

Bro. Sheets told me his salary and all money for the different objects had been paid up. I had a fine day with these people, getting a good number of new names for the RECORDER.

Monday I spent in LEXINGTON.

Leaving Bro. Sheets fifteen miles from his home at Lexington, I came by way of Greensboro, a distance of seventy-five miles, and beat him there by about three hours. Bro. Carrick is now in charge of the town school, as well as his usual preaching points.

Bro. A. A. Springs has charge of the hotel formerly so popular under the management of Mrs. Marsh.

Tuesday morning I am in

for the first time in the interest of the RECORDER. For some years they have had no pastor here, and now they have no regular preaching. Some of the best brethren in the denomination have been pastors of the Hillsboro church. Brethren Gwaltney, Mitchell, Wright, Harmon, and others of our best preachers, spent a part of their ministry with this church. It is true some of those who were most able to sustain the cause here then are gone, but there are still some of the best brethren there now. Men like brethren Jones, Spurgeon, Smith and Newman ought not be left without a preacher, once a month, at least.

I think if these brethren would correspond with some of our young men at Wake Forest they might easily arrange for good preaching at least once a month.

BURLINGTON.

Readers of the RECORDER who know Bro. Van Deventer will not be surprised to learn of the excellent work he is doing at Burlington. There is no more important field in the State than this to which Bro. Van Deventer has lately gone. In ten years this will be one of the leading cities in North Carolina. It already has the finest manufacturing interest, and the best back country from which to draw, of any town in the State. Do you ask what, then, does the Baptist cause need to make it prosperous? We answer, only one thing, so far as we can see, and that is a house of worship large enough to seat the people who come to hear preaching. Bro. Van Deventer is not a man to talk about "great crowds being turned away," but others told me, not members of the church, that often as many as one hundred people were not able to get in the house. This will, however, not be the case long, for already ways and means are being discussed to build a house. I did not fail to renew a single subscriber, and got several new ones.

I was especially glad to meet Dr. J. C. Staley, whom I had not seen since parting with him seventeen years ago at Wake Forest. He has recently connected himself with the Baptist church, and will be one of its best workers.

J. C. C.

WE are glad to know that Concord has given Rev. J. O. Alderman to understand that when it comes to resigning, they are not going to hear to anything of the kind. The church is showing many signs of spiritual activity; though the year is only half gone, it has contributed more than it pledged to missions. Bro. Alderman will attend the Convention with his family. We hope other churches will learn from Concord how to quarantine a pastor against the resignation fever.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Rev. A. C. Dixon has opened another evangelistic campaign in Brooklyn.

....Rev. L. Johnson will aid Pastor Kesler in a meeting at Red Springs soon.

....We thank Superintendent Mills for a copy of the Orphanage manual for 1895.

....Let our jubilee be marked with prayer and rejoicing. The Lord has been good to us.

....We thank Revs. L. R. Dixon and O. C. Horton for new subscribers sent last week.

....Revs. Rufus Ford and J. D. Moore organized a second Baptist church at Newbern last Sunday.

....The Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, North, was in debt $386,336 April 1st.

....Chatanooga, Tenn., is bidding for the next Convention. Little Rock, Ark., is expected to be in the field.

....Dr. Carroll gave his Chapel Hill flock joy last Sunday by filling his pulpit. He seems to be getting stronger fast.

....A supply will be chosen for the Scotland Neck church, as Bro. Vann has been given a vacation of six months.

....A good meeting at Granite Falls, where Rev. W. R. Bradshaw is pastor, brought out nine applicants for church membership.

....Rev. C. W. Blanchard did well in his canvass at Raleigh for Wake Forest College. The people know him and the College better for his coming.

....Our sympathy goes out to Bro. A. J. S. Thomas of the Baptist Courier, who lost his mother, Mrs. J. A. W. Thomas, by death, April 27th.

....Read Bro. Duffy's note concerning the Japan mission and the Convention pledges. We hope to see this work going on in the near future.

....Rev. N. R. Pittman, lately of Patee Park church, St. Joseph, Mo., of which he had been pastor several years, has accepted a call to Mexico, Missouri.

....Last Sunday 150 negroes were baptized in a pond near Raleigh, in the presence of 2,000 people. They celebrated the Lord's Supper that evening.

....Virginia comes up with more than $31,000, the amount the F. M. Broad asked of her. The old State always could do more under disadvantages than any other.

....137 orphan mouths will open here for food to-day. Worse than that. They will open three times every day! Are you going to help us fill them?—Charity and Children.

....Rev. A. D. Hunter has baptized thirty-four persons in Raleigh lately, and others are awaiting baptism. This is the fourth week of the revival in the Fayetteville Street church.

....Prest. Harper of the University of Chicago has found it necessary to indefinitely postpone his visit to Wake Forest, which he contemplated taking immediately after the Convention.

....There were eight additions at Greenville in the meeting in which Rev. Will B. Oliver assisted pastor Billings. Bro. Lamberth of Mt. Airy was there the latter part of the meeting.

....Dr. J. N. Stallings's school at Franklinton, says the Davie Times closed for the summer with appropriate excercises May 2, and Bro. Stallings will give his whole time to preaching now.

....We extend sympathy to Bro. Robert Royall and wife of Wake Forest who lost their infant son, Edward Powell, aged nine months, April 30th. "Suffer little children to come unto me."

....Rev. Rufus Weaver has received a call to a Louisville, Ky., church, says the High Point Enterprise. We are able to say that while Bro. Weaver intends entering the Seminary, he will not accept this call.

....At the annual exercises of Oxford Female Seminary on May 26th, 27th and 28th, the sermon before the Missionary Society will be preached by Dr. Mundy of Wilson, and the address before the Calliopian Society will be made by Dr. Hume.

....We regret to learn that owing to the poor health of Bro. Geo. W. Blount, his excellent paper, the Wilson Mirror, has suspended publication. We hope his health will be restored and that the Mirror will make an early reappearance.

....We were glad to have a visit from Bro. J. M. Beatty of the Smithfield Herald Monday. Bro. Beatty is one of our most active laymen, and was in Raleigh returning from a trip to Durham in the interest of a recently completed church at Wilson Mills.

....Rev S. F. Conrad spent last week canvasing Raleigh and vicinity for Walnut Cove church debt, and we are glad to know he met with some success. He preached at the Raleigh Fayetteville Street church and the West Raleigh church, Sunday.

....Webster's Weekly refers to the disgraceful gambling carnival of which the Reidsville races were the occasion, as Reidsville's shame. If the Weekly will keep this up, and it is just the kind of paper to do it, such disgraces will not shame this good town another time.

....We were glad to have a visit from President Taylor of Wake Forest College last week. He had just returned from a visit to Chicago, during which he had unusual opportunities of investigating the work at Chicago University. He was on his way last week to Gold Mine Academy, where he delivered the annual address, Bro. Duke preaching the sermon.

....In a meeting in the First Baptist church, Atlanta, Rev. J. B. Hawthorne pastor, in which Rev. P. T. Hale of Birmingham has been preaching, there were about forty additions to the church.

....The closing exercises of the school at Augusta will occur May 15th, Rev. S. F. Conrad speaking on "Practical Education," and Rev. Dr. J. N. Stallings delivering an address on the "Importance of Educating Our Girls." There will be other talks.

....Rev. R. Van Deventer has been receiving strengthening members into Burlington church, Dr. Staley of the bank at that place and several substantial young men being of the number. A new house will have to be built to keep up with the growth.

....Rev. S. J. Porter of Morehead City, who has been assisting Rev. Mr. Fry in a meeting at Oregon, near the edge of Beaufort county, passed through Thursday returning home. He reports a good meeting, lasting about a week and a half.—Newbern Journal.

....The pastor at Polloksville, Rev. A. H. Porter, writes: "Rev. S. J. Porter assisted me in a meeting here the first week in April. His sermons were full of truth and sound doctrine. The church was revived, sinners interested, and one young lady presented herself for baptism."

....Let the heavy orators at the Convention recall Dr. Broadus' sensible words at Birmingham, "Brethren, don't. After all, the churches are going to settle this matter for themselves despite what you may do." The Convention is a missionary body, no more, no less.

....Last week the Arkansas Baptist contained the sad news of the unexpected death of Rev. W. E. Penn, singer, evangelist, and song writer. He was one of the most active men at the Dallas Convention, leading song services and generally starting off collections with a gift. He will be missed.

....Rev. Jno. C. Hocutt is sending out an appeal for help in building a house of worship at Haw River, where a church was organized two years ago. Haw River is a town of 1,500 inhabitants, and a very promising locality, and it will be to our advantage to get a church there as soon as possible.

....Rev. H. A. Bagby left Scotland Neck the 27th April, but the meeting has kept on. Dr. Durham took part, Dr. Hufham came May 1st and baptized two persons, and Rev. J. E. Hutson is continuing the meetings. The Democrat says, "There has not been such a religious awakening in Scotland Neck for many years."

....Dr. Felix accepts at Asheville. His coming is a decided addition to the pulpit power of North Carolina. We believe Asheville has chosen the right man to lead her out of debt and onward to great usefulness. We join in the general welcome of Dr. Felix to North Carolina and in congratulating Asheville.

....A North Carolinian, one of brainiest of many brainy North Carolina exiles, Rev. C. E. W. Dobbs, D. D., editor of the Indiana Baptist, is also pastor of a church at Indianapolis. Many men undertake to do two men's work and fail or die early; but Dr. Dobbs is more able to succeed at it than any editor we know.

....The closing exercises of "Olive Chapel School," Bro. A. T. Holleman principal, will take place May 17th. Rev. O. L. Stringfield will deliver the address. This school is situated in western Wake county, three miles north of New Hill. The present session has been a very pleasant one, and the work done altogether satisfactory.

....Rev. A. E. Brown has been called to Biltmore.—Rev. Chas. H. Durham, lately of Bryson City, is at Asheville with his father. He will enter our Seminary. Rev. Jonathan Wood is doing well at Bryson City. Rev. J. T. Betts has been regularly called to French Broad Ave. church Asheville for all his time, with an increase of salary.—W. N. C. Baptist.

....Phi. and Eu. Societies at Wake Forest College have selected the following gentlemen to speak next Anniversary: Phi. Society—I. S. Boyles, Orator; Gideon Bray, 1 Debater; James Griffin, 2 Debater.—Eu. Society.—Jasper Howell Jr., Orator; Willis Briggs, 1 Debator; Robert Simms, 2 Debater. The following gentlemen were awarded medals: Rev. T. B. Hill, Jno. Kerr, —— Sams, W. Johnson.

....An organization of workers, within a Baptist church, speaks out and says, the church is either too important or too insignificant for them. The act of organizing speaks out this truth, and therefore you must accept one of these reasons, else why the organization? A church ought to see that every member has his work, and that he performs that work faithfully. But not by dividing up into little organizations.—R. Q. A., Teague.

....Rev. H. C. Standridge writes from Elf, N. C.: "The Baptist church at Mount Pleasant, by its presbytery, ordained Bro. John M. Crawford to the deaconship. Elder James J. Kimsey examined the applicant, Elder J. H. Kimsay delivered the charge, and the writer offered the ordination prayer. Deacons R. Holden, H. C. Kimsey, James Ledford and G. W. Renland composed the rest of the presbytery. Also I baptized one."

....The program of the annual exercises of Shaw University is as follows: Sunday, May 12th, 8 p. m., Baccalaureate sermon, Rev. H. H. Mitchell. Monday, May 13th, 8 p. m., address before missionary societies, Miss Lula C. Fleming. Tuesday, May 13th, 8 p. m., Prize Recitations and Declamations. Tuesday, May 14th, 8 p. m., Address before Literary Societies, Rev. P. S. Lewis. Wednesday, May 15th, 3 p. m., Alumni Meeting; 4 p. m., Alumni dinner; 8 p. m., Alumni Literary Exercises. Thursday, May 16th, 8 p. m., Graduating Exercises. Annual Address by Prof. E. P. Moses, Superintendent Public Schools of Raleigh, N. C.

....It was a pleasure to see Bro. Irving Hardesty of Wakefield in Raleigh on his return last week from the University of Chicago, where he will complete the Doctor of Philosophy course in another year. Bro. Hardesty's Wake Forest reputation for hard work and persistence has been kept up at Chicago, and he will have the unusual privilege of spending the summer at Wood's Holl, Mass., in advanced work. He informed us that Bro. George Paschal is making his mark in Greek at the University.

....Rev. W. P. Hines work with pastor Blackwell at Elizabeth City has been wonderfully blessed, as Bro. Cohoon tells on another page. More than a hundred have been received into the church, and we know there is no happier man in the East than Bro. Blackwell, from whom we have received the following: "Rev. Walter P. Hines has just closed a great revival meeting with us. He preached twelve days and nights. One hundred and fourteen were received into this church, eighty of them for baptism. About forty others renewed their vows, or professed faith to join other churches. I have worked with all the great evangelists—even Mr. Moody himself for weeks, but Bro. Hines is the leader of them all for genuine and effective work."

....Bro. Haymore writes from Mt. Airy: "Bro. Stringfield was with us last Sunday. At 11 o'clock he spoke on female education and the great need of a female university in the State of North Carolina. Quite a number of the people of our town heard him and were very much pleased with his talk, and delighted with the idea of having such a school at an early day. Monday we visited such parties as we thought would give to such an institution. At night he added up the amounts that he had gotten and found that he had raised between eighteen and nineteen hundred dollars, and the promise of a liberal subscription from others in the near future. The school is badly needed, and we hope it will soon be in operation. I think the trustees can go forward with the work, for Stringfield is going to raise the money. His speech was thought to be the best ever made in the place on female education. Members of the other churches were greatly pleased with it. We hope he will come again soon."

....Pastor W. L. Wright of Leigh Street Baptist church, Richmond, Va., writes: "I must give you a line for the RECORDER about our great meeting. Dr. Broughton was with us ten days. He says he found the church ready to work and ready for a work of grace. He preached with great earnestness and power. He is himself with his own distinct individuality. He has no 'manipulations,' but knows how without 'machinery' to direct a work and control an audience. I saw nothing in his work nor heard anything in his preaching to censure. There were near 300 professions. I have already received for baptism 102 and we are receiving at almost every service. Some will join other Baptist churches in the city and in the country, and a very small number will go to churches of other denominations. Our B. Y. P. U. did great service. Its members are devout, active and willing. They are now 300 strong, and are ready for any good word and work. We all esteem Dr. Broughton very highly in love for his work's sake. It was a joy to have him with us. He has helped us greatly. Our membership is now about 1,100. Our Sunday school recently had 750. We need more room, and must have it."

A Good Meeting in China.

Dear Recorder:—During the five weeks meetings which began Jan. 27th, we had two services in the chapel nearly every day. Never does the gospel seem dearer and my Saviour and Father seem nearer to me than when I am telling it often to these people. It is a glorious work. While many came and went, who gave little attention to the message, and toward the last we had considerable disturbance at night, most of the time there was abundant evidence of the presence of the Spirit with us. One has given us reason to hope that he has taken Jesus as his Saviour and Master, and many others seemed to give the old story a patient hearing.

Brethren Tatum and Bryan were with us half of the last week, and it is impossible for me to express how they cheered and helped us by their clear, presentation of the Word, and by their presence, sympathy and prayers. I believe that many at home prayed for us specially in those meetings, and we do feel grateful to all who did so.

Mrs. Britton has been in a low state of health all the fall and winter, and continues to grow weaker. And, on the urgent advice of the physician and the corroboration of our mission, we have decided to go to the home country this spring, hoping soon to regain strength and return to our loved work. We had not thought of returning so soon (after only six and a half years), but there seems to be no other reasonable course for us, and we have yielded to what we believe to be the Lord's will.

Please change my address on the RECORDER from Shanghai, China, to Potecasi, Northampton county, N. C.

Notes From Morehead City.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—I want to thank you for the good things which you are giving us in the RECORDER from week to week. No Baptist pastor in North Carolina can afford to fail to read and study carefully your recent editorials. They are along the right line, and are calculated to do great good.

Our church in Morehead City is moving along in the Master's work. We are doing what we can to help pay the debts of our Mission Boards. Let every pastor in country and town lay this matter before the brethren, and see that a collection be taken for missions. If you cannot send a large amount, send a small one, and let each of us do something towards removing these debts which bind the hands of our Boards.

Our Missionary Society meets once every month, and we are doing what we can to infuse a spirit of missions into all our members. I find that, to attain this end, a good plan is for the pastor, or some other brother, to draw a map of the field under discussion and give a brief outline of the history, geography and present condition of the country. This prepares the people to study the mission work which is being done on these fields; also the congregations will be larger and more interested because they come expecting to learn something about some particular field. In order to give more liberally, our people need acquaintance with the mission fields and their great needs. The weight of this duty falls largely on the pastors.

We have no regularly organized Young People's Society, but we have something better,—our young people and our old people as well are engaged in studying Baptist doctrines and principles. At present we are studying the connected story of the Saviour's life. We meet for this study every Thursday night, and we have present from 75 to 100 who take a lively interest in this work. By means of wall maps of Palestine, and regularly appointed Bible readings, we are following Christ on his journeys through the Holy Land, stopping here and there to wonder at his miracles, admire his labors of love, and listen at his discourses, as he sits on the mountain top, or by the well-side, or in the little boat on the sea of Galilee.

With the approach of spring our Sunday-school is taking on new life. Capt. Willis, our good superintendent, organized several new classes last Sunday.

On a recent afternoon I had the pleasure of talking to Bro. Moore's church in Beaufort on Missions in Brazil. With Bro. John Davis and other faithful members to assist him, he is holding the fort in Beaufort.

I have been at Pollocksville assisting my brother A. H. Porter in a meeting with his church. The prospects for the work on this field are bright, but there is need of a great deal of foundation work. The membership at Pollocksville is small, but there are some faithful souls who delight to stand by their pastor and encourage him as he preaches the Word.

Within a few weeks we hope to begin a meeting with our church in Morehead City.

Fraternally,

SAMUEL J. PORTER.

Greensboro Notes.

Bro. Stringfield presented the claims of the Woman's College Sunday night to our people. He made a strong and very clear argument for that institution. Our people were delighted with the address, and much interest was awakened in the cause he represents. In going among our people, Bro. Stringfield has impressed them most favorably. I have never known an agent for any enterprise to receive so many words of encouragement. On all sides I hear the very kindest things said of him, and our people think that he is the man for the work. Our people not only said kind things, but they did noble things for the work. Bro. Stringfield told me he would get $900 from Greensboro, and after awhile more will come. Our people might have said, "We need a Sunday-school room," but they made no excuse, and did all they could to help the work of the Woman's College. If every church in the State will do as well in a little while the institution will be built and endowed.

This has been a very hard year on our church. Times have been hard, work very scarce, and money very difficult to get, yet the church has not lagged in her benevolence. Every pledge to date has been overpaid, and in some cases more than doubled. Our congregations are always good, and the people are interested in every good work. We have had professions of faith nearly every Sunday, and several are awaiting baptism. This is said to be a hard field, and it is, but in this Baptist church there is some salt which has not lost its savor, and hence the work which has been done.

The RECORDER is always welcome and eagerly read by our people. No other paper can take its place.

It is a pleasure to know that the reliable and progressive United States Branch of the Commercial Union Assurance Society did such a large business in North Carolina last year, as is shown by statement elsewhere. It is a good company and we hope for it increased prosperity.

From Burlington.

Dear Recorder:—Our meeting closed last night. It was a good one from the first. Night after night for nearly three weeks the building was packed so that the preacher did not have a place to sit, nor was there even room enough around the platform for a deacon to get a seat. In the midst of such a crowded house, the order and attention were beyond censure. If there is a place in North Carolina where a better and a larger house is more needed, I do not know it. Without it the cause at this place must suffer. There is a big opportunity for Baptists, but with the present facilities the demands of the situation cannot be met. It is not occasionally that we are crowded, but every Sunday. We are going to build.

I have never seen greater seriousness in a meeting. People who were standing about the door would hold up their hands to indicate their desire to be saved. I do not know how many, but scores expressed their desire to lead a new life, while many crowded to the front to pray and be prayed for when there was no place for them to sit or kneel.

Many who had lived far away from the Master were drawn nearer his side. I cannot tell what will be the result of the meeting for our church. Baptist views are unpopular in this part of the kingdom. We will gain, however, quite a number of members, and the leaven will permeate. I baptized fourteen last night. Others have been received, and others will be.

Referring to Rev. S. M. Brown's "Modern Craze for Movements," I do not find that Jesus rebuked the people or disciples, though asked to do so by the Pharisees, when they put their garments in the way, and others cast them on the colt on which he rode, and many cried out in their enthusiasm. Even when the children in the temple shouted, he did not rebuke. Why all this parade with palm branches and shouts! The General Associations and Conventions in Brother Brown's country may be about to fail, but it is not true of the Associations and Convention in North Carolina. The Associations in North Carolina last summer and fall were great. Our last Convention was one of the very best in every respect. Brother Brown should not make such sweeping statements.

The BIBLICAL RECORDER said relative to debt of Boards last week: "All that can be said....has been said. If pressing appeals avail anything, it will be seen in the Board's reports." Dr. Willingham said, "Money is pouring in." How does Bro. Brown know a great number of our leaders could not be induced to meet a day before the Convention to consider the payment of the debt? Bro. Brown has never had a society in his church, he does not know, and is not a competent judge. Those who have tried them many years know they do not create prejudice against the old.

The young people's meeting will not "degenerate for want of the wisdom and piety of the more experienced"—because some of the older members, and pastors are helping this movement.

The young and old have different tastes. The Bible recognizes the young as a class and appeals to them as such. 1 John 2; 2 Tim. 2.

I have known boys to get in fisticuffs at Sunday-school. I do not know anybody but the "Hard Shells" that would condemn the Sunday school for such.

I have known old men to dispute in church meeting and act and talk in an unchristian manner; shall we say the church is no good therefore? That is about the argument of Bro. Brown. Sincerely,

R. VAN DEVENTER.

Burlington, April 26, 1895.

From Columbus.

Dear Recorder:—I feel thankful that my churches are prospering very well, with one or two exceptions. I am preaching at five churches in Columbus county, N. C., also at Conway, S. C., every first Sunday in each month.

I have been making a special effort to get my people to give more to missions this year than ever. The minutes of the Columbus Association for 1894 show that the entire Association (seventeen churches) only gave last year $19 55 to Foreign Missions and $19.34 to State Missions. One of my churches in Columbus Association, during the past two months, has given about half of that amount to Home and Foreign Missions. This only goes to prove what we can do if we all will try. My churches take up collections every time we worship, but I am afraid some of our churches do not, or our collections would be more. Brethren, let us wake up, we can't expect God to bless us when we do not carry out his command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

I want to say that I enjoy the RECORDER more and more. I wish every Baptist would take it and read it. My father use to take it when the postoffice was twenty four miles from home. I have been reading it ever since, and expect to continue doing so as long as I live.

Yours fraternally, T. J. CONN.

Dear Sir:—It gives me pleasure to acknowledge the prompt payment in full of the policy for $10,000 held by Mr. S. H. Wiley in the Ætna Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Wiley died July 3d, 1894. The proofs were forwarded July 6th, and the Company's check in full settlement was sent July 13.

Yours truly,

P. S.—I consider Mr. Wiley's life insurance the best property that he had.

A Card.

Mr. G. W. Rollins came to Raleigh well recommended by Dr. J. N. Stallings in the RECORDER.

Favorable letters from Major W. B. Clements of Mocksville and Rev. H. A. Brown of Winston were received by Dr. Durham. Of course, these brethren were deceived.

Mr. Rollins was pastor at Rockingham and at Lilesville, N. C., and at some places in South Carolina years ago. We have heard that he was a student at Richmond College and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Under these circumstances, he came to Raleigh, and was received by us all as a true minister and deserving our esteem. He asked our influence in procuring a field of labor, and we recommended him to a brother. He is now known to be an excluded member of Grace Street church of Richmond, Va., and is not a member of any Baptist church. Information from Virginia and South Carolina represent him as a "distinguished fraud" and "utterly unreliable."

Great Harvest at Elizabeth City.

Dear Recorder:—I have not time to say much—only want to tell you about the great work of Pastor Blackwell. He is in the midst of a great harvest with him. But he has labored so hard and cultivated the field so well that the fruit is ripe in such abundance that he had to call in help to do the gathering. Evangelist Hines is here working day and night while Pastor Blackwell is doing nothing but praising God. Surely he is the happiest man I ever saw.

The next happiest man is Superintendent Aydlett. He has always been happy; trouble in no shape has ever crossed his path and he fully realizes God's blessings; yesterday was his happiest day, when Evangelist Hines went around from class to class in his school and inquired the number of unconverted in each class, summed them up, and deducted them from the total number present, and said that in all his travels this school had the largest percentage of converted membership he had ever seen in any school. Then it was that he made his strongest appeal, when eleven more were added to the converted number.

Bro. Hall of the Methodist church gave his people notice yesterday that no more services would be held at his church during this week, as he was going to give his aid to Bro. Blackwell. Our Methodist brethren are to be commended for their aid and Christian spirit manifested in this meeting. Hall and Blackwell are determined to capture this town for Christ. F. F. COUBON.

Green Level Academy.

Brother Bailey:—This school closed April 19th. Bro. N. B. Broughton came to time and made us a thoroughly practical address on "Character Building." He did it well, and at once pleased and edified every one.

During the day there were several recitations by pupils, interspersed with vocal music by the school. Vocal music has been a daily exercise and recreation during the Term. This feature I wish to commend to our teachers all over the State.

The RECORDER has from time to time urged that there be a good school by the side of every Baptist church. This is much to be desired, not that education is or should be a forerunner of the gospel or in any way a condition of salvation to people either in Christendom or heathendom, but it is a lever of great power and as an ally of religion is of unspeakable value. Educate the people, and priestcraft either among Protestants or Catholics loses its chief strength. I want to commend to Baptists all over the country the action of the Green Level brethren in this respect.

There is no wealth in the community. The people felt unable to send off their children to boarding schools. Money is scarce. They combine, organize a board of trustees, build a comfortable academy with music-room attached, employ teachers with moderate salary, and pay the salary. As they need their children to make the crop, the school runs only eight months, beginning in September and closing in April. Thus with four or five months on the farm the children are in school the other part of the year. Any good community can do this. This school is destined to be worth more to Green Level community than a gold mine. So it would prove elsewhere.

Some six or eight young men are thus farming and going to school educating themselves—paying their own way—in this school. Good substantial board, farmers' style, is furnished for six dollars per month. Who cannot get an education?

J. M. W.

Rev. C. M. Billings writes: "Our work in Greenville is moving off nicely. We have recently passed through a gracious work of grace. Bro. W. B. Oliver of Wilmington preached ten days beginning April 15th. He is one of the sweetest gospel preachers in the State, and his sermons captivated the people of Greenville, especially the Christians. His sermons were divided into two series: first, the law, and, secondly, grace. These discourses revealed religion to many of our people in a new light and many were saying, 'I never heard it on this wise.' The great aim of his preaching is not for numbers, but to do good to the church. This he did as no man has yet done for this church. Our people are revived and the interest keeps up. Eight have joined the church, three of whom were baptised last Sunday, and we hope others will follow. Brother Lamberth, the former pastor, made many faces bright Saturday morning when he put in his appearance. He preached two excellent sermons Sunday. Joe is very much loved by the Greenville people, who always love their pastor and do all in their power to make him happy."

on Sunday morning was "The comfort of the resurrection." 1 Thes. 4: 18. After preaching in the afternoon, we went for a walk around the city. While we were examining some sea-shells, and talking about the fact, recorded in history, that Quinsan, now one hundred miles from the sea, was once a seaport town, two boys came up on the opposite side of the canal and cursed us and threw stones at us. After a little persuasion that only made them worse, we concluded to walk up to the next gate, cross over the bridge, catch these boys and reprove them. On reaching the gate, we found that a branch-canal turned into the city, and had no bridge over it. We had no money to employ one of the boats near by to take us over. While we were waiting to decide what course to pursue, a large audience collected on the other side of the canal. One man who heard us preach in the morning persuaded a boatman to take us across. We concluded that God had something better for us to do than reproving bad boys, and preached on God's love to the large and attentive audience. On own way back to our boat, we came across one of the boys who cursed us. We gave him a kind talk, and he promised us not to do so any more.

A crowd of little children followed us to our boat to get some tracts. We gave them the hymn, "Jesus loves me," sang a verse for them, and as they went away some tried to sing "Ya su al O"—Jesus loves me. God bless the children! The children everywhere on this trip did not seem to be afraid of us. With the exception of the two boys who cursed us—they did itfor fun—we heard less cursing and received better treatment this time than ever before.

The Chinese are fast waking up to the fact that the missionaries are their friends. One of the highest and most influential officials in China not long since gave one of our Shanghai missionaries, Rev. Timothy Richards, one thousand dollars to aid him in distributing scientific and religious literature, and has recently twice invited Rev. Mr. Richards to visit him in Nanking to talk over the present condition of China.

In Northern China where the war is raging, the officials and gentry in several cities have asked the missionaries to intercede with the Japanese for peace. God is moving on before us in China. Shall we follow in his footsteps! There will be a great harvest to reap after this war. Who will help us to reap it?

Ashe and Alleghany Union Meeting.

This Union met Friday before the fifth Sunday in March, 1895, with the Bethel Baptist church, Ashe county, N. C. Rev. Jacob Eller, Sr., preached the introductory sermon from Romans 6: 23, "For the wages of sin is death." The sermon was very strong.

List of churches was read, when delegates from eleven churches reported and were enrolled.

On motion, permanent officers were elected by acclamation, which resulted in the election of Elder T. M. Duncan, Moderator, and R. L. Shoaf, Secretary.

The Moderator then appointed a committee on religious exercises as follows: Nathan Phillips, William Johnson and H. H. Ray.

By request, the Secretary read the program prepared for this meeting.

Saturday met at 9 a. m. Spent half hour in devotional exercises conducted by the Moderator.

The Moderator appointed the following committees: To prepare a program for next session—E. E. Phillips, J. A. Blevins and Jacob Eller, Sr. On resolutions—R. G. Johnson, I. M. Carter and Eugene Brown. On time, place and preacher—J. J. Goodman, R. L. Shoaf and E. Blevins.

Then on motion, agreed to take up program items.

1. Discussion opened by T. M. Duncan, followed by Jacob Eller, Sr., and G. Shuley.

At 11 o'clock adjourned for preaching, leaving the subject open for further consideration. Rev. I. M. Carter preached an interesting sermon from Mark 16: 15, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

1 p. m., re-assembled. Discussion continued by Eugene Brown and E Blevins.

2. Opened by J. A. Blevins, followed by E. E. Phillips, Jacob Eller, Sr., Eugene and J. Houck.

3. By E. Blevins, G. Shuley and J. J. Goodman.

4. By I. M. Carter, R. L. Shoaf, E. Blevins, J. A. Blevins, Nathan Phillips, Jacob Eller, Sr., Eugene Brown, T. M. Duncan and G. C. Woodruff.

Saturday night Bro. Brown preached a warm and touching sermon to a large congregation.

Sunday morning at 9 o'clock a prayer meeting was conducted by R. L. Shoaf. At 11 o'clock J. A. Blevins preached to a large and attentive congregation with much good feeling. Prayer by E. Blevins, benediction by Eugene Brown.

Union Meeting.

Our Union Meeting held the latter part of March was a success. The Lord's Spirit was with us and blessed the meeting. The weather favorable, and a goodly number attended.

The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. T. H. Pritchard of Charlotte, who took as his subject Foreign Missions, the same as was taken by William Carey in his famous address many centuries ago.

The Union was organized by electing the old officers: Moderator, Mr. A. N. Hinson; Secretary, Rev. J. O. Alderman. A number of the churches were represented by preachers and delegates.

The first query was taken up and discussed by Mr. I. W. Durham of Charlotte and Rev. J. O. Alderman of Concord, namely, "Duties of churches to their pastors."

Second query, "Pastor's duties to their churches," was ably discussed by Dr. T. H. Pritchard, Rev. J. O. Alderman and Mr. Durham.

Dr. Pritchard preached, by request, his sermon on the "Evils of the Tongue," from third chapter of James, "For every kind of beast, and of birds, and of serpents, and of things in the sea is tamed and hath been tamed of mankind, but the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil full of deadly poison," on Friday night to an appreciative audience. Each seemed to take his or her part of it.

Saturday morning at 10 o'clock Missions was discussed by Rev. L. R. Pruett and Dr. Pritchard.

After dinner in the grove, speeches were made by Dr. Pritchard, L. R. Pruett and C. J. Black, with many of the brethren, on the subject "How to make the Sabbath school interesting."

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Wilson's Grove, and one query to be "Is Hell Eternal." Rev. Mr. Pruett remarked as the neighborhood had been troubled by the Adventist doctrine he thought that to be a suitable subject.

Saturday night services were conducted by Bro. Pruett, which were profitable to all.

Sunday morning a large audience greeted Bro. Alderman, who preached on the subject of "Importance of Little Things," from Mark 12: 41-44.

Swift Creek Union.

This body met with Samaria Baptist church on Sunday and Saturday before in March. Bro. I. M. Conyers was appointed Moderator, and Bro. W. I. Greene, Clerk.

Rev. G. W. May preached the introductory sermon at 11 o'clock a. m. Text—"Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee."

The different subjects were taken up and ably discussed by the following brethren: Revs. G. M. Duke, J. E. Hocutt, W. C. Nowell, and G. W. May.

The exercises were opened Sunday morning by singing, followed by the reading of the fifth chapter of Luke, and prayer by Rev. J. E. Hocutt.

Singing by the choir was substituted for the discussion of the Sunday-school work.

The subject, "What constitutes covetousness!" was discussed by Revs. G. M. Duke, G. W. May, J. E. Hocutt and W. C. Nowell.

A collection for the Orphan's Asylum was taken up amounting to $4.08.

Singing and prayer by Bro. S. J. Alford.

Foot-washing was discussed by Rev. W. C. Nowell and Rev. G. M. Duke.

The next session of this Union will meet with the Nashville Baptist church on the fifth Sunday in June and Friday and Saturday before.

Revs. G. M. Duke, G. W. May and W. C. Nowell and Bro. L. M. Conyers were appointed a committee to prepare subjects for consideration at the next meeting.

A resolution offered by Rev. G. M. Duke was adopted, thanking the church of Samaria and its pastor and the citizens of the community for hospitality to the Union.

Union at Clarkton.

The Central Union of the Bladen Association met with the Baptist church at Clarkton, N. C., March 30th and 31st. The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. Wm. Brisson from Matt. 28: 6—"He is not here: for he is risen, as he said, Come, see the place where the Lord lay." The missionary sermon was preached by Rev. W. S. Melvin from Isaiah 53: 11—"He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities." These two brethren seemed to be filled with the Spirit and preached the Word with power.

There were some important questions discussed. The mission spirit seems to be growing. There is a great deal of mission work to be done. The more missions are preached from the pulpit, the better our people will be educated, and the more they will give for missions. Let us go forward and do more in the Lord's cause and for the upbuilding of his kingdom this year than we have in any one preceding year.

May God continue to bless the brethren and sisters who so amply supported the Union at Clarkton. Pray for us and our work in this part of the Master's vineyard.

Yours in Christian love,

prescribe Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites because they find their patients can tolerate it for a long time, as it does not upset the stomach nor derange the digestion like the plain oil.

Scott's Emulsion is as much easier to digest than the plain oil as milk is easier to digest than butter. Besides, the fish-fat taste is taken out of the oil, and it is almost palatable. The way sickly children, emaciated, anæmic and consumptive adults, gain flesh on Scott's Emulsion is very remarkable.

Don't be persuaded to accept a substitute!

SUBJECT FOR MAY: JAPAN.

"Bear much fruit. so shall ye be my disciples." Missionaries, 4; native assistants, 4; stations, 6; churches, 1; membership, 31; baptisms, 9. Contributions, $15.

STUDY TOPICS.—Unique position of Japan among heathen nations. Uprising of Buddhism and other religions in view of Christian missions. Danger of exaggerated views of missionary success. Language and religious pre-conceptions barriers to mission effort. A Baptist opportunity.

Behind all interest or information on mission work must lie the one word Master. To just the extent which we acknowledge Christ as our Ruler, King and Master, in just so far will we be ready to obey his command—go teach all nations.

Some weeks ago we had occasion to speak of the statement of a writer who spoke slightingly of mission work in the Sandwich or Hawiian Islands. In pleasant contrast to this is the following statement concerning Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson, whose recent death has been so much commented upon by all interested in literature. The work in the Samoan Island, whither Mr. Stevenson had gone on account of his health, is of much more recent date than that in Hawaii, but has been no less wonderful.

"On more than one occasion Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson, one of the most gifted of English men of letters, bore testimony to the worth and to the success of missions in Samoa, where he, in the last years of his life, made his home. Indeed, it is pleasant to know, Mr. Stevenson frequently taught a class of boys in the mission Sunday-school at Apia. His funeral services were conducted by two missionaries, Messrs. Newell and Clarke."

The testimony of the British officer at the same place is interesting:—

"B. M. Haggard, Esq, the English commissioner in Samoa, has just written a letter, a copy of which is before me, in which he says that his four year in Samoa have convinced him of the value of the missionary work. And Mr. Haggard says that when he gets home he purposes calling at the headquarters of the missionary society and saying in person how earnestly impressed he is with the mission work and the successful methods employed."

This reminds one of the hearty and repeated but sadly tardy official recognition of missions by the English officers in India. Had such recognition of services to be rendered to them and their government been given to Carey and his immediate successors, who can say but that India to-day would have been a Christian country. But truly, there is "nothing so successful as success." It is time for a government, however indifferent, to recognize the missionaries when largely through their instrumentality a whole province is saved from famine.

Going to the heart of the mission fields make missionaries. Stanly went out to find a "crank." He sent a call all over England for missionaries for Uganda and returned from his second journey to the field of labor of Dr. Livingston, the crank, to raise his voice everywhere urging missions to Africa.

It will be remembered that Darwin, after revisiting the islands of the Pacific, where he had seen several years before what he supposed to be the most degraded type of the human race, sent a contribution to the missionary society at work among these people, as a testimonial to the marvellous uplifting power of the religion of Christ, which he had witnessed with his own eyes. "For their rock is not our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges."

But God's work needs no testimony from his enemies, nor should his people need their approval to confirm their faith and purpose. The Master sayeth—and is it not enough?

Dear Miss Heck:—Let me write a word thanking you for the "Talk" which has been welcomed by us for a few months past. We are interested in God's work everywhere, and love to read about its being carried on, but naturally we are more directly drawn to the accounts of the work done by our friends in our dear native State.

The war is a subject of vast importance in our adopted land at present. The Japanese are still successfully making their way toward Peking. It looks as if this long standing Empire is soon to undergo a great change. Our prayer is that God will use all this in awaking these millions in China to their one great need, i. e., the need of accepting the Saviour as their Lord and King. You have doubtless heard that Tungchow has been bombarded by the Japanese, and that all of our missionaries there except Miss Moon have gone to Chefoo. At present the war seems to affect this part of China very little, and missionaries are able to go on with their usual work.

Mr. Britton keeps faithfully to his loved work. His chapel work grows more encouraging. The people are quieter and more attentive, but none have come out boldly and joined the Lord's host.

My feeble health, I am sorry to say, has debarred me from the pleasure of doing what I usually do in the chapel most of this winter.

Our co-laborer, Mr. W. W. Lawton, from South Carolina, is an earnest, energetic worker. He is successfully pursuing the study of the language. We thank God for sending him in answer to our prayers to help in this work.

Pardon me for being so lengthy. I meant to write only a short note. Mr. Britton joins in Christian regards to you and all the readers of the "Talk." Baby is well, and a real sunbeam in our home. May God bless you and all the dear sisters in North Carolina in your service to him.

Yours sincerely,
NANNIE S. BRITTON.

Rev. Henry B. Schwartz, presiding elder, Hirosaki, Japan, says: "We are reaping the first fruits of treaty revision in a very great improvement in the passport system. As you do not know, we have not been allowed to travel in Japan except with a passport. In these passports the proposed route of travel had to be exactly laid down, and in those parts of the empire where the passport regulations were strictly enforced, no deviation from the described route was allowed. Now we can get passports for a year's time, on which we can travel anywhere at any time in the whole empire; and best of all, the 'scientific' and 'health' clauses are entirely omitted from the application blanks.—Review.

The Red Cross Society of Japan sent six physicians and twelve nurses with each transport steamer conveying Japanese troops to Korea and China. The humanity of the Japanese in their conduct of the war did more to break down the walls of Chinese prejudice than any other outside influence. Three hundred years ago the Japanese ravaged Korea and plundered its people, and as a trophy of victory the ears of 3,600 victims were brought back to Japan.—Review.

Before returning to his home in West Africa, Prince Ademayiwa gave a lecture in Liverpool on "The White Man's Fire-Water and its Effects on the African Race." He said that while Englishmen have officials appointed to see that their "fire-waters" are sold pure, the African has to take what is sent him by unscrupulous men, which is little better than poison, and is frequently used for mixing with paint, like turpentine.

In the city of Tokyo there are 120 newspapers and magazines. The Asahi Shimbun, or Morning News, has a circulation of 100,000 daily, and the paper of the same name in Osaka of 130,000 copies. But with this circulation they may well rebuke Christian America; for there are no Sunday papers in Japan.

Several of the leading Christians are alive to Japan's missionary duty toward Korea, and are planning for missionary service there. It is noteworthy that Buddhists are moving in the same direction, and have already sent a priest to Seoul to examine the situation. He has devised a scheme, very fine on paper, which will cost $10,000 a year.

A Cry for Indian Territory and West Arkansas.

You have seen the statement of Bro. Tichenor, Secretary of the Home Board S. B. C., that "the Home Mission Board cannot carry the present indebtedness through the coming summer. If our brethren do not furnish us the means to pay it, the Board will be compelled to discharge its missionaries."

Eleven years ago Dr. Tichenor's Board gave to the Board of the General Association of West Arkansas and Indian Territory three hundred dollars. That year our missionaries baptized fifty-five. Now his Board is giving our Board $2,100. And for the year ending September, 1894, our missionaries baptized over 1,000.

Our churches are poor. Not one of them supports a pastor for even half his time. Most of our missionaries are forced to plow through crop time—and do what they can at mission work Saturdays and Sundays, and week days when they can give week-days. But see how God blesses the work of these poor men! Over one thousand baptisms! Bro. Tichenor's Board does not support these men of God. They are supported largely by the labor of their own hands; more largely by the labor of their wives and children and the noble Baptist women. But Bro. Tichenor's Board finishes the support. The other helps loosen the cords that hold these men. Tichenor's money unties them. The other helps get out the materials, get them ready for a building. There they lie till a few dollars actual cash from the Home Board comes and buys what nothing else but cash will buy. This finishing help secures the structure. "It lays in heaven the topmost stone"; for it gets the poor preacher loose awhile and enables him to go to the souls who are hungry for the bread of life, and who feed on it and live forever.

Epidemic rages in a city. Climate fly. The poor, and aged, and sick cannot escape. They are dying. A poor man is at work on the western prairies. He has lived in that city—has very many friends there. They know he has had the disease, will not take it again (will not "draw back", Heb. 10:38), that he knows how to save them, and can do it, and will do it if he gets to them. They telegraph to him "Come save us"! He flies to the depot with hard-earned ten dollars, and learns from the strange agent that the fare is twelve dollars! He is a stranger. He has no way to get the other two dollars. "My darling sister is sick! and dear old mother, so dear to me, is sick! and so many other friends are sick! and I cannot get to them! Oh God! help! help!" A kind man, hearing his prayer for "help", gave him the two dollars needed to "finish" with. Time passes and now his friends are saved.

That poor man is the army of very poor preachers in General Association of West Arkansas and Indian Territory. His sick and dying, but now saved friends are the 4,300 who have been baptized by this army of tired but trustful volunteers since the kind man has been giving the two dollars. The kind man is your Home Board of our dear Southern Baptist Convention.

Brother! sister! Look at this picture! see what your two dollars has done! what it is doing now! Are you going to keep back that two dollars? No, you must give four dollars. No money spent on missions in Indian Territory has been blest so much as the money given by Southern Baptists. I tell you now, you are going to give four dollars. Get on your knees and talk to God about this business. You must do it! You will do it! Then God will show you how to give.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

A Wonderful Cure for Cancer.

There is no further need to cut cancers out with knives or burn them out with plasters. Dr. Mason, Richmond, Va., has a cure for this dreadful disease that surpasses all other methods in rapid healing and permanent cure. It will not be worth while, however, to write to the Doctor unless you are tired of quack medicine and so-called cancer doctors who use knives or plasters. Dr. Mason does not compete with such. His remedy is painless and soothing, and the only one suitable for the aged or weak. The relief is immediate and the cure rapid. It seeks out the disease growths and destroys their vitality, causing the cancer to pass away, leaving only an ordinary healthy sore, which rapidly heals.

Dr. Mason has two methods of treatment—"Home Treatment" and "Personal Treatment." "Home Treatment" is for cases where the patients can be cared for at home without any other cost than the medicines, fully as well as to go to Richmond for "Personal Treatment," by the Doctor. The cost for "Home Treatment" is less than half the cost of "Personal Treatment," and for those who can be cured in a few weeks. When writing, describe the case fully, and direct letter to Dr. Scott Mason, 700 E. Clay Street Richmond, Va.

Life of Rev. J. R. Moffett.

I have recently read with great pleasure and interest a biography of Rev. J. R. Moffett. This work is from the pen of Rev. S. H. Thompson of Scottsburg Normal College, Virginia, with an introduction by Rev. J. B. Taylor.

Mr. Thompson is a fine writer, and I doubt not that he takes the correct view of the life and labors of Mr. Moffett. He brings the reader face to face with Mr. Moffett in his home, college and pastoral life. He brings us to the bedside of this herald of the Cross, dying from the wounds of the assassin's bullet. We hear his friends expressing their appreciation of his labors, and their sympathy for him in his suffering.

This touching scene brings to us the fact that Mr. Moffett was a man of God. He was a hero. Reformers of every age have met opposition. Mr. Moffett had his share of opposition, and he met it in the spirit of his Master. He threw himself, mind and soul, into his work, a work with which there is no equal.

That he had his faults and made mistakes is evident. In his zeal for the cause which he advocated, it was not impossible for him to make mistakes. He was aware of his mistakes, however, and strove hard to correct them. He strove to extricate his fellowmen from the power of the great monster of intemperance, and to this cause he gave his best service and in the end his life.

The example of Mr. Moffett is well worthy of imitation. From his biography we received such inspiration as we have never received from any book before except the Bible. His sermon preached Sunday night, October 2nd, 1892, is an excellent production, and is well worthy of being carefully read by every one.

We heartily recommend this book to all who love the cause of truth.

HOTEL AND BOARDING HOUSE RATES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31, 1895.

To Delegates and Visitors to the Southern Baptist Convention, Greeting:

The churches of our denomination in the District of Columbia are gratified that their invitation to the Southern Baptist Convention to hold its session for this year at the National Capital had been accepted. We will do all in our power to make the session pleasant and profitable to all who attend. We will furnish free entertainment for the officers of the Convention, the presidents and secretaries of the Boards, and returned missionaries. The house of worship of the First Baptist church, 16th street above Scott Circle, has been selected for the place of meeting, and the Ebbitt House, corner of 14th and F streets, for Convention headquarters.

We have endeavored to secure ample accommodation in hotels and boarding-houses at reduced rates for all who desire to attend. Rates will range from $2.50 to $1.50 a day, while some boarding-houses will receive delegates and visitors at $1.00 a day.

At the Ebbitt House the rates will be $3.50 a day, with accommodation for fifty persons at $3.00 a day with two in a room. Delegates and visitors will obtain these rates on the presentation of a card of introduction from the Committee on Assignment. Those who expect to attend will please write as soon as possible to the undersigned, giving the full names and the number of those for whom entertainment is desired, stating whether Mr., Mrs., or Miss, the rates preferred, and the time of arrival in Washington, and the Committee on Assignment will do its utmost to furnish comfortable quarters.

These terms apply also to all attending the meetings of the American Baptist Education Society, the Woman's Missionary Union, and the Young People.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches, a year old, fresh as when picked. I use the California Cold Process; do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last week I sold directions to over 120 families; any one will pay a dollar for directions, when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident any one can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and complete directions, to any of your readers, for eighteen two cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc., to me. Railway Rates to B. B. Convention.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

To the delegates and others who will attend the Southern Baptist Convention to be held in Washington, D. C., the Southern Railway Company will sell tickets at the rate of one lowest first-class fare for the round trip. Tickets will be sold May 7 and 8, good for fifteen days, and if deposited with ticket agent at Washington on or before May 16th, an extension of fifteen days additional will be granted.

The Southern is the only trunk line which extends from the South into Washington over its own tracks, passing through the historic battlefields of Virginia. By this line you will pass through Danville, Lynchburg, Charlottesville, Culpepper, Manassas, and other historic points.

We have recently placed a first class day-coach on our Washington and Southwestern Vestibuled Limited trains for the benefit of passengers who wish to use this train and do not desire to occupy Pullman cars.

See that your ticket reads via the Southern Railway. The undersigned will be glad to furnish any further information desired.

THE SEABOARD AIR LINE

has announced a rate of one fare for the round-trip from all points to Washington on account of the Southern Baptist Convention. Tickets will be on sale May 7th and 8th with final limit of fifteen days from date of sale. Further extension may be secured if desired. Choice of routes are given via Richmond and all rail, or via Norfolk and the palatial steamers of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company. Fast double daily trains—service unsurpassed. Consult ticket agents, or address for detailed information,

Great Meeting at Ramseur.

On Tuesday night last I closed one of the best meetings at Ramseur I have been in for a long time. I had with me Bro. J. T. Jenkins of Winston, our young State evangelist. I have had Bro. Jenkins with me on a number of different occasions, but in this meeting he surpassed himself over all others. Experience has greatly improved him as to both his preaching and methods of work. He preached the Word with great earnestness and power. As a result of the meeting, we have received thirty-five accessions with a goodly number of others to follow, while the professions will number perhaps a hundred or more.

On the first Sunday in June, we will have a meeting at Franklinville. This is a very promising field on Deep river.

I am now on a general canvass to lift the debts on Walnut Cove and Ruffin churches. I hope every one who has promised to help me will do so. I have $400 on Walnut Cove, which I am obliged to raise by the first of June. The debt on Ruffin church is about $800. It is a high mountain to climb, but I am trying to get over it.

Appeal for the Japan Fund.

Bro. Editor:—The time is at hand for the first payment to the "Special Missionary" to Japan to be paid.

A letter just received from Dr. R. J. Willingham states: "I have notified all the parties, and some of them are sending in the money to meet the notes."

Money may be either sent to Dr. R. J. Willingham, Corresponding Secretary F. M. B., Richmond, Va., or to J. D. Boushall, Raleigh, N. C.

It is necessary that this money be paid as promptly as possible, and I trust the brethren will respond to this appeal, so that the first payment may be in hand at an early date, and then the preparations for putting "our" missionary in the field will begin. God has opened the way, and I believe all the brethren will want to assist him to enter with the gospel.

Fraternally, H. B. DUFFY.

"The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

That's what you ought to know about the thing you wash with. What good soap doesn't hurt, Pearline cannot. That's only part of the truth. Pearline washes and cleans without the rubbing and scrubbing that wear things out—without the work that makes women old. Half your labor is spared by it; twice the work is done with it; time and money are saved by it. "Nothing but the truth" is the best policy for us; "nothing but Pearline" is the best policy for you; but perhaps you use Pearline. Millions do.

Not True

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, the honest thing to do is—send it back.

Dress Goods.

We have begun a special sale of Dress Goods at 50c. in the dollar.

The majority of these dress goods are the last shipments this season, being duplicates of the goods lost on the ill-fated steamer Elbe.

They were duplicated by the manufacturer without our advice, and arriving late, were offered at such prices that we accepted them and are able to offer them at just half their original price.

Estimates for making up will be furnished by our Dress making Department.

By this arrangement one can obtain fine dresses at even less prices than cheaper and medium priced goods.

THESE DRESS GOODS . .

are entirely separate from the regular dress goods department, being upon our second floor, so when writing for samples kindly mention that they are wanted from this lot.

A Young Girl's Trials.

NERVOUS TROUBLES END IN ST. VITUS' DANCE.

(From the Reporter, Somerset, Ky.)

Among the foot hills of the Cumberland Mountains, near the town of Flat Rock is the happy home of James McPherron. Four months ago the daughter of the family, a happy girl of sixteen, was stricken with St. Vitus' dance. The leading physicians were consulted but without avail. She grew pale and thin under the terrible nervous strain and was fast losing her mental powers. In fact the thought of placing her in an asylum was seriously considered. Her case has been so widely talked about that the report of her cure was like modernizing a miracle of old. To a reporter who visited the home the mother said:

"Yes, the reports of my daughter's sickness and cure are true as you hear them. Her affliction grew into St. Vitus' dance from an aggravated form of weakness and nervous trouble peculiar to her sex. Every source of help was followed to the end, but it seemed that physicians and medicine were powerless. Day by day she grew worse until we despaired of her life. At times she almost went into convulsions. She got so that we had to watch her to keep her from wandering away and you can imagine the care she was.

"About this time when our misery was greatest and all hope had fled, I read of another case, almost similar, that had been cured by a medicine known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Almost in desperation I secured some of the pills and from that day on the wonderful work of restoration commenced; the nervousness left, her cheeks grew bright with the color of health, she gained flesh and grew strong both mentally and physically until to-day she is the very picture of good health and happiness.

It is no wonder that I speak in glowing terms of Pink Pills to every ailing person. I am grateful."

The foregoing is but one of many wonderful cures that have been credited to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. In many cases the reported cures have been investigated by the leading newspapers and verified in every possible manner. Their fame has spread to the far ends of civilization and there is hardly a drug store in this country or abroad where they cannot be found.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. are now given to the public as an unfailing blood builder and nerve restorer, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves. The pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Rev. G. W. Hill.

The subject of this biography was born in Columbus county Oct. 1st, 1819. At the age of seventeen years he was baptized by Rev. Dennis Lennon, who was then pastor of the old Pleasant Plain church. On March 11th, 1849, at the same church he was set apart to the full work of the ministry by Rev. Joel Bennett and Rev. Wm. Ayres, presbyters, which relation he enjoyed for many years. Notwithstanding his pecuniary embarrassment at the close of the war, it appears that his sacrifice in missionary and pastoral work was not surpassed by any fellow-servant within the bounds of the then large old Cape Fear Association, of which he was often chosen to the office of Clerk and other fitting stations. Punctuality was his motto. He was the last Moderator of the body.

He blissfully fell asleep in Jesus on March 2nd, 1895, in his seventy-sixth year, and the remains were buried the next day at his church near by. The burial service was held by his faithful co-workers, Revs. E. W. Wooten and J. F. Tuttle, who taught the listening multitude that our departed brother yet liveth—that verily his works do follow him.

In March, 1847, Bro. Hill married a farmer's daughter, Miss Mary B. Best, who survives him, together with two sons and three daughters. The eldest daughter and her honored husband, Senator J. J. Long, followed him in succession to the tomb, both being consistent members of the same church.

This humble man of God possessed force of character, was firm in principle, and persistent in research for knowledge. He had little opportunity to go to school, but often studied hard by lightwood fires and made creditable progress in learning. At the feet of his friend, the late Robert McKracon, and other Gamaliels, he acquired some knowledge of Latin and Greek. He possessed a fair English education.

His pastoral labors were mostly confined to Columbus, Bladen, Brunswick and Robeson counties, this State, and Horry county, S. C. He did not pass for his worth, owing perhaps to his custom of preferring others.

He unhesitatingly defined his position at the polls, was patriotic in principle, and a lover of his people and country. He served his county as its Superintendent of Public Instruction, and was teaching when taken with his fatal sickness.

In 1872, he assisted in organizing the Columbus Sunday-school Institute, and was never absent but once from its anniversary gatherings. He often preached the annual sermon before the body, and was its general superintendent when he died, leaving a vacancy hard to fill.

A memorial Sunday-school song service was held at his church on the first Sunday in April, 1895. Rev. J. F. Tuttle delivered a eulogy, and Rev. E. W. Wooten preached a memorial sermon, as arranged by Bro. Hill before he finished his course. Several near-by churches desired to unite their fitting public testimony, and for that purpose one member of each church was chosen to form a memorial committee, viz., E. W. Wooten, J. F. Tuttle, U. F. Boswell, L. W. Stanley, J. W. Dickson, J. P. Pearce and J. F. Harrell. Suitable resolutions were reported and adopted by the brethren as follows:

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT TO OUR FAITHFUL BROTHER, REV. GEORGE W. HILL.

Resolved, first, That it is with deep and unfeigned sorrow that we realize our irreparable loss.

Resolved, second, That in our deep sorrow and grief, we rejoice that we find ample ground for comfort in our brother's sublime faith, his modest but earnest piety, his deep and unwavering attachment to the cause of his Master, and a life consecrated to Christian duty in every good word and work.

Resolved, third, That we will strive with the help of the Lord to emulate the Christian virtues of our deceased brother who had gone in and out before us for forty-five years.

Resolved, fourth, That we tender to the bereaved wife and entire family our heartfelt sympathy in this the hour of their great sorrow, and commend them to Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, fifth, That these resolutions be recorded on our church-book, and that the family be furnished with a copy, and also one for his life-favored organ, the BIBLICAL RECORDER, for publication.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews; Rev. J. N. Stallings; R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges; Rev. I. W. Thomas; Rev. J. M. Hilliard; Rev. N. B. Orrell; Rev. J. C. Sorrells; Rev. C. B. Justice; Rev. J. L. Smith; Rev. S. B. Barnes; Rev. E. C. Bobbitt; Rev. A. J. Bordeaux; Rev. W. B. Harrell; Rev. Thos. G. Wood; Rev. Samuel Saunders; Rev. G. M. Webb, Rev. S. C. Page, Rev. R. W. Weaver.

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

MARRIED.

LEGALLAIS—YATES—On April 17th, 1895, at the residence of the bride's father, by Rev. T. J. Cobb, Mr. Ed. LeGallais of Hub, N. C., and Miss Lucy Yates of Grist's, N. C.

DIED.

ONLY—Mrs. Eliza A. Only died in Pasquotank county, N. C., April 15th, 1895. She was a great sufferer for about a year before her death, but bore her afflictions with Christian fortitude. She leaves a husband and several children to mourn her loss.

J. B. FEREBEE.

PRICE—Died in Pasquotank county, N. C., March 2d, 1895, Mrs. Nancy Price, aged fifty years, a pious woman by whose life many have been made better, and whose influence will live on. Moving in the humbler walks of life she filled well every place assigned her by the Master. J. B. FEREBEE.

BATEMAN—William B. Bateman died in Pasquotank county, N. C., April 12th, 1895. At the time of his death Bro. Bateman was superintendent of the Sunday-school at Olivet. He was about forty-two years; he moved to Pasquotank from Tyrrell county. We shall miss him greatly in our church, but know that our loss is his gain. J. B. FEREBEE.

JACKSON—Died in Pasquotank county, N. C., March 2d, 1895, Joseph Jackson, aged fifty-two years. Bro. Jackson was for a long time a member of Salem church. At the time of his death he was a useful member of Olivet. An humble servant of God, serving well his generation, has gone to his reward.

J. B. FEREBEE.

ELKINS—Bro. John Q. Elkins died at his home near Elkton, N. C., April 3d, 1895. For many years Bro. Elkins was a faithful member and deacon of Mt. Zion Baptist church. A good Christian, Sunday-school worker, kind neighbor, affectionate son, and loving father, gone to his reward.

May God bless his aged mother, son and daughter in their sad bereavement.

T. J. COBB.

COGGINS—Bro. James Coggins died recently. He was a member of Galatia Baptist church, Northampton county, N. C., and was about fifty years of age. He suffered greatly for three months, but during his sufferings manifested a strong hope of deliverance from suffering, selecting the text to be used at the grave, where funeral services were conducted, Ps. 34: 19, "Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivereth him out of them all." J. C. FLEETWOOD.

HARRIS—Mrs. Sarah A. Harris was born in Warren county, N. C., and died in Jacksonville, Fla., April 16th, 1895. She leaves an aged mother, four sisters, three sons and two daughters to mourn their loss. She was a believer in Christ, and will be badly missed by her children and many friends. May God bless the bereaved family.

Indeed we loved this darling one,
Would rather have her stay;
But let his heavenly will be done,
She lives in endless day.

SISTER.

SPEIGHT—John A. Speight a deacon of Mt. Sinai church, died at his home in Perquimans county, N. C., March 29th, 1895. Bro. Speight was greatly afflicted in his last days, but endured his affliction with patience and Christian meekness. Although but forty-five years old, he was a leader and burden bearer in the church. He was always at his post ready to work and give of his substance for the glory of God and the good of man. This church has suffered great loss in a very short time. A year ago Bro. White, another deacon of this church, died. These two brethren were truly deacons, serving well both the pastor and the church. If God was to be glorified or men made better, no place was too humble or no task too hard. With a church filled with such men the pastor's burdens would be lightened and his pleasure enhanced. May the Lord raise up others to take their place. J. B. FEREBEE.

TAYLOR—Bro. Jno. Howell Taylor died Dec. 11th, 1894, aged about forty years. He had been a consistent member of Galatia Baptist church about fifteen years. On Dec. 29th, 1893, with gun and axe, and alone, Bro. Taylor went off on a hunt, and about 9 o'clock a. m. shot a squirrel which lodged in the tree. He then cut the tree down, and after the falling of the tree, a limb that had lodged unperceived by him fell on him, breaking his thigh near the hip joint. There he remained helpless, out of the hearing of any one, till near night, when providentially a colored man heard him, and got him to his home five miles distant. He was a patient sufferer for twelve months. He was often seen reading his little Testament. His physician thought a surgical operation might be helpful to him, and took him to Richmond on Dec. 9th. It was too much for his condition; he died on the 11th. J. C. FLEETWOOD.

TRADE MARK

The following testimonial speaks for itself:—

WELLFORD, S. C., March 20th, 1895.

My Dear Sir:—After using the Electropoise six weeks on my family and a few neighbors, have realized great satisfaction in pulmonary troubles, colds and rheumatism. I am satisfied that it will, if used judiciously, break up any case of pneumonia. In fact I believe it a panacea for all human ills. We now consider the 'poise an essential member of the family.

Very truly, J. A BELL, Pastor Baptist Church.

We will gladly send hundreds more like this, as well as terms for rent and sale. Why not let us? Reliable agents wanted.

The Great Cathedral Bell.

When the streets are hushed and still,
Lone the thoroughfares,
And the heart, or good or ill,
Burdened is with cares,
Sounds the great cathedral bell
Out of midnight deeps:
"He that keepeth Israel
Slumbers not nor sleeps!"
"He that keepeth Israel
Slumbers not nor sleeps!"

When the reapers on the plain
Heed the morning call,
And the hosts of golden grain
Like an army fall,
Floats upon the pure sweet air
With its stroke sublime,
Like a blessing from a prayer,
The cathedral chime:
"He that keepeth Israel
Slumbers not nor sleeps!"

When the children from their play
'Mid moon shadows pause,
Their whole life a holiday
'Neath God's gentle laws,—
Aye, from childhood to old age,
As their feet go on
To fill out life's pilgrimage,
All unchanged the tone:
"He that keepeth Israel
Slumbers not nor sleeps!"

When the toiler of the sea
Spies familiar land,
Back brings heart of constancy
And an outstretched hand.
Hark! the old accustomed note
Melts his eyes to tears,
Out the benedictions float
As in long-gone years:
"He that keepeth Israel
Slumbers not nor sleeps!"

When the day of life is o'er,
And night-shadows fall,—
When from that mysterious shore
Comes the mystic call,
Mingled with the "dust to dust"
Said by open grave,—
Is that word in which we trust
Mighty still to save?
"He that keepeth Israel
Slumbers not nor sleeps!"

Gambling.

When men yield to this passion it seems to corrode their character, to eat away their integrity, to unfit them for the steady, honest industry of life. How many a young man has dropped into it, and then cheated or robbed his employer for means to pay his gambling debts, intending at first to repay with what he expected to win; but the winnings never came, and instead of them came disgrace and loss and punishment.

You may have seen, either in the original or in engravings, the series of pictures by an eminent English artist portraying the gambler's progress. At first you see the young fellow at college with some gay companions at a game of cards, the night being far spent and signs of dissipation scattered about the room. Then you see him at a horse race making up his betting book, beset by men who are already further on the way to hell than he himself is. Next you see him under arrest, the Sheriff's officer come to levy on his property, his young wife looking on with startled, horror stricken gaze. Then he is further down, in poorer lodgings, remorse and misery depicted on his countenance, while his wife has more heartache in her eyes, and the children are suffering. And then, in the last scene, with despair on his face, in the bare and lonely attic, he is barring the door just before he takes his own life with the revolver that lies close at hand.

O, how refreshing it is to turn from a life of that kind, or from a gambler's life whatever way it ends, and to look at the life of pure and honest industry of Jesus of Nazareth! It always clears our vision and corrects our views of life to look at Christ. How perfectly honest, so that no man ever lost by Him; how steadily industrious, so that none ever made so much out of life as He did; and although He died on a cross and from the hand of charity received a grave, how constantly helpful to others, so that He came to them like sunshine with brightness and with joy, leaving behind Him the sweetest memories and the holiest influence; how perfect in the example that He has set before us!

Let us test every act by Christ's teaching; let us turn away from all that we could not ask Him to approve of; let us strive, as He did; to make our lives of some service to men and some use to God. If this be our aim, then the folly and sin of betting, and of all other forms of gambling, will be far from us; we shall be ready to take our stand firmly and say: "I never bet; I never play for money." We shall try to avoid even the appearance of evil, and to provide things honest in the sight of all men.—Rev. D. M. Gordon.

The Baptists of America.

In a lecture delivered in Baltimore, Dr. Augustus H. Strong, President of the Rochester (N. Y.) Theological Seminary, said: "In 1776 Baptists numbered not more than one in 100 of the population. At the close of the Revolutionary War we had only three churches west of the Alleghanies; now we have 31,540. Our 50,000 members have, in little more than a century, become 3,269,000. While the 5,000,000 of population which the country had in 1776 has increased sixtyfold. We stand next to the Methodists in point of numbers in America, but our ratio of increase during the last few decades has been nearly two per cent greater than theirs. The Congregationalists and Episcopalians have but one-seventh and the Presbyterians but one-third of our numbers. In four-fifths of a century we have reached a point where we count 74 mission stations, 417 missionaries, 2,030 native pastors and helpers, 1,549 mission churches, and 168,681 members—results more than twice as great as any other Protestant missionary body can show."—Kind Words.

A Marine Paradox.

Many of you have stood on the beach at the seaside, and watched the seas rolling in heavy breakers after a storm, curling and crashing into volumes of foam and broken water, with such force as to send them sweeping up almost to your feet. It is through such waves that men who follow the sea must at times pass in reaching the shore; but not through one or two on a smooth, quick-shelving beach, but through thirty or forty, pehaps, covering a mile of treacherous shoals, and at places surging between jagged reefs and huge boulders.

With intense interest we read of dreadful shipwrecks almost every week. The survivors tell how the big ship labored and struggled through monster billows and shrieking wind, under black flying clouds and amid jagged streaks of lightning, until, mastless and helpless, she lay exhausted in the trough of the sea, and passively received the crashing deluge of merciless waves until she sank. They tell how they, poor puny human beings, clung to helm and pumps till the great ship's struggles were over, and it became evident that she could carry them no longer; then how they hastily threw a cask of water and a few provisions into some remaining boat, and at a favorable moment launched upon the angry waters in a craft so frail that it seemed as if all on board were doomed to instant destruction.

Here always comes the strangest part of their narrative. Read all such accounts carefully, and you will find that in nearly every case where such a little boat is safely launched from an abandoned ship, it floats and drifts for days and even weeks on the open ocean, living through the dreadful tempest which wrecked the big ship, sailing buoyantly through calmer seas, and finally bringing the survivors within sight of other ships or lands.—John M. Ellicott, U. S. N.

When Death is Beautiful.

If there is one thing especially of which many people cannot possibly believe that, under any circumstances, it would seem beautiful, I suppose it must be death. That must always be dreadful. Men seldom see any misery in life so great as to outweigh the misery of leaving it. But yet it comes to all of us that He who made death made it like all things else, to be beautiful in His time. When a life has lived its days but in happiness, grown old with constantly accumulating joys, and then, at last, before decay has touched it, or the ground grows softer under its feet, the door opens, and it enters into the new youth of eternity; when a young man has tried his powers here, and dedicated them to God, and then is called to the full use of their perfected strength in the very presence of the God whom he has loved; when a man has lived for his brethren, and the time comes that his life cannot help them any longer, but his death can put life into dead truths, and send enthusiasm into fainting hearts; when death comes as a rest to a man who is tired with a long fight, or as victory to a man who leaves his enemies baffled behind him on the shores of time—in all these times, is not death beautiful? "Nothing in all his life became this man like leaving it," they said of one who died.—Phillips Brooks.

Feed Them Properly

and carefully; reduce the painfully large percentage of infant mortality. Take no chances and make no experiments in this very important matter. The Gail Borden Eagle Brand Condensed Milk has saved thousands of little lives.

If you wish the poultry to be profitable, they must have the best care. That is one reason why so many farmers cannot make their fowls pay. They allow them to "rough it," and then complain if they do not get good returns. Good houses, good feeding and good care speak for themselves, and the more exact we are in this attention, the better will the results be. If farmers, when they seem inclined to complain about the unprofitableness of their hens, would first examine the treatment they are giving them probably they might not have so much to say on the subject.—Selected.

Tommy went fishing the other day without the permission of his mother. Next morning a neighbor's son met him and asked, "Did you catch anything yesterday, Tommy?" "Not till I got home," was the rather sad response.

This remarkable statement, to which we direct special attention, is from a Tennessee farmer: My age is 68. I suffered intensely from Catarrh 10 years. Had intense headache, took cold easily, had continual roaring and singing in my ears. My hearing began to fail, and for three years I was almost entirely deaf, and I continually grew worse. Everything I had tried, failed. In despair I commenced to use the Aerial Medication in 1888, and the effect of the first application was simply wonderful. In less than five minutes my hearing was fully restored, and has been perfect ever since, and in a few months was entirely cured of Catarrh. ELI BROWN, Jackson, Tenn.

Learn to Sing.

Singing is one of the most delightful of exercises, and adds much to the joys of home. There are now many hymns and tunes suited to children's use. You can easily learn some of them, and may give and receive pleasure in this way.

There is a story of a young man in a hospital who sang some of the sweet songs of Zion. In a room near him lay a patient who was sad and lonely, but by his sweet singing she was made able to endure her pains with cheerfulness, and sent word to him that he had sung her back to life. Will you not learn to sing? You, too, may cheer some sad heart in this way.

We are told that Jesus and His disciples sang a hymn on the night when He was betrayed. Singing is also mentioned in the Bible as one of the employments of heaven. —The Morning Light.

Common Things.

Give me, dear Lord, thy magic common things,
Which all can see, which all may share,
Sunlight and dewdrops, grass and stars and seas,
Nothing unique or new, and nothing rare.

EVERY few years the organization of a small party or two of negroes, bound for their native land, encourages certain advocates of the emigration theory of solving the negro problem to get a new hold on an opinion that ought to be given up for common sense' sake. The negro is here, and here to stay; the question is not, how to get rid of him, but how to make him most useful and least offensive: it is a problem that we have no intention of assuming to solve.

The negro question is an open sore. Whenever an editor touches it, somebody winces and strikes back. But we all have to recur to it once in awhile on general principles.

The North deserves great credit for its good and desperate intentions to do all things for the negroes; the South deserves a crown for enduring all the misrepresentations money seeking lecturers, educators, deliverers, and the like, have made to raise collections. If the one will give the other its deserts, both will be more benefited than the negroes have been, and the negro will have better handling in the future.

Now, it will be just like some Northern brother to begin spreading a report that a certain religious paper down South says all the people who go North for money in the interest of the negroes are mercenary scoundrels. We said nothing of the kind. The fact is, we know that the more money spent for the uplifting of the negro race, the better it will be for us; but there have been money-raisers going about with pious faces and lieing tongues, notwithstanding that some as good men as we know are engaged in the same work with honest tongues. If the North will give money only to those who talk about the negroes in a tolerably sane way, its money will be wisely appropriated, the negroes getting most of it.

Like every one else, we have our convictions. One of them is so strong that it amounts most to a fact, and that is, the negro will be always in our Southern country. The very sun shines for his complexion, and the fields and the fowls yield best to the touch of his magic hand. As he is, he is an unknown quantity, not to say dangerous. In politics he does not know what is good for him, he is the pliant tool of demagogues and the pitiable victim of golden promises,—that is, the uneducated ones are; and the educated ones are mostly guided by prejudice instead of principle. This is the situation.

Our theory is that the negro can be lifted out of these conditions into patriotic usefulness; and as he is going to stay with us, we ought to get about doing this as fast as possible. It cannot be done by teaching him ill manners and puffing him up with ideas or hopes of social equality. That is not the way to educate any one. It must be done, if done at all, by honest training, by teaching him to appreciate his station and his relation to the white race. By some means or other he must be led into the possession of so much of moral sense as will save him from bribery, and to such a knowledge of the object of government and his own unfitness to run one, as will save him from prejudice and promises.

The problem hangs on Education, and most of it on the nature of the education that is given him.

IT IS not hard to make clear how the negro is accountable for the prevalence of that worst of evils, the liquor traffic, in the South; and it can be done—wonderful to say—without ascribing blame to the negro.

The readers of this paper know more about Reconstruction and the succeeding years than we do; and we know enough. It takes a man whose hair is just turning to tell about those times. Four million ignorant negroes (and that word ignorant meant more then than now) turned loose upon a desolate land and invested with citizenship, given sudden power to exercise their will—a faculty that had not been in use for centuries; the immigration of gangs of the evilest men that ever took advantage of helplessness; these men preying on the negroes and using them to prey in politics on the whites, was enough to destroy a less heaven-favored land. As it was, the generation now passing saw enough of negro rule to make it prefer whiskey selling or anything else to having it repeated.

Since that time until recent years, the native whites were on one side, the immigrants and the negroes on the other. If the former desired to oppose the saloons, it was confronted with the threats of characterless whiskey men of going over to the other side, turning the balances and delivering the government once more to negroes and carpet-baggers. That was enough. Saloons and white government is infinitely preferable to saloons and negro rule; and there was no other choice.

All this is well known to intelligent citizens, but there are people in the North who cannot understand how great a burden the negro has been or what enfranchisement entailed, and many in the South who have ill opinions of men who did not go into an anti saloon party that would have divided the whites and turned us over to demagogues and negroes without closing a dram shop.

It was very well for little papers without influence to rant on the subject, but papers with influence could not do it.

The face of politics has changed of late, the carpet-bagger is no longer a factor. And many of us believe that a party can now defy the threatening saloon men and stand up for Prohibition.

NO MATTER how much is said by disconsolate ex-office-holders as to the vanity of politics, and what they would do if they had their youth again, the fascination of public life will never lack for victims.

Looking at it plainly, the uncertainty of politics is enough to make any one think twice before stepping into public life, but so luring are the opportunities of rising to glory, so easy the work, so handsome the recompense that most young men forget to think twice; they jump at the chance. Nevertheless public life, with all its attractions, is of all avocations the least to be desired. In the first place, it corrupts forty-nine men in fifty; it makes it necessary for them to keep bad company; it makes them espouse causes for which they have no real love; it makes them uphold or wink at wrongs done for the party's sake, and in innumerable other ways are temptations strong. Not only this, but successful politics make a man lazy. This is because most offices are so divided up that one man's burdens are shared by five, all well paid, who have done their real work on the campaign. This is no doubt hard on the government; but it is an inevitable accompaniment of the spoils system.

Give a young man a public office, and most likely he will never do anything else except hold or seek office. We see them walking our streets every day, waiting for the tide to turn. And here it is worthy of remark that the men who make a profession of office holding are successful to a wonderful extent. Out of one, they soon get into another, though confessedly incapable of doing a good day's work for any master more exacting than our good natured and always imposed-on government.

If we had our way, about two thirds of the offices would be abolished, and the salaries of the rest cut down. It will have to come to this, if the office is ever to "seek the man."

If a young man goes into politics, it is at his own risk. There are enough warnings for anybody, and in truth there are enough attractions. But it will be good policy if a man can possibly make a living without getting into public office, to keep out of politics from the beginning to the end.

THE world of politics is engaged with troubled watching of a new star, the Silver party. It is low in the horizon yet and distant; finer eyes and bolder imaginations than ours might venture to mark its future; but we dare not. It is well, however, to be watching. The movement in the name of silver and the people is affecting all parties, and if it should crystalize, there is no doubt, serious losses to all existing political forces would follow.

A one idea party, according to history, is invariably a failure, it is said. History has here another chance to prove it. This one will meet vigorous opposition on several sides at once. The struggle will be interesting, at least to the few independents whose ambitions do not lead toward office-holding; and this very breaking up of parties will make that happy class larger and more enviable.

OF ALL the unaccountable forms of political meanness, the custom office-holders have of appointing members of their families to subordinate offices, deserves to rank among the first. And it is about as common as office holders, that is to say, nearly every office-holder is guilty of it.

Nothing is so much to be avoided as partiality in the performance of public duty; and, although every one knows that appointment of one's kin is first class evidence of partiality, it does not take an office-holder long to become indifferent to it. A candidate before the people makes a habit of getting in a point or two on nepotism as they call it; but somehow when the battle has been won and the next is four years away, he comes to think that the public will not trouble to investigate how much public money he has turned towards his family.

Moses.—No. 3.

BY REV. J. O. ALDERMAN.

AS A LEADER.

The third and last forty years of Moses' life was its fruiting time. Having been for eighty years himself trained for this last forty years, he at the age of eighty began training the Hebrews—a training that was to continue forty years. And here, too, we shall find God working out his providence in wondrous wisdom.

The plagues of Egypt were meant not merely to force Egypt to let the Hebrews go, but much rather to teach the Hebrews that Jehovah was superior to the idols of Egypt and that they might and should rely upon him. God could have delivered them as easily at the first as at the last, but then where would have been their training? Even after all this manifestation of power and goodness on the part of Jehovah, they often failed to realize his character and to rely upon him.

At first the Hebrews "hearkened not unto Moses," but little by little the truth sank into their hearts as they saw God's dealings with the Egyptians. In these plagues Jehovah manifested his superiority over the Egyptian idols and his goodness to the Hebrews as their God. The Nile was worshiped as divine, hence its pollution by being turned to blood was a fearful blow upon Nile worship. Again, one of the Egyptian deities, Heki, was represented with the head of a frog and was worshiped as a protector from frogs. Hence, the plagues of frogs was a direct challenge to this deity and proof of her impotence before Jehovah, for even her priests were not protected from frogs, but found their chambers and even their kneading vessels defiled by being filled with them. The plague of murrain upon the cattle was a fearful attack upon two of their deities, viz, Iris and Osiris to whom the ox and cow were especially sacred. Thus the Hebrews came more and more to see the superiority of Jehovah to the Egyptian gods and that they might rely upon him, for had he not protected them and their property from all these plagues? One other plague struck heavily at Egyptian idolatry. The sun was the supreme god of Egypt. Yet at the command of Jehovah he hid his face from his worshipers for three days, leaving them in intense darkness, while upon the Hebrews he beamed in warm sympathy. After this training when the Hebrews were ready to hearken unto Moses, the final plague brought about the consent of Pharaoh which would before this have been premature.

At last the Hebrews themselves were ready to hearken unto Moses and eager to start on the march for the Promised Land. But after starting, instead of leading them directly to Canaan, Moses turned southward and allowed them to be hemmed in before the Red Sea, and after deliverance from this he led them a circuitous route that kept them forty years in the wilderness. Why was this?

First, they were not soldiers. They had no arms, no training in arms, no warlike valor, but were a horde of slaves with various kinds of baggage and encumbered with women and children. Also, they had at that time no military organization. And had Moses tried to lead them direct to Canaan, he would have found himself between two powerful and well organized armies, the Hittite nations before him defending their homes and the Egyptian army behind trying to recapture them. In such a condition even a well organized and unencumbered army must have perished. But by God's providence he led them by a way that effectually freed them from the army behind, leaving them to care only for what was before. Nor did the destruction of Pharaoh's army in the Red Sea only free them from a pursuing army, but it gave them arms most probably, for it carried to them washed up by the sea the very arms that were to have been used against them. They were now an armed host with no enemy dogging and threatening their rear. Yet Moses did not go now to Canaan.

Second, they needed further training. They must be trained in arms, and they must be trained in morals and religion. This they found in their forty years' wandering in the wilderness. They were at various times brought into conflict with the Arab tribes and so learned to use their arms and to feel themselves no longer slaves but brave and free men. Also, the old generation of slaves during this forty years gave place to a new generation that had no taint of the old Egyptian slavery and grew up a different people able to conquer Canaan. But especially this rising generation that were to enter a land of idolatry and moral depravity and to become the peculiar people of God, needed to be brought into close and effective contact with God. This was the supreme purpose of the stay in the wilderness. At Sinai they heard the thunderings of his voice and saw the flashings of his glory. Separated from the idolatrous peoples of the world and present with God at Sinai where they could look upon his glory, and eating bread from heaven, and remembering the fearful yet glorious signs and wonders of Egypt, and with speedy reproof and punishment for sin at Sinai, they—especially the rising generation—realized that Jehovah was all powerful and full of goodness. They year after year, in such circumstances living under the new law, came more and more into full accord with him. Finally, at the close of forty years' stay in the wilderness, Moses led them forward towards Canaan. A far-different people from those that he led out of Egypt, were these that forty years later he led towards Canaan. But his labors were about done. Rich in goodness and glory and ripe in years, at the age of one hundred and twenty, he gathered about him the host and gave them his fatherly blessings and warnings and looked back over his long life and wonderful career. Then, with full trust and resignation he climbed Nebo's lonely height, and after looking upon the Promised Land, laid him down to rest in his unknown and unnamed tomb.

Doctrinal Preaching.

BY REV. J. A STRADLEY.

Total depravity, helplessness, foreknowledge, predestination, election, human agency, substitution, atonement, regeneration, faith, baptism, sanctification, glorification in heaven; or eternal damnation in hell, constitute the framework, the essence and the excellency of the gospel of Jesus Christ. A religion without these strong Bible doctrines is like a human being without bones, or without a soul. God's teachings are strong, positive, commanding, ennobling, life-giving. Christ preached strong doctrine, so strong that the Jews took up stones to stone him for it. We need more preachers now, who will preach the whole truth, even though they be stoned for it. Paul said: "The time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine." 2 Tim. 4:3. It seems as if that time has come. People do not like doctrinal preaching. They want flowers and fancies. They say: "Give us broad, liberal preaching, such as will promote Christian union, even though one has to sacrifice some Bible doctrines to obtain it."

Some, because they cannot reconcile election and human agency, will throw away agency, and make of election the sum and substance of their creed. Others reject election and make agency the soul of their religious system. God, in saving sinners, has joined these two together, and he who separates them, or ignores either, is unsound in Bible truth. Human agency is a Bible doctrine, and ought to be preached. If man is in no sense free to accept or reject gospel offers, then he is not responsible. But he is accountable, Christ says: "Ye will not come unto me, that ye might have eternal life." God says: "O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself."

But in the preaching of to-day, the agency of man is made far more prominent than predestination, election and the sovereignty of God in man's salvation, and this I believe is one reason why there are so many weak Christians, who have to be fed on milk, because they are not able to eat the strong meat of the gospel. Heb. 5:12. Human agency is now emphasized so much, that people rely too much on themselves, and not enough on God. Hence, it is that so many start and fall in the Christian life.

Many preachers, and nearly all evangelists, make something like this the sum of their preaching: "Make up your minds to be Christians, turn from your sins, take Jesus for Lord and Master, come out on his side, and live for him," &c., &c. In the fashionable preaching of the day, but little is said about sinners being lost, ruined, helpless, going down to hell; and urging them to call on God to save them. They are not often told; "Ye must be born again." They are not often preached to so as to make them cry out: "God be merciful to me a sinner. What must I do to be saved?"

The preaching of Christ and the Apostles was very largely doctrinal. We ought to preach what they preached or quit.

Spurgeon was one of the greatest doctrinal preachers of the world; and yet perhaps no man ever won more souls to Christ than he did, and no one ever did more to strengthen and comfort God's people than he did. Then do not be afraid of the strong doctrines of the Bible. They are God's truth; and truth leads the soul to Christ and salvation.

Bro. Spilman's Facts and Figures.

BY REV. M. J. WILLOUGHBY.

I am glad Bro. Spilman has put this matter before the readers of the RECORDER. His articles call attention to a deplorable state of things. There are some things not clearly stated in the articles which may be easily read between the lines. By way of reflection and comment, I wish to call attention to some of these. What I shall say may sound like criticism, but my motive is to utter a modest word while the question is up, to help in a modest way to open the eyes of the Baptists in North Carolina to this "suicidal process," as Bro. S. calls it.

In justice to the preachers who attend the Seminary, perhaps I might suggest that, maybe going to the Seminary opened their eyes to the size of the world and obliterated State lines, so that they, while not unwilling to come back to North Carolina, felt that "the field is the world," and that it was their duty to enter the "open door" that was "great and effectual." You know, that while they do not oppose the Seminary outright, there are many in North Carolina and in other States, who do not favor it outright. If any man goes to college or the Seminary and is not enlarged in his feelings, desires and aspirations, his education is a failure. Still he will naturally feel a preference for his native State. He may have to turn away from the State made dear by the ties of school-day associations; and though he leaves with a sad heart and tearful eyes, a sense of duty impels him to enter the "open door," because prejudice sometimes closes the home door. With holy ambition and high aspirations, after the toil of preparation, the young man cannot, he will not sit down idly, if he is of the right metal. If called to preach, how can he be idle? Saul of Tarsus was impelled to enter the "open doors" after his conversion, preferring his own people, but turning from them when he saw that their prejudice would not let him preach to them. How he loved his own people, among whom he was educated, almost wishing at one time at least, that he might be "accursed for his kinsmen according to the flesh."

I know one Wake Forest student who went down into the lower part of the State to teach school and preach, after he left college, but not till after he had gone home to his old associations and offered himself to the work there. The work did not offer and what must he do? Could he sit down there and thus throw away his preparation "waiting for something to turn up?" No, he must now make something turn up. He owes something for college expenses, and besides that he must earn a living. He accepts the school and preaches on a smaller salary than Bro. Spilman's first year's salary, a little over half of which was ever paid. Still he stays on for several years teaching school for a living and pays his debts. He is conscientious and feels that he could preach better if he could give himself wholly to preaching, and wants to do it; but he must do something else or starve. After several years of this sort of arduous work, he and his wife still teaching, he has baptized quite a number of converts, some of whom are now preachers. His wife cheerfully devotes herself to the school-room, to partially release him, that he may have more time for study, prayer and preaching. Often his heart is sad when he comes home from a meeting twenty-five miles away, as he looks at his tired wife who is wearing herself out that he may have more time to devote to their Master's work. For seven years he preaches on, the Lord greatly blessing the work, in town and country; churches are organized and Sunday-schools established, and old churches are strengthened. He works on patiently for these years, preaching to churches in two or three counties, and they seem satisfied to accept his services for a small salary, not one which has ever yet paid all of the little promised. At length he is called to another State, without his own solicitation, at a salary ample to free him and his wife from the school-room. Can you blame him from accepting the call and leaving North Carolina, though he found it painful to leave the work he had been permitted to build up and those dear to him as children in the gospel? Well, who is to blame?

Let each draw his own inferences from the following: that some preacher, after he left North Carolina, was invited one summer to assist in a meeting in the same old association which he wanted to remain in after he left college. He hardly could spare the time, but the invitation was urgent, and he thought under the circumstances, he ought to go, "not counting his life dear unto himself," nor "conferring with flesh and blood." So he goes; the six-days meeting closes, he is happy that a few at least have found the Saviour. The hour of baptising arrives, a number are gathered to see the ordinance, among them some who perhaps attach undue importance to the ordinance of baptism. The preacher uses the opportunity and the occasion to say that baptism is not a saving ordinance, and that the only thing in the Bible from which any one could infer that the ordinance has saving power, is a passage in the last chapter of Mark; and that scholars had found that the passage is doubtful, not to say ungenuine. Whereupon certain ones took it upon themselves to get their bristles up, and said that the young man had been to college and the Seminary, and thought himself so smart as to attack the Bible! Shades of the dark ages! Yes, and there was a preacher among the wounded game that day, who asked for information on the passage in question, through a religious paper. The editor explained in a sensible way, saying substantially what the preacher had said about the passage, at the baptising. But the editor happened to be a W. F. and a Seminary man, whereupon a certain oracle of exegesis and orthodoxy took it upon himself to say, through that paper, that the passage in question was certainly inspired, and that these young fellows who had been to the Seminary were "smart Alecs" who don't know what they are talking about. That same oracle is a Baptist preacher, wielding a considerable influence over certain brethren.

Now, who is to blame, if when a young preacher is "persecuted in one State he flees to another?" These are facts in the life of that young preacher, whom I happen to be tolerably well acquainted with. These are facts with not the least tinge of fiction.

I am glad to note that several of the young men now at the Seminary are coming back to North Carolina. But then, when they do not come back to their native State, let us rejoice that others come from other States to take their places; men of God, prepared and educated in other States. "Turn about is fair play," and maybe it is best thus to swap.

Let's hope and pray for a better and brighter day to dawn.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1895.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

THERE is no reason why any one should take it that the special work being done for Wake Forest College and the Baptist Female University will be to the disadvantage of either of these institutions. There must be forms of education just as there are forms of missions, and if they are represented by more than one man it is not a sign of conflict.

O, brethren, let us be broad enough to give opportunity for all our enterprises before our churches. The work of the Master is the real object, and so long as this is kept in view, there can be no conflict.

It is earnestly to be desired that the door of every church in the State be opened wide to brethren Stringfield and Blanchard. Both represent a great and worthy object, both are working for the glory of God, and the prayers and sympathy and other help given them will be blessed to the Lord's good ends.

THE messenger of God ought to be the most careful of men as to his speech and conduct. There are preachers who observe this policy in daily life, but in the pulpit seem freer of speech than ever. Speaking God's will is a fearful responsibility.

The gospel of Jesus Christ is hard to preach, being easy to one except as God makes it easy. It is undeniably difficult to be straightforward, to the point, and at the same time tender and considerate. To do this one must never lose self-control or reason, which is very hard; yet not to do this is to uncover one's self to the charge of intemperate speech.

Of course, there are times when all the vigor one has ought to be put into one's words, times when there is no occasion for considerateness or tenderness; but they are not frequent.

It has been said that the forgiveness of sins has been preached until men have forgotten the wrath of God. This may be true; but it is not so serious a matter as preaching the wrath of God so that people (especially children) are frightened into joining the church. The gospel of regeneration, the gospel of the Spirit, is the gospel that draws souls. The gospel of man's sinfulness, God's merciful justness and wisdom, the love of Jesus and the power of the Spirit is the gospel of salvation.

Not long ago in the latter part of the night a woman passed our door wailing as though she were being beat to death. She had been to a meeting. We cannot judge; but we confess that a convert who undergoes the experience of repentance, belief and regeneration with composure has more of confidence than one who cries out in abject fear. Mind you, shouting, shouting is the expression of joy, not terror.

The members of churches who made professions in order to escape the wrath to come are usually the inactive members. Salvation is not the only thing that regeneration insures, not the only thing those without Christ should be taught to seek. A regenerate—a saved—man will generally seek to glorify the Father by faithful service; and accordingly the fact that many church members seem not to be in service is argument that there are unregenerate ones in the churches, and, if there are such, their number is largely made up of those who were frightened by awful word-paintings into accepting the Saviour before they had anything but a selfish motive for accepting him; whereas, the Christian religion is the religion, first of all, of death to self.

We have no doubt more care can be wisely taken lest people be gotten to accept Christ through selfish motives; and, above all, there should be as much as possible of the Saviour's tender love in the efforts of those who have children to preach to. It is a grave mistake to frighten young people.

"THE BAPTIST POSITION."

We find that it is desirable to make an effort to distribute Bro. Love's sixty-one page tract, "The Baptist Position." It is meeting with favor wherever it is read. Conditions in North Carolina inspired Bro. Love to write it.

We will send the tract to any subscriber who sends us two dollars with request for the tract; and to any nineteen weeks' trial subscriber who sends five cents extra.

Any pastor sending us five dollars at one time in new subscriptions (whether nineteen weeks, six months or yearly) will receive twenty copies of the tract for distribution.

The work is found in durable paper and well printed; it will be a source of strength to many churches.

This offer is limited.

MARRIAGE.

Marriage is the basis of the family and the foundation of the home. It was ordained in the garden of Eden, thus coming down to us from the creation of man. It is as truly an institution of heaven as the Sabbath or baptism. It is the voluntary compact for life between one man and one woman, blending two destinies into one. The marriage tie can be broken only by death, or a breach of the seventh commandment. We allude, of course, not to the civil, but to the divine law. Incompatibility of temper, loss of affection, though great misfortunes, cannot break the substantial bonds of wedlock. So when the compact has been formed, the parties must abide by it, taking every precaution to render the relation endurable, even though it should not be happy. In Switzerland the problem was sometimes solved in a manner as novel as interesting. "Divorces were freely granted," says Bishop Burnet, "in the Canton of Berne; but any husband and wife applying for one were first required to pass six weeks together in one small room, furnished with only one chair, one plate, one spoon, one bed, and so on through the whole furniture, with the single exception of a small treatise on the duties of husband and wife, of which there was a copy for each. Under this regulation the parties, finding it necessary to accommodate one another, were soon on excellent terms, gave up the idea of separation, and were never known to make application again." Many, indeed, who find the marital state irksome and burdensome, might make it sweet and blessed by a course of bearing and forbearing, and by proper exertions on the part of each to please the other.

Such temporal, and often eternal interests, are involved in a matrimonial alliance, one would suppose that such a step would be taken only after careful deliberation; yet, forscoth, scarcely any crisis in human history receives less consideration. The depravity of the race is due largely to this fact. It is said that the primitive Moravians seem to have adhered to the ancient Jewish custom to some extent in making the choice of a wife a matter of chance. Courting was left to the old people, and of course not much was done. When a young man wished to marry, a wife was selected for him by casting lots among the marriageable maidens of the community, and the young gentleman was compelled to abide by the result, it being supposed that Providence controlled the selection. We are not sure that the youth ran any greater risk of getting an uncongenial companion by this method of courting than by the more modern modes in vogue in the United States.

Marriage is not all sentiment, but a matter that calls for the largest common sense. Yet, it is a well established fact that people who show good judgment in other things, evince but little in this. Every observer must have remarked of certain couples, "How strange that they fancied each other!" It is indeed fortunate that none of us have to choose except for ourselves—and that accounts for our freedom to discuss others.

In this connection we may express an opinion as to runaway marriages, a romantic species of meanness too often overlooked. After all the care, anxiety, and love, to say nothing of the expense, born in the parent's heart, and brought into exercise in a thousand ways in the parent's life, for a child to forsake, for a mere whim, the counsel and protection of its home, and to introduce into the family a firebrand in the shape of an unworthy person, is the most refined cruelty. Father's and mother's opinion of character and fitness are worth something; and when that opinion is despised, the marriage is almost certain to be unhappy, and to have the curse of heaven to rest upon it.

Girls, of course you are not yourselves contemplating matrimony, and in this respect you are just like your mothers were; but say to your companions, that there is one quite important particular that should receive at their hands serious consideration, and that is, character. Ask, Is he sober? Is he kind to mother and sisters? Is he lazy? Not can he, but does he, make a living? Does he pay his debts? Is he honest to the core? Is he a dude? Does he spend his nights at the lodge? Is he intelligent? If he fails in these particulars, he'll fail as a husband. If he drinks, flee from him as you would from a viper. Don't fancy that you can reform him. The sad experiment has been too often tried, and generally with the same result. Then marry a true man, and marry for love; and you will find that

"This world is full of beauty
When the heart is full of love."

A NON MISSION giving Baptist lacks means, or information, or love. The first can be made up for by prayer and sympathy and personal works at home or abroad; the second can be supplied by the papers and the pastors; the third is of God.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Baptists at Pensacola, Florida, have opened their new church.

....There are 80,000 Baptists in Canada. They own five colleges and are interested in another.

....There were more baptisms in the United States last year than in any year since 1880.

....The closing exercises of Mars Hill College occur May 15th and 16th. Prof. J. B. Carlyle delivers the annual address.

....Dr. N. B. Cobb occupied Dr. J. W. Carter's pulpit in the First Baptist church, Raleigh, on last Sunday morning and night.

....Rev. R. E. Peele, Wilmington, writes May 12th: "Rev. L. R. Carroll helps me in a meeting beginning Monday the 13th, D. V."

....There were fifty additions to the Coliseum Place church, New Orleans, in a recent meeting conducted by Pastor D. G. Whitingill.

....We have received a copy of "Mississippi Baptist Preachers," by Rev. L. S. Foster of Senatobia, Miss. We will make further note later.

....The closing exercises of the Littleton High School and Business Institute will occur May 28th and 29th. Our thanks for an invitation to attend.

....Rev. L. N. Chappell, missionary to China, with his family, passed through Raleigh last Saturday on his way to his old home near Forestville.

....During this, the dullest season of the year, we hope our friends will save us from extra expense, by sending in as much on subscription as they can spare.

....Opposition to ritualism in the Episcopal church has taken the form of the Protestant Episcopal Church Association in St. Louis. The Protestant Episcopal church debt is $100,000.

....Rev. H. Lennon will preach the introductory sermon at the next Columbus Union, and not Rev. J. F. Tuttle, as was erroneously stated in the communication published in our issue of the 1st instant.

....We acknowledge the courtesy of an invitation from the Franklin Literary Society of Horner Military School, Oxford, N.C., to attend the thirty-fourth annual commencement of that institution, May 31st.

....Rev. William T. Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist church here, was substantially "pounded" by the members of the First church, Thursday, in recognition of his zealous and fruitful work.—Goldsboro Headlight, May 9.

....As the result of recent legislation, it is expected 4,000 saloons in Indiana will be closed this year. We are firmly of the opinion that the saloons will be wiped out of many States, among them our own, within the next few years.

....Rev. R. E. Peele, of Brooklyn Baptist church, Wilmington, N. C., has gotten out an able tract, "The Nature of Christianity from the Standpoint of a Baptist." We hope to speak more fully of it when we have studied it. Price 10 cents.

....The closing exercises of Hodges' Business College and School of Shorthand and Typewriting, Augusta, N. C., occur May 23d. Rev. F. H. Wood will make the literary address; there will be presentation of prizes and other interesting exercises.

....We regret to see that malcontents have been trying to destroy the influence of the brightest Methodist editor in the land, Bro. Lafferty of the Richmond Christian Advocate. Hold hard to your course, brother, and all the good Methodists will stand by you.

....Pastor Jenkins had a full house to hear him preach last Sunday morning at the Baptist church. His sermon was a fine one and well delivered. After the morning service the ordinance of baptism was administered to five converts.—Waynesville Courier, May 10.

....Dr. Conwell's institutional church at Philadelphia undertook to run colleges, gymnasiums, baths, lecture-courses and the like; and the tax assessors took it that such things ought to be taxed. A great deal of feeling was caused, but this didn't make the assessors do wrong.

....The papers give an account of a lecture on hypnotism in the Y. M. C. A. hall of a western town. What is it that cannot get a hearing through the Y. M. C. A.?—Christian Advocate. We cannot answer your question, but it is sometimes the case that the gospel has a mighty poor hearing.

....Rev. Edgar E. Folk, editor of the Baptist Reflector, of Tennessee, has written a timely tract on "The Indebtedness of our Boards." Price five cents a copy. A. J. Holt, Cor. Secretary, Nashville, Tenn. As this is a very important subject, we hope to carefully examine the tract for the benefit of our readers.

....The revival meeting in Scotland Neck closed on the 10th. Rev. J. E. Hutson assisted in the meeting, preaching twice a day for eight days. God greatly blessed the labors of the brethren, and on Sunday night the 5th about thirty made profession. Bro. Hutson commenced a meeting in Tarboro on the 12th. So we gather from the Scotland Neck Democrat.

....At no place in our State has so much progress been made in recent months than that under Rev. R. W. Weaver's pastorate at High Point. A seminary school has just been organized at Welch's and a church may be erected within a year. Dr. H. W. Battle of Petersburg will hold a meeting with Bro. Weaver in June. Bro. Weaver has been engaged to deliver the literary address at Alamance Academy on May 29th.

....The closing exercises of Oakdale Academy will take place on May 23rd. The Literary Address will be delivered by Rev. C. A. G. Thomas. Also those of Amherst Academy will take place on May 17th. Rev. R. L. Patton of Morganton will deliver the address.

....We are advised that a young man named Gibson is in this State posing as a lecturer, and makes quite a plausible plea. He claims to have been a Seminary student, and shows a letter from Dr. T. T. Eaton. He was expelled from the Seminary. Look out for him.

....It is good to see more long pastorates coming to light. April 22d Rev. Samuel Alman's twenty five years pastorate of Emmanuel church, New York City, was celebrated; and May 12th, Dr. R. S. McArthur will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his pastorate of Calvary church, that city.

....Rev. W. R. Gwaltney's flock at Wake Forest and that of Rev. C. W. Matthews at Chincoteague Island, Va., sent their shepherds to the Convention at Washington. The last named was "wrapped in a brand new suit of clothes," the gift of his church. Both of these pastors are praising the Lord for the generosity of their brethren.

....Rev. J. G. Pulliam, pastor of the Baptist church here, who has been at his home in the western part of the State for about two months, returned home Saturday, much to the delight of his congregation and friends here. We are indeed pained to hear of the death of his infant child which occurred since he left us.—Smithfield Herald, May 9.

....Dr. Stephen B. Weeks, who has done such valuable historical and statistical work, is not, as President Chas. E Taylor stated in a recent article, a Trinity man, but a University of North Carolina man, where he graduated and then took two years of special graduate courses under his old professors. He was a Trinity professor.—Thos. Hume.

....Bro. Jno. B. Brewer, principal of the C. B. F. Institute, Murfreesboro, writes: "Rev. W. L. Wright, D D., pastor of Leigh Street Baptist church, Richmond, Virginia, preaches the sermon before our graduating class on Tuesday, May 28th, at 11 o'clock a. m., and Rev. J. E. White of Edenton, N. C., delivers the annual address on Wednesday at 12 m."

....Within the last two or three years more than twelve impostors, claiming to be Baptist preachers, have been exposed here at Raleigh. All of them had friends who said they were persecuted; but they were impostors nevertheless, and we will expose as many more as fast as they are found out. This is one of the advantages of taking a good paper.

....Rev. W. A. Smith of Cedar Rock Academy sends us a tasteful invitation to attend the annual exercises of his efficient and growing school. The debate will occur at night, May 14th, declamation medal contest the following morning, the literary address following at 11 a. m. by Hon. E. E. Hilliard; recitation medal contest at night. There will also be a musical concert.

...."A prominent man," says the Christian Advocate, (Nashville, Tenn.,) "with regard to Baptists in New York is the inauguration of an order of deaconesses. Mrs. Wm. R. Williams and Rev. Walter Ranchenbusch lead in the matter. The aim is for the visitation and help of the poor; a uniform dress is to be adopted, not imitation of the Romish nuns or Episcopal priesthoods, but because it secures immunity for women in Christian work from annoyances to which otherwise they would be exposed."

...."I have just read Bro. S. M. Brown's article on 'Modern Craze for Movements' and am so well pleased I want to say amen and thank'ee, too. I have on hand now a little cash for the RECORDER, and if we can have more and more such ringing truth you may count on me for more and more of earnest work. With 650 members working 'together with God,' and not in 'bands,' I am much encouraged in the work of the Lord and His church. While the RECORDER seeks to hold the forces together, count on C. E. Gower."

....Rev. Calvin S. Blackwell of Elizabeth City, May 6th, writes: "Rev. W. P. Hines has just closed a twelve days' meeting with my people, which resulted in 120 persons being added to the Baptist church of Christ. For effectiveness, thorough work and practical results, I have never seen his superior, and I have worked with Moody, Jones, Wharton, Fife, Harrison and Hammond. He did not say or do a silly thing that a man of taste and sense could object to. His songs and sermons reached the people and held them from start to finish. His influence is a real help to the pastor."

....We received the following from Bro. M. W. Egerton, of Hendersonville, the 6th inst.: "Rev. D. A. Glenn tendered his resignation as pastor of the Baptist church at this place on Sunday, May 5th. Bro. Glenn came to this place from Marion, Va., and has now been its pastor for more than four years. The relationship has been a pleasant one to all concerned, the power of the pastor over his congregation having steadily increased, and his hold upon the individual members of the church having been constantly strengthened as he has moved among us from day to day. Bro. Glenn's members have bestowed upon him a sincerity and warmth of affection seldom surpassed, and his severance of the relation which has existed so long and so profitably, has thrown before us a shadow beyond which we cannot for the moment penetrate. A man of indomitable energy, unswerving in his fidelity to the cause he represents, constantly leading a devout and consecrated Christian life, he has been a strong preacher and an ideal pastor. A strong effort will be made by the church to have him withdraw his resignation, and continue as the pastor, but what the result will be we cannot now tell."

....The closing exercises of the South River Baptist Institute, Autryville, N. C., will take place May 31st, 1895. The annual address will be delivered by Rev. M. L. Kesler. Also those of the second annual session of Robeson Institute will occur June 4 and 5, 1895. On Tuesday, June 4, at 8 p. m., in the Baptist Church, Rev. Dr. W. S. Creasy of Charlotte will deliver the sermon. We acknowledged invitations to attend on both of these occasions.

....The death of Hon. Melvin E. Carter of Asheville removes from public life a Christian gentleman whose religion went with him in his daily walks. It cannot be said that he was in any sense a politician, although he died in public life. The office was thrust upon him, as the one man who could accept it without aggrieving any one. His political principles were well defined, every one knew where he stood; but he was not a partisan. Our State and denomination suffer distinct losses in his death.

....Rev. C. A. Jenkens has assumed the duties of his new pastorate in New Brunswick, N. J. He writes, May 6th: "Yesterday was a precious time at Livingston Avenue Baptist church. We received a cordial greeting, and are looking forward to the reception Wednesday night," (the 8th.) He preached twice on the 5th. After services in the morning, the ordinance of the Lord's Supper was observed. Senior Deacon Kent extended the right hand of fellowship to Pastor Jenkens and wife, greeting them in the most tender words and bidding them a most cordial welcome. Deacon Kent also performed a similar service to Bro. McDuffie, the immediate predecessor of Bro. Jenkens, thus welcoming to the pastorate of the church two North Carolina preachers.

....The Examiner says of Rev. W. J. Sholar, who is known in North Carolina, and who resigned the Noble Street, Brooklyn, pastorate to become assistant pastor to Dr. Humpstone: "He is to have charge of Emmanuel House in all its departments—physical, mental and spiritual. Some elementary educational classes are to be started at once, and different branches will be added as required. The Wednesday evening evangelistic services will be continued as heretofore, and possibly similar meetings will be held on other week-nights. A Sunday afternoon class for young men will be organized; and Mr. Sholar will also labor among the young people of the home church. The stereopticon will be used freely in the Emmanuel House meetings, both for recreative and instructive purposes. There will be no Sunday preaching services at the house; but Dr. Humpstone confidently expects a marked increase in the Sunday school there, and also in the Sunday evening congregations in the church." This is evidently the new age up to date. We do not expect members of churches on the New Testament plan to understand it all; but they may do a deal of thinking on the question, "Is this what they go North to seminaries for?"

SOUTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION.

After a pleasant day's run across Virginia, one going over her rolling, fruitful hills, the other taking the water route, the RECORDER men got to Washington in good time to take in everything connected with the Convention (and there were no end of "preliminaries" of one sort or another), excepting a young people's caucus Wednesday night, and indeed one of them was so unfortunate as to get his defenceless head into that.

It is hardly probable that the scribe who, being on a boat crowded with six hundred people, was compelled to sit up all night studying the effect of moonlight on the Potomac, enjoyed his experience (for he is a married man and likes to sleep), but he was ready to say that whatever of disagreeableness there may have been was made up for by the excellent company he fell in with; and the other could grant him that much, sure that the make-up of his own train would have compensated for any amount of delays and loss of sleep, not denying that seeing the best of the "Sacred Soil" from a car of good brethren not too full (the car, of course), was better than the crowd, the fog and the moon.

Washington had been receiving troops of Baptists since the first of the week. By Thursday night there were probably five thousand visitors in the city, but there is no telling as to this, since the church will not hold near that number, and the attractions of the city are so many that the crowd never gets together. The brethren are "all about everywhere."

The first preliminary of the Convention (barring a certain "accidental" council at Nashville) was the session of the

AMERICAN BAPTIST EDUCATION SOCIETY

Wednesday night.

This most promising of Baptist enterprises is getting a stronger hold on the South each year. It is supported by broad and brainy men, and its sessions are always of more than usual interest. If it is used as the prospect would indicate, some day the Baptists of America will command, by virtue of their educational facilities, the admiration of the world. Already the Society is the channel of great good.

At the Wednesday night session, acting Secretary Morehouse reviewed the work of the Society for the year, in which there was nothing to discourage and much to lead to anticipation of better things.

Prof. Otis Mason of Washington followed him, speaking on the advantages of the District of Columbia as an educational centre, with an eye to the Columbian University.

Thursday night the Society met in second session and elected officers, as follows: President, Andrew McLeish, Illinois; Vice-Presidents, J. P. Greene, D. D., Missouri, and Hon. J. N. Dolph, Oregon; Recording Secretary, Rev. E. M. Poteat, Connecticut; Corresponding Secretary, H. L Morehouse, D. D., New York; Treasurer, Joshua Levering, Maryland; Auditor, M. M. Isaacs, New York; Members of the Board of Trustees, John Humpstone, D. D., Brooklyn, Rev. J. M. Taylor, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Rev. A. M. Butrick, Albany, N. Y., Prof. W. R. Harper, Chicago, Hon. C. W. Kingsley, Boston, H. C. Woods, D. D., Colorado Springs, Col., Hon. J. L. Howard, Hartford, Conn., Prof. A. S. Bickmore, New York City, L. A. Crandall, D. D., Chicago, F. M. Ellis, D. D., Baltimore, J. A. Smith, D. D., Chicago, A. G. Lawson, Camden, N. J.

After this, two of the ablest addresses that we ever heard were delivered by Hon. Wm. L. Wilson and President Whitman of Colby University, Maine. Dr. F. M. Ellis, of Baltimore, also delivered a fine speech. The house was crowded to overflowing,—and this the night before the Convention.

SOUTHERN UNION SQUELCHED

The guns have fired, and it is just so. Thursday at dinner, after the first session of the Y. P. Conference, during which Drs. Eaton and Gambrell discussed the good and bad features of the movement in a very lively but altogether brotherly manner, three very prominent Baptists told us that the RECORDER had made a bad mistake in saying that the Southern Union movement had gone to pieces; and it did look like the forces of brethren Gambrell and Pitt were more united than we thought. But the afternoon session proved us right, the resolutions looking to a Southern Union, offered by Dr. Pitt, failing to pass. This leaves the matter where it was before the Conference was called—in the hands of the churches and the Convention; the latter more than likely having to deal with it in some form this week. In fact, Dr. Hawthorne told us to-night that he will offer a resolution to ask the churches to send delegates with instruction on the subject to a real Conference next year.

The Southern Union movement would not have met such violent opposition, if the brethren who had it in charge had not seemed to be assuming too much and entirely too anxious to get a certain thing done, instead of to confer on a grave question. At any rate, we thank God that another year is given for our churches to consider the matter, and with this is the opportunity of declaiming against, or for, as the case may be, next year. We would rather the churches declare against the Union than a conference of "friends," though we must confess that the action of the "friends" to day is quite well enough, considering.

Dr. Wharton of Norfolk made the speech of the afternoon. Prof. P. H. Mell was president of the conference. We might give a detailed account of "how it came about," how in the very beginning certain brethren thrust the woman-speaking in public question, how amendments and motions and resolutions got mixed, and all the other troubles of these progressive brethren, but it might as well pass. Let us rest awhile.

WHITSITT SUCCEEDS BROADUS.

At the meeting of the Seminary Trustees to-night, Rev. William H. Whitsitt, D. D., was elected President of the institution; Prof. A. T. Robertson was made full professor of New Testament Greek and Interpretation; Prof. H. H. Harris, LL. D, recently of Richmond College, was elected professor of Interpretation and Polemics; Prof. E. C. Dargan was made full professor of Homiletics; and a school of Ecclesiology was established. To us, all this seems well and good. Not the least of God's blessings on the Seminary has been the wisdom he has given those who direct it. It is a grand institution, and has been useful to a marvelous extent.

FRIDAY, MAY 10.

So much has been said for the past two days about young people's organization, and other things incidental to the real work of the Convention, that one is tempted to think much of the time has already passed. But really, this is the first day for the work proper of the Convention.

Promptly at 10:30 a. m. Judge Haralson is in the chair, and announces that the religious exercises will be conducted by Dr. T. E. Skinner of North Carolina. "Blest be the tie that binds," was sung by the congregation. After reading the first Psalm, Dr. Skinner led the congregation in prayer, after which the President, whom the Convention has honored for the last six years, announced that it was time to organize the Convention for this year. Judge Haralson was unanimously elected President of the Convention, which makes his seventh consecutive term. In a short speech he expressed his pleasure in serving the Convention in this capacity, saying among other things that he never expected to enjoy a higher honor in this world.

The four Vice Presidents were elected as follows: J. T. S. Park of Texas, J. T. Ellyson of Virginia, B. H. Carroll of Texas, L. B. Ely of Missouri.

The election of Drs. Burrows and Gregory, Secretaries, completed the organization.

The Convention was formerly welcomed by Hon. J. W. Ross, Governor of the District of Columbia, to the capital city, and by Dr. Meadows on the part of the churches of the city. These addresses were responded to by Dr. Sampey of Kentucky.

Dr. T. T. Eaton offered a resolution to refer all resolutions to a committee without debate, but the Convention did not take kindly to this plan, and the President wisely declined not to permit a discussion of it at this hour, so the resolutions went over probably till the next meeting in 1896.

Dr. Morehouse, Corresponding Secretary of the Home Mission Board of the Northern Baptists, was invited to address the Convention on the advisability of uniting the two Home Mission Boards, North and South, especially in the interest of educating and christianizing the Negroes in the South. He is a good speaker, and stated his propositions with force and with considerable effect.

The rest of the morning session was taken up in reading reports from the different Boards of the Convention.

The report on Sunday-schools was read by Dr. Bell, Corresponding Secretary, showing that the receipts for the present year had exceeded those of last year by $4,000.

Dr. Willingham's face beamed with joy as he announced this the best year's work ever done for Foreign Missions. The interest in this report was greatly enhanced when the Secretary declared that ninety-two cents of every dollar collected had reached the missionary on his field, eight cents in the dollar paying all expenses for collecting and disbursing.

The last report, that of the Home Mission Board, was read by Dr. Tichenor. This Board is out of debt, with a small balance in the treasury. Increase of missionaries for this year over last year was 13 per cent., that of contributions 20 per cent., and of baptisms 32 per cent.

Prayer by Dr. Ellis of New York, and the doxology closed the exercises till 7:30 p. m., when the Convention sermon will be preached by Dr. Eager.

At 4:30 p. m. the Convention was invited to meet in front of the White House and shake hands with the President; and from four to six o'clock more than 2,000 men, women and children grasped for the first, and in most cases for the last time, the hand of the Chief Executive of the Nation. We are afraid some of our brethren will have to answer charges of gold bugism when they get back. Several minutes' observation showed that the President was shaking hands at the rate of one hundred people every five minutes, and in every instance he succeeded in saying something to make his new acquaintance look pleased, and he himself had a smile of his own that never failed, unless it grew broader when a Warrenton brother, who is pretty solid at home, greeted him, "Here's my hand, you have had my heart through three campaigns,"—and the brother is not an office-seeker, either.

NIGHT SESSION.

The introductory sermon by Dr. Geo. B. Eager of Alabama Friday night was preached before a tremendous audience, which was only two thirds of the number that would have heard, if they could. This much must be said: "Pay as you go" does not cut down attendence. There are five thousand visitors here. Next time we hope Chatanooga or Louisville, as the case may be, will rent a warehouse, and at any rate accommodate the newspaper men. Here the editors have to fight for tables, and having gotten them begin another struggle for fresh air and elbow room. Many of us are making the insuferably crowded house an excuse for sight seeing, and two delegates from the neighborhood of Raleigh have actually been all over the place everywhere except the Convention.

But I was writing about the sermon. "All hail the power of Jesus' name" was sung. A representative from England was introduced and he made appropriate remarks. Dr. Eager's text was, "Render therefore, unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's," and while there was no effort to treat so old a theme in a new view, he presented the principles involved impressively.

After the sermon, the new President of the Seminary addressed the Convention briefly, and made an appeal, which was met with response to the extent of $500.

Before the sermon, the committee on conference with American Baptist Home Mission Society sent up a report, which was unanimously approved. The sense of it is as follows:

The spirit of the conference was well indicated by the following overture of the Southern members to those of the North. "Desiring to avoid all discussion of past issues on matters on which it is known that the views of the brothers of the North and the South widely differ, we will in all sincerity devote ourselves to the task of securing for the future such co operation as may be found practicable without attempting at once to adjust all differences.

"In making this overture the committee desire to state that the Southern Baptist Convention is not prompted by any necessity of its own work or that of its home board of missions, but believing that the time has come when it should enlarge its own work among the colored people in the South, it entertains the hope that a proper co operation of the Home Missionary Society in its work already established will contribute to the efficiency of the result."

The result was a resolution unanimously adopted authorizing the Southern Baptist Convention to appoint a local advisory committee at each point where a school of the American Home Missionary Society is or shall be established. This advisory committee shall have merely the power of suggestion or the management of the schools, and in return the Southern Baptist Convention is to enlist the aid and sympathy of the people of the South in the work.

Other details of the plan were perfected, and it was accordingly submitted to the Southern Baptist Convention for confirmation last night. When the vote was taken, the scheme of co-operation was unanimously accepted.

SATURDAY, MAY 11.

Thousands of visitors sight seeing; the church crowded to suffocation; the mercury at 95. We thank the Lord for showers in the afternoon and promise of a cold wave by Sunday.

The Convention disposed of a deal of matters in the morning. In the afternoon, a reception was tendered by the Columbian University, a reception having been tendered the day before at the Ebbitt House by the ladies in general. The RECORDER kept discreetly out of these, but it was not denied the pleasure of seeing a handsome Wake Forest preacher and an assistant in that institution in charge of three rare Missouri sisters. The receptions delay the adjournment until Tuesday night; so the work of Monday and Tuesday will be told in these columns next week.

First thing after devotional exercises, Dr. Nunnally got in his Building Board resolutions, which were promptly sent to a committee for consideration. No danger.

Dr. F. M. Ellis then read report of committee on Tithing. We believe in tithing, but we do not believe in trying to institute it by resolutions. Let us pray for the Spirit's power and preach to the heart of the people. Dr. Ellis made a weighty speech, and we will quote from it later. The speech of the morning was made by Rev. E. Y. Mullins of Maryland, one of our most promising younger men. Dr. Loftin of Tennessee spoke strongly for "systematic giving." Dr. Kerfoot, Rev. D. I. Purser, Dr. J. W. Jones, Rev. C. N. Ray, Dr. S. H. Ford, also spoke on the report, which, favoring the system and arguing that paying the preacher is not to be a part of the tithes, was passed by a good vote.

The work of the Sunday-school Board was set forth in a comprehensive report read by Rev. B. H. Crumpton of Brewton, Ala. The report considered at some length the work of the publication department and of the children in the interests of missions. The report was adopted without discussion.

The report of the committee on young people's work was made by the chairman, Rev. Mr. White. It favored the organization of young people's societies under proper supervision, and was adopted without debate.

THE BASIS OF REPRESENTATION.

The next item of business was the report of the committee which was appointed a couple of years ago to consider the proposition of a change in the basis of representation in the Convention. At present representation is on the basis of the money contributions to the Boards of the Convention. A certain element in the body favors representation on a basis of numerical strength.

The report was read by Rev. E. E. Folk. Great things have been expected of the committee, but they did not develop, for the chairman simply reported that they had been unable to agree on any new basis of representation, and they recommended that the present system be continued and the committee discharged. The report was adopted unanimously.

A resolution to start a Baptist mission in Palestine was referred very properly to the Board.

THE HISTORICAL DISCOURSE.

Dr. Whitsitt was at his best, and that is great. The text was, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." Ex. 14: 15. As the sermon will be published in full, we will forbear to make piece meal of it now.

The following tribute to Dr. Broadus was in the discourse:

"When the Convention was holding its opening session at Augusta, there was a lad just turned of eighteen years, resting under the quiet shades of Culpeper, far away in Virginia. He was unknown to fame. Possibly no member of the body had ever heard his name. In due time he appeared upon the scene, and for a period of thirty years played the role of our great commoner. For thirty years he was the leading force in our counsels and history, and yet throughout that entire period he did not occupy the smallest office that was directly in the gift of the Convention. This year of our jubilee, with all its light and gladness, has been sadly darkened by his departure. On the 17th of March devout men carried him to his burial. The foremost leader of our history, great in the might of his gentleness, has passed away, but his fame and usefulness shall grow throughout the years. When you who sit here shall be old and feeble men and women, little children will gather about your knees with reverence and delight to look upon one who has seen and heard and spoken with John A. Broadus."

REPORT ON PAGAN FIELDS

was offered at night—house overflowing and suffocating as usual.

Drs. Hiden, Cranfill, Pollard, Missionary McCormick spoke to the report; all of them making able speeches. The report was adopted.

Dr. Thames offered report on union with other denominations in the publication of Chinese Bible, each denomination to run an edition of its own. This was adopted.

After an address by Missionary McCollum, the Convention adjourned.

SUNDAY, MAY 12.

The brethren spread out, preaching in every direction. Dr. Durham had a good pulpit, and his sermon will appear in Bro. Love's compilation.

At 4 p. m. Broadus memorial services were held.

It is apparent that the Convention has a great deal yet before it; but it will probably adjourn Tuesday night. So far the session has been satisfactory.

The meetings of the Woman's Missionary Union have been of a gratifying nature. A full report of the proceedings will appear next week.

[The remainder of the proceedings will appear in our next issue.]

NOTES.

About three hundred North Carolinians were at the Convention. A Wake Forest man could be found anywhere one might go. There were about one hundred of them (old students and present day); no other college had one third that number. We wish a reunion might have been held.

The Foreign and Home Mission reports are summed up as follows: The total amount given for Foreign Missions in the past year was over $129 000, but expenses for collecting it in the States reduced the receipts of the Board to $125,417. This was more by $30,000 than the receipts of the previous year, and $15 000 more than any previous year in the history of the Convention, except, of course, the centennial year. Of all the funds received by the Board ninety-two cents of the dollar went to the missionaries. Only eight cents on the dollar was used for expenses, and this includes also the cost of the Women's Missionary Union in Baltimore. The Women's Missionary Union raised $5 397 toward liquidating the debt of the Foreign Board, and the State societies contributed to the general fund $24 533. The debt of the Board has been reduced from $30,000 to less than $20,000. At the close of the year there were in the foreign mission field eighty five churches, 114 out stations, ninety one missionaries, thirty ordained natives, fifty nine unordained native workers, membership, 3 493; Sabbath-school pupils, 1,503; twenty two houses of worship, fifteen day schools with 107 pupils. The natives contributed $6 459.

I. T. Tichenor reported for the Home Mission Board as follows: Missionaries, 425; increase 44, and more than in any year of the Board's history. Baptized 5,921; increase 1,451, and 572 more than have been baptized in any one year since the organization of the Convention. Cash receipts, $88,640.20, being $15,399.29 larger than last year and greater than any previous year except the centennial. The Board began this year with a debt of $6,763. May 1 it had been reduced to $1,100.

The general statistics of the Convention were given in a compilation made by Secretary Lansing Burrows. It showed the following totals: District Associations, 703; ordained ministers, 9 907; churches, 17 803; membership (white), 1,431,641; colored churches, 13 838; membership, 1,317,130; aggregate membership, 2,748,171.

Bro. Love of Suffolk will get out a jubilee Convention book, containing sermons preached at Washington last week and Sunday, and other matter. It is a good idea and Love is the man to push it.

From Chapel Hill.

For nearly two months during the illness of our pastor, Dr. Carroll, we have not failed to hold the regular services of our church. Our Young People's Society, which I had the honor of organizing nearly ten years ago, has been an efficient ally in supplying us with instruction and inspiring exercises. It has commanded large audiences on Sunday night, when Home Bible Study, the Rise and Growth of the English Bible, the Sunday school Superintendent, The College Students' Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions, have been discussed by the young people and their leaders. We treat our Society as if it were in and under the control of the church.

Bro. Cade has rendered us excellent service in several very interesting discourses, and Bro. J. W. Watson, who preaches to churches near us, has helped us with good gospel sermons. The pastor now gives us Sunday morning discourses from his chair, after the ancient teachers' fashion, and we trust is improving in health.

THOS. HUME.

Charlotte Notes.

Perhaps it is a little late now, but let me say that our last Union Meeting at Independence Hill church was largely attended. On Friday, Dr. Pritchard delivered an instructive and eloquent sermon on Home and Foreign Missions. It was just the thing the people wanted to hear. The Doctor is at home when he is telling us the story of Carey, Judson, Yates and Diaz.

On Sunday at 11 o'clock, Rev. J. O. Alderman preached a most excellent sermon, presenting some very helpful lessons from the poor widow's mites. We learned that everybody had something to do, from the least to the greatest. The Baptists and people of that neighborhood very pleasantly and generously entertained the delegates. I shall be glad when we go there again.

The meeting at McAdenville closed last week. There was a general awakening in the town. There was a revival in the church which was one of the best features of the meeting. In addition to this, there were thirty or forty professions of faith in Christ, about one half of whom joined the Baptist church. More will follow soon. There were ten or twelve who came out for the Saviour at the last service, "Let all the people praise the Lord."

Rev. J. M. Bridges, who sat at my back when I tried to preach my first sermon, is now entering upon his second pastorate with this church. This is a compliment both to him and the church. He made himself felt during the meeting by his earnest work in the services and by going from house to house.

Rev. C. W. Blanchard won many hearts for Wake Forest College while in Charlotte. His addresses in our churches were captivating and soul-stirring. Even those who were not Baptists became interested in the College. We would rejoice at having him visit us again.

Our Baptist Zion in Charlotte is still on the up grade. Dr. Pritchard is leading Tryon street with a steady hand and with a true heart. That church now has the largest Sunday school in its history. Their Sunday school room is entirely too small to accommodate the school.

At the Olivet church, on west Trade street, there is an aggressive spirit manifested along all lines of our church work. The congregations are growing; the prayer meetings are more largely attended; the Sunday-school is putting on new life, and there are frequent accessions to our membership.

Bro. C. Gresham has been on the sick list during the spring, but he is now almost well. The pastor, the Sunday-school and the prayer-meeting always miss this brother when absent.

The Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society in the Olivet church is one of the prime factors in the works of faith and the labors of love. I am not only thankful for the women, but for these women who help me preach the gospel.

BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION,
Greensboro, Thursday, Dec 5-10.

C. DURHAM, Cor. Sec.

Raleigh, May 7, 1895.

From Rev. A. J. Hires.

Dear Recorder:—Your little yellow label clearly indicates that the time has come for my annual epistle. To renew subscription or not has been a question. The state of my eyes now obliges me to do my reading and writing by daylight, and because of the heavy tax on my time and also on my purse, I have been under the conviction for some months that it would be wise to take fewer newspapers. And so I resolved to do, but like the New Year resolves of sinners, it has not amounted to much yet. How good newspapers—the only kind I take—do grow on one. To discontinue them seems like cutting the acquaintance of old friends, a hard thing to do. And now I am not able to make up my mind to dispense with the weekly visits of the RECORDER. That does not mean, however, that I endorse everything in your columns, for I do not. For instance, your attitude as to the young people's movement has looked to me exceedingly unwise. Having read thoughtfully the discussion by and through you, I am free to say that Bro. Van Deventer has had decidedly the best of the argument, and time will show him to be right-hearted and level-headed on that subject.

Being in a position to see somewhat of the true inwardness and the prestige of this young people's movement, I am more and more certain as the months go by, that it will prove a rich blessing in every way. Though I have seen more than three-score and ten years on the earth, and had no thought or desire to join a young people's society, nevertheless I was elected to membership in a Christian Endeavor Society, which is also a B. Y. P. U. Society. With desire to see more of its practical workings, I did not decline the election, and while not as young as the rank and file nor as active a member, I do attend the meetings as often as circumstances will permit. These meetings, believe me, are among the most inspiring and helpful to devotion of any I ever attended. Moreover, it is to me a continual joy to witness the growth of these young Christians in Bible knowledge, in grace, in activity and in efficiency. And certain I am that the church to which they belong has no truer or more loyal members. This Society, so far as I know, is a fair specimen of others in this city and elsewhere. The training and exercise obtained in these associations are just what our young people need to make them useful members of the churches. But you say the same good may be attained without a Society. The fact remains, however, that the average church has not done, and will not, at least for some time to come, do this very important work. As to the State and National organization, I see no more harm in them than in the several Baptist State Conventions or the anniversary meetings of the Southern Baptist Convention or Missionary Union.

Having kindly made the above criticism, I might take a long time and much paper in telling of things pleasing to me in the RECORDER. But I will now only refer to two. The first is, your high and advanced stand on the temperance and liquor traffic questions. Believing the liquor business, licensed or unlicensed, the most potent infernal agency on earth, and holding it all the time in red-hot indignation, I have loving regard for every man and every newspaper seeking its prohibition.

The second and only other pleasing feature of the RECORDER to which I will now refer, is the gallant stand taken and held on the educational question. Dr. Taylor's comprehensive and common sense arguments have not been and cannot be answered, I think, and how they can fail to carry conviction wherever read, is hard to understand. You have stood bravely by the Doctor in this important fight, and so doing you merit the good-will of the people who are being defrauded out of their educational rights by an aristocracy. To say nothing of the unfair competition of these State pampered schools with Christian educational work, it is surely a sin and shame for a State to spend so much money on high-grade schools and so little on its common schools.

But, after all, the main reason for renewing my subscription is, my interest in Baptist State news. A residence of several years in the Old North State has given me much interest in the current history of your churches and denominational work along all lines of progress.

Now I have no room left for Baltimore news and notes, which I intended to write. This I may do at a future time.

Find enclosed payment for another year, and believe me your friend,

Very truly, A. J. HIRES.

Baltimore, April 22, 1895.

History Repeats Itself.

When Dr. Martin B. Anderson went to Albany to ask for some legislation affecting the interests of Rochester University, he wrote the following letter to his wife:—

"ALBANY, April 3, 1856.

"* * * As I said to you when I last wrote, nothing can be done here but by the action of a lobby member through an entire session. No politician can be trusted farther than he is watched and paid in some sort of current coin. You can hardly conceive of the depth of political corruption existing in this place. * * It is said that the old Roman augurs could not look each other in the face without smiling. It seems hardly possible that these legislators can keep grave when they talk about public morals and public good while they all know that the only prevailing motive is private interest—that nobody thinks of a bill being passed on its own merits; it must be bought or driven through the house, or it never moves. A member will introduce a measure and seem to work for it, but there is always a clog; something stops the wheels, and somehow or other it does not go * * *."—Memoir, page 128.

"Uncalled For, Unscriptural."

Dear Recorder:—I wish to endorse every word you have said with reference to the so-called B. Y. P. U.; and emphasize the statements made by you that the movement is uncalled for, and wholly unnecessary, unscriptural, and will lead to harmful influence over our churches, and have a decided tendency to make prominent human effort and power, to the ignoring of the Holy Spirit, and forgetting the office of the Holy Spirit in all church work. There is entirely too little depending and waiting on the guide of the Holy Spirit in many churches already. In my humble opinion the pastor that cannot develop the young people, members of his church within the fold of the church, and its prayer meeting and Sunday school, will make a dismal failure of doing so through the B. Y. P. U.

Judging of such developments entirely from the standard of Christian character recorded in the New Testament, large crowds, big speeches, banners, and great State and National unions, does not measure up to a New Testament standard.

But I suppose the friends of the movement are somewhat like a noted D. D. in this State, who, when defending women speaking in public, said, "If Paul were living now, he would not write as he did on this subject." So with the friends of the B. Y. P. U. They must think there is great need for it, and I suppose they believe if Paul was now on earth he would lead the movement. Can you imagine anything more absurd?

Such opinions mean that although the Apostles wrote by inspiration, and Jesus was divine, with all their inspiration and divinity, they failed to form and institute a church suited to all the requirements of the ages, with reference to preaching the gospel all over the world, and for the spiritual growth and development of churches and individuals. And hence, we must have a substitute, something of our own get up, that will meet all the requirements. The next generation of Baptists will reap the harvest of what we are sowing in this movement.

I wish also to heartily endorse what you said under the head of "What have they seen in their pulpits?" It is timely and very much to the point, and certainly draws a correct picture of many pastors.

Yours sincerely,

D. W. ALDERMAN.

Honesty the Only Policy.

Honesty is not alone the best policy in business; it is the one and only policy. Upon it, and upon it alone, can a good reputation be built, and a man in business without a reputation for honesty might just as well stop. Any deviation from the rule of honesty in business may bring temporary gain, but it invariably means permanent loss. On the other hand, a strict adherence to an honest policy may mean a temporary loss, but it is sure to result in a permanent gain.—Edward W. Bok, in Ladies' Home Journal.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews; Rev. J. N. Stallings; R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges; Rev. I. W. Thomas; Rev. J. M. Hilliard; Rev. N. B. Orrell; Rev. J. C. Sorrells; Rev. C. B. Justice; Rev. J. L. Smith; Rev. S. B. Barnes; Rev. E. C. Bobbitt; Rev. A. J. Bordeaux; Rev. W. B. Harrell; Rev. Thos. G. Wood; Rev. Samuel Saunders; Rev. G. M. Webb, Rev. S. C. Page, Rev. R. W. Weaver, Rev. C. W. Matthews.

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

SUBJECT FOR MAY: JAPAN.

"Bear much fruit. so shall ye be my disciples." Missionaries, 4; native assistants, 4; stations, 6; churches, 1; membership, 31; baptisms, 9. Contributions, $15.

Study Topics.—Unique position of Japan among heathen nations. Uprising of Buddhism and other religions in view of Christian missions. Danger of exaggerated views of missionary success. Language and religious pre conceptions barriers to mission effort. A Baptist opportunity.

It is a genuine pleasure, we suppose, to all who are deeply interested in missions, to run to earth a slander against missionaries or their work.

Certainly it gave us pleasure to learn the real facts concerning a Japanese missionary of another denomination. First, we give the slander—then the explanation.

Some years ago a family returned from Japan, where they had been living for several years for business reasons. They stated that they did not believe in missions because a certain missionary in the city in which they had resided lived in a very large and handsome house. There could be no doubt but that this was so. They had often passed the place and knew it well. They had no patience with people here at home who gave money to support men in such luxury, and, they doubted not, in idleness also.

So the report took shape and was echoed from house to house, and quoted as often as missions were mentioned. This was the slander.

Now the explanation. As far as the outside of the story went, it was true. The house was there; it was large and handsome, and the people who lived in it lived well. But the missionary who lived in this house was a genuine missionary. He was a man of wealth, who had given not only himself, but his fortune, to the conversion of Japan. He had never received a cent from any mission board, and his handsome house was his own private property, yet ever held at the service of the mission. It was the headquarters of every missionary, his table was theirs, and their necessities his own. But more than this. Since those returned from Japan who gave the first statement circulation, this consecrated missionary has given his handsome house to his mission board.

So ends, or should end, a missionary slander, as many another has done. But no, it will not end; for many who heard it will never know its true explanation.

Be that as it may, we beg you to remember this little statement of facts, when next you hear anything to the discredit of the missionaries, be they far or near. They stand with us accountable to God for their actions, and surely no other motive than to serve him would cause them to leave home and friends and every earthly prospect of advancement.

The Great Bright God of Self-Restraint.

Dr. Josiah Strong, in "Our Country," tells us of the heathen god, Kannin Daimiyo-jin san, the great bright god of self-restraint, and of the Kannin bako (self restraint box.) He lets the "Japanese heathen" tell his own story.

"From ancient times my family has believed in and worshipped the great bright god of self-restraint. We have also made a box and called it the self-restraint box, for the reception of the first fruits and other percentages, all of which are offered to our god.

"As to the percentages, this is our mode of proceeding: If I should buy a dollar garment, I manage by self-restraint and economy to get it for eighty cents, and the remaining twenty cents I drop into the self-restraint box; or, if I would give a five dollar feast to my friends, I exercise self-restraint and economy and give it for four, dropping the remaining dollar into the box; or, if I determine to build a house that shall cost one hundred dollars, I exercise self-restraint and economy, and build it for eighty, putting the remaining twenty dollars into the box as an offering to Kannin Daimiyo-jin-san.

"In proportion to my annual outlays, the sum in this box is large or small. This year my outlays have been large, hence, by the practice of the virtues named, the amount in the self-restraint box is great. Yet, notwitstanding this, we are living in comfort, peace and happiness."

Dr. Strong then goes on to say: "Among us, outlays and benefactions are apt to be inverse instead of direct ratio. I am strongly inclined to think that Christians could gain easy forgiveness for a little idolatry of the great bright god of self-restraint. And if the "self restraint box" were marked, missions and the savings resulting from our self-denial were dropped into it, the million dollars a year would be speedily forthcoming."

My dear sisters, how many of us have a self restraint box into which falls the pennies, nickels or dimes, even that could be spared from our purchases. How many of us remember to save in the thousand ways possible, in order that we may give more to the cause of missions!

Japan.

A recent letter in the Christian Intelligencer, describing the three religions—Buddhism, Shintoism, and Confucianism—says it is reported that there are about 79,000 Buddhist temples and 56,000 priests and monks who, in spite of dissensions among them and exposures of their immorality by newspapers, still hold the confidence of the people. Shintoism is of native origin, and its chief doctrine is that the gods made Japan, and that the emperors are their lineal descendants, all of whom are therefore objects of divine reverence; it urges, with great emphasis, loyalty and patriotism as the foremost duties of the Japanese. There are 191,000 Shinto shrines, with 14,500 officiating Shinkano.

Japanese Homes.

Miss Bird writes as follows of the Japanese houses: "They are constructed of timbers from tolerably heavy wood, put together without nails, and set right upon the ground. Instead of doors, windows, or partitions, slides are used, the outer ones made of plain paper, pasted only on one side of the framework, while the inner ones, which serve to make separate rooms, are made of beautifully figured paper pasted on both sides of the framework. The whole house may be thrown into a single room by the removal at pleasure of these slides.

"For protection against thieves and the inclemencies of the weather, there are heavy wooden slides, which shut up the house effectually, making it close, dark and warm. The roofs of the houses are tiled or thatched, with projecting eaves. The rain runs easily from these roofs, which project so far as to often exclude the light. Around the houses are little verandas, the wood of which is very highly polished, and it is the pride of a good housekeeper to keep it bright and clean. The floors are covered with white mats, which the people call tatami, to distinguish it from the ordinary matting (goza.) These houses are generally one story and a half high, or from twelve to fifteen feet. Back of the houses are petty little gardens, with artificial lakes and rivers crossed by tiny bridges. The Japanese are real landscape gardeners, and contrive, by making artificial hills on their grounds, to put a great deal in a small space."

Japanese Boys and Girls.

Japanese children are gentle in their manners and ways. Their toys are the most fragile of play things, and yet they keep them intact for years. An American child will pick out her doll's eyes to see how she shuts them, and dig holes in her ribs to let out the sawdust; in fact, make her "a thing of shreds and patches" in less than twenty-four hours. The little Japanese lady carries her doll as if it were made of precious stuff, and keeps it very carefully. When she is a grown woman, she has her dolls and toys in a good state of preservation.

A set of toys is bought for each son born in the family. Poles adorned with paper carp, after the manner of flags, are set up all over the city, one carp for every son that has been born in the community during the past year. The reason carp are used is that they are supposed to swim up river against the current more bravely than any other fish. So the Japanese think well of the sturdy boys who, overcoming all obstacles, rise to fame and fortune.—Gospel in All Lands.

The Japanese are a wonderful people. Their energy and enterprise, in such marked contrast to the indolence and listlessness of the other Asiatic peoples, have led some travellers to speak of them as "the Anglo-Saxons of the East." Others tell us they are like the French or the Italians in a certain refinement of literary taste, and in their skill in those arts and industries which call for delicate traiping of eye and hand. But the most remarkable thing about them is their readiness to appreciate and to adopt new ideas, their ability to cast off, almost in a day, the stereotyped civilization under which they had lived for centuries, and to enter vigorously upon a career of progress and development unexampled in history.

Forty years ago the people of Europe and America knew little more of Japan than of central Africa. Even after the expedition of Commodore Perry in 1854, distrust and hatred of foreigners were universal in Japan; but since the great revolution of 1868 a very different spirit has prevailed. Foreigners are now welcomed warmly, and those of them who are willing and able to teach anything of value find eager and intelligent pupils everywhere.

A system of public schools, planned and conducted by native and foreign teachers of the first ability, has been established, and is being extended as rapidly as the unfortunate financial condition of the country will allow. The existing government is essentially representative, and is a great improvement upon feudal despotism that prevailed before the revolution of 1868.

Many important scientific and literary works have been translated into the Japanese language, and are eagerly read by multitudes of students. So thoroughly in earnest are the Japanese in this desire and purpose to improve, that they at one time proposed to abandon their mother tongue, and to make English the language of the country.

No doubt the Japanese have made mistakes. In their eagerness to take part in the great advance movement of the age, they have not always remembered that in these matters it is necessary to make haste slowly. For them, as for us, the fruit of the tree of knowledge is not always good. Still it is great gain for them to have freed themselves, as they have largely done, from the influence of habit and prejudice, and to stand ready to be instructed, with minds open to the light of truth, to the light of life, the Gospel of the living God.

Many Christians recognize the hand of Providence in this sudden awakening of a whole people; and laborers have hastened to the field thus made "white already to the harvest;" but there is still need to pray the Father to send laborers into his harvest. There is danger that the new civilization in Japan may prove to be godless civilization, a fearful thing for any people. "If the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness."

There is danger that the people of Japan may get their idea of the Christian religion from the merchants, sailors, government officials, and tourists, that go to them from Christian countries. They do not know that the teachings of Christ are utterly opposed to the greed of gain, pride of power and sensuality exhibited by so many nominal Christians.

The work of missions in Japan has been somewhat hindered by denominational differences. But in Japan, as elsewhere, it has been made evident that the Baptists have it in their power to take and to keep the lead in foreign missions. So long as the Baptists adhere to the New Testament system of doctrine and worship, they will always have a great advantage over other denominations in the simplicity of the message they have to deliver.

The ritual of Moses was not intended for the world, but for the people of Israel only, to train them in body, mind and heart to know the true God, and to understand his will concerning the children. As soon as a few had been educated up to this point, our Saviour came and taught that the kingdom of God is within, and that God is to be worshipped in spirit and in truth. The divine simplicity of the gospel adapts it to all races and conditions of men.

God is calling the Baptists this year to be more earnest and faithful; let us hear gladly, and count it great joy that we may serve.

The American Board Almanac quotes the following: "A man who does not give definitely, and who does not set down in his account-book exactly what he does give, is apt to think that he is always giving. There is no falsehood larger and deeper than this in practical life. If you will put down just what you give to charitable purposes, you will be surprised at the end of the year how little you have given; yet you may have the feeling that you have been always parting with your money in response to benevolent appeals." In other words, stop not short of the "cold facts" in the case. Figures do not lie; wherefore, be not deceived, brethren.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

Dr. Lafferty on the Individual Cup.

The "individual cup" agitation has brought to the surface worse things than microbes. It is stated "on authority" that in many communities it has long been the custom among fashionable women, to pass the cup at communion without raising it to their lips for fear of "contamination." This was done before society ever heard of bacilli, and it seems to be beyond question that among the exclusives, at least, the poor microbe is only a scapegoat in this discussion. The communion table has always been a purgatory to fashionable piety, and it is a matter of surprise that the fight against the common cup was not made long ago. No doubt many people who love their neighbors at a distance are exceedingly grateful to the microbe for furnishing the providential opportunity. Of course, there are advocates of the "individual cup" who are not infected with this abominable spirit. Such are a few silverware men who will turn a pretty penny by the change, a few preachers who are nervously anxious to please the exclusive set in their churches, and a large number of pious, half-informed weaklings who are running themselves to death to escape the microbes which the naughty scientists are supposed to have turned loose upon them. We have not been surprised to find that in arguing for the "individual cup" its advocates have had little or nothing to say about the effect the change would have upon the significance of the sacrament. Take away the common cup and it is easy to see that the idea of fellowship is destroyed; but the apostles of good taste are not especially concerned about the preservation of the sacrament: what they want is preservation from "contamination."—Richmond Christian Advocate

Believing in Christ.

How much do we believe in Christ? Most of us would say, fully. We have no doubt about Christ. We would be shocked to have that point in our Christian character questioned. And yet it is certain that many who profess his name believe very little in him. For, as has been pointedly said, "We do not believe in him any more than we are willing to obey him. It is the religious self-delusion of the modern church that calls Jesus its Lord without dreaming of doing the things he commands." Does the man who gives one dollar for missions, and spends hundreds on personal indulgences believe on him? Not by any means fully. Does the youth who can go to the places of pleasure, and not the services of devotion? Does the woman who has her table loaded with dainties, and knows that the family wants bread next door? Does the employer who cuts the wages still more that he may add to the thousands already secured? Do those who fail to control their temper, or who slander their brother, or who fail in the graces of forbearance, patience and kindness? No, no. We only believe in Christ as far as we obey him. This is the practical test. Profession is often self-deception. Actions speak the truth. It is the man who continues the life of Christ from day to day who believes in him.—Epworth Herald.

The Real "Dead Line."

The dead line in the ministry, as in any other calling, is the line of laziness. The lawyer cannot use last year's briefs. The physician cannot depend on last week's diagnosis. The merchant cannot assume that a customer of ten years' standing will not be enticed elsewhere. And the preacher must be a live, wide-awake, growing man. Let him dye his brains, not his hair. Let his thoughts be fresh, and his speech be glowing. Sermons, it has well been said, are like bread, which is delicious when it is fresh, but which when a month old, is hard to cut, harder to eat and hardest of all to digest.—Dr. A. J. F. Behrends.

A Wonderful Cure for Cancer.

There is no further need to cut cancers out with knives or burn them out with plasters. Dr. Mason, Richmond, Va., has a cure for this dreadful disease that surpasses all other methods in rapid healing and permanent cure. It will not be worth while, however, to write to the Doctor unless you are tired of quack medicine and so-called cancer doctors who use knives or plasters. Dr. Mason does not compete with such. His remedy is painless and soothing, and the only one suitable for the aged or weak. The relief is immediate and the cure rapid. It seeks out the disease growths and destroys their vitality, causing the cancer to pass away, leaving only an ordinary healthy sore, which rapidly heals.

Dr. Mason has two methods of treatment—"Home Treatment" and "Personal Treatment." "Home Treatment" is for cases where the patients can be cared for at home without any other cost than the medicines, fully as well as to go to Richmond for "Personal Treatment," by the Doctor. The cost for "Home Treatment" is less than half the cost of "Personal Treatment," and for those who can be cured in a few weeks. When writing, describe the case fully, and direct letter to Dr. Scott Mason, 700 E. Clay Street Richmond, Va.

"Ten people out of a dozen are invalids," says a recent medical authority. At least eight out of these ten, it is safe to allow, are suffering from some form of blood disease which a persistent use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla would be sure to cure. Then don't be an invalid.

One of the ills of a union between church and state is seen in the case of the "Very Reverend Dean" Hole, who has been visiting this country. He said in an interview: "While I cannot agree with the opinion of many that saloons should be opened all day Sunday, I certainly think they should be open part of the day." And owing to the union between church and state, the godly Episcopalians in England cannot get rid of this disgrace.—Western Recorder.

In General.

Ratifications of the treaty of peace between Japan and China, were exchanged at Chefoo, China, on the 8th. Owing to demands made by Russia, Germany and France, Japan has agreed to renounce permanent possession of the Liao Tung peninsula. Japan, however, it is stated, will not surrender possession of the peninsula until a sufficient indemnity is paid. The treaty of peace itself provided that Wei Wai-Wei should be held by Japan until the first 100,000,000 taels (a tael is put by the "Standard Dictionary" as equal to $1 01 in U. S. money) was paid. Japan seems to have taken every precaution for the future. Russia is reported as satisfied, has no aggressive designs in Manchuria, and is acting purely on the defensive against Japan.——The State of Texas is reported insolvent by the passage of the general appropriation bill by the Legislature just closed, which made the State liable for $614 000. There was in the treasury to pay this sum only $100,000, which was drawn out by warrant in six hours, leaving $514 000 still due.——Smallpox is reported in Richmond, Va.——South Carolina is much stirred by two decisions of the United States court at Columbia. One decision declares the registration law of the State unconstitutional. Under this law a convention was to be called for the purpose of disfranchising the negroes and many white men. Judge Goff said the law was obnoxious to the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments of the U. S. constitution and characterizes it as an "outrage stupendous." The other decision is that the dispensary law which forbids the shipping of ardent spirits into the State other than by the State, contravenes the inter-state commerce law. That law, therefore is nullified in its vital feature. Any citizen under the decision can bring liquor into the State, provided it is for his own use and consumption. Gov. Evans proposes to go on making seizures for violation of the dispensary law, notwithstanding the U. S. Court decision. He says the law is "here to stay." A case may yet be carried up to the U. S. Supreme Court, which tribunal will finally settle the matter.——Seventy-seven ballots were taken in joint session of the two Houses of the Delaware Legislature for United States Senator. This balloting went on from January 15th to May 9th, when the Legislature adjourned. Matters were complicated by the death of the Governor, who was succeeded in office by the Speaker of the Senate. Without the said Speaker, the joint session was composed of 29 members, with him, thirty. The matter of dispute is on the question whether the Speaker, who became Governor, had the legal right to vote on the election of a Senator, or whether it took 15 or 16 votes to elect. Henry A. Dupont received 15 votes, and on the day of adjournment was declared elected by the Speaker of the House. The correctness of this declaration, it is stated, will be attacked before the U. S. Senate, which body will settle the matter at issue.——Twelve pensioners, says the Indiana Baptist, still draw their quarterly stipend from the general government on account of the Revolutionary war. Nine of these are widows, and three are daughters of Revolutionary soldiers, their ages ranging from 76 to 93 years. [To talk of a widow of a soldier in a war 112 years ago almost slaps credulity in the face; she must have married when very young to a very old man.] There are 45 pensioners on account of the war of 1812, and of these the ages range from 100 to 104 years. On a basis of these ages, when will the payment of pensions cease for the late war? Certainly not until after the year 1977.

From Eastern North Carolina

Dear Recorder:—On Monday night, April 15th, I began a series of services at Oregon Mills church, in Beaufort county. Brother Sam. J. Porter was with me at the first service, and did all the preaching. In all he preached eighteen sermons, closing with a lecture on Brazil.

From the first service the people began to crowd the house. The gospel was powerful among the people. I never heard plainer, simpler, better preaching.

There is no estimating the good done. Some of the visible results are that the church, as well as the entire village and community has been greatly benefited. Six joined the church. A number of others who made professions will join this and other churches.

Bro. Rose came in three days before the meeting closed and did good work.

My work at all my churches is moving forward. We are now ready to paint the church at Oregon Mills, and also to do some inside painting at Bayboro. We are building at Bay Creek. We hope to get it so we can hold our protracted meeting in it this summer. We need money for it. We are soon to begin a nice house of worship in the little town of Vandemere.

Brethren, pray for us in eastern North Carolina. Fraternally, W. F. Fry.

Grantsboro, May 8, 1895.

From Yanceyville.

Dear Recorder:—You request me to give you the result of the meeting at Yanceyville, held the last week in March.

Bro. Shore was not with me. I continued the meeting through the week, preaching only at night, save Sunday when I had services day and night.

There were no conversions. Quite a number came forward for prayer, and I think the church was much revived. Congregations continued to grow larger and more interested up to the close.

My churches are doing well, congregations good, and the brethren and sisters are more consecrated, and rising up in the power of the Lord to do his work.

Two young ladies will be baptized at Beulah church on the fourth Sunday in this month.

Trinity church has raised my salary twenty-five dollars.

All my churches are alive to Sunday school work. Kerr's Chapel re organized her Sunday-school last meeting, and the prospects are flattering for a successful summer's work.

We have a good field in the old Beulah now open for some good brother. May the Lord send us the right man. The field will pay about six hundred dollars, and it is to be hoped that it will be able to secure a pastor at once and get the church waked up and in shape for one of the best associational meetings in its history. Yours in Christ,

D. J. Harris.

Dress Goods.
We have begun a special sale of Dress Goods at 50c. in the dollar.
The majority of these dress goods are the last shipments this season, being duplicates of the goods lost on the ill fated steamer Elbe.
They were duplicated by the manufacturer without our advice, and arriving late, were offered at such prices that we accepted them and are able to offer them at just half their original price.
Estimates for making up will be furnished by our Dress making Department.
By this arrangement one can obtain fine dresses at even less prices than cheaper and medium priced goods.
THESE DRESS GOODS . . are entirely separate from the regular dress goods department, being upon our second floor, so when writing for samples kindly mention that they are wanted from this lot.

Acute Dyspepsia.

SYMPATHETIC HEART DISEASE OFTEN ATTENDS IT.

(From the Republican, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.)

Mrs. V. Curley who has resided in Clarence, Iowa, for the past twenty-two years, tells an interesting story of what she considers rescue from premature death. Her narrative is as follows:

"For ten years prior to 1894, I was a constant sufferer from acute stomach trouble. I had all the manifold symptoms of acute dyspepsia, and at times other troubles were present in complication—I did not know what it was to enjoy a meal. No matter how careful I might be as to the quality, quantity and preparation of my food, distress always followed eating. I was dispondent and blue. Almost to the point of insanity at times, and would have been glad to die. Often and often I could not sleep. Sympathetic heart trouble set in and time and again I was obliged to call a doctor in the night to relieve sudden attacks of suffocation which would come on without a moment's warning.

My troubles increased as time wore on and I spent large sums in doctor bills, being compelled to have medical attendants almost constantly. During 1892 and 1893, it was impossible for me to retain food, and water brashes plagued me. I was reduced to a skeleton. A consultation of physicians was unable to determine what did ail me. The doctors gave us as their opinion that the probable trouble was ulceration of the coats of the stomach and held out no hope of recovery. One doctor said, 'All I can do to relieve your suffering is by the use of opium.'

About this time a friend of mine, Mrs. Symantha Smith, of Glidden, Iowa, told me about the case of Mrs. Thurston, of Oxford Junction, Iowa. This lady said she had been afflicted much the same as I had. She had consulted local physicians without relief, and had gone to Davenport for treatment. Giving up all hope of recovery, she was persuaded by a friend to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The result was almost magical.

I was led to try them from her experience, and before many months I felt better than I had for a dozen years. I am now almost free from trouble, and if through some error of diet I feel badly, this splendid remedy sets me right again. I have regained my strength and am once more in my usual flesh. I sleep well and can eat without distress. I have no doubt that I owe my recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I only wish that I had heard of them years ago thereby saving myself ten years of suffering and much money."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2 50.

O. L. STRINGFIELD, Sec. Bd. Trustees.

The meeting at the Fayetteville Street church, Raleigh, is still in progress. Much interest is manifested, and a goodly number of professions have been made.

Mr. W. H. Rand succeeds Mr. Frank Stronach, resigned, as a penitentiary director.

A Statement by Rev. J. N. Stallings.

A card from Drs. Skinner, Carter and Durham in your last issue contains this paragraph: "Mr. G. W. Rollins came to Raleigh well recommended by Dr. J. N. Stallings in the RECORDER."

In a brief account of the South Yadkin Union, published in the RECORDER of January the 16th, I said: "Elder W. G. Rollins of South Carolina attended and preached very good sermons, Saturday and Sunday morning and evening. He remained until Friday morning, when he went to Winston. He desires a field of labor and will be glad to communicate with any church or group of churches desiring a pastor."

While what I wrote were facts (for he preached well, and seemed anxious for regular work,) I did not intend to recommend him, only as the facts might induce some church in need of a pastor to correspond with him and inquire about him.

He came here introduced by Bro. N. S. Jones of Salisbury, who, in a card to me, after it was reported that I had resigned my churches, said that Rev. W. G. Rollins of South Carolina was in S. and would visit us with a view to the pastorate.

Of course, Bro. Jones thought he was a true minister and worthy of confidence, as we also did, though there were things about him none of us approved. For, while he preached well, and while his conversation on religious subjects and about church work was simple and sound, yet on other subjects it was by no means discreet and judicious. We considered him a crank or mentally unhinged in some respects, and concluded that persons who came in contact with him would form their own estimate of him. We heard of some conduct in Winston, after I had written the article above mentioned, which made us conclude that he was a "dead beat," but we had no idea that he was a "distinguished fraud" and "utterly unreliable."

The brethren have done well to investigate him and to expose him. We are all too credulous; yet the brethren in Raleigh, like Bro. Jones of Salisbury, Bro. Brown of Winston, and us here, supposed he was true if cranky, and acted charitably toward him. All, however, who had any association with him, no doubt felt, that however well he preached and talked about the Scriptures and church work, he was utterly unsuitable for pastoral work.

But after all, does not his conduct prove that he is mentally unhinged?

This case should teach us all that while we act charitably, we should also act cautiously. Yours sincerely,

J. N. STALLINGS.

Mocksville, N. C., May 10, 1895.

Lewis Hinton of Raleigh, a colored fireman, was killed at 11 p. m. last Saturday at Macon in a railroad wreck, caused by a portion of a number of freight cars running into another number of cars, to which the engine was attached. The train of cars became separated while in motion, and the rear portion ran into the front portion, on down grade, smashing the cars, knocking the fireman off on the track, and running over his legs, from which he died in about two hours.

Unveiling Ceremonies May 20th.

The hospitality of Raleigh will doubtless be taxed to its utmost on the occasion of the unveiling ceremonies May 20th. It will be an event of peculiar pleasure and interest to perhaps the largest number of visitors ever assembled at the capital.

The very low rates advertised by the various railroads for this special occasion insures the presence of thousands.

To each visitor a cordial invitation is extended by Messrs. W. H. & R. S. Tucker & Co. to see their large Dry Goods Store, the most complete and thoroughly equipped establishment of the kind in the State. Here all visitors will be made to feel at home, and whether buying or sight-seeing, a hearty welcome is promised.

DIED.

HOWELL—Bro. Frances Howell, nephew of Rev. J. B. Boone, an excellent man, kind husband, indulgent father, member of Galatia church, aged about forty-five years, died in February, 1895, after an illness of eight or ten days of pneumonia. He has left a kind wife and six children to mourn their loss.

J. C. FLEETWOOD.

CARLTON—Died in Cedar Fork township, Wake county, N. C., April 29th, 1895, Mrs. Jane Carlton, wife of W. D. Carlton, aged seventy-two years. Sister Carlton had been a consistent member of the Baptist church from early life. She leaves a husband, two sons and five daughters to mourn their loss, two daughters and one son having gone before her to the spirit land. W. G. CLEMENTS.

ROBBINS—The death angel visited our community March 11th, 1895, and gently bore away to a brighter, happier home, one of our dearly deloved sisters, Mrs. Mary J. Robbins, aged thirty-nine years. She was baptized and joined the Baptist church at Sharpsburg, N. C., June, 1886. Mrs. Robbins was a Christian-hearted lady. She leaves a husband and four children to mourn her loss, and a host of relatives and friends, by whom she will be sadly missed. But we submit to the will of him who doth all things well, and say, "Thy will be done." REV. L. A. LAYED.

BOON—Sister N. B. Boon, wife of J. H. Boon, was born in Caswell county, N. C., July 3d, 1821, and died at her home in East Durham, N. C., April 11th, 1895, aged nearly seventy-four years. She professed faith in Christ in 1859, in a protracted meeting at "old Mount Carmel church," about two miles west of Chapel Hill. Sister Boon remained out of the church about three years, "consulting her doubts and fears," and then obeyed God in baptism and united with the Baptist church at Chapel Hill. She was baptized by Rev. Norman Wilson. After several years she came to the First Baptist church, Durham, by letter; thence to East Durham, where she remained a member in full fellowship, and much beloved by her church and all who knew her, until the Lord took her to himself. For some reason, known to herself, she did not wish what is popularly termed a funeral sermon, but a short service at the grave. Her request was carried out, and the service conducted by the writer and Rev. J. F. MacDuffie, after which her body was interred in an "old family burial place," not far from the place where she became a Christian. She leaves an aged husband and three children to mourn their loss, but they sorrow not as those who have no hope. O. C. H.

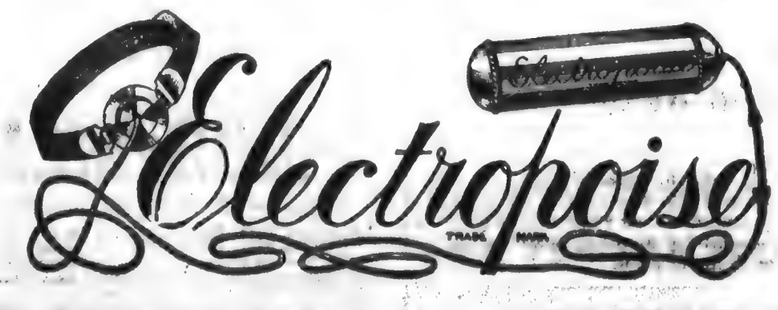
East Durham, N. C., May 1, 1895.

Tributes of Respect.

Died at his residence near Garysburg, N. C., Sept. 3rd, 1894, R. T. Wheeler. He was born in Northampton county, N. C., January 29, 1839, was educated at Annapolis, Md., entered the Confederate army in 1861, and while in the service he was converted, and at the expiration of the war, united with Elam Baptist church of which he was a faithful member. He was a good neighbor, a devoted husband, and a kind father. In the year 1893 he was called upon to mourn the loss of two bright boys aged respectively nine and thirteen years. His great desire was so to live that he might meet the loved ones that God had taken; be it therefore

1. Resolved by the Elam Sunday-school, That we sustain a great loss by his death, and that we strive to emulate the Christian example of our departed brother.

2. That we hereby tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family. May the Lord comfort and sustain the wife and two children left to mourn his loss. Dear bereaved, look up, trust in Jesus, follow him as he followed the Saviour.



2. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our school record, one be sent to the bereaved family, and one sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

SPECIAL NOTICE—OF INTEREST TO ALL.

BALTIMORE, MD., May 1, 1895.

Mr. Editor: Please inform your readers that at the request of many teachers, students and others who wish profitable work for their summer vacation, we have decided to continue for the present our offer to give $200 in gold to any one selling in three months 200 copies of "Talks to Children About Jesus." This is one of the most popular books published. Agents often sell from ten to fifteen copies a day. Complete outfit and full information sent for 35 cents. We pay freight and give credit. With the above offer and other liberal inducements we give, any one of energy can make enough money to pay board and tuition at any of our leading schools or colleges.

Please also say we offer for next sixty days extremely low prices on Teachers' and Family Bibles and some of our other popular books. Yours very truly,

"I Shall Not Pass Again This Way."

The bread that bringeth strength I want to give,
The water pure that bids the thirsty live;
I want to help the fainting day by day;
"I'm sure I shall not pass again this way."

I want to give the oil of joy for tears,
The faith to conquer crowding doubts and fears,
Beauty for ashes may I see alway—
"I'm sure I shall not pass again this way."

I want to give good measure, running o'er,
And into angry hearts I want to pour
The answer soft that turneth wrath away—
"I'm sure I shall not pass again this way."

I want to give e'en as the Master gave,
Help to the erring, and I want to have Forgiveness in my heart from day to day—
"I'm sure I shall not pass again this way."

I want to give to others hope and faith,
I want to do all that the Master saith;
I want to live aright from day to day—
"I'm sure I shall not again pass this way."

Middle Ground.

It is a favorite device with speakers and writers to claim to occupy "middle ground." A man points to those who hold what he calls "extreme views" on one side, and then to those whom he charges with holding "extreme views" on the other side, adding, "I go to neither extreme, I take middle ground." Immediately many people forget that he has advanced no argument in support of his position and imagine that he is a "safe" man, going to "neither extreme," and so they fancy he must be about right. There is a curious fascination about this "middle ground" business, and speakers and writers are quick to take advantage of it. And the scarcer one is of arguments, the readier he is to pose as occupying "middle ground," going to "neither extreme."

This is a very cheap and a very common trick, which deserves to be exposed. No matter what a man's position may be, he can always claim, and nearly always does claim to occupy "middle ground." Many people somehow persuade themselves that the middle ground is about right, and the fact that a man claims to stand there predisposes them in favor of his views.

It is evident on a moment's reflection that a man who is careful to go to "neither extreme," but to keep ever in the middle must drift with the current and must make every turn and twist the stream makes. He is sure to go wrong. The true position in no way depends on how many men there are on either side of it nor on how far they stand to the right or to the left. An extreme position may be the true one, and very often it is so. Our Lord advocated what the Pharisees thought were very "extreme views" on many questions. "But I say unto you, love your enemies." "If thine eye offend thee, pluck it out." "Before Abraham was I am." "Go thou and do likewise," i. e., as the Good Samaritan did. "Destroy this temple and in three days I will raise it up." These and many other words of Christ were not at all on "middle ground," but were very extreme.

Gamaliel occupied middle ground as to whether the religion of Christ was of God or of men. One side claimed it was of man. If they were right, it would come to naught as did the affairs of Theudas and of Judas of Galilee. The other side claimed that it was of God. If they were right, it could not be overthrown, and the effort to destroy it would be fighting against God. But prudent Gamaliel would not take either extreme. There was something to be said to be sure, on both sides, but it was best to occupy "middle ground" and let the whole matter alone.

Fiery Saul of Tarsus, however, believed that this religion of Christ was of men, that Jesus was a blasphemer and His disciples idolaters, deserving to be put to death according to the law of Israel. He thus took an "extreme view," and threw his whole soul into carrying out that view. And while Gamaliel was calmly and complacently occupying his "middle ground," Saul was persecuting Christians "even unto strange cities." Yet it was Saul of Tarsus who was converted and who, under God, brought things to pass. True, Gamaliel never made a persecutor of Christians, but he never became an apostle.

The men who do the great work of the world are not those who seek to "occupy middle ground," but those who want to be right and to push the right with all their force. To keep middle ground, one must be governed by the positions of others and must keep shifting as others move. To be right, a man must ask what God says, and must be willing to be on either extreme or in the middle as the truth may determine.

But we doubt not men will go on claiming to "occupy middle ground," and people will go on thinking in the absence of argument or reason that such men are "safe" and "wise" and ——ahem!—Selected.

I Must Pray More.

I was lately in company of one of our older ministers, who has labored long and with much success in some of the most difficult fields of the church. The object of my interview was to learn from him the secret of success with which it had pleased God to crown his ministry in positions and places where others have failed. Instead, however, of directly giving me the information I desired, he told me with great sorrow the reason why he had accomplished so little, and said with unaffected sadness:

"My young friend, the mistake of my life has been that I have not prayed more. I fell into the error of most ministers. I studied and preached, I worked and worried too much, and I prayed too little! Could I live my life over again, I would be more with God and less with men.

"I see it all now—what wasted years of unrest I have passed, how much my life was my own doing and how little of God has been in my active ministry! I can now, in the evening of my days, only ask God to forgive my shortcomings and to aid me in spending my few remaining years differently from the imperfect way in which I have served my Master."

I will not attempt to say how deeply humbled I was by this unexpected revelation! I returned to my own home greatly cast down in mind and thoroughly ashamed of myself. For a time I could scarcely drag through my ordinary duties, so self-condemned and wretched was I.

The mistake of this father of Israel has been mine also, only a ten-fold greater degree. I, too, have asked forgiveness of God, and by his grace have amended my negligent ways. I have learned by this interview what I least of all expected, viz., how little prayer to God was mixed up with my own busy life. I see now why my failings have been so many and so manifest. The reason is apparent. God's work was carried on largely without God. The half or quarter of an hour's devotion in the morning and evening did not meet the real needs of the soul, much less the demands of the work which has been committed to my charge. Hence the weakness, the like of spiritual power and the sad failures of my life! I see it all now and repent in dust and ashes! I can only pray to God for my pardon and send up the piercing cry: "My soul cleaveth to the dust; quicken thou me according to thy word."—The Workman.

A Tooth for a Tooth.

Perhaps no profession has made more progress in the last thirty years than dentistry has done. Half a century ago dentistry, as a separate branch of the medical profession, was but little known, and dentists were but very few, even in the great cities. The regular physician pulled the aching tooth, and we have even seen a case where he filled it, and the filling, owing to the healthy character of the bone, possibly remained in that tooth for all of a long lifetime. At that period the dentist travelled about from one town to another through a wide district, and people who availed themselves of his services were thought to be rather fantastical, and foolish and extravagant as well. In a case where new front teeth were wanted the old tooth was sawed off and the nerve was destroyed with hot irons and infinite torture, in order that a new tooth might be driven in on a wooden peg, a tooth that was a perpetual trouble and never permanent. A tooth that ached then was extracted without remorse, and a filling, when fillings came to be known, as often dropped out as staid in. Now, on the contrary, if the tooth must be parted with, there are so many ways of evading the pain that, had they existed in the old time, Isaac of York might have kept his money, and the anodynes are so used that the patient is conscious and sees the whole operation and suffers nothing at all. But no tooth is taken out now that can possibly be kept in. If a nerve must be killed it is usually killed painlessly, and the tooth that once could not bear permanent and solid filling is treated till it is able to do so. Even when a tooth is so nearly gone that retaining points for the filling are not to be had, tiny gold screws can be inserted whose heads answer for the points, a fine gold wire can hold the fragile sections together and be built about, and anodynes have been found that can be injected into the gum or applied to it and do away with much of the pain once attending a bad excavation or a tender filling. Fillings are made so artistically, too, as almost to be beautiful in themselves; and it is even possible, in case of a cavity on the front surface of a tooth, to insert a bit of enamel so delicately that even the cracks cannot be discerned.—Harper's Basar.

The Untrained Daughter.

Why should not a girl be taught bookkeeping and some of the more common business forms? writes Elizabeth Robinson Scovil in the May Ladies' Home Journal. Men pity, or laugh at, the business incapacity of the vast majority of women. It is often only due to want of proper instruction, and why should not this be supplied?

Some girls have a passion for flowers, and plants grow and thrive under their coaxing fingers without much apparent effort on their part. Such may find their vocation in the management of a greenhouse. Raising flower seeds is a remunerative occupation. Choice pansy seed is sold at seven dollars an ounce at retail, rare ones at double that price, and some varieties of verbenas at three dollars an ounce. Cut flowers always command a good price in winter, spring flowers at Easter and choice flowers all the year round.

The care of precious house plants for absent owners, supplying potted plants and ferns for the decoration of dinner-tables and drawing-rooms, help to swell the balance. Some florists not only supply the flowers but arrange them in their receptacles, charging an extra sum for the service.

A girl choosing this occupation must be content to learn her business thoroughly under an experienced florist, and should also have a little capital to begin with.

There are so many good technical schools now that there need be little difficulty in obtaining excellent instruction in whatever avocation it is wished to take up.

Education should lead out, not force on.

MAKES USE OF
Ayer's Sarsaparilla
AND SOON RECOVERS STRENGTH.
"A year ago, my partner died, and the whole burden and responsibility of a large grocery business fell upon me. The increased care and hard work so taxed my strength that I became all run down, had no appetite, was weak, nervous, and endured all the torments which headache, indigestion, and total loss of energy could inflict. The medicine recommended me did no more good than so much water. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being favorably brought to my attention, I tried it, and, in a short time, began to feel better. I continued to take this medicine for two months, at the end of which time I felt like a new man. My appetite, energy, and strength returned, and all traces of headache and nervousness disappeared. I am convinced that if I had not taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I should be totally unable to attend to business."—Wm. H. Brown, 33 Gorham St., Lowell, Mass.

TO GRASP A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

Look into the history of the young people's movement. No doubt it is a shoot of the general growth of organization, which latter is beyond our space to speak of historically. But taking the movement in itself, its first considerable impression was made as an interdenominational order. Now the Methodists have a great League of young workers (which is altogether consonant with their doctrine and polity), and the Baptists have the Baptist Young People's Union of America, on the one hand, (which is not altogether consonant with our doctrine and polity), and numerous local societies, on the other.

This B. Y. P. U. A. and its imitators the RECORDER has been and will always be found standing against. But we are not blind to the opportunity our denomination has. He would be blind indeed who failed to see the power for good, the sources of strength all along our line in this movement. But we have not been so overcome with the brightness of its promise as to lose sight of God's purpose through his churches, no more than the evils of this B. Y. P. U. A. have overshadowed our confidence in the young people.

The Mississippi out of banks is worse for the time than no river at all; within banks it is a priceless boon to all the country. In the awakening of the young people, in the awakening of the churches through the young people, there is strength and incalculable good; but uncontrolled or without the guiding hand of the churches, it had better not exist at all.

Just at this time the RECORDER can speak more freely on this subject than most papers. We said in the beginning we would not be influenced by the action of the Conference and that the Convention has no authority in the matter; and now that the Conference has refused to approve any general organization and the Convention has taken no definite action, we rise to say that it is weakest improvidence to let go the opportunity of arousing the young people in the churches to work and study. It is wrong to say the movement has been given a backset, when only certain dangerous growths have been cut off, with no loss of vitality.

It is not reasonable to argue that nothing can be done without general organizations, for we have seen it successfully tried. It is not reasonable to argue that churches cannot get along and entirely fulfil their mission without organizing a society, for they have. It is not reasonable to argue that young people's societies in the churches will solve all problems, for they have not. But it is sheer blindness to say they have no good in them. It is always good to get together for worship. It is undeniably good to get the young people to doing this, and undeniably good to get them to studying the Bible, studying history and present conditions. Not that it is not just as good to get the older members actively engaged in the same kind of work, but that it is easier and the opportunities are more abundant with the young people, and also, because such work will shield them from many temptations which older members do not have to struggle with. And all this, any one will grant, can be done without national or sectional or State organizations. What are these latter compared with one church! This movement is by nature in the churches and for the churches, and it should be by and of the churches.

We must take the young people in hand. If not, they may become indifferent or wander off after interdenominational, or equally as objectionable, Bible disrespecting organizations. The power in the movement is ours, if we will grasp it and shape its development. It is an opportunity that will not last long.

We verily believe the arrangement adopted by our last Convention is the most desirable of all; but we rather think it has not been fully tested. Prospect of further organization drew us from our course. Now let us get back to it and leave the jack o'lanterns to the swamps. The RECORDER columns are at the service of the committee appointed by the last Convention. Let us all unite on this judicious, Scriptural course, every one doing what he can to get the younger members aroused to the need of more activity, of study, of work and sacrifice, and God will bless us. There is no reasonable objection to working with this arrangement. There is every reason why we should. It is fully under authority of the churches and fully in touch with them. It provides all the means and inducements for study and for work that any plan provides.

The Ministry of John the Baptist.

BY REV. W. B GWALTNEY.

Did John's ministry belong to the Mosaic economy or to the Christian dispensation? When he entered upon his ministry it seemed as though Elijah had returned from heaven. He startled the people by demanding repentance. He stirred the conscience of the masses so long asleep under ritualism. Intensely real and in earnest he spoke nothing of Levitical rites or of sacrifice or of Rabbis, but demanded that the law should be applied to the conscience, and carried out in the life. A spiritual preparation would alone avert the coming wrath. He called upon all to repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand—to bring forth fruits worthy of repentance—fruits answerable to amendment of life, and to be baptized in the name of him who should come after him, that is Christ Jesus. To submit not to Jewish washing to cleanse from ceremonial uncleanness, and received every time defiled; but to baptism, to be received but once, an emblem of purification required in heart and in life. Josephus says of John the Baptist, "That he commanded the Jews to exercise virtue both as to righteousness towards one another, and piety towards God, and so to come to baptism; for that the washing with water would be acceptable to him, if they made use of it, not in order to putting away or remission of some sins only, but for the purification of the body, supposing still that the soul was thoroughly purified beforehand by righteousness." p. 540. In the great and stirring revival produced by John's preaching was born the Christian dispensation. Our Saviour says, "The law and the prophets were until John, since that time the kingdom of God is preached and every man presseth into it." Luke 16: 16. "And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force. For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John." Matt. 11: 13. The kingdom of God and kingdom of heaven mean the gospel or Christian dispensation, and the meaning of these passages clearly is that it was in existence, and had been since the days of John the Baptist. We read in Mark first chapter, "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God; as it is written in the prophets, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee. The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight. John did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." Mark 1: 1, 2, 3, 4. Here Mark calls John's ministry and baptism the beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ the Son of God.

After our Lord's ascension, Peter said to the disciples assembled, "Wherefore of these men which have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, beginning from the baptism of John, unto that same day that he was taken up from us, must one be ordained to be a witness with us of his resurrection," Acts 1: 21, 22. We see here that John's ministry was connected with Christ's ministry, and as Mark says, "the beginning of his gospel." But some cannot take this view of it because of what our Saviour said in Matt. 11: 9 and 11, "But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist: notwithstanding, he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he." In what sense was John greater than a prophet? He was not greater than a prophet as to personal character, but as to position and privilege. No one prior to John had enjoyed such a privilege as he, of clear views of truth, and of honor in the sight of God. The prophets had spoken of Christ; John had spoken to him. The prophets had said, a son shall be born; John cried, Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world. The prophets saw Christ's day at a distance; John saw its dawn, its sun-rise. But how shall we understand verse 11, "Notwithstanding, he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he?" Shall we understand by this that he was not in the kingdom of heaven; that he did not belong to the gospel or Christian dispensation? No. But that he who is least in the kingdom of heaven is in a position of greater light and privilege.

John lived and labored at the dawn of Christ's day—in the morning of the Christian dispensation. He was taken away before the rending of the veil, before Christ was crucified, and of course before he arose from the dead and ascended on high, and before the outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost. We have all these glorious events before us established on divine testimony. The least now has greater lights than ever John had. The least is not greater as to character, but as to exalted privilege. We are not, therefore, to conclude that John did not belong to the Messianic reign, because the least in that reign is said to be greater than John. But some tell us that this transitional period—John's ministry—was only preparatory, and that Christ's reign did not exist at all till it was fully established, and that it was fully established at Pentecost. But there were several transitional periods, as the conversion of the the Gentiles, the recognition of their equal rights and privileges, the destruction of Jerusalem and the Jewish polity. But was the reign of Christ without existence until it was fully established? In a very important sense the Messianic reign is not yet fully established, and ours is but a transitional period. We still pray, thy kingdom come. It is still coming, and we pray for its complete establishment, when his will shall be done on earth as it is in heaven.

Chrysostom speaks of John's ministry on this wise: "John's position is like the hour between dawn and sunrise, a part of the day, yet less light than when the sun is actually risen. The beginning of John's ministry was the dawn of the Messianic reign, whose light increased by degrees."

Dr. Broadus says of John the Baptist: "In some sense he belongs to the kingdom of Messiah, the Christian dispensation, his work constituting its introductory stage, and yet his position is inferior in dignity and privilege to the least in that kingdom. His work may be compared to a landing place in a stairway, the highest step of the lower flight, or the lowest step of the upper flight." He seemed to be as fully imbued with the spirit of Christianity as any of the apostles.

Did Paul say, "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ?" John the Baptist said, "I am not worthy to stoop down and untie the latchet of his sandals. He must increase, but I must decrease." Did Paul say, "I am determined to know nothing among you but Jesus Christ and him crucified"? John said, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." He preached the same gospel which they preached and baptized on the same grounds. "Then went out unto him all the land of Judea, * * and were baptized of him in Jordan confessing their sins." He called on the people to bring fruits worthy of repentance and to be baptized confessing their sins. This is what the gospel demands: repentance, confessing of sins and baptism.

This is what Peter preached on the day of Pentecost: Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins.

When John saw many of the Pharisees and Saducees come to his baptism, he said unto them, "O generation of vipers * * * bring forth therefore fruits meet for repentance. And think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham." Matt. 3: 7, 8, 9. He informs them that in this new order of things, in this new dispensation, they are not to stand on their relation to pious parents, not even to Abraham the father of the faithful—that being the natural descendants of Abraham was a matter of very small consequence with God. As well expect God to raise up children unto Abraham out of these stones in or about the river, as to expect to enjoy the privileges of this new order because descended from Abraham.

"And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees: therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire." Matt. 3: 10. In these words John tells them that a searching, trying kind of preaching is commenced now. Principles and conduct are to be investigated. Men are to be tried by their lives, and not by their birth or position. That they who do not bear this test are to be rejected. Such was the preaching, and such were the fruits which he demanded as prerequisites to baptism. Peter demanded no more on the day of Pentecost. He demanded that they should repent and be baptized, and then promised them the gift of the Holy Spirit. John had also in his preaching told them of their baptism of the Holy Ghost by him who should come after him—Christ. But some say that the gospel requires not repentance but faith before baptism. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Mark 16: 16. "And they that gladly received his word were baptized." Acts 2: 41. They required both repentance and faith; for there can be no repentance without faith. When there is true repentance there will always be faith. By faith we must see the divine goodness and love against which he has sinned before he can be truly sorry for his sins and turn from them and preach them. Faith and repentance are inseparable. Paul testified to Jews and Greeks, repentance towards God, faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ. Act 20: 21.

Peter said, Repent and be baptized; and what followed? "They that gladly received his word were baptized." When Peter called on them to repent he virtually called on them to believe. And when John called on the people to repent he also preached faith in Christ. "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world."

See Paul's explanation of the design of John's baptism to those disciples at Ephesus. Acts 19: 4, "John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus." We see that John preached repentance and faith, and as strongly urged them as prerequisites of baptism as did the apostles.

But some one has said that the fruit of the faith which the apostles preached is beneficence. "What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? can faith save him? If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit?" Jas. 2: 14, 15, 16. But John's preaching demanded as much. His repentance must bring forth like fruits. "And the people asked him saying, What shall we do then? He answereth and saith unto them, He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise." Luke 3: 10, 11. And the law which John, the beloved disciple, preached, demands the same fruits which James' faith and John the Baptist's repentance demanded. "But whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" 1 John 3: 17. The repentance unto which John called the people is accompanied by James' faith and John's love. The gospel which he proclaimed is the same gospel which they proclaimed, and his baptism was performed in the same manner. They preached Christ as having been delivered for our offences, and raised again for our justification. He said, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world."

If this was Christian baptism, so was his. If they belonged to the Christian dispensation, so did he. Certainly John's ministry and baptism did not belong to the old Jewish economy, nor the Mosaic dispensation; for all who came to John were Jews, and belonged to the old dispensation, but could not be admitted to baptism on that ground, but must bring forth fruits worthy of repentance.

Now if John's ministry and baptism belonged to the old Jewish economy, why not receive those who belonged to it on that ground? But John's reminding them that they need not come claiming Abraham as their father, is a reminder at once that he has introduced a new order of things, and that now they need not expect the privileges of this new order because they belonged to the old dispensation, and as a qualification for baptism they must bring forth the fruits of repentance, and believe on him who should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus. Is there anything more clearly Christian?

But it is claimed that the Christian dispensation did not begin until Pentecost, and John's ministry and baptism being before Pentecost could not then be Christian.

But if John's ministry and baptism were different in kind from Christian preaching and baptism on that account, then we have the strange contradiction that what Christ himself did was not Christian; for he did his preaching and baptizing before Pentecost, therefore Christ did not belong to the Christian dispensation. He preached his own everlasting gospel. He made and baptized more disciples than John, and shall we say that it was not Christian because it was before Pentecost? If John's baptism was not Christian because before Pentecost, what are we going to do with the Lord's Supper, for it was instituted before Pentecost. Herod suffered much confusion and remorse because he beheaded John the Baptist. And many good Christian people get into a great deal of confusion, and I could wish, a great deal of remorse, because they behead him by cutting off Christianity from him. Notice the argument of these good people. It carries them too far. They say the Christian dispensation was not ushered in until Pentecost; John's baptism was before Pentecost; therefore it could not be Christian baptism. Well, then Christ's teaching and baptism were before Pentecost—therefore what Christ did was not Christian. The Lord's Supper was instituted before Pentecost, therefore the Lord's Supper is not a Christian ordinance.

Some say that John's baptism was not Christian baptism because not administered in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit. But is not that which is done in Christ's name done in the name and by the authority of the Father and of the Holy Spirit? Are the three not one?

John said to the people that they should believe on him that should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus. On the day of Pentecost Peter said, repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, &c. Those converted under the preaching of Philip in Samaria were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Acts 8: 16. When Cornelius and those gathered with him believed, Peter commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Acts 10: 48.

When those disciples at Ephesus heard Paul explain what John taught the people when he baptized them, "they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus." Acts 19: 5. We see the apostles after Pentecost baptising in the name of the Lord Jesus, and not with the formula given in the commission.

It has been preached by some that even Christ's baptism at the hands of John was not Christian baptism, because not administered in the name of the Trinity. But see, as he came up out of the water, the heavens were open, and the Father said, "This is my beloved Son." The Holy Spirit as a dove abode upon him. The three persons are interested, the Father speaks his approval, the Holy Spirit descends upon him, the Son by the hands of John is buried in the water and raised again. If this is not a Christian act, what is?

Some say that Christ was baptized to induct him into his priestly office. What! make him a priest now at the age of thirty years when the Scriptures declare that he is a priest forever!

Those priests who were consecrated and made such after the Aaronic law were all of the tribe of Levi, and Christ was of the tribe of Judah. And we read in the seventh chapter of Hebrews that as there was a change of priesthood there must of necessity be a change of law—the law of making priests.

Some hold that John's baptism was received from Jewish proselyte baptism. But the best biblical scholars tell us that there is no proof of any such baptism in John's day.

Christ said to his enemies, "John's baptism, was it from heaven or from men?" They were afraid to say from either—if from men, the people might stone them. Why did they not say it was from Jewish proselyte baptism, as some claim to day that it was? If it was from it, they knew it. But to say it was from that would have been equally unsafe, for that would have been the same as saying that it was from men; for certainly proselyte baptism was from men, and doubtless come into existence after John's day.

It is claimed by many that John's baptism was not Christian because those disciples whom Paul found at Ephesus, who had been baptized unto John's baptism, knew nothing of the Holy Spirit; had not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. Act 19: 2. By whom these disciples were baptized we know not, but evidently by some one who did not really know what John taught. John's preaching was full of the Holy Ghost. He told the people that Christ should baptize them with the Holy Ghost. That these disciples were ignorant of what John taught is clear from what Paul did. He made known to them what John taught, and then they were baptized.

I admit that John's baptism would not have been Christian baptism if he had taught so little of Christ as to say nothing of the Holy Spirit who was now to come with such quickening power upon his people according to promise.

A ministry that did not point to the Holy Spirit would not be a Christian ministry. And persons baptized with no knowledge of the Holy Spirit should not be satisfied with it as Christian baptism. The baptism administered to infants cannot be Christian baptism, according to the above argument, because they can know nothing of the Holy Spirit; do not so much as know whether there be any Holy Ghost.

It is strange that those who say that John's baptism was not Christian have to go back two thousand years before John was born and rock their baptism in the cradle of Judaism, pillowed on the old rite of circumcision to keep it alive.

Strange, indeed, that any one could believe for a moment that John's ministry and baptism, which were connected with the ministry of Christ, were not Christain, and claim that that is Christian baptism which has to be carried back two thousand years before John's day to find any support for it. Surely, surely, that cannot be Christian baptism which its friends have to drive out of the Christianity of the New Testament to find refuge for it in the Old Testament. John would baptize none without fruits worthy of repentance—without faith in him who should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.

He would baptize none because of their relation to pious parents, though the parent might be Abraham, the father of the faithful.

He preached a searching, trying gospel, which called every individual to obey for himself. "The axe is laid unto the root of the trees * * * every tree," &c. Every one must bring forth his own fruit, show holy amendment of life in himself. We need more such preaching to-day.

John preached a purer Christianity than many are doing to-day.

Hold fast to Love. If men wound your heart, let them not sour or embitter it; let them only expand it more and more, and be always able to say, with St. Paul, "My heart is enlarged."—Robertson.

To give a kindly hand to the many who long to rise, but who cannot rise without it; to inspire hope, the very soul of moral recovery, into those who are still fettered and in darkness,—this is to do Christ's work in the world.—Dr. Liddon.

Some people are more worried about a hole in the countenance than a still worse one on the conscience.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 22, 1895.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

WAKE FOREST'S best friends were astonished at the number of Wake Forest men that came together in Washington, some of them gray-headed and prominent, representing half a dozen or more States, and others yet in the institution.

No other college could count near the number. It would have been a happy occasion if a reunion had been held; but the idea came too late for action.

NORTH CAROLINA was asked to give $9,000 for foreign missions last year. She gave $7,631.94. She is asked for $9,000 again. Let us see that the amount is given. Persistent missionary Baptist preaching will bring it about without the pressure of appeals.

North Carolina gave $3,357.95 for Home Missions last year. Taken all in all, however, considering the number of conflicting appeals, the State did quite well.

WE NEVER hear any but good reports from our Sunday-school Board at Nashville. When others appeal, it gives.

Last year the cash receipts of this Board were $53,084.59, an increase of $4,495.36 over the year preceding. This does not include $4,975.07 received from the "Missionary Day" collections in the Sunday-schools, which was divided between the Home and Foreign Boards. This department of our work closes the year with all debts paid, and $2,485 36 to fall back on.

We hope for a large increase of our Sunday-school Board's usefulness this year. It has earned a title to our good will and admiration.

SECRETARY WILLINGHAM said he is looking forward for $500,000 a year from Southern Baptists for Foreign Missions, with which a small army of missionaries could be maintained. There is no doubt but that he will reach and pass this mark, if the denomination awakens from top to bottom to the call for workers.

The progress made last year was most gratifying; five hundred baptized, and some of the fields moving towards self-support.

The Home Board report is a most agreeable surprise to those who were made fearful for it last winter, when credit was about to give out. Last year's debt lifted, and only a small deficit. More baptisms, more money, more laborers, than in any regular year.

We thank God for thus bringing us through the crisis.

THE busiest body at Washington was the Board of Trustees of the Seminary. It is a wise set of men. All four of the North Carolina members were there, Dr. Pritchard serving his twenty-seventh year. The changes brought about are as follows: Wm. H. Whitsitt, our Southern Baptist historian, too well and widely loved to need introduction, was elected president of the institution; Prof. A. T. Robertson, the most promising Biblical scholar in the South, promoted to full professorship of New Testament Interpretation; Prof. E. C. Dargan promoted to full professorship of Homiletics and Ecclesiology; Prof. H. H. Harris elected professor of Biblical Introduction and Polemics; Prof. McGlothlin promoted to a professorship.

To us these actions seem eminently wise and proper.

NOT a few of the brethren are in doubt as to who was victorious in the Young People's Conference. It is mildly positive that the Southern Unionists were not; but between the B. Y. P. U. A. advocates and the opposers of general organization, there is room for question.

If it prove a victory of B. Y. P. U. A. men, it will do so at the cost of the life of the Southern Baptist Convention. This is what B. Y. P. U. A. ism means.

If it is a victory for the opposers of general organization, it will prove it by building up and reinforcing the Southern Baptist Convention along proper lines. This is what we stand for: The perpetuation of the Southern Baptist Convention on the principles which have come to be a part of it, standing ever for strictest adherence to the New Testament of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, as the only and unchangeable rule of faith and practice.

So far as the contest at Washington is concerned, we forego the privilege of claiming victory for the "Two Recorders," and personally accept Dr. Gambrell's account, as according to us and a B. Y. P. U. A. advocate be said in his own droll way: "You fellows fell a dog fall and fell on the Southern Queen!"

SOUTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION.

[CONCLUDED FROM LAST WEEK.]

It was a new experience to the Southern Baptist Convention—"the largest representative religious body on earth"—to be swallowed up by a city, but historians will have to chronicle this fact when writing of its fiftieth year. Probably this would not have occurred, if it had been possible for the Convention to keep together, but the limited capacity of the meeting place made the scattering of the brethren over the city sight-seeing excusable. One prominent North Carolina delegate scarcely got a look at the Convention, and those who got seated in three sessions considered themselves doing well.

It must be said that the sessions of the Convention were mostly flat. A great deal of business that usually would have arrayed dozens of speakers was disposed of in short order. There were no afternoon sessions; there were no long night or morning sessions; we heard no one complain of pressure of business.

Now, there was excitement enough for any one in the Y. P. Conference, from the time when Dr. Pitt rose to say that, in spite of numerous preliminaries, so far as he knew there was "absolutely nothing cut and dried," until the vote against Southern Union (215 to 164) proved that he was speaking better than he thought.

Some might think that excessive interest in the Conference left the Convention in the lurch. Certain it is that after their speeches in the former, Drs. Eaton and Gambrell kept unusually quiet, as did also the Whartons, Drs. Pitt and Owen.

However, the unexpectedly good reports of the Boards (as shown last week), the manifest aversion of the Convention to radical departures, the smoothness of the debates, and the splendid make up of the body in general, marked the meeting very favorably.

The speeches from beginning to end were of higher order than usual. Drs. Eaton, Gambrell and M. B. Wharton made strong efforts in the Conference. Drs. S. H. Greene, Ellis, Whitman, and Hon. W. L. Wilson, delivered prepared addresses before the American Baptist Education Society which were not surpassed during the week. Drs. Hiden, McDonald and Kerfoot Sunday afternoon on Broadus were all but equal to the great task assigned them; Dr. Kerfoot's speech was most highly praised, but the value of the others was not unappreciated. Monday night the two commanding pulpit figures of the Convention, two born orators who crowd buildings, no matter how large, wherever they go, Drs. Hawthorne and Carroll, delivered prepared addresses on Home Missions. Many were so reckless as to say that the former made the speech of his life, and he certainly did make a grand speech; and the latter held his audience as few men could. Dr. Pickard—a pastor not known as widely as many older but less eloquent and scholarly than he,—made an impressive speech on work among the Romanists, with only a few hours preparation. And Rev. E. Y. Mullins' speech on Tithing was roundly praised. On second thought, after looking over this list, with recollections of numerous other speeches of no mean order, not to mention the Sunday sermons and those to the Convention by Drs. Whitsitt and Eager, we must conclude that the Convention heard more good speeches from more notable speakers than any in recent years.

North Carolina took a less prominent part than usual. Baring a word of protest from Bro. Van Deventer in the Conference, our State was silent, excepting an excellent talk from Missionary Britton. We had enough men there to run the Convention, but our leaders were engaged for the most part in the meetings of the Trustees of the Seminary. Drs. Skinner and Durham filled prominent pulpits Sunday. Dr. Pritchard went down to Richmond to supply for Dr. Cooper at the First Baptist church, and Rev. Jno. A. Wray, the efficient pastor of Broad Street Church, Winston, supplied for Rev. E. Y. Mullins in Baltimore.

Our State was highly honored in the election of Miss Fannie E. Heck to the presidency of the Woman's Missionary Union. Her title to the position seemed generally recognized. We need not say to our readers that she will fill it admirably. Her well-directed, zealous and wholly unselfish efforts for the cause, have won her a name not only in North Carolina but throughout our Convention.

MONDAY MORNING.

Dr. Nunnally is up early with his Building Board "hobby." He makes a good speech for church building and home missions, but fails to show that his board would do anything good that our Home Board is not doing. Dr. Tichenor takes the floor merely to say in his own quiet way that a church building board means the dismemberment of the Home Board, which he shows by recounting instances of the Home Board aiding in church building, which any other live Baptist may do. The Building Board was voted down, after the committee to which it was referred had reported favorably. The vote was 155 to 80, which is just seventy-nine times better showing than we thought such an effort would make.

Some guileless brother interrupted matters here by asking permission to introduce certain friends, who wanted to get a hearing. The brother's request was granted, but another brother had found an unknown friend by this time, and up he rises to announce him. In making the introduction, however, President Haralson makes a long speech out of the question by saying, "This is Hon. Mr. ——, of the Society of (Alphabet), whose secretary told us all about it Saturday!" The Hon. Mr. —— spoke five minutes on general principles. Is it not possible to be courteous without all this introduction, delay, and speech-making?

To us the report of the committee on the financial policy of the Foreign Mission Board, which was next read by Dr. J. J. Taylor of Alabama, was more important than any report during the entire session. We have been trying to master the problem of more missionaries than money to send or support them, and consequent debt, but systematic giving was the only solution that presented itself. The report this morning is for systematic giving, and more: it suggests a system. Each State is asked (not ordered nor required) to give during the year a certain amount, North Carolina's part being $9,000.00. This is the first move; then each State is expected to apportion its part among its Associations, and each Association is expected to apportion its part among its churches. Secretary Willingham, who is a vigorous and aggressive officer, hopes to have not only a vice president appointed for each State, but a representative for each Association; so that instead of having to address appeals to every pastor, he can save expense by sending them to these representatives. Right here let us say Bro. Willingham was aggrieved because many pastors failed to even acknowledge receipt of his letters asking answers. It ought to be known, first, that every gentleman is expected to answer another's letter, and secondly, that every Baptist who fails to do this is treating his brother cruelly.

Bro. Willingham was deeply moved as he offered thanks for the sympathy and support he has been receiving.

Dr. Graves made an earnest speech for pagan fields, closing with two requests: first, that when the brethren go home they ask at every celebration of the Lord's Supper each member to give at least five cents for the work in China; second, to make especial prayer every Saturday for God's blessing upon this work.

Bro. Britton, just from China—now at his home at Potecasi, N. C.,—made a vigorous talk for missions, asking for more laborers, and showing many reasons for encouragement in the work.

Dr. Kerfoot read report of committee to prepare a reply to the General Convention of Disciples relative to union. He stated that the reply had been prepared and forwarded, and that it would probably be heard from.

Dr. J. T. Christian offered report of committee on work among foreign population in America. Advance all along the line was advised.

The report on the financial condition of the Home Board was unusually encouraging; the old debt paid, and only a small deficit for the year just closed, and this accomplished not by retrenchment, but in the face of decided increase of workers and fields. It was a pleasure to see Dr. Tichenor's kindly eyes beam with such genuine pleasure. A better man than he we do not know.

Rev. William Ritzman, who is a leading worker among the German population, made a fine talk, as did also Drs. Christian and Diaz. The latter always wins his audience, although he has great difficulty in making himself understood. He is, as ever, most hopeful of Cuba for Christ. There were many who enjoyed his bright sallies at the beginning whose eyes were brimming with tears before he closed. There is no man we ever saw like Diaz—simple, the soul of honesty, bright and cheerful, a master of pathos, and inimitable in describing an incident.

NIGHT SESSION.

To this session we have already referred. There were but three speakers, Hawthorne, Carroll and Diaz (the latter by request and very briefly.) The subject was Home Missions. The speakers were at their best, and made impressions that will not be easily erased. Dr. Hawthorne's digressions were very happy, being bold thrusts at the "new age" brethren, the women-public-speakers, the monists and idealized history exponents. He closed with a matchless tribute to Broadus. Dr. Carroll related a great deal of Texas history, showing how our Board influenced it. Diaz recited the ever new narrative of his conversion, by request; how he fell sick, into a hospital, into the hands of a good woman; how he was influenced before before he could read the English Bible, how he learned to pray, how he became converted, gave himself wholly to God.

LAST DAY.

Chattanooga, Tenn., where Bro. Haymore is, was announced as the place for the next meeting; and of course, being somewhat influenced by North Carolina, she will give free accommodations to the delegates. Louisville would have taken the Convention, but she did not want it bad. Rev. C. A. Stakely was appointed to preach the sermon, Rev. C. Durham alternate.

Rev. A. J. S. Thomas of South Carolina offered the report on work among the colored people; speeches were made by Rev. W. H. McAlpin and G. A. Goodwin.

The committee on nominations reported the selection of very nearly the same set of Boards and officers as last year:

H. H. Harris of Virginia president of the Foreign Mission Board; Joshua Levering, Maryland; J. M. Carroll, Texas; J. C. Taylor, Kentucky; J. R. Pace, Mississippi, C. W. Tompkins, Louisiana; A. E. Owens, Virginia; W. C. Bledson, Alabama; A. J. S. Thomas, South Carolina; M. S. Breaker, Missouri; R. Vandeventer, North Carolina; J. H. Snow, Tennessee, and T. S. Potts, Arkansas, vice-presidents; R. J. Willingham, corresponding secretory; J. C. Williams, treasurer; A. B. Clark, recording secretary, and H. C. Burnett, auditor. Home Mission Board, J. B. Hawthorne, Georgia, president; W. P. Harvey (Kentucky), B. H. Carroll (Texas), M. D. Jeffries (Tennessee), G. W. Hyde (Missouri), R. W. Sanders, (South Carolina), E Y. Mullins (Maryland), A. B. Campbell (Georgia), D. J. Purser (Louisana), B. D. Gray (Alabama), R. T. Vann (North Carolina), A. G. McManaway (Arkansas), F. C. McConnell (Virginia), Malcolm McGregor (Florida), and I. T. Tichenor, corresponding secretary; and B. Abbott, auditor.

Sunday School Board—J. M. Frost, Tennessee, president; T. P. Bell, corresponding secretary, S. W. Meek, recording secretary; R. Eastman, auditor.

The official enrollment of the Convention reported by the secretary showed the presence of 904 delegates out of a total of 1825 entitled to seats. Of these 762 were representatives on the financial basis, and 142 were association representatives.

A series of resolutions offered by Dr. J. J. Hall of Virginia on behalf of the International Peace Congress to join other denominations in petitioning the governments of the world for the establishment of an international arbitration court were unanimously adopted.

Dr. H. A Tupper, Jr., of Baltimore, Dr. J. B. Hawthorne of Atlanta, Dr. A. J. S. Thomas of South Carolina, and Dr. J. N. Prestridge of Kentucky, were appointed a committee to convey the fraternal greetings of the Southern Convention to the Northern Convention, which meets at Saratoga on May 28.

NOTES.

There was a gratifying scarcity of ancient jokes in the Convention speeches. 'Most every speaker really had something to say.

Rev. J. T. S. Park of Texas, who was elected one of the Vice-Presidents of the Convention, was the only man present at the organization of the Convention fifty years ago.

As stated in the last issue, Dr. Hawthorne did tell us he would introduce a Y. P. resolution in the Convention, and went so far as to give us the gist of it; but it seems that other counsel prevailed.

It was a pleasure to many of their North Carolina friends to see Bro. John E. Ray of Danville, Ky., and his pastor, Rev. J. W. Lynch, at the Convention. Both seemed happy and prosperous and brimming with love for North Carolina.

It made us a little uneasy to hear the Baltimore brethren talk so of Rev. W. C. Tyree's preaching at Eutaw Place church, Baltimore. But Bro. Tyree is more of a North Carolina fixture now than ever, if we know anything about it. At any rate, we never saw a preacher in better spirits.

If there have been doubts that a bar-room is kept in full blast in the magnificent Capitol building of the United States, within easy reach of the halls of Congress, let them be dispelled. We saw one with our own eyes, and, moreover, were asked to "have something." The shame of it. "When the wicked rule," &c.

It was a valued pleasure to make the acquaintance of Editor Geo. E. Horr, Jr., of the Watchman, Boston, at the Convention. For quite a while we have admired his paper as the ablest and fairest of our Northern denominational contemporaries. It is always refreshing to meet up with an editor so genial as he.

The one idea of the recent meetings of the American Baptist Education Society was the establishment of a great University at Washington, the purpose being to use the Columbian for a basis. No doubt Washington is a fortunate place for such an institution. If powerful speeches can bring this about, the meetings of the Society will prove abundantly fruitful.

A conscientious young preacher from Wake Forest College got off the cars in Portsmouth after several hours of hungriness. He was not long finding a hotel, but as he prepared to eat, he thought to ask, "Is there a bar attached?" "Oh, yes, sir, one of the finest in the city; what is it?" blandly answered the waiter. The good fellow made quickly away, only to meet similar experiences both in Portsmouth and Norfolk, until tired out, he decided not to ask the question again. It is a sad commentary on civilization; but it is almost true that a hotel without a bar attachment cannot succeed in our larger cities. God keep our young men in the country.

The adoption of Dr. Gambrell's resolution authorizing the appointment of seven men, three of whom shall be the Secretaries of our Boards, to confer with the mission leaders in each State in order to inaugurate a plan of reaching all the church members, is a more important matter than seemed at first thought. It is not new at the North. How it will work in the South remains to be seen. Machinery is good, if it works well; and so long as it does, there can hardly be too much. The trouble is, the more machinery there is, the greater the danger of friction, confusion and wreck. To this committee the question of consolidating the Foreign Mission Journal and Home Field was referred. The following are its members: J. B. Gambrell, J. C. Hiden, B. H. Carroll, Chas. Manly, and the three Secretaries.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Rev. J. F. Crisp changes his address from Lenoir to Hartland.

....Bro. W. S. Kelly writes that they have just had a glorious meeting at South Creek.

....There are seventy applicants for appointment as foreign missionaries under our Board.

....In fifty years the Southern Baptists have given through the Foreign Mission Board $1,850,000.

....Last year the Foreign Mission Board expended $30 000 more for missions on Papal than on Pagan fields.

....Tickets are out for the annual exercises at Wake Forest, June 10-13. There are twenty-two graduates.

....Rev. Rufus Ford has arranged to spend the summer holding meetings on a former field in South Carolina.

....The Baptists at Galbraith's Creek in the Western Convention are building a church and are in need of help.

....A recent meeting by Rev. E. F. Jones of Gastonia at Yorkville, S. C., resulted in seven accessions to the church.

....Rev. J. O. Alderman is enjoying a vacation with his wife and family as guests of relatives in Washington, D. C.

....Rev. C. F. Fields has been called to the pastorate of Briar Creek Baptist church, Wilkes county, says the Elkin Times.

....Dr. Whitsitt's Historical Sermon, reviewing the half century of our Convention's existence will be printed in the minutes of the Convention.

....The house of worship at Hebron, South Fork Association, was dedicated on Sunday, May 5th, 1895. Rev. D. M. Austin preached the sermon.

....Seventy-odd more colored people were baptized at Belo's Pond Sunday. At the present rate the number will soon round up 500—Republican, Winston.

....Bro J. S. Parker of Salisbury, passed through Raleigh last week on his way to see his venerable father at Seaboard where the family has a reunion this week.

....Miss Fannie Knight and Missionary W. D. King were married at Chinkiang, China, April 4th. We extend congratulations and best wishes. God bless them.

....Rev. P. L. Groome has acquired Mrs. F. L. Reid's interest in the N. C. Christian Advocate. Mr. Groome was editor of the W. N. C. Advocate before the consolidation.

....Rev. L. G. Broughton has engagements to hold meetings in several States. He will shortly go to Knoxville, Tenn., and later on aid Dr. W. S. Penick in Louisiana.

....We are so pressed with matter this week that we have space only to call particular attention to Bro. Gwaltney's article. It ought to be preserved for constant reference.

....Dr. J. D. Hufham stopped over and preached at Scotland Neck on his return from the Convention. He is now at Tarboro aiding in a meeting with Rev. J. E. Hutson.

....Just for the sake of history, we take occasion to say that the address in the woman's meeting at Washington was delivered by Mrs. Gwathmey of Richmond, Va., president of the Union.

....Rev. R. Van Deventer of Burlington will preach the annual sermon and Dr. W. E Hatcher of Richmond will deliver the address at the annual closing of Bethel Hill Institute June 5th.

....Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas delivered a lecture at Mt. Airy recently, and so favorably impressed his audience that he has been requested to deliver an address at Mt. Airy Academy this month.

....Rev. Clarence Dowell, of the historic Welch Neck church, South Carolina, was a pleasant visitor to our office last week. He is enjoying his South Carolina work, and the Lord is blessing him.

....The annual exercises of Littleton High School and Business Institute occur May 28th and 29th. Dr. C. E. Taylor will deliver the address, and there will be attractive exercises by the pupils.

... The brethren are off to the Chowan Association this week. This is one of the largest religious bodies in the State, and an attendance of 2,000 people is expected. The session will be harmonious.

....Dr. W. A. Nelson is now a regular evangelist, with headquarters at Macon Ga., says the Baptist and Reflector, and all his expenses, including salary, are paid by a friend who withholds his name from the public.

....We saw no one at Washington who seemed to enjoy the Convention and the city more than Rev. C. J. F. Anderson of Carthage. He thoroughly appreciated the thoughtfulness of Bethlehem and Carthage in sending him.

....Rev. J. B. Holly, who recently came to us from the Methodists, has accepted the pastorate of Black Creek church, Darlington county. He is well equipped for the work, and we shall expect to hear good reports from his field.—Baptist Courier.

....The revival at Brooklyn Baptist church, Rev. R. E. Peele, pastor, continues with increasing interest. Mr. L. R. Carroll, who has conducted the services this week, preached again last night. The services begin promptly at 8 o'clock p. m.—Wilmington Star.

....Prof. A. P. Harris, who graduated at Wake Forest in 1893, and is now principal of the Troy, N. C., High School, has gotten out an unusually becoming invitation to the closing Exercises of that useful institution May 30. There will be orations, recitations, music and other features. President W. E. Abernethy of Rutherford college will deliver the literary address.

....We thank Rev. J. A. Campbell for a handsome invitation to the seventh annual exercises of Buie's creek Academy at Poe's, Harnett Co. Hon. J. C. Scarborough will deliver the address, and there will be orations, recitations, music, etc.

....Several weeks ago in noting the election of anniversary officers at Wake Forest college, we omitted mention of the election of Bro. S. Dowell, son of Pastor Dowell of Durham second church, as president of debate and Bro. W. J. McLendon as Secretary.

....Profs. J. B. Carlyle and W. J. Ferrall passed through Raleigh last week on their return from school closings in which they took part. Prof. Carlyle delivered the address at Mars Hill College, Prof. C. P. Sapp president, which he reports as in a prosperous condition.

....Speaking of the Convention, here's the way the Examiner puts it: "The first organic body to emerge from this cosmic heterogeniety was the semi official conference about a Southern B. Y. P. U." We hope the attack is not fatal. It may be only another form of monism.

....While we have published all the articles sent us this year in behalf of general organization of the young people, we have quite a pile on hand opposing the movement. Now that it is all over, if our brethren do not insist, we will hold their articles until they seem more needful.

....We were glad to have a visit from Brother W. J. Ferebee, a staunch Belcross Baptist, and a prosperous Wake Forest man. He was on his way to the Odd Fellows Convention at Greensboro. He brought with him his mother, who is one of the RECORDER's most valued friends, having been a subscriber half a century.

....We are grateful to Miss Laura Lazenby, Statesville, Bro. M Lindsay, Lindsay, Rev. Henry Sheets, Lexington, Rev. G. W. Harmon, Ramseur, for new subscribers, and to Rev. W. E. Warren, Laurel Grove, Va., for paying for the RECORDER for five years. May their tribe increase.

....Rev. M L. Kesler will deliver the address at the fifth annual exercises of South River Baptist Institute, May 31st, of which Bro. Isham Royall is principal. The Robeson Institute closes its second year June 4th and 5th. Rev. W. S. Creasy, D D, will preach the annual sermon. There will be a medal contest and an annual concert.

....Our Charlotte brethren and sisters may look out for something good. We ran upon Bro. Pruett the hottest day of the convention cooling off in the entrance to the great National Museum at Washington, which he had gone over three times closely, studying wonders, from Geo. Washington's presents to a young woman to an Egyptian mummy.

....Charity and Children names the following as "Orphanage Wants": 1. Contributions to the general support to meet current expenses; 2 $800 to go with Dr. Whitehead's $900 to add one thousand to the endowment; 3. $300 to enlarge the chapel; 4. $2,000 to erect a school building; 5 $900 to buy belts, shafts, pulleys, saws, &c., so as to enlarge the work of the steam engine.

....It is hard to believe, but the books show it, that only eight cents on the dollar was used by the Foreign Mission Board, including payment of interest and everything, in the work last year. How could the missionaries have been sustained on borrowed money for less? How could the tremendous efforts to raise money have been made at less expense? We congratulate our Secretary.

....Rev. S. J. Porter of Morehead City accepts the call of the First church, Newbern. So far as we know, the Second church is without a pastor. Morehead City is a desirable field. It became quite a strong point under Bro. Hight Moore's ministry, and has been growing steadily of late. We are glad to see from Bro. Willis' letter that our brethren do not intend to do without a pastor long.

....The Wake Forest Student for April is an unusually good number. There is an electro plate of Rev. Wm. Hooper, D. D., LL. D, the second president of the College, with a sketch of his career. This president series will be a valuable addition to Baptist libraries. Two articles of scientific character by Spencer Chaplin, Jr., and W. A. Jones show that the College is doing fine work in this department. Robert Simms and Tom Briggs, Raleigh boys, contribute interesting stories.

....So many schools, so many invitations, and programs of orators, debaters, medalists, graduates, etc.; one is tempted to think it is not the fault of teachers that there are uneducated people in our State. And the time is coming when every young man and woman will have school advantages. It would be a pleasure to the RECORDER to attend all the exercises it has been invited to, but some of our good friends will have to accept our compliments and good wishes until another year.

....Rev. Blakely H. Mathews writes from Plymouth: "We have had one of the best meetings that was ever held at Plymouth. Rev. J. T. Jenkins of Winston preached nine days with great power. We are baptizing sinners saved by grace all along now. The people are beginning to learn now that sprinkling is a sin and immersion is obedience, and nothing short of obedience, will stand the test of the Judgment Day. Our church has just finished a nice picket fence, which improves the Baptist cause in the town very much. Every department of church work is doing well. The town has just gone through with a wet and dry campaign—the dry ticket winning; but that doesn't mean no whiskey. We have plenty of that article in town yet. This end of the State is noted for two things especially, viz: whiskey voters and anti missionary Baptists. But she is coming."

....Dr. Durham preached the dedicatory ser mon at Long Creek church, near Charlotte, Sunday.

....On Sunday night last, Rev. A. D. Hunter baptized seven persons into the fellowship of Fayetteville Street church, Raleigh.

....We acknowledge the pleasure of a visit from Rev. A. L. Sumner, editor of the Baptist Headlight of Salisbury. We learn from that paper that the colored Baptists of North Carolina have 33 associations, 1,085 churches, 670 ordained ministers, 111,000 members (increase of 500 since last year); value of church property $216,844; paid for pastors' salaries and expenses $41,642.80; foreign missions $2,124 55; education $350.00, miscellaneous $4 301.84.

....The N. C. Christian Advocate has failed to publish the words of Wesley and Schaff on Baptism. Wonder why it asked us the question, if it is not going to give its readers the benefit of the information. Come now, brethren, the truth never hurts. By the way, Rev. J. M. Rice is fully answering the arguments set forth by Rev. C. A. Jenkens for "close communion," as it is called, by trying to ridicule him. This is undoubtedly the best way to deal with unanswerable arguments.

....Rev. A. G. McManaway was at the Convention in his usual vigorous health and spirits. He looks fit for the best work of his life, which he believes he is now engaged in. Having become financial agent of Ouachita College, he will have to give up his pastorate at Little Rock, Ark., but hopes to continue to be State Mission Secretary. He will teach in the college half of his time. After the Convention Bro. McManaway went to Charlotte to visit his brother.

....Rev. W. N. Reaves, D. D., of Eufaula, Ala., whom we met on the cars for Washington, was running over with praise for the North Carolinians in that town. "Without exception," said he, "they are the best people we have ever had with us; and if you have any more like them, let us know it." He referred to Profs. W. A. Montgomery and J. R. Hankins and Prof. Thos. Simmons and the faculty of his school. All of them "sons" of Wake Forest.

....Revs. C. S. Cashwell and N. S. Jones have arranged to hold "Regions Beyond" meetings at Connelly's Springs and China Grove. Bro. Jones writes: "The brethren are slow in sending their names, but I believe they will fall in line after a while and a great work will be done. There are no greater possibilities in any movement than this for the Baptists of North Carolina, and our pastors must make it a success or allow it to accomplish nothing. I hope the time has come when the public mind will give the ministry credit for preaching the gospel at least in destitute sections, without money and without price."

....During the year ending May 9th the American Bible Society issued 1 581,128 Bibles or parts of God's word, divided as follows: Complete Bibles 403,484, Testaments 590,754, portions 595,589. The total receipts were $538,945. "The translation revision work has been carried on in the Kussien and Marshall Island languages for the Pacific. Bulgarian, Kurdish, Laos and Siamese, Korean and Chinese. One thousand three hundred and fifty eight volumes have been issued with raised letters for blind people. The Bible leads all books not only in regular circulation but circulates more widely each year than any other book.

....An exchange asks, "have revivals become a class movement?" and proceeds to answer the question: At present a revival generally means getting an evangelist, with a choir and a rousing kind of preaching or story-telling, interspersed with certain tactics meant to influence the multitude. The prayers are few; the repentance shown to be often brief and shallow. The whole management appears, in many cases, to be too professional. The preaching of the Word is not directed sufficiently to the understanding, and so conviction is largely emotional; hence, there is not much of what, in the church of the past, was called conviction of sin through an apprehension of God's law.

....Our attention has been called to certain errors in the Encyclopaedia Brittanica, that has recently been advertised in the RECORDER. It seems that there are two editions, for we have one that is unimpeachable. The advertisement which we have been running came by way of the Atlanta Constitution—which had been selling the work—from the Holland advertising agency. We knew the Texas Baptist and Herald had been selling it, and were not surprised when it was announced that our enterprising friend, the Charlotte Observer would push it in North Carolina. Of course we could not be expected to examine an entire set of twenty or thirty volumes, and especially when the work came so well backed. Moreover, we had no idea but that it was identical with the edition which we use.

....The communication in behalf of the National Evangelisation Society, by Dr. A. C. Barron, the partner of Dr. H. M. Wharton president of the Society, does not help matters for the "N. E. S" Dr. Barron confesses that all we said is true. He contradicts the Evangel, organ of the N. E. S., of which he is an editor and part owner. We quoted that paper as saying, "Our friends everywhere will bear us witness that we do not urge the financial part very strong, nor do we ask any set amount of money for the services of our evangelists." In the communication Dr. Barron says, "So it was agreed among the members of this society that a certain sum should be named as necessary to defray traveling expenses and the salary of the evangelist." A certain sum is named for salary and expenses; but the appeal for voluntary contributions printed in the Evangel makes the impression that this is not done. If there were no more evidence, this is sufficient to show that the creed of the N. E. S. consists of seven articles, five loaves and two fishes.

Seventh Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Union.

The meetings of the Missionary Union were held in the beautiful Sunday-school building of the Calvary Baptist church. Nothing that could be desired was left undone for the comfort of the ladies. It is to be regretted, however, that the places of the Convention and the Union were so far apart, many of the visiting ladies being unable to make the long journey across the city from one meeting to the other.

The Union proper is a comparatively small body, consisting of only a President, Corresponding Secretary, Recording Secretary and Treasurer, with a Vice-President and three representatives from each State. It has no money basis of representation of which we have heard so much in some other bodies, the smallest and newest State organization being represented as fully as the oldest and largest contributor. With these officers and delegates, however, come an ever-increasing number of women interest in missions. Probably all who come to Washington from any direction remarked on the large number of ladies having their faces in that direction. We are glad to say that North Carolina was very fully represented, and believe that the ladies will carry back to all parts of the State some of the enthusiasm of the woman's meetings.

The State delegates were Vice-President, Miss Fannie E Heck, Raleigh; Mrs. R. Van Deventer, Burlington; Mrs H. P. Markham, Durham; Mrs. Hartwell Edwards, Fayetteville, and Miss Mamie Birdsong, Raleigh.

The Union convened Friday morning at nine o'clock, the interest of the first session being divided chiefly between the annual address of the President, the report of the Corresponding Secretary, and addresses by Dr. Willingham and Mrs. R. H. Graves of China. The address of Mrs. Gwathmey of Richmond, Va., President of the Union, was brief but full of feeling. She called the Union to more full and complete reliance upon God as the source of all power.

Miss Annie Armstrong of Baltimore, who has been the untiring Corresponding Secretary of the Union since its organization, reminded the ladies of the seven brief years of the history of that organization. The Convention was looking back over its history of fifty years. The Union was but a child, but a child could have memories.

The first year of the Union (1889), $18,716.28 for Foreign Missions was reported. This year (1895), $24,938 64. In 1889, $12,057.41 was reported for Home Missions, this year, $23,515 61. The total increase in contributions in the six years, therefore, was from $30 773 69 to Home and Foreign Missions, to $48,449.25, or an increase of $17,675 56.

She then briefly reviewed the calendar and work of the year just closed. The first marked work had been the raising of the $5,000 for the Foreign Mission debt asked for in the meeting at Dallas. A suggested apportionment had then been made among the States, and almost every State had gone a little beyond what was asked of it.

Mission Day in the Sunday-schools in September, though not under the direct care of the W. M. U., had been greatly aided by their labor and influence. The value of such a day could not be over estimated, and she urged the ladies in every way possible to use their influence that it might be carried out in their schools in the future.

The Christmas offering to China and the Week of Prayer for Missions were closely linked. They had both become inseparable parts of the work. They had reason to believe that never had the Week of Prayer been so largely observed, nor had such blessed influences flowed from it. The Christmas offering, though not so large as in some former years, was very good.

In the early spring, the Home Board, for the first time since the organization of the Union, asked for special aid, viz, a special contribution of $5 000. For this purpose, a special Week of Self-denial was observed. Although it had been impossible to learn all the results of this effort, the Home Board believed that the amount asked for has been paid.

All during the year the work of sending boxes to frontier missionaries has gone on steadily: a larger number have been sent this year than ever before.

In conclusion, she thought that the Union has very great cause for thankfulness for the large measure of success which has attended its work during the year. The tabulated account of the work done at the Union rooms in Baltimore cannot be given here. The letters alone exceeded 4,000, while the amount of literature distributed was enormous.

The recommendations of the Foreign Mission Board were substantially the same as last year, viz., that a Christmas offering be made for extending the work in China; that the Societies seek to promote the observance of Mission Day in the Sunday schools, and that they aid in the general Foreign Mission work. The one notable difference was that a definite amount, $30,000, was asked for, this being some $5,000 in advance of what was given this year to foreign work.

Dr. Willingham spoke to these resolutions. He would not, he said, go into the details of the work. They would be brought out by others, but he would emphasize these words, organized Christian effort. Were these three thoughts borne in mind and made living realities, untold results would follow. He spoke briefly. The largest time assigned any speaker was fifteen minutes, and few exceeded it.

Mrs. Graves of China said that we heard much of the needs of the heathen woman. She wished to lay particular stress on the needs of Christian women in heathen lands. Imagine a woman who is really a Christian, yet is so ignorant of the Bible as to know not one beautiful Bible story, and so ignorant of all Christian teaching outside of the Bible as to know not one verse of a hymn. There is an increasing number of such women in the villages around Canton. They come down in classes of twelve at a time for instruction in Bible truth. They could have many more if they had room for them. She hoped the Southern Baptist women would some day and in some way make it possible for these women to be taught. Their influence, if taught, in their own homes and as Bible women, could never be estimated.

Miss Lottie Barton of China, who was expected, was detained by the sickness of her sister.

Saturday morning the ladies assembled promptly at 9 o'clock. The day was known as Home Mission Day, and proved to be a very varied and interesting one.

Mrs. J. L. Burnham of Missouri, whose consecration, wit and wisdom make her a notable figure in each session of the Union, conducted the devotional exercises, dwelling on the imperative, the supreme need of full self surrender and consecration to the service of God.

A group of three short addresses on plans of work were made by Miss Heck concerning Central Committees, by Mrs. F. S. Woodson of Virginia concerning Country Societies, and by Mrs. R. P. Johnston of Missouri concerning City Societies. Space now will not allow more than mention of these addresses. We hope to present them in full in the near future.

The recommendation of the Home Board differed from those of last year chiefly in asking, as in the case of the Foreign Board, for a definite amount, this amount being $25,000. It was stated that this sum was agreed upon before the amount that had been given this year was known, and that when Dr. Tichenor of the Home Board became aware that this sum would only be $1,500 in advance of what had been done this year, he regretted that a higher figure had not been set for the work. The recommendations urged also that the work of sending boxes to the frontier missionaries be continued and increased, and called special attention to the needs of the foreign population and of the work among colored people.

Dr. Tichenor was introduced, but said instead of speaking to the motion to adopt the resolutions then pending, he would introduce others who would speak for the work. First among these was Diaz of Cuba.

Mr. Diaz, who is sure of a most enthusiastic welcome whenever seen among Southern Baptists, said his "English was very broke," not having spoken this language for a long while. In the congregations in Cuba just now, there were many more women than men owing to the war. It was against the law for more than twenty women to meet alone at one time. So they kept meeting all the week long. Every missionary had been forced by the government to leave Havana but himself, the Methodist, Presbyterian and the Episcopalian. He had been told that the authorities wanted to see him, but he said they could come to him if that was so. The hospital, in which the Southern Baptist women were so much interested, had had as patients a hundred women and children, not one of whom had died, though many have undergone severe operations.

Thirty have become Christians. The persecutions during the war have been minor ones, not worthy of mention. He asked for prayer for his church and people.

Mr. Payne, who knows more of the church in Cuba, probably, than any other American, spoke briefly of Mrs. Diaz, the mother of the missionary who had just spoken. He considered her one of the most remarkably successful Christian workers he had ever known. Her son relied greatly upon her judgment, and was yet obedient to her plans and will, as were her two daughters who are missionaries as well.

A Chinese student spoke in very broken English for work among his people in this country. He was born, he said, fifty miles from Canton, and came to San Francisco when sixteen years of age. Here he had for a while attended Dr. Hartwell's Sunday-school. After that he went to Chicago where he was baptized by Dr. Henson. He was now at school in Washington and hoped to return as a physician to his people whose own physicians only know when people are sick and how to make them sicker.

A colored woman, who for twelve years had been connected with the work of sewing schools, which work was conducted by members of white churches among the colored women in Baltimore, said she knew she expressed the sentiments of many, very many of her people when she said she welcomed every effort that would be put forth to help her race. She thanked God for such a woman as Miss Annie Armstrong who had inaugurated these sewing-schools in Baltimore which had been so wonderfully successful.

Miss Buhlmaier, the only female missionary of the Home Board, and whose work is among the Germans of Baltimore and the immigrants landing there, greatly interested the ladies by her earnest and vivid description of the landing of the immigrants and her work at that time. Eight thousand had landed in Baltimore last year. People often asked how an immigrant looked. Look at her, she was one. She could say, too, that nothing done at that time, when everything was new and strange, was ever forgotten. Little acts of kindness received then were remembered always. So she knew her work among these just coming to a strange land, frightened, timid, lonely and worried with the fatigues of the voyage and the tedious inspection of the custom house, would never forget any help she would give them. A map of the United States, with the addresses of all the German Baptist pastors in the United States, was her most usual gift. On the map she pointed out their destination, and tried in various ways to render them little kindnesses; the while she tried to direct them for help and comfort to Christ. To those who had no Bibles and who would promise to read them, she gave little blue German Testaments. The demand for these was very great. While she went back and forth on the steamer to the landing place, the women must be praying for her, and be like the boy in the fog, pulling the fog bell far out of sight, that a clear way might be kept for her passage back and forth on God's missions.

Another group of addresses on Young People's Work were made under the heads of "Our Responsibility for our Young Women," Miss H. Harper, Texas; "Our Responsibility for Our Girls," Mrs Jackson, Tennessee, and "Our Responsibility for Our Boys," Mrs. Patrick, Kentucky. We hope to give the readers of the RECORDER the benefit of these papers later.

This meeting, as the former one on Friday, and the succeeding one on Monday, was interspersed with five minute reports from the States represented. The tone of all these reports was hopeful; nearly all reported enlargement in contribution, and an increase of number of Societies. Perhaps the increase was most notable in Florida, for owing to the severe and wide spread losses occasioned by the freeze of last winter, a falling off might have been expected. The present President of the Central Committee of this State is Mrs. Crawford, formerly of Oxford, N. C., who will be remembered by a large circle of friends, and who was a most earnest mission worker in North Carolina.

As has been foreseen by those who remember the report made by the W. M. Societies at the annual meeting in Charlotte, the report made by North Carolina now, was much less than that made last year. The last quarterly report, which entered into the report, however, having been so much larger than any of the previous reports for the year, this discouraging statement of affairs was made with the hope for better things.

A pleasant feature of these meetings was a ten minutes social, which divided each meeting in half: during this time it was pleasant to see the greetings of old friends and the meeting of new ones, and the ten minutes social gave just the heart and hand touch that made the meetings what they were.

The Union assembled Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. This, the only afternoon session of the Union, is always given to the missionaries who may be at home at the time. The missionary ladies present on this occasion were Mrs. Graves, China; Mrs. McCollum, Japan, and Mrs. Moseley, Texas. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises, conducted by Miss Wright of Georgia. The thought to which especial attention was called by Miss Wright, was the condition of answers to prayer. The verse dwelt upon was, "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you."

Mrs. Graves had been asked to describe a day's work in China. She described one Sunday's work. In one of the two Sunday-schools in which she taught each Sunday, the infant class consisted of old women from eighty to a hundred. They were the maimed, the halt, the blind, and were very ignorant. In the other, she taught a class of real infants or young children, as bright and pretty as children to be found anywhere. In both schools or churches, the church was divided down the center by a board partition six or seven feet high, the men sitting on one side and the women on the other. She brought a message from the Canton mission, asking for more female missionaries and a doctor. She asked special prayers for Miss Claudia White, to whom, while she spoke, the news of her sister's death was fast traveling.

Mrs. McCollum of Japan answered questions about that country. Questions came thick and fast from all parts of the audience. The Japanese have no home life in one sense of the word, no regular hours for going to bed or rising. The missionaries' children are of much interest to the people, and often open doors (which otherwise would be closed to them) stand to receive them, as well as bringing many visitors to the house, to see them dressed or undressed. The older people apparently love their shelf full of gods more than they do their children. They say they know our children will be Christians, but they must still keep their idols. A Japanese sends his wife away when she ceases to be pretty. It is the usual custom to have two wives; the Emperor is said to have fifteen. The wife is put away at the pleasure of the husband, who may keep the children or not as he chooses. She carries away with her only what she brought at her marriage.

Miss Buhlmaier of Baltimore spoke again of her own people, the Germans. It made her heart sad to hear people speak of mission work among the Germans—the people who were Luther's people and the first to follow the reformer. Yet it was true that they needed mission work. Rationalism had eaten out the heart of their religion and left only the shell.

A Chinaman read an essay, comparing the natural features of his own country with ours and showing great similarity between the two. From a moral standpoint, he thought the obedience rendered to parents by the men and women of China might well be commended to the young men and women of America. The Chinese went farther than the commands of the fifth commandment; he hardly thought the American youths went as far as commanded.

Mrs. Moseley of Mexico spoke lovingly of that country and its people. The rich and poor of Mexico were like two distinct nations, the rich had everything, the poor nothing. They were altogether too polite. They agreed with everything said in their own homes. Every assertion made was met by "Certainly." "Certainly" their saints could not help them; "certainly" they should only pray to Christ, &c.; but these were only polite phrases and meant nothing. The men are infidels, the women fanatics. One poor home had thirty pictures of the Virgin, all said to be true likenesses, but all different, some blonde, some brunette. The majority of the people are inexpressibly poor. Many eat every other day. The Christians are very poor, but gave more in proportion than the Southern Baptists. The same was true of the Chinese Christians. They were versed in the Bible far beyond those here at home. They are faithful unto death. The priests watch for the dying hour and seek to thrust themselves into the houses. They gain entrance even by main force, they go out

A Perfect Pattern.

BY REV. H. A. JONES, SALISBURY, N. C.

"See thou make all things according to the pattern." Heb. 8:5.

When God wanted Moses to build, the first thing he did was to furnish him with a pattern, and then with the material. With the pattern before him and the material at hand, he was expected to succeed. There was a time when God spake to the people by symbols, but this having failed to take hold sufficiently to bring him back to God, and keep him in close communion with him, in due time he sent his only begotten Son, born of woman, like unto his brethren and tempted in all points as we, yet without sin. He is our perfect pattern.

IN PERSONAL PURITY.

His body was the house of the soul, it was to be kept sacred and pure. The outward appearance of our homes is very often a true index to the inward.

He that cares nothing for his personal appearance, generally cares nothing for personal purity. Poverty has never been an excuse for uncleanliness, only to those who are helpless and surrounded by those who are merciless. God has abundantly provided us with a cleansing and purifying element, water, covering about two-thirds of the earth with it. I have never seen a more perfect pattern of personal purity than a beautiful young woman, beautiful in heart, rich in grace, and chaste in character. It is not the quantity or the quality, so far as the cost is concerned, but it is cleanliness and neatness in person and purity of heart. Let us always remember that our bodies should be fit temples for the indwelling of the spirit. We only have to explore the ruins of ancient cities to be convinced that our ancestors gave far more attention to cleanliness than does the present generation. Their numberless and immense public and private bathing pools, prove this fact beyond dispute.

I believe if our city authorities would take this matter in hand and give to the people a large and free system of bathing, that our death and disease rate would be largely reduced. Do we not owe it to the poor, do we not owe it to humanity to make provision suggested? Many places in our towns and cities are nothing but hot beds for disease and death. If our sanitary laws were what they should be, this state of affairs would soon almost or entirely cease.

In the second place, we should also be pure

IN THOUGHT.

"From the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

Our lives are wonderfully wrought and shapened by our thoughts. The Apostle in in the first chapter of Philippians says: "Whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." Thought is one of the greatest powers in the world, and it is always the thinking man that is either a great power for good or evil. When our minds have been allowed to dwell on things that are low and base, how can we hope for personal purity? If I want a sound and vigorous body, I must make it my constant care to breathe and live in a pure atmosphere. Our Master spent many of his hours alone, and yet he was not alone, because he was in thought and communion with the Father. Many a noble hearted young man has gone adrift when the tide of impure thought rushed in upon him. We always need to have our minds stayed on God, for He is "an anchor to the soul, both sure and steadfast." Thought is a secret to hidden factors in us, yet it is the great driving wheel to our words and actions. When David was considering the works of God, he saw his glory in heaven and his handy work on earth. He said the day spoke of him and the night showed his knowledge. He prayed that God would keep him from sin, and that the words of his mouth might be accepted in his sight.

Christ was not only to be our perfect pattern in thought, but in WORD.

The Psalmist asked: "Who should abide in the tabernacle of the Lord, and who should dwell in his holy hills? He that walketh uprightly and worketh righteousness and speaketh the truth in his heart. If our hearts speak in their secret chambers things that are pure our lips will not be defiled with the impure. The words of our Master were pure and always spoken in defense of truth and righteousness. The power of speech is the gift of God. No sound that has ever fallen upon the ear of mortal man carries with it such melody and soul-inspiring strains as the tongue that has been touched with a live coal from God's altar, and the lips that sing his praise. "By thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned." My own lips will be the instruments to tell where I shall spend eternity. And when faith and patience were all gone, the lips that were called upon to curse God and die, began to sing sweeter songs than ever. "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Let this be your daily prayer. "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, oh Lord, my strength and my Redeemer."

Not only is Christ our pattern in word but in ACTION.

"See thou make all things according to the pattern." It is better to live in deed than in word, for our deeds shall live when our words have been forgotten; men do not judge as much by what we say as by what we do, our acts tell the story of our hearts. Some of the sharpest arrows that have ever gone to the heart of a friend, have been sent by a single act, when not a word was spoken. There is nothing more terrible to a wounded heart than an awful silence. Cold indifference was a thing not to be found in the life of our Master. The common people heard him gladly." Every act of his life was an abiding testimony that he was the friend of humanity. "He was a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief," yet his life was filled with acts that drew the people to him. There was something about him that drew like a magnet. Surely apart from his divine nature this drawing must have been by the kind and beautiful life that he lived. The pure in thought saw him as "the fairest among ten thousand and the one altogether lovely."

Not only is Christ a pattern of personal purity, but of

PATIENT TOLERATION.

When he came to this earth, he found that man had misapplied and misappropriated every gift of God. Now, to unteach him what he had been taught by the sinful claims of the heart, and still deal with him as man, must have required patient toleration—a toleration of divine origin only. There were few things in man to approve, and many to disapprove. To lead man from sin, and still let it be his own choice, forsaking the wrong and choosing the right, was the great problem. It is our nature to cling to what we have, until we are convinced that, to give it up, the place can and will be filled with something better. The temple service had become a mere machine, grinding the very life, soul and spirit out of its followers; yet they clung to it with a loyalty astonishing to the world. This must be borne with till the hearts of the people have been reached, for God must deal with man as man. This life has so left its impress, that time and eternity may never efface it from the heart of man.

"See thou make all things according to the pattern." Again, this pattern carries with it the feature of UNSELFISH SERVICE.

"The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and give his life a ransom for many." Our present life is our building period, and it becomes us to build wisely, inasmuch as we have a perfect pattern ever before us. He did not live for self, but for the good of others. We may misunderstand our mission in this world. It is not for the gratification of the flesh and all the lusts thereof, but rather for the purifying of our lives and helping to bear one another's burdens. The One, by whose example we would shape our lives, said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

The toiling multitudes are around us, and may our hearts be warm and our hands strong to help them. When we have made these happy, our own lives will be filled with heavenly joy. The noblest mission upon which man was ever sent was the mission of service. "Rescue the perishing, care for the dying." "See thou make all things according to the pattern." Let thy life be one of unselfish service for God and humanity.

One more point, and I am done; that is

CHRIST'S UNCHANGING LOVE.

In this world so full of uncertainty, the soul longs for some safe retreat, when it can be sheltered by divine protection. Men have deceived us and life is not what we dreamed it was in the days of innocent childhood. There was a time when we knew nothing but to trust, but sad experience has taught us that man's avowed love and friendship may be false. Things are not always what they seem to be, yet we are certain that there is such a thing as unchanging love. "There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother," and he is our perfect pattern. He loved us before the foundation of the world. Hearts have been broken and fond hopes shattered by those who promised to love us with an unchanging love. When the golden threads of his own pure life have been woven into our souls, then, and not till then, will we know what it means to love. Love is a child of divine birth, and her voice shall make the nations of the earth glad. She shall sing her everlasting song in the house of the good and the pure, after the angel hath stood with one foot upon the sea and one upon the earth and swore that time shall be no more.

University Centennial.

PROGRAM OF EXERCISES.

The University Centennial will be celebrated at Chapel Hill, Wednesday, June, 5. 1895

At half past ten o'clock the procession will form in front of the South Building, march past the Caldwell Monument and enter Memorial Hall, where the following programme will be carried out:

1. Prayer.
2. Centennial Hymn, composed by Cornelia Phillips Spencer.
3. Oration, The Old University (1795–1860), Hon. Alfred Moore Waddell.
4. Centennial Ode, James D. Lynch.
5. The New University (1875–1895), Adolphus Hill Eller, Esq.
6. Centennial Sonnet, Henry Jerome Stockard.

At half past two the Alumni will gather by classes in the Gymnasium, where will be served the Alumni Banquet. Toasts both formal and informal will be read and responded to.

At 8 p. m., in Memorial Hall, addresses will be delivered as follows:

1. The University During the War, Henry Adolphus London.
2. The University Alumni in the War, Stephen Beauregard Weeks, Ph. D.

At the close of the addresses there will be a re union of the Alumni by classes, each class marching on the platform in a body in order of time. A few minutes will be allowed to such classes as desire to carry out special programmes.

Arrangements are making at Chapel Hill to furnish ample accommodations to all who may come. Special rates will be granted on all the railroads.

Why Not make the baby fat? For the thin baby is delicate, and is not half so cunning.

Give the thin baby Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites.

Scott's Emulsion is as easy a food as milk. It is much more effective in making thin babies fat, and they like it.

If all the babies that have been made fat and chubby and well by Scott's Emulsion could only tell their story to the mothers of other sickly babies!

There wouldn't be enough to go round.

Don't be persuaded to accept a substitute!

Where Water is Bad

It should not be drunk unless proper precautions are taken. More diseases arise from drinking impure water than people imagine and yet in the face of warning they continue to absorb the dangerous fluid. If you have any doubt—if you are travelling—if you move to a new locality—take no risks but put a teaspoonful of in the glass of water, as it makes it healthy and palatable.

On a journey it is always dangerous to drink much water—take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS along—some people would not start without it, for it keeps them in health.

Look for crossed Red lines on the wrapper.

Taking

it for granted that you want to get the best results in painting, you will have to use Pure White Lead to obtain them. There are many mixtures branded "White Lead," "Pure White Lead," etc., which contain little, if any, White Lead, but are principally barytes, which is of little value, if not worthless. To be sure, accept only a genuine brand (see list).

If you want any shade of color, tint the White Lead with National Lead Co.'s tinting colors, prepared expressly for this purpose. A feature of these colors is the ease with which they are used and the exactness with which the desired shade is obtained. For particulars send for pamphlet, free.

Mrs. G. P. Hamrick reports $6 50 as the amount given by the Society at Henrietta, as a self denial offering.

Mrs. Carrie Rich of Winston says, referring to the week of self-denial, "It was interesting to hear the children tell how they saved their money. I am encouraged now in my work. The children attend much better since the cold weather is gone."

W. M S of Tryon Street church report thirty dollars to be divided equally between Home and Foreign Missions. It will be seen from this and the letter given below, telling of the work done by the young ladies of the same church, that mission needs are a burning question in Charlotte.

In a certain Society, which shall be nameless, a box was being prepared for the family of a needy frontier missionary. One of the ladies had just ordered a pretty new morning dress for herself from a Northern city. When it came, instead of keeping it, it went into the mission box. Such acts of love must draw missionaries and churches very near together.

Mrs. Memory, Whiteville, writes: "We were sorry to part with our dear little visitor, the Missionary Talk, but think to have our chats through our weekly RECORDER will perhaps be better, for not many Baptist families can do without that valuable paper." The book read is Pierson's Miracles of Missions, and the Society is engaged in getting up a box for a frontier missionary.

From Charlotte.

Dear Miss Heck:—In sending on the first check from the Young People's Mission Band of Tryon Street Baptist church, organized Jan. 1st, 1895, I feel that I would like to tell you something of the work these young girls have accomplished.

The encouragement I received from you, during your stay in our city last December, greatly helped me in attempting a work of this kind. When I told you at parting I intended organizing a missionary society among the young ladies in our church, my heart trembled within me, for I felt that any effort I might make would be so feeble, we would accomplish but little. I am thankful to say that God has greatly blessed my efforts, and I have a Band of thirty girls, all deeply interested in the Master's work. They have made many sacrifices for his sake in the past three months, as their self-denial tags showed when brought in last week. We have $65 00 in the treasury, which we will divide, sending $32.50 to each Board, since both Home and Foreign Boards are so greatly in need of help. I will send the whole amount to Mr. Boushall this morning, requesting him to farward $32 50 to each Board. Do you not think my girls have done well? I feel quite proud of them.

I am sincerely your friend,

MRS. J. R. JORDAN.

Letter From Rev. J. G. Chastain.

To the Missionary Society of Chowan Baptist Female Institute: Some of the results of mission work in Mexico during the past twenty-five years may be gathered from the following figures: In the employ of the eleven Boards now at work here, there are one hundred and ninety foreign missionaries and 550 native workers; there are 450 organized churches, 120 church houses, with 17,000 members, 50,000 probable adherants, 12,000 students in Sunday-schools and 8,000 in day schools. There are also ten publishing houses, and thirteen evangelical papers in regular circulation; 159,948,800 pages of religious literature have been distributed. While we are grateful to God for His blessing on the work thus far, yet, owing to the ripeness of the field, many of our leading men unite in the discontent at the meager results in proportion to the work done. With the hope that there may be a greater awakening and ingathering, Dr. Powell, after consulting with others, decided to call a conference of all the evangelical workers in Mexico; this meeting to be held at Toluca, April 3-5. Of the 135 who assembled the main body were Americans and Mexicans, yet there were representatives also from Canada, England, France, Spain and Germany.

Besides two gospel talks each day by Mr. Moody, about a dozen papers were read on different phases of the Holy Spirit. At night the meetings were conducted in Spanish in the city theatre for the benefit of the natives who crowded in by hundreds to hear the gospel, many of them for the first time in life.

The meetings from first to last were highly devotional, almost every prayer calling down the Holy Spirit in power. Mr. Sankey moved many hearts by his soul-stirring songs and music. Two important and encouraging communications were read, one from F. B. Meyer, the great London preacher, the other from Dr. Broadus, written evidently only a few days before his departure to the better land. Some of us felt like we could almost hear his earnest, pathetic voice speaking to us from the skies.

The date and object of our meeting had been extensively advertised by the different denominational papers throughout the United States and England, so that, aside from the daily prayers of Mexican missionaries which had been going up for weeks, thousands of Christian people far away were praying for the meetings at the time they were in session. Mr. Moody said he did not often lay burdens on the 1,500 students in his two schools back at home, but that he had made special request that they pray for the Toluca meetings.

During the three days that we were together, denominational differences—church government, the ordinances &c. were scarcely mentioned. The burden of every speech and prayer, the one desire of all hearts seemed to be to receive power from on high. Some of our missionaries were kept away by sickness or for other reasons; but by continuous prayer and study of the subject of the Holy Spirit, especially in the Acts of the Apostles, they received a rich blessing at home. Others by the same means got the blessing before going to Toluca; and all got a glorious blessing during the meetings. At the close, on the last evening, while giving the parting hand, tears stood in or flowed from all eyes. Men and women of all denominations wept together like children. Everybody was happy. Some of us will never forget that occasion.

After closing at Toluca, Messrs. Moody and Sankey spent a week in Mexico City holding special meetings for the benefit of the thousands of Americans who are there in business. The Christian people were greatly strengthened by this gospel feast. Some twenty-five persons rose for prayer the last night, yet I heard of no conversions. The following statement has been authoritatively made: "We have never known of the conversion of any American in the City of Mexico, or any Spaniard in the entire Republic." There may be some rare exceptions to the above, yet, after spending six years in the country, I have never heard of one. With such a record of the foreigners in Mexico, what can we expect of the natives? Yet these are flocking to God by thousands. Recent reports show that in many districts, more people were added to the churches during the first quarter of this year than during the entire year of 1894. A brother who has lived and worked in Mexico City, told me that Catholicism there was never so tottery as now, and that it is losing ground every day. This is equally true in many other parts. The outlook for the gospel in this country was never so hopeful as it is now. We are confidently expecting, in the near future, a great uprising and turning unto the Lord among this people, for this we are planning and working and praying, yet we are trusting to the Divine arm for victory. We think the set time has come for the Lord to visit Zion, many evidences of this are manifest. "The morning light is breaking, the darkness disappears." May the spirit of the eternal God move mightily upon the hearts of these people. For this we shall continue to pray.

American Institute of Sacred Literature.

The American Institute of Sacred Literature holds annually a number of Summer Schools in connection with various institutions throughout the country. For the summer of 1895 the following schools are announced:

At Chautauqua, N. Y., July 6th to Aug. 16th, courses in Hebrew will be offered by Prof. D. A. McClenahan of Alleghany Theological Seminary, Prof. Ira M. Price of the University of Chicago, and Prof. Frank K. Sanders of Yale University, Prof. R. F. Weinder of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Chicago, and Prof. Rush Rhees of Newton Theological Institution, will give courses in New Testament Greek. In the English Bible School, President William R. Harper of the University of Chicago will give a course, taking up groups of Psalms. Hebrew history will be studied under the direction of Profs. Price and Sanders. The English New Testament work in the school will be conducted by Profs. Weidner and Rhees. President Harper will also give six Sunday morning Bible studies on the general subject, "The Men who Mark Critical Periods of Israelitish History."

The Summer work in the Departments of Hewbrew, New Testament Greek and the English Bible in the University of Chicago is affiliated with the Institute. There will be two terms covering each six weeks, between July 1st and September 23d. Twenty-four courses are offered in Old Testament Literature and Interpretation under the following instructors: Head Professor Harper, Prof. Hirsch, Associate Professor Goodspeed, Associate Professor Harper, Dr. Crandall, Dr. Breasted. In New Testament Literature and Interpretation, eight courses are offered under Head Professor Burton, Associate Professor Mathews, Dr. Arnolt and Mr. Votaw. The Divinity School also offers courses in Systematic Theology and Church History. Prof. A. B. Bruce of Glasgow and Prof. C. R. Gregory, Leipzig and Principal Fairbairn of Oxford will be present from abroad. Other distinguished lecturers are announced.

At the Central N.Y. Chautauqua, Assembly Aug. 10-23, at Tully Lake, N. Y., Rev. Dean A. Walker will give a course of ten lectures on Messianic Prophecy and at the Silver Lake Assembly, N. Y., July 16-Aug. 9, Mr. Walker will give a course of eight lectures on "The Christ in Prophecy and Fulfillment."

At the Ottawa, Kans., Assembly, June 17-29, Dr. Chas. F. Kent of the University of Chicago will present a series of studies of Hebrew History in outline.

At Monteagle, Tenn., in August, Prof. Lincoln Hulley of Bucknell University will offer instruction in the Hebrew language, and will give two courses of fifteen studies each in the Minor Prophets and the earlier Pauline Epistles.

At Lakeside, O., July 11-Aug. 1, Prof. Hulley will also teach a class in Hebrew, and in addition to his series of studies in the Minor Prophets will give a series in the Gospels.

At the Lake Madison Assembly, South Dakota, in July, Prof. Edward L. Parks of Atlanta, Ga., will give a course of class-room lectures on "The Bible from an Educational Point of View." He will also conduct a daily class in the book of Job. General conferences on the importance and best methods of Systematic Bible Study will be a feature of this Assembly.

At the Bay View Assembly, Bay View, Mich., July 18-Aug. 15, Prof. Parks will lecture on the same topics. His work at this Assembly will be preceded by a course of six lectures by Prof. Frank K. Sanders of Yale University.

At Winfield Kan. Assembly, June 18-29, Rev. H. L. Willett, Field Secretary of the Institute, will offer two courses (1) in Early Old Testament History from Abraham to David, (2) In the Life of Christ. Still other schools are being arranged, but definite announcements cannot be made concerning them at present. All of the work of the schools of the Institute is supplemented by the correspondence work during the year, and by the popular Study Courses in which during the past year thousands of students have been enrolled.

Appeal for Goshen, Granville County.

Dear Recorder:—Please allow me space to present a matter to my Baptist brethren, and to any who may feel disposed to assist in the work which I now mention.

There is a destitute point near Goshen, in Granville county, where a church is much needed. I have been preaching there about one year, using a school-house for holding services. I am a poor school-boy, but have been preaching to the people without charge, neither do I ask anything for my services, as I am so anxious that a church should be established there. There are a great many Methodists in the community, but we are very anxious that our doctrine may be made known to the people. At a meeting which I held there last year, a lady who attended said she did not understand "close communion." I explained to her as best I could that it was not "close communion" but "close baptism;" and she was soon after baptized by Rev. J. A. Beam.

We see that there is a great need of the true doctrine, that those people may come to a knowledge of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. We hope and believe that all true Christians whom this appeal may reach will be willing to assist in this great work. There are a few Baptists in the community who have been earnestly at work, and we now have nearly enough material to build the house. All we need now is the means to pay for having the house erected. Also, many kind friends of the Methodist denomination have given some lumber for which we heartily thank them. We wish to have the house erected and dedicated by the time our Association meets, if possible.

Send means to me and I will acknowledge the same through the RECORDER. May God bless us and give us willing hearts in the work. I humbly beg for your contribution and prayers. Yours in the work,

J. T. RIDDICK.

Money for Hyde County Church.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Please acknowledge through the RECORDER further receipts for the Hyde county Baptist church:

Yeopim Union Meeting, $58; Scuppernong Union Meeting, $50; Chappell's Hill church, $11.40; Rev. R. R. Overby collected from Shiloh and Providence churches, $10.30; Miss Claud Waff, $10; Back Cradle, $10; Ballard's Bridge church, $9.55; Eureka church, $8 10; Macedonia, $7.50; Cool Spring, $2.60; D. P. Daughtery, Jos. W. Spenill, Mrs. E. Burke and Rev. W P. Hines, $5 each; Rev. J. A. Speight collected $6 36; Mrs. A. M. Clark, Mrs. Sallie Boetcher, Mrs. Zack Cradle and T. H. B. Gibbs, $3 each; Mrs. A. D. Marcham, Mrs. C. M. V. Follitt's Sunday-school class, Henry Morgan, Buck Horn church, Ariel church, Christian Riddick and Mrs. Mary Bonner, $1 each; Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. Capt. Davenport and mother, 25 cents each.

The church was dedicated on the second Sunday in April by Dr. Durham, with a small amount still due, for which I became personally responsible, and am looking to my brethren to help me pay it. Many, many thanks to those who have helped me in this work for the Lord. Yours in the work,

JOSIAH ELLIOTT.

"There are many persons in the world whose main capital is health," says Dr. Allison. "They are engaged in work of various kinds, and so long as health lasts, they earn a good living. They must learn how to avoid illness by living in the right way. There are others who have found out their errors in time to have a fairly good constitution left. These may live to a ripe old age healthfully, if they only take care. There are still others with everything that riches can give; these must learn to live rightly, too, if they want to be well. Plain food, exercise, etc., will enable these to live long, as they are not troubled by the necessity of working so that they may live. Wealth comes not from our income, but from the amount we save of it, so health comes not from the amount we have to go on with, but from the amount we save, by not spending it on trifles which waste our strength, and give us no return."

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

A Wonderful Cure for Cancer.

There is no further need to cut cancers out with knives or burn them out with plasters. Dr. Mason, Richmond, Va., has a cure for this dreadful disease that surpasses all other methods in rapid healing and permanent cure. It will not be worth while, however, to write to the Doctor unless you are tired of quack medicine and so-called cancer doctors who use knives or plasters. Dr. Mason does not compete with such. His remedy is painless and soothing, and the only one suitable for the aged or weak. The relief is immediate and the cure rapid. It seeks out the disease growths and destroys their vitality, causing the cancer to pass away, leaving only an ordinary healthy sore, which rapidly heals.

Dr. Mason has two methods of treatment—"Home Treatment" and "Personal Treatment." "Home Treatment" is for cases where the patients can be cared for at home without any other cost than the medicines, fully as well as to go to Richmond for "Personal Treatment," by the Doctor. The cost for "Home Treatment" is less than half the cost of "Personal Treatment," and for those who can be cured in a few weeks. When writing, describe the case fully, and direct letter to Dr. Scott Mason, 700 E. Clay Street Richmond, Va.

The rest of Christ is not that of torpor, but that of harmony; it is not refusing the struggle, but conquering in it; not resting from duty but finding rest it it.—F. W. Robertson.

and say that the dying Christian has recanted. They were quite used to being called "Protestant devils" on the streets. That was a small matter. Her great regret was that she could no longer be in Mexico and at work for that people.

Monday, the meeting was mostly of a business character, this being the time for reports of various committees on Plans of Work, on Obituaries and on Resolutions, and for the election of officers during the year.

The opening hours were given, after the devotional exercises led by Mrs. G. B. Eager of Alabama, to addresses by Dr. Bell of the Sunday-school Board and by Miss Alice Armstrong on Missionary Literature.

Dr. Bell thought the need of training Baptist children in Baptist truth and interest in Baptist missions had been reached by supplying them with Sunday school literature which was at once Baptist and missionary. He laid much stress on the Mission Day in the Sunday schools.

Miss Alice Armstrong, under whose wise management the Woman's Missionary Departments of the Southern Baptist publications are largely conducted, enumerated the helps to missionary societies given in these publications. They are graded as given in the order following: For children's societies, a weekly page in Kind Words; for young people's societies, a department in the Young Peoples' Leader; for W. M Societies, the Woman's Missionary Department in the Foreign Mission Journal.

The election of officers is by an informal ballot, for which no nominations are made, followed by a formal vote. This is a somewhat lengthy process, and it is the beautiful custom of the Union to devote the time during the absence of the tellers, to a service of prayer. This was lead by Mrs. Harvey Hatcher of Georgia, the thought being the ministry of the Spirit. Many ladies took part in this delightful service, and the general wish was that it might have been longer.

The tellers reported the election of Miss Fannie E. Heck, President; Miss A. W. Armstrong, Cor. Secretary; Miss Marteer, Recording Secretary, and Miss Lowndes, Treasurer.

Vice Presidents for each State were elected by acclamation, Mrs. J. A. Briggs being elected from North Carolina.

After the closing business of the session, a farewell prayer service closed this very full and interesting session of the Union.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

Rev. E. L. Siler has been installed as pastor of Wadesboro and Morven Presbyterian churches.——Two drinking men, Asbury Coleman and Chas. Cook, got into a fight near Elkin last week, resulting in the death of the latter.——A Mr. Boggs has been going about this and other States lecturing in the interest of a "Sound Money Convention" at Memphis, May 23. He has met with meagre encouragement.——The Odd Fellows met in annual session at Greensboro last week and elected the following officers: Grand Master, C. F. Lumsden; Deputy Grand Master, W. T. Dortch; Grand Warden, J. P. Sawyer; Representative to Grand Lodge, W. C. Douglas.——Rev. Dr. J. A. Weston of Hickory has accepted the care of the Third Episcopal church at Raleigh.——It has been discovered that, although it is clear that the Legislature intended to give the Agricultural and Mechanical College at Raleigh half what is asked, the act gives the whole amount. The error is in punctuation of the act.——The State Dental Society met at Salisbury. The following officers were elected: Dr. R. H. Jones, President; Drs. J. N. Carr and B. F. Smathers, Vice-Presidents; Dr. H. V. Horton, Essayist; Dr J. E Wyche, Goldsboro, Secretary; Dr. J. W. Hunter, Treasurer.——The State Medical Association met at Goldsboro, and elected Dr. R L. Payne, President; S. D. Booth, J. P. Munroe, J. A. Burroughs, J. E Grimesley, Vice Presidents; R. D. Jewett, Secretary, Wilmington, N. C.; M. J. Perry, Treasurer. Dr. H. A. Royster of Raleigh, a son of one of the State's foremost physicians, gave an instructive demonstration of "a new method of applying plaster of paris dressing in fractures," which was most favorably received. It is very gratifying to know that young Dr Royster will be associated with his father at Raleigh.——The Presbyterians will erect another building at their orphans' home at Barium Springs.——In the case of Cooke against Meares for the Eastern criminal court judgeship, the Supreme Court has decided for the latter. The court has also handed down a decision that seriously affects building and loan associations.——The Southern Railway depot at Charlotte was destroyed by fire the 17th.——The Episcopalian Convention was held at Morganton last week.——The Grand Commandery of North Carolina and the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons met at Durham last week. The latter order elected the following officers: W. E. Storm, Grand High Priest; G. H. King, Deputy Grand High Priest; H. C. Atkinson, Grand King; Wm. Simpson, Raleigh, Grand Secretary.——It was announced that Rev. E. A. Oakes, evangelist, would preach at Faison, N. C., last Sunday. He is reported as saying that his treatment at the Kesley Institute has done him great good and that for the first time since his birth he has no appetite for strong drink.——The Statesville Landmark announces that it will be published twice a week without change of price after next June. It is a model "county" paper.——$150,000 worth of strawberries were shipped from this State last week.——Rev. Wm. Black, Presbyterian, has been holding meetings at Shelby, and there have been about fifty professions.——The State Kings' Daughters met at Newbern last week.——At the State Experiment Farm there are now nearly ready to bloom 30,000 Canada lilies. The bulbs were sent to the farm by Peter Henderson. [illegible] could be made of the adaptability of this soil to lily culture. All the best tube rose bulbs are now grown in this State. The lilies grown around Raleigh are said to be equal to the best foreign ones.——The unveiling of the monument to the memory of the Confederate dead took place at Raleigh on Monday, 20th of May, in the presence of assembled thousands. It is estimated that the number of visitors in Raleigh on this occasion exceeded 15,000; some think there were as many as 20,000 present. The program was well carried out, the weather was excellent, and the cheer and enthusiasm of the people everywhere prevailed.

In General.

Forty-six cigar makers have been ordered to go back to Havana, Cuba, from New Orleans, as their coming to this country is in violation of the contract labor law.——German capitalists have decided to go into the sugar-beet industry, and have formed a company for the purpose with $1,000,000 capital in Kentucky.——The frosty weather in the North and Northwest has done an immense amount of damage. In the South but little was done. All crops are behind, however.——President Seth Low of Columbia College, New York, gave that institution $1,000,000 last week.——The situation in South Carolina is not improving. There will be no rebellion, as is rumored, but feeling is running high. The election of delegates to the constitutional convention will have to be unrestricted. In spite of the decision weakening the dispensary laws, they are being enforced vigorously. Never was a State so beset with politicians.——Two thousand railway conductors are in session at Atlanta.——A great mass meeting in the interest of free coinage of silver was held at Salt Lake City last week. Others have been held in Illinois and Colorado, and another will be held at Memphis in June, the latter to counteract the influence of the Memphis "sound money" meeting.——It is currently stated that the Hawaiian government is in grave danger of dissolution, and that the old order may yet be restored.——The Southern Presbyterians held their annual session at Dallas, Texas, last week. Reports good and encouraging. The Methodists celebrated the first five days in May the fiftieth year of the existence of the M E Church, South. The exercises were conducted at Louisville where the first Conference was held.——It is stated that 200 per cent. more iron is being consumed than two years ago, and wages are being increased.——It is a common opinion that the income tax law will be declared unconstitutional.

"In the Wash"

That's where your delicate handkerchiefs come to be "more hole-y than righteous"—certainly not in the show-like service required of them—more or less true of all things washed.

Give two equally delicate Landkerchiefs equal service for one year.

Wash one with soap—usual way—the other with Pearline without rubbing, as directed on each package—wash the one you value most with Pearline—it will be far the best at the end of the year.

The old-fashioned way of rub, rub, rub, is slow work, poor work, slow death to women—quick death to fine things, and renders coarse things useless long before their time. Pearline does away with all this. Costs but five cents to try it; directions for easy washing on every package; easy for you, easy on things washed. We can't make you try Pearline—you would thank us if we could. Millions are grateful for its help. Envious soap makers try to imitate it—borrowed brains are cheap—and so are their productions.

Send it back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back.

AN OFT REPEATED STORY OF TRUE PHILANTHROPY.

WHAT CHAS. H. HACKLEY HAS DONE FOR WESTERN MICHIGAN.

(From Grand Rapids, Mich., Evening Press.)

The most beautiful spot in all this city is inseparably associated with the name of Hackley. Chas. H. Hackley has been in the lumber business here continuously since 1856 and in that time has amassed a fortune which gives him a rating among the wealthy men of the nation. But with wealth there did not come that tightening of the purse strings which is generally a marked characteristic of wealthy men.

It is no wonder then that the name of Chas. H. Hackley is known at home and abroad. His munificence to Muskegon alone represents an outlay of nearly half a million. For the past twenty years he has been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and rheumatism, also numbness of the lower limbs, so much so that it has seriously interfered with his pleasure in life. For some time past his friends have noticed that he has seemed to grow young again and to have recovered the health which he had in youth.

To a reporter for the Press Mr. Hackley explained the secret of this transformation.

"I have suffered for over 20 years," he said "with pains in my lower limbs so severely that the only relief I could get at night was by putting cold water compresses on my limbs. I was bothered more at night than in the day time. The neuralgic and rheumatic pains in my limbs, which had been growing in intensity for years, finally became chronic. I made three trips to the Hot Springs with only partial relief and then fell back to my original state. I couldn't sit still and my sufferings began to make life look very blue. Two years ago last September I noticed an account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and what they had done for others, and some cases so nearly resembled mine that I was interested, so I wrote to one who had given a testimonial, an eminent professor of music in Canada. The reply I received was even stronger than the printed testimonial and it gave me faith in the medicine.

"I began taking the pills and found them to be all that the professor had told me they would be. It was two or three months before I experienced any perceptible betterment of my condition. My disease was of such long standing that I did not expect speedy recovery and was thankful even to be relieved. I progressed rapidly, however, towards recovery and for the last six months have felt myself a perfectly well man. I have recommended the pills to many people and am only too glad to assist others to health through the medium of this wonderful medicine. I cannot say too much for what it has done for me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2 50

In Behalf of The "N. E. S."

Dear Brother Bailey:—I spent yesterday in Baltimore and caught up a bundle of exchanges, among them the BIBLICAL RECORDER which I like to read because it is newsy. In it I saw an article about the National Evangelization Society, which, perhaps, unintentionally does Dr. Wharton injustice. It refers to an application for help to which he replied by telegraph, stating his terms for one of the workers to be fifty dollars a week.

You know enough about protracted meeting work to know that a man may hold meetings every week of his life, be greatly blessed in his work, and yet not receive from the churches enough to support his family. I have some experience along this line myself, which enables me to speak as one who has suffered. So it was agreed upon among the members of this Society that a certain sum should be named as necessary to defray traveling expenses and the salary of the evangelist. This sum is put before the pastor and church to stimulate them to do their best in the general collection for the Society, which is taken at the close of the meeting. There is nothing, however, binding in the matter, but this Dr. Wharton could not explain in his telegram. I have known him to send an evangelist to hold a meeting in a church from which he received only $2 50 above the traveling expenses of the worker, to say nothing of the salary. Yet it was a very successful meeting, so far as the number of converts was concerned, but the people were poor, and could give little. Yet no word of complaint was ever uttered by Dr. Wharton, who had to raise the salary of the evangelist from other sources. If that North Carolina pastor had said to Dr. Wharton, "I will try to raise that amount," the evangelist doubtless would have visited his field and done good service. At the close of the meeting, if the collection had not resulted in raising the desired amount amount, nothing farther would have been said.

I write this without having seen Dr. Wharton. He has been in Kansas City for three weeks, where a wonderful revival has taken place. He was expected home Saturday night. I am on my way to Cincinnati, to begin a meeting in the Ninth Street church. Dr. Johnston Myers, pastor. In Fall River we had 150 professions in ten days; 70 in Cambridge, Mass.

Yours, A. C. BARRON.

On train to Cincinnati, May 4, 1895.

Mr. J. S. Dickerson has resigned as managing editor of the Baptist Union to come back to the Standard, relieving Bro. Goodman, who after forty years of service on that paper, is suffering with eye troubles.

Pastor Wanted at Morehead City.

Bro Bailey:—We are without a pastor, and would be pleased to have you suggest the names of good brethren who would serve us for a year. We pay $500 salary and parsonage. The First Baptist church of Newbern has called Brother Samuel J. Porter and offered him more money than we were paying him, and he has resigned his church here to accept the call from the Newbern church. Brother Porter has been our pastor for six months and a half. We all loved him and the church was doing well.

Our congregations were growing larger, and we were hoping to have a glorious revival of religion in a few days.

Brother Jenkins had been engaged to assist in a meeting of days, and preparations were being made to commence on the 19th inst. But when Brother Porter offered his resignation, our hopes and expectations were suddenly blighted.

Please publish this letter in the BIBLICAL RECORDER.

Yours in hope, A. S. WILLIS.

Morehead City, May 12, 1895.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews; Rev. J. N. Stallings; R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges; Rev. I. W. Thomas; Rev. J. M. Hilliard; Rev. N. B. Orrell; Rev. J. C. Sorrells; Rev. C. B. Justice; Rev. J. L. Smith; Rev. S. B. Barnes; Rev. E. C. Bobbitt; Rev. A. J. Bordeaux; Rev. W. B. Harrell; Rev. Thos. G. Wood; Rev. Samuel Saunders; Rev. G. M. Webb, Rev. S. C. Page, Rev. R. W. Weaver, Rev. C. W. Matthews.

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

Dr. T. H. Pritchard will deliver the address at the annual exercises of Matthews High School, Rev. J. J. Payseur, principal, May 24th.

DIED.

ETHERIDGE—Friday night, April 19th, 1895, Miss Sarah Lizzie Etheridge, daughter of the late J. R. Etheridge of Pasquotank county, N. C., fell asleep in Jesus, having a few months ago completed her twenty-fifth year. She lost her mother when quite young, after which she found a home with her grandmother, sister Elizabeth Taylor, near Sunbury, Gates county. After the latter's death, she remained with her aunts, Misses Lizzie and Dixie Taylor, in whom she found all that a mother could possibly have been to her.

At the early age of thirteen she gave her heart to Jesus, and thus spent nearly half of her short life in his service.

Miss Lizzie possessed a fine mind, quick, strong and clear, and was very fond of reading. She graduated from Oxford Female Seminary in June, 1887, taking the highest honors of her class. Life then was full of beauty and joyous anticipations; but disease soon laid its withering hand upon her, and life's prospects were blighted.

Soon after leaving school she was elected president of the Woman's Missionary Society of Middle Swamp church, of which she was a member. She refused at first to accept the position, feeling that some older person ought to take the lead; but being strongly urged, she accepted the office and faithfully performed its duties while health and strength permitted.

She was a lovely character. Possessing a warm and loving heart, a sweet, gentle and cheerful disposition, to know her was to love her. She was exceedingly patient in all of her afflictions, and so grateful for everything that was done for her. She was ever a frail and delicate child, and a few years ago that terrible disease, consumption, began its fatal work. All was done for her that loving hearts and willing hands could do, but all in vain. Death had set his seal on her beautiful brow. She longed to get well, and clung tenaciously to life as long as there was any hope; but when at last she saw there was no hope, her submission to the Father's will was perfect. A few months ago she said to her aunt Lizzie, "I feel rebellious. It seems so hard for me to be sick all the time and other young people enjoying such good health. I hate to feel so, but I can't help it." A few weeks before her death, when asked one day how she felt, she said, "I don't feel that way now. That rebellious feeling is all gone, and I'm so thankful." A few days before the end when her aunt Dixie was reading to her an article of Rabbi Moses on Dr. Broadus, she said, "You reckon I shall be with Dr. Broadus? He was so great and did so much good. Well, I'll be there." In damp, rainy weather, she was generally worse. Wednesday before her death was a very rainy day. Some remark being made about the weather, she said, "It's all bright where I'm going."

As the end drew near she seemed to be suffering much with her head, and there was an expression of pain on her face; but when the supreme moment came that look of pain passed away and her face lighted up as in joyful recognition of some loved one, or as if the glories of the other world were bursting on her sight. Then

"The stillness of death told the golden bowl broken,
The spirit's release, and its welcome on high."

W. B. WAFF.

MANNING—Bro. William Henry Manning died at his home in Sunbury, Gates county, N. C., April 24th, 1895. He was born August 30th, 1820, and would therefore have been 75 years old had he lived till the 30th of next August. He married a daughter of Rev. Quinton H. Trotman, and lacked only about three months of having lived with her fifty years.

Bro. Manning was for many years quite a prominent man. He practiced law five years and then gave it up for other pursuits. He was clerk of the Court of Equity for a number of years, holding the office till the Court was abolished. He was probate judge for some time, and also served his county a good while as commissioner. Having good business qualifications and a good supply of common sense, he was generally looked up to for advice and counsel. Twice he was elected to the Legislature, representing his county once in the House and his district once in the Senate. Both of these positions he filled with credit to himself and to the people whom he represented.

He was very dignified and reserved in his demeanor, which caused some who didn't know him well to look upon him as proud and haughty. But those who were intimate with him knew well the kindliness and congeniality of his nature.

In 1850 he made a profession of faith in Christ, and was baptized into the fellowship of Mt. Tabor church in Hertford county. He soon after moved to Gates county, and transferred his membership to Sandy Cross, where he remained till four or five years ago, when he moved it to Beulah church. He served his church at Sandy Cross many years as deacon, and held the same office in Beulah at the time of his death. He was an earnest, faithful Christian, and a staunch Baptist. For seven successive years he was moderator of the Chowan Association. He was also moderator of the Yeopim Union Meeting for quite a number of years. His long continuance in this office indicates both the wisdom and ability with which he discharged its duties, and the confidence and esteem in which he was held by his brethren.

He suffered much in his latter days. For many years he had catarrh, which gradually permeated his whole system, greatly affecting his throat, and finally producing troubles which caused him sufferings of which but few were aware. The last few years of his life were clouded, too, by financial troubles, which greatly disturbed his peace of mind; and but for his unusually strong constitution and his untiring energy and perseverance, he would doubtless have passed away long before he did. He just wouldn't give up till compelled to do so.

But his sufferings are over now, for we believe he has entered into that rest which remains for the people of God. Having served his generation faithfully and well, he fell on sleep. He leaves an invalid wife and five children, all grown, besides many friends, to mourn his departure. May the Holy Spirit comfort and bless the bereaved in all their afflictions and sorrows. W. B. WAFF.

FREE!

We direct special attention to the following remarkable statement:

For many years I suffered from Catarrh, which destroyed my hearing, and for 25 years I was so deaf that I could not hear a clock strike by holding my ear against it. I had tried every known remedy, and nothing gave me the slightest relief. I obtained Dr. Moore's treatment, and in three weeks my hearing began to improve, and now I can hear common conversation across a room; can hear a clock strike in an adjoining room, 30 feet away. I think I am entirely cured, and my hearing permanently restored.

SPECIAL NOTICE—OF INTEREST TO ALL.

BALTIMORE, MD., May 1, 1895.

Mr. Editor: Please inform your readers that at the request of many teachers, students and others who wish profitable work for their summer vacation, we have decided to continue for the present our offer to give $200 in gold to any one selling in three months 200 copies of "Talks to Children About Jesus." This is one of the most popular books published. Agents often sell from ten to fifteen copies a day. Complete outfit and full information sent for 35 cents. We pay freight and give credit. With the above offer and other liberal inducements we give, any one of energy can make enough money to pay board and tuition at any of our leading schools or colleges.

Please also say we offer for next sixty days extremely low prices on Teachers' and Family Bibles and some of our other popular books. Yours very truly,

B. H. WOODWARD COMPANY.

Special Feature

—IN—

Dress Goods.

We have begun a special sale of Dress Goods at 50c. in the dollar.

The majority of these dress goods are the last shipments this season, being duplicates of the goods lost on the ill-fated steamer Elbe.

They were duplicated by the manufacturer without our advice, and arriving late, were offered at such prices that we accepted them and are able to offer them at just half their original price.

Estimates for making up will be furnished by our Dress-making Department.

By this arrangement one can obtain fine dresses at even less prices than cheaper and medium priced goods.

THESE DRESS GOODS

are entirely separate from the regular dress goods department, being upon our second floor, so when writing for samples kindly mention that they are wanted from this lot.

The Home Circle.

Loving and Giving.

Us teach, Lord, the lesson of loving,
The very first lesson of all,
O Thou who dost love little children
How tender and sweet is Thy call!

Now help us to hear it and give Thee
The love Thou art asking to-day;
Then help us to love one another—
For this we most earnestly pray,

Lord, teach us the lesson of giving,
For this is the very next thing;
Our love should always be showing
What offerings and fruits it can bring.

There are many who know not thy mercy,
There are millions in want and in woe;
Our prayers and our gifts are all needed,
And all can do something, we know.
—Home Mission Echo.

The Old Book.

Last eve I paused before a blacksmith's door,
And heard the anvil ring the vesper chime;
Then, looking in, I saw upon the floor.
Old hammers worn with beating years of time.

"How many anvils have you had," said I,
"To wear and batter all these hammers so?"
"Just one," said he; then said with twinkling eye,
"The anvil wears the hammers out, you know."

And so I thought the anvil of God's Word
For ages sceptic blows have beat upon,
Yet, though the noise of falling blows were heard,
The anvil is unharmed—the hammers gone.

Willie's Gold Mine.

"If I were rich, I'd never go to school another day!" exclaimed Willie, as he threw his books and strap upon the sofa in the cosy sitting room. "What's the use bothering away one's time in school, any way!"

"Well, Willie," inquired grandma, cheerily, from her pleasant corner, "how would you like to own a gold mine—your very own?"

"A gold mine! My! I'd like it awfully, grandma; but," continued Willie, slowly, "I don't s'pose I'll ever own one."

"I see no reason why you can't, if you really want one," replied grandma, smiling.

"How? Do tell me quick!" cried Willie, eagerly. "I guess Jim West won't feel so big if I get a gold mine." And Willie whistled gaily at the thought.

After a moment's silence, Willie continued, thoughtfully: "I can't buy a gold mine, for I've only two dollars in my bank and a mine will cost heaps."

"Sit down a minute while I explain," and as she spoke, grandma fondly drew her pet to her side. "You can't buy this gold mine with money and no one can give it to you; you must work for it, and work hard, too, Willie."

"O, grandma, I'll do anything, sure? See how big and tall I am." And Willie actually grew six inches taller all at once, by standing on his tip toes.

"You can't get your gold mine in a hurry, either," went on grandma. "You must get it little by little. It isn't like some gold mines, that are full of wealth at the beginning—you must fill this mine yourself."

"Will it take long to fill it, grandma?"

"Yes, a number of years. Each day you can add some valuable bit to it, and by and by, lo! you will have an inexhaustible treasure. No one can steal your mine from you, Willie, and you can never dig it dry."

"My!" exclaimed Willie, with sparkling eyes. "When can I begin to get my gold mine grandma?"

"At any time! You have already begun to fill your treasure house, and by going to"—

"I know, grandma," interrupted Willie. "Its an education that you mean; that's the gold mine."

"And isn't that a fine one, Willie?"

"Y-e-s, and I'm going to begin now to fill it up. Hurrah for grandma and the gold mine!"

"And the school, too," added grandma.

"Why, of course," laughed Willie.—Presbyterian.

A few weeks ago a preacher in an Eastern city thundered forth the following remarkable sentence: "When every ninth man in America is a drunkard, every seventh person an opium fiend, every fifth woman a victim of hysteria, every fourth man a slave of tobacco; when women are old at forty and men gray and worn at fifty, and when everybody is inhumanly careless of the laws of life and health, it is high time to preach the gospel of athletics." So? Such remarks cause a feeling of extreme lassitude to permeate the beings of rational and sensible men. Every ninth man a drunkard! Every seventh American an opium fiend! and 63,000,000 persons out of a population of 63,000,000 inhumanly careless of the laws of life! Go to, now! The proportion of drunkards is entirely too high in the United States; we have many more opium fiends than the welfare of the country absolutely demands, and a few of our wives and sisters are old at forty; but there is no such condition of affairs as the aforesaid preacher would have us believe. Every once in a while some preacher or public speaker, in endeavoring to be forceful and emphatic, fathers some gross exaggeration such as the above, which injures the cause he thinks he serves. Pessimism is far more prevalent than drunkenness or the opium habit, and almost as demoralizing, and as between nicotinism and intentional or careless prevarication, even in the form of exaggeration, we would choose the former as the least injurious to the public welfare. —Christian Evangelist.

The Naughty Fingers.

"Mamma," said Bessie, as she was undressing for bed, "This finger and this thumb have been naughty to day."

"Why, what did they do?" asked mamma.

"They took some raisins from the closet this morning," replied Bessie, hanging down her head.

"Did anybody tell them to do it?" asked mamma. Bessie turned away as she softly answered:

"I did not hear anyone tell them."

"Did they eat the raisins?" asked mamma.

"No, they put them in my mouth," said Bessie.

"But you were to blame for taking them. Your fingers had no right to them, you know," said mamma. "Now what shall I do to punish this little hand?" asked mamma.

"It was only one finger and my thumb, mamma," Bessie said beginning to cry.

"They are two little thieves, then. They cannot be trusted, so we must shut them up," said mamma.

"Bessie looked very sorry, while her mamma found some black cloth, and wound it around the finger then the thumb. Her hand felt very clumsy, but she went to bed, and got up in the morning with them still tied up.

"Shall I take this ugly black cloth off now?" she asked, on going to be washed.

"Oh, no!" said mamma. We have no proof that they are sorry, yet, so it would not be safe to trust them. They might go right away into the closet again."

"I think they are sorry," said Bessie.

"But they have not said so," replied mamma.

So Bessie went down to breakfast with the ugly black rags on. She could not eat very much, because every time she used her spoon papa looked so queer.

Soon after breakfast she ran to mamma with tears running down her cheeks.

"Mamma," she sobbed, "I made my fingers naughty; I'm so sorry; please forgive me."

And now the black cloth was taken off, and the fingers kissed, and Bessie ran away very happy——Ex.

Joy in Our Abilities.

On one occasion did Jenny Lind express her joy in her talent and self consciousness. It was during her last residence in Copenhagen. Almost every evening she appeared either in the opera or at concerts; every hour was in requisition. She heard of a society, the object of which was to assist unfortunate children, and to take them out of the hands of their parents, by whom they were misused and compelled either to beg or steal. "Let me," said she, "give a night's performance for the benefit of these poor children; but we will have double prices." Such performance was given, and returned large proceeds. When she was informed of this, and by this means a number of poor children would be benefited for several years, her countenance beamed and tears filled her eyes. "Is it not beautiful," said she, "that I can sing so?"

Through her I first became sensible of the holiness there is in art; through her I learned that one must forget one's self in the service of the Supreme.—Y. P. Leader.

Don't Overfeed the Fowls.

The greatest mistake in feeding fowls is over-feeding. Hens are gorged with food which makes fat instead of providing those elements which go to make up the egg. Corn consists almost wholly of starch and oil, and while it is a good food for fattening fowls it is one of the worst of all foods for producing eggs. No one food contains all the needed elements, and a mixture of several kinds should be constantly given. It is quite possible that the production of eggs may be largely increased by a truly scientific system of feeding, and every poultry-keeper should make a study of such a system, not being alarmed at the idea of the scientific part of it, because science is nothing more than perfectly right and exact practice, and is nothing an ordinary sensible person need be afraid of.—Selected.

Flowers in the House.

A tiny garden can be made by cutting a piece of sheet wadding to fit the top of a bowl or wide-mouthed jar, which is filled with water just high enough for the bottom of the wadding to touch it. Two or three small bits of charcoal will keep the water pure, and, when all is arranged, the top of the wadding is sprinkled with seeds of mignonette, sweet pea or any other easily grown plant. The roots pierce down through the wadding, and are nourished by the water, while leaves and blossoms, in a reasonable time, conceal the top. There is but one flower more beautiful than the the morning glory on the out-side of the bay window, and that is the morning glory trained up on the inside of the window, and in full bloom while the Winter storms are raging and the thermometer is below zero. It can be grown with very little trouble.—Selected.

Working in Government Positions.

Edward W. Bok, in Ladies Home Journal, gives the following advice to young men seeking public employment:

I would not advise any young man to enter the employ of the government, that is, if he has any ambition. A government position holds out attraction to the average young man because he feels it is safe, that is, so far as the payment of his salary is concerned. Then, too, he is apt to believe that the government salaries are somewhat higher than the salaries attached to civil pursuits. But, to my mind, he buys these "sure" elements at a very dear cost to himself. The average government clerkship is a very poor affair. Not only is it poor in itself, but in ninety cases out of a hundred it means pure clerical routine.

It has about it a peculiar stifling monotony and restraint which are apt to quench the fire of ambition. Promotion is impossible upon the same lines as in a business house. The chances for development are meagre. While there are exceptions to the general rule, government service is not the best thing for any young fellow. He will be wiser if he enters into the more fearless freedom of civil pursuits, and leaves the average government position alone. In the first, he can be what he likes; in the latter, it is doubtful.

AYER'S PILLS ARE EASY TO TAKE.

They Keep the System in Perfect Order
"For years," writes CARRIE E. STOCKWELL, of Chesterfield, N. H., "I was afflicted with an extremely severe pain in the lower part of the chest. The feeling was as if a ton weight was laid on a spot the size of my hand. During the attacks, the perspiration would stand in drops on my face, and it was agony for me to make sufficient effort even to whisper. They came suddenly, at any hour of the day or night, lasting from thirty minutes to ten or twelve hours, leaving as suddenly; but, for several days after, I was quite prostrated and sore. Sometimes the attacks were almost daily, then less frequent. After about four years of this suffering, I was taken down with bilious typhoid fever, and when I began to recover, I had the worst attack of my old trouble I ever experienced. At the first of the fever, my mother gave me Ayer's Pills, my doctor recommending them as being better than anything he could prepare. I continued taking these Pills, and so great was the benefit derived that during nearly thirty years I have had but one attack of my former trouble which yielded readily to the same remedy."

THE Supreme Court of the United States has decided that the recently enacted Income Tax law is unconstitutional, and the law is thus annulled. In the few months it has been in operation, $80,000 has been collected. This will now be returned. The government has been put to an expense of more than $150,000 collecting the taxes and testing the law.

The fact that four of the nine Justices are still of the opinion that the law is constitutional, is ground for belief that the other five are wrong. But this does not help matters; on the other hand, it would be a great deal better if the Court were unanimous.

There will be efforts to make "campaign thunder" of this turn of affairs. In the North credit will be taken, while in the South and West it will be charged that the Court was bought by wealthy citizens. This is to be deplored. The Supreme Court of the United States is above parties, and it is the highest duty of citizenship to respect it always. There is just as much sense in saying that the law was enacted by socialists as there is in crying out that the Court has favored the wealthier class. True, many Northern and some Southern papers made the former charge; but this does not warrant us in making a counter charge, now that the scales have turned against us. The duty is to accept the decision, and proceed to make such a law constitutional by amendment. There is no other sane course.

Any effort to arouse the poor against the rich because they are rich, is unjust. It is reckless unpatriotism to arouse classes and excite prejudices of any kind. The interests of the Nation are the interests in common of every citizen and every class; and duty and common sense demand that every citizen stand by the government.

It may be mentioned in passing that the nullification of the law leaves the National Treasury considerably worse off. At least $15,000,000 revenue yearly was expected of it. The Treasury is now about $45,000,000 behind, and the main effort is to keep the amount less than $50,000,000 until July 1st, when the books will be balanced for the year.

NEGRO boot-blacks in Washington have more opportunities than the average boy in North Carolina. Both have schools, but the boot black has the better; the North Carolinian may have more time and money, but not so much more that he can make up for the boot-black's privilege of seeing the magnificence of a city, growing up surrounded with libraries, museums, parks, architectural grandeur and art galleries, and breathing the atmosphere of progress.

Of course the boot black doesn't know he has such advantages; his one aim is to make a dollar and a half a day and get to sleep or have a high time at night. And so, after all, the North Carolinian usually passes him in the race.

But, is the case not different with the well to-do children of the Capital? They have all the boot-black has, time to enjoy it, and mothers and fathers and teachers to show them how. It is a wonder that a class has not grown upon this country long ago; advantages are so unevenly distributed. It is a wonder that the children who grow up surrounded with everything that will elevate have not outgrown the millions who have to travel all day at considerable expense to feast their eyes on sights that city children grow up seeing.

Perhaps there is something after all in the temptations, fashions and cults that take up the time of the well-to-do youths of the cities. No doubt they have great influence holding back the more fortunate while the plodders are catching up, and thus keep the body politic more evenly balanced.

There can be but one aristocracy in a free country, and that is the aristocracy of mind. Given a country like ours, and it is inevitable that the intellectually abler class will rule it, even if it does not always hold the offices. This being true, it would not be long before the rural districts had but little part in our government, if the youths in the cities used their opportunities; for surroundings do count in the cultivation of intellect and enlargement of mental capacity. But city youths are mostly concerned with society, clubs, theatres, fashions, and the like.

THE opinion is growing upon us that South Carolina is suffering from an extra supply of office-seekers. We are thoroughly aware that our lively sister is so sore on the subject that it is dangerous to say anything about it; but she presents conditions that are not altogether peculiar to herself, and they teach a lesson to all the other States and the National government itself.

It is clear that the main trouble with South Carolina lies in vicious efforts of the "outs" to destroy confidence in the "ins," and thus to get themselves in. It is a wild and unpatriotic office hunt, and the common good has come to be only the slogan of demagogues and their victims.

The serious aspect of the situation is the heedlessness of the outs. They want to get back into office, and if they can do it by attacking the administration, by crying down the laws, by alliance with the negroes, they do not scruple to do it. They are the aristocrats of the State, they grew up into office, and they are desperate to get back in before they die.

We do not approve of the Dispensary system, because we oppose the State's going into any business, but it is a case in point. Because this system was inaugurated by the administration that overthrew the "outs," the latter have done all in their power to keep it from being operated. Nearly all the newspapers in the State have joined in a hue and cry against it; and to this day the law has never had a fair showing.

This is vicious politics. Citizens are in duty bound to stand by all laws until they are annulled, and above all things a newspaper should. It is very well to attack a measure on principle, or to try to get a law repealed; but it is criminal abuse of the freedom of speech and press to try to excite disrespect of a law.

ONE might take a lesson from recent sudden endings all too soon of busy lives, if it did not seem that he would be quickly trodden under foot by his fellows. Many a worker by day and worrier by night would let up, if the other fellows would; and the other fellows feel just as he does about it.

Men have a way of letting their rivals—often their enemies—set their standards of success, and as each standard is reached a new rival with a higher standard comes into view. And so they die in harness without ever quite reaching the crest of the hill, whence they would have looked backward with a joyous sense of relief and forward upon restful valleys. It may be well; for of such men, as of no others, "sudden death is sudden glory."

An aged man of wealth is a rare sight, that is, aged in respect of years. Although there are three living illustrious exceptions, it has come to be the rule that successful men die prematurely, before they have thought of retiring. Gray hairs sprinkle the heads of thousands of successful workers under forty-five, who, instead of living out a comfortable old age, drop suddenly in the prime of life, and set a startled public talking of heart failure or apoplexy.

There are warnings enough; but few heed them. Men have come to think that success must be sought early and late, that sleep, appetite and comfort must be sacrificed, if it is to be obtained: not that there are no happy fellows who do as they please and wax wealthier every day, but that there is only one of these where there are ten thousand tramps who also set out to do as they please, and hundreds of thousands gone before their time, because they crowded years into months unmindful of the fact.

The world is not so hard. It is the way we have come to look at it, that makes it seem so. A man who does his duty and looks for success in the vastly more important world to come cannot fail, though a million pass him in this life. The probability is that the million will not keep ahead of him long even if they do pass him at first; for they will be worn out before the battle is half done. But if a few do reap the best of this life, they get nothing compared with that which awaits one who endures, so far overcoming himself as to be reconciled to walking the humbler paths for a time.

OUR attention has been called to statements in the message of the Governor to the last Legislature and in the report of the Attorney General, practically acknowledging the inadequacy of the present State laws concerning trusts, and requesting the Legislature to strengthen them. The blame, so far, therefore, must be attached to the Legislature, and the credit for honest effort given to these officials.

But what has become of Attorney General Glenn, the United States government, and their widely proclaimed purpose of enforcing the laws of the Nation? Are they, too, inadequate?

We confess we have no patience with the way laws are being trampled down on technicalities, when a wayfaring man though a fool cannot misunderstand their meaning.

Concerning Revivals.

Revivals of what? Revivals of religion, of course. Well, religion, that is, true religion, which makes people better and saves the soul, is a good thing, the best thing; and a revival of this kind of religion is the best thing that can happen.

True religion is based on the truth. It has God for its author, his truth for its foundation, the salvation of the soul for its object, and heaven for its reward. In proportion as true religion is revived, in the same proportion is God exalted in the minds of the people, his word studied, reverenced and obeyed and the rewards of heaven kept in view. With these eliminated, religion becomes shorn of its changing power over the affections and lives of men.

Man is a compound of matter and spirit. Go back to his origin. Whence came he? In all matters of importance it is necessary to go back to first principles. Hear his origin. "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Gen. 2: 7.

That part of man which came from the earth is earthly in its nature, and is fed and sustained by the products of the earth. That part which came more directly from God, when he breathed into that body which came from the earth and man became a living soul, being more nearly allied to God, can be fed and kept in a healthful condition only by union with God. As the body derives its nourishment from the earth, so the soul must derive its nourishment from God. The soul is spiritual in its essence and requires spiritual nourishment for its healthful sustenance.

The gospel provides for this, and opens to view a religion which is pre-eminently spiritual. Jesus Christ as mediator between God and man, for great spiritual purposes concerning man, did much, very much, to secure this spiritual interest, without the doing of which we would certainly have been left in fearful wreck and ruin; but what he did avails nothing of itself. Something is wanting in the chain of human redemption to bring us to God. Christ was God manifest in the flesh, and while in the flesh he told his apostles that they should do greater works than he had done. He performed miracles, but the people were hardened and unbelieving, except a few who gathered around him and followed him in his journeyings and teaching among men. He was crucified, and nature was convulsed, the heavens were draped in darkness, and the dead arose and appeared among men, yet no one was converted, and his disciples were bowed down with depressing grief.

After his resurrection he commanded his disciples to go to Jerusalem after his ascension and there tarry until they were endowed with power from on high. He had promised them the Holy Spirit. There is much in that command and in that promise. They compose another, an important, an indispensable link in the plan to bring man into spiritual relationship with God. The day of pentecost disclosed and made plain the command and promises of Christ. This was the inauguration of the dispensation of the Spirit. "Not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord," should be the watchword of God's people in this dispensation of the Spirit. It was so with the apostles and their co-workers. They did the work as far as in them lay and God gave the power.

It would be interesting to note the progress of the gospel in Jerusalem and the thousands of converts in a short time; and then the spread of the gospel in surrounding countries after the brethren were scattered on the wings of persecution that arose in the case of Stephen. Philip went down to Samaria and held a protracted meeting for a long time, and caused great joy in that city, and strong opposition too, but when the people "believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, they were baptized, both men and women." Acts 8: 12. Pretty soon Saul of Tarsus was converted, (Acts 9), then the door of the gospel was opened to the Gentiles in the case of Cornelius, (Acts 10), and soon after the gospel was preached at Antioch, the metropolis of Syria. This was the first Gentile church, being composed mostly of Greeks. When the church at Jerusalem heard of the gospel being preached at Antioch and its success, they sent Barnabas there. On his arrival he saw the grace of God and was glad, and after remaining awhile and laboring with the church he went over to Tarsus after Paul and brought him to Antioch, and the two labored together with the church a whole year. (Acts 11) Afterwards this church sent Paul and Barnabas out as foreign missionaries, and the gospel was preached in Asia Minor and other countries, and churches were planted and grew and multiplied.

In all this work of grace the apostles and those who labored with them relied on the Spirit. Paul, writing to the church at Corinth, says: "And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power." 1 Cor. 2: 4. In all the apostolic epistles great emphasis is put on the work of the Spirit, and in the apostolic labors we see the accompanying power of the Spirit as the efficient cause of success.

It would be interesting in the highest degree to trace the labors of the apostles, how they relied on the power of God by the Spirit for success, and how that power was vouchsafed to them in giving success to their ministry. Paul was a man of great learning, but he used his learning only as the vehicle of bearing the gospel to the people, and relied on the Spirit for success, and God gave the success.

What we need is a revival of spiritual religion, such as was experienced in the days of the apostles. And why not have it? We have the same divine truth which they had, and we have the same promise of Christ as to the Spirit which they had, for when he promised the Spirit it was for all the ages of Christianity: "He shall abide with you forever."

OLD MAN.

Duty of a Church to the Pastor.

SPEECH DELIVERED BY REV. A. H. POSTER AT THE ATLANTIC UNION, AND PUBLISHED BY REQUEST OF THE UNION.

1st. The duty of a church to support the pastor is clearly taught in both the Old and New Testaments. The Lord gave no inheritance to the priest as he did to the other tribes, because he intended they should be supported by their brethren. To them belonged the skin or fleece of every animal sacrificed, which was small revenue. Of peace offerings they kept also the shoulder and breast. Lev. 7: 33.

And of sin offerings the carcass except the solid fat, which was burned. Lev. 7: 6, 10. They had also a tenth of everything, besides the first fruits. When any man killed an animal for his own use, he was required to give the priest the shoulder. Deut. 18: 3.

Under the gospel dispensation, God has called men and qualified them by his Holy Spirit to preach his own everlasting gospel, and has definitely taught his church their duty on this point, when he said, "The workman is worthy of his meat." Matt. 10: 10.

"How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent?" Rom. 10: 14, 15.

"Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? Who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock and eateth not of the flock?" 1 Cor. 9: 11. "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel shou'd live of the gospel." 1 Cor. 9: 14.

We see from the teachings of God's Word, that it is just as much the duty of the church to support the pastor as it is for the pastor to preach. The pastor has to live as well as other people, and everybody expects the preacher to always be cheerful, dress well, have comforts, and keep out of debt. Some say, let the preacher work all the week and go and preach Sunday, for God has called him, and whom God calls he qualifies; we have no record where the Holy Spirit ever taught man to read or write. To preach successfully, needs preparation. I know there have been some good, earnest and faithful pastors, who have had to labor hard all the week, and then go and preach Saturday and Sunday. While they have done well under the circumstances, they would have done better if they had been supported by their churches, and thus had time to prepare their sermons. Brethren, see that your pastor is supported.

2nd. It is clearly taught in the Scriptures that it is the duty of the church and people to hear, obey and respect their pastors. God speaks to Israel to hear. "Hear ye the word of the Lord, O house of Jacob, and all the families of the house of Israel." Jer. 2: 4. Joshua said unto the children of Israel, "Come hither, and hear the words of the Lord your God." Josh 3: 9. God calls upon individuals to hear his word and obey its teachings. Isaiah said unto Hezekiah, "Hear the word of the Lord." 2 Kings 20: 16. He also speaks to all the world to hear his word. "Hear this, all ye people; give ear all ye inhabitants of the world." Ps. 49: 1. "He that hath ears to hear let him hear." Matt. 11: 15

The Saviour was very careful in his parable of the sower, when he said, "Take heed how ye hear;" and also, "Take heed what ye hear." He also speaks concerning those who refuse to hear, when he says, "And the Lord hast sent unto you all his servants the prophets, rising early and sending them; but ye have not hearkened, nor inclined your ear to hear." Jer. 25: 4. "And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet." Matt. 10: 14.

3rd. God has made it the duty of the church to pray often for their pastors. "Now I beseech you, brethren, for the Lord Jesus Christ's sake, and for the love of the Spirit, that ye strive together with me in your prayers to God for me." Romans 15: 30. "Withal, praying also for us that God would open unto us a door of utterance to speak the mystery of Christ for which I am also in bonds, that I may make it manifest as I ought to speak." Col. 4: 3, 4.

We find by studying God's Word that it is not only the duty of the church to administer to their pastors temporal things, but to respect, hear and obey them, and besides all this to pray often for their pastors. It is said, that this was one of the secrets of Spurgeon's great success as a pastor, that the whole church met often to pray that the Lord would bless their pastor in spiritual things. Brethren, we as humble servants of the Lord Jesus, need your united prayers, that we may be strengthened and inspired by God's Holy Spirit to preach the gospel, which is to able make us all wise unto salvation. God bless our churches and pastors.

Modern Sanctification or "Second Blessing," Not Bible Sanctification.

BY REV. W. B. HARRELL, M. D.

"Sanctify them through thy word," says the Lord Jesus. This is progressive grace, through the knowledge of "the truth," and is ever advancing till the end shall come; but there is a class of preachers going "about seeking whom they may" delude, preaching and teaching something they call "sanctification" or "second blessing," and their ravings are the wonder of this latter day era of wonders.

They have their "followers," these possessors of modern "sanctification" or the "second blessing," as it is styled, to distinguish it from the first blessing, which, they say, is only regeneration! And in their hysterical "seances" they do so continuously harp on the immediate attainment of this unscriptural "possession," that one, not posted as to their pretensions, is almost ready, on witnessing "the proceedings," to cry out, "Oh, fie! fie!" from utter amazement at what he sees.

But listen. These people claim that the "second blessing" (as they term it) is complete sanctification both of soul and body. In other words, entire sinlessness; and that this sinless state is reached by an instantaneous work, wrought in the individual, like that of regeneration or conversion; but that it is higher in degree than either, and without it, no soul need ever expect to get into heaven! The preachers of this doctrine tell their people (who are already members of their churches) that this "second blessing" of sanctification is to be diligently sought, and may be found by kneeling at "the altar" (as they term the rail around their pulpits), and earnestly praying, in deep humiliation and self-abasement; and that if they persevere, the "blessing" will come, right now, to-day, any day; and, strange to say, many of these "seekers" do, after awhile, rise up, with shouts and hallelujahs loud and deafening, and declare they "have got it." Got what? "Got sanctification," they say. But the preacher, after shouting a short time over them, and shaking hands with the sanctified ones, soon casts a terrible damper on their hopes by telling them, they can lose it, just like they lose their other religion!! (We don't remember just now any people who have a religion they lose except the Methodists), but he assures the "possessed ones" that they can get it again, just the same and just as easily!!

And yet the man or woman who has attained the "second blessing" of so-called sanctification, is filled with "holiness," body and spirit, and so free from sin in "thought, word and deed," that even the Devil is conquered, so they claim; and, we suppose, like O. hello, "his occupation is gone."

But all this high and wonderful attainment of extra and "over much" righteousness can be so completely lost by the sanctified ones that hell may yet be their portion! Alas! what is it worth! Absolutely nothing. But it is astonishing with what astounding complacency some of the preachers of this doctrine who claim sanctification and are possessed of the "higher life," roll their tobacco quid "as a sweet morsel" under their tongues, and many others, with a flourish of the stick brush, dip into a tin snuff box, wiping its filthy and disgusting "mop" into their capacious jaws with as great carnal "gusto" as any of those who, being of the same flock, can't get sanctified if their "life depended on it," so they say, poor souls!

The fact is, the latter confess that they love "the weed" too well and too much, and it stands in the way and hinders them from the "blessing"! Not so, however, with the preacher. He chews, he smokes, and he "dips," and the poor flock stare at him, cavorting in the pulpit, and, with wide open eyes and mouth, they ominously shake their heads as he boasts of his super holiness, and wonder "whereunto this thing will grow."

Already in some thoroughly Methodistic communities, it seems to have raised up a kind of wall between members of the same communion; some of them sanctified, others not; some holy, others not. Some with their inflated heads high up among the stars, being possessed and the possessors of the "blessing," and, to all appearance, proud of it! while others, poor souls, are still low down on this mundane sphere, quite earthy and carnal still, in all their tastes and pursuits. How sad, and what a delusion! Yes, a delusion, that is what Bishop Wilson called it, "a delusion," in his address, as reported in the Wilmington Messenger, before the Conference in Durham last December, and the Bishop warned his preachers not to preach it, that it was false doctrine; but some who were there and heard him, do still delude the people with it.

What self-deception to claim to be sinless, while the Apostle John says (1 John 1: 8), "If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us"! And again, "If we say we have not sinned" (to-day or any day since we claimed to get sanctified) "we make him a liar, and his word is not in us." It is better to be content with being "saved" sinners, "by grace through faith," according to the Scriptures, in the precious blood of Christ for all time, than to be putting on airs of superior holiness over other Christians, and running up claims to something we know not what.

See the utter presumption of this whole thing. One of the sanctified brothers was

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1895.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

SOME one asks, "Does the Lord send pastors seeking churches or churches seeking pastors?"

KEEP it in mind that the one way to overcome the saloon is to foster the spread of wholesome public sentiment. We have enough voting church members; we need to teach them the duty of living up to their professions.

THE bricklayers and carpenters are at work on the Baptist Female University, and Bro. Stringfield already sees in his mind's eye the handsome structure filled with bright Baptist girls, and he rejoices all his way about the State making others rejoice with him. We are glad to give space for the acknowledgment of subscriptions, and we hope our columns will be crowded with them. If the Baptists will only respond to Brother Stringfield's efforts and lend their sympathy, prayers and substance, we will have here in Raleigh an institution for girls not surpassed in the South.

THERE never were quite so many conferences in Christendom. The Methodist brethren are really being outdone entirely. Every day almost we hear of a new conference or two that will be held this summer at some fashionable summer resort; board cheap, fine breezes, baths, drives, celebrated speakers, etc., galore.

If some of these ardent conference organizers would go into their closets once in a while and hold a conference with the Lord, we are assured they would not be so needful of summer-resort conferences.

Any man or woman who is suffering with ill health, will do well to take a vacation, any one who feels himself threatened with a break-down, should seek rest; but it is a little out of the way to call it a conference.

WE WISH every one who reads this line would prayerfully consider the spiritual condition of the church of which he or she is a member.

If anything is wrong with a church its root is most likely in its relation to the Holy Spirit.

If a member of a church realizes that something is wrong, if it is apparent that the church is not coming up to what may reasonably be expected of it, it is the member's duty to inquire into the cause; and he ought to make himself the first object of inquiry.

Our churches will take a great step forward spiritually, if each member can be brought to a full sense of responsibility. There is not sufficient activity in many of our churches; nearly everything is so frequently left to the pastor, deacons, clerk and one or two leading members; so many seem to have persuaded themselves that their only obligations to God are financial ones.

Would to God that the quickening power of the Holy Spirit may be felt throughout our State.

IF THERE is one class of people that ought to be more circumspect than any other with regard to everything, small or great, that class is composed of teachers; and more especially has this come to be needful since the school room is playing almost as important a part as the home in the training of children.

At the close of the school year, there is no little danger of overdoing the thing. A tremendous effort to show off occupies several weeks of the childrens' time, with cramming their heads full of sorry stuff and rehearsing them into the proper condition for getting it off to the best advantage. And if this danger is escaped, there is yet another, of impressing the children more with the significance of show than the importance of work.

We believe we can tell what kind of closing a school will have by the invitation it sends out, and in some instances we could make a pretty sure guess as to the genuineness of the school's work.

This year the unusually large proportion of neatly made up and modestly worded invitations has been very gratifying to us, and we are quite assured that the closing exercises of the present season will be worth going to.

We place great confidence in those institutions which strive to be dignified without being pretentious, and tasteful without affectation.

This is a good time of year to encourage our schools by showing desire to justly appreciate their efforts.

FAMILY PRAYER.

But few homes seem to have family prayer; and yet, we may safely assert that the most robust piety is that which is fostered in the prayerful home. If one would only study the environments of the world's choicest characters, a wondrous argument would be found for family worship. To speak generally, no home is complete without the "sweet hour of prayer." There are difficulties, of course, in the way. The husband or father, for instance, is not a Christian, and hence there is no one to lead in the devotions. This is a serious hindrance; for the head of the house ought to be foremost in every good word and work; he ought to be an example of exalted godliness, to whom all others look for inspiration and guidance. On the other hand, the head of the family may be a Christian, and yet so poorly developed in religious life as to be incapable of edifying his loved ones by officiating at the family altar. Though these obstacles are great, they are not insurmountable. We know an instance of family worship instituted by the son of the home, a youth of seventeen years. The mother spoke to us in grateful acknowledgement of the services of her boy; and, like a true mother, held up his hands in his attempt to serve his Maker. Again, in our boyhood, we were powerfully impressed by the practical piety of an aged Christian woman, who nightly led her household in fervent prayer; and to-day we see no reason why godly women should not conduct family worship, when there is no one else to discharge that duty. Let us have a revival in this matter. Let the pulpit speak out; let the pastor advocate it in his social intercourse with his people; let the brethren talk about it in prayer-meeting; and let the good women of the land insist that their homes be made houses of prayer.

Remember that prayer is the transfiguring grace. As Jesus prayed the fashion of his countenance was changed. Each soul is a lantern, and prayer is the lamp that lights it up. The prayerless man is a dark man; his hopes are dark; his heart is dark; God's providences are dark; life is dark; the grave is dark; eternity is dark. Prayer is the first stage of glory; and as we worship we go from strength to strength; our characters develop in symmetry and beauty; our hopes assume a deathless glow; our wills fall into the moulds of divine grace; and our entire spiritual life is transfigured from the earthly to the heavenly shape.

Brethren, think on these things. Think of the needs of your hearts and the needs of your homes. Perhaps many a shadow rests on your home, and you wonder why. Life may seem to you to be a failure, and as things now go with you, may be it is; then search for the reason. Why are you so despondent? Why do doubts fill your mind? Why does your religion seem to be a mixture of fiction and fact? Why do you accomplish so little for the Master? Why do all your temporal matters go wrong? Why are you skeptical as to the most holy and spiritual things? May it be because you do not really pray? Does the family altar in ruins tell the story of your woes? Then, without delay, and with a profound sense of your obligations to your home and to your God, call your loved ones together to-night; take down the only family Bible; brush off the accumulated dust of weeks and months; read ten or fifteen verses to begin with; and then lead the little band, that depends upon you for help and leadership, to the throne of grace in a short, sweet prayer. Thus will your home be revolutionized, and the blessing of heaven will rest upon it.

IT HAS been handed down from generation to generation that the way to keep children out of mischief is to keep them occupied with something at once engaging and wholesome. If we were called on to demonstrate the proposition that grown people are merely grown-up children, we would use this honored precept as a basis; for it is likewise the best way to keep grown people from running after all sorts of fads and fancies, as fast as they are sprung upon us.

One of the safest pastors in our Convention was telling us the other day how that, instead of making it easier for him, a young people's society within his church almost doubles his work, keeping him suggesting, advising, encouraging and directing all the time; "but," he quickly added, "I gladly carry the extra burden, because it is such a privilege to see the growth in grace and knowledge and usefulness that is brought about. No doubt I might shift the burden of this work by leaving my young people to the secretary of some comprehensive organization or other and trusting them to national organs and "official" literature, but I would rather bear it myself than undertake such risks. As it is, I know I am on scriptural grounds, and moreover, am sure the society is proceeding in the proper way to suit our church and do the most good, and it is flourishing, too—has been all these five years."

Now here is a pastor who has been too constantly occupied to think of running after every new idea that is broached, too successful to have need to seek new methods like one grasping at straws. And we believe the National and State organization idea would be left entirely to cranks and publishers, if every pastor would do what he can to make the most of the young people in his church without outside affiliation. Any capable pastor is competent to outline a course of study and lay plans of work for his young people, and being on the ground, in contact with them and acquainted with their needs, he is far better qualified to perform such a work than a set of officials a thousand miles away.

WE are of the opinion that the Southern Baptist Convention got off the track when it passed those resolutions on Tithing. Probably the chief influence of it will be in teaching those who seem to be unaware of it, that it is utterly vain to try to accomplish anything of this kind by resolutions.

Our children should not be exposed to any possibility of drawing the conclusion that they may give a tenth to the Lord's work, and rest satisfied that they have done their duty. A tenth is, indeed, a great deal with many, but there are numbers who can easily spare that much from their incomes.

No one can make a rule of giving that will suit all conditions; but one will have no difficulty making a rule for himself, if he will set about it with the right spirit. Never yet has a man sincerely asked God to guide him in his gifts, without getting an answer. Every one feels himself impressed, and according as he yields or resists is his duty done.

Some say give "at least a tenth," others say "give until you feel it," others say until you have to sacrifice something dear to afford it, and others as the Lord has prospered. If we will only do the latter, the Lord will be satisfied.

We have been impressed at times with the reckless making of subscriptions in an audience, under pressure, when there is both emotion and pride to make one subscribe more than he can pay. Many such subscriptions lie now unpaid, doing more damage than would have been possible if they had not been promised at all. Men often have good impulses; but all of them should be made to stand the test of prayer before they are given effect. It never hurts a good cause or a good impulse to pray over it.

The subject of Giving is a most interesting one, and, considering the frequency with which it is brought up, it is not half so thoroughly known as it ought to be.

WE think Bro. J. H. Mills had in mind what ought to be, instead of what really is, when he stated last week at the Chowan Association that none of the Languages were taught in the Normal and Industrial School at Greensboro. The fact is, they teach French, German and Latin, and arrangements are such that the students can get music and art, if they want them. What gave the school favor and support from the first was the assurance of the promoters of the school that it would not come in conflict with the female colleges. We believed from the first, and said over and often, that the result would be just what has come to pass, namely, the Normal and Industrial School in active competition in every material point in education with every female college in the State. More than that, this State-aided institution will force these colleges to offer education on the same terms, or else they must close up business. In support of this, we heard a prominent member of the Association say in the course of his remarks on Education: "If these other colleges don't reduce their expenses on a par with the Normal and Industrial School I will not only patronize it myself, but will vote the people's money to its support whenever I have the opportunity."

And the colleges cannot come down to the Normal and Industrial (!) rate so long as that school receives a handsome income from the State.

IN HIS latest letter the Pope offers an indulgence of three hundred days to all those who piously recite the prayer for re union (which he appends to the letter), and a plenary indulgence once a month on the observance of the usual conditions to those who have recited it daily. This is the way Roman Catholic bar keepers and other felons keep their consciences clear. What an insult to offer to buy up intelligent people with indulgences!

WE ARE glad to see our contemporaries coming round so nicely on the young people and talking up local organization. That's the way; we need all the encouragement we can get along this line.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

CHOWAN ASSOCIATION.

This body was held last week with the church at Gatesville. Twenty-one years ago it met in the same town. Then the Association embraced nearly all of the eastern portion of the State. Since that time, the West Chowan Association has been formed by a number of the churches belonging to the old Chowan, and possesses now almost as much numerical and financial strength as did the mother Association. Besides, too, the Tar River Association has some of the old Chowan strength; yet the grand old body still contains more than sixty organized churches with a combined membership of more than ten thousand. The annual meeting of this body never fails to attract a large attendance. Many delegates came more than fifty miles on buggies to meet the brethren and represent the work of their churches in rounding up the year's work.

The Gatesville people could not have done more for the comfort and entertainment of all who were there. When our company reached the station, there were conveyances enough to have carried five times the number present, and at the head of the procession I noticed two handsome turnouts—the truth is I got into one of them—one belonging to Mr. L. L. Smith, who has many friends in Raleigh and in this portion of the State; the other belonged to Mr. Riddick, another big hearted, liberal citizen of Gates. These brethren, while not Baptists, were second to none in the interest they showed for the success of the meeting. I have no doubt there were many others whom I would be glad to mention along with these friends if I only knew who they were, whose teams, tables and homes were constantly at the disposal of any who chose to accept their kind offers. We were glad to see a number of our friends from Virginia.

Bro. J. E. White of Edenton, who had been elected to preach the introductory, was delayed by a slow boat, and so was not there in time. This beginning of the work of the Association was performed by Dr. A. E. Dickinson, editor of the Religious Herald of Richmond, Va. We did not hear the sermon, but we are indebted to the brethren for the good reports about it we would be be pleased to write. Few men know when to talk and what not to say better than Dr. Dickinson.

Dr. J. A. Speight, editor of the Atlantic Baptist, was delighted to be at his old home among the friends of his boyhood, and as a further token of his interest in them offered to supply what he says is the greatest dollar paper in the country. Bro. B. S. Peterson was present and looked as if he would like to offer an amendment to that part of the report made by Bro. Speight pertaining to one dollar papers. This scribe felt his accustomed serenity at this juncture, for he knew he had no "shorts to cover" in the old Chowan.

Bro. White preached an excellent sermon to the Association at 8 o'clock. I spent two or three days with him lately. He has a good library of magazines and newspapers, a congregation kind, liberal and sympathetic, but which knows what preaching is, and with this constant stimulant to work, his improvement as a preacher for the past twelve months has been marked indeed.

Bro. E. F. Aydlett, the former Moderator, and Bro. D. Hofler, the old Clerk, were again elected. The fine bearing, competent and efficient work of these brethren are the best tests of the wisdom displayed by the delegates.

We were glad to meet again Bro. C. E. Cross, who now has charge of the preparatory school in Gatesville. Among the various ways he made himself useful, one was, in acting as Reading Clerk for the Association.

The report on our Murfreesboro Institute was read by Bro. Pierce. A number of brethren spoke to the report. None failed to congratulate President Brewer on his successful management of the school. We know the discussion did no good; we hope it did no harm.

I see from Charity and Children that Bro. Mills says I have a new joke for '95. I had an idea that Bro. Mills was growing in his appreciation of a nice, clean joke, but was not aware he could enjoy one three hours before it came off. Some jokes are better three hours before they come off than they are three minutes afterwards. If I were to record the joke of the season, I should say it was Bro. Mill's statement during the discussion of this report, that neither Latin, French nor German were taught at the Normal and Industrial School at Greensboro.

Dr. C. S. Blackwell of E. City duly appreciates the worth of a report. Many brethren seem to think the only thing a report is for is simply to get the subject before the body, and hence nine-tenths of our reports are written with this view only. The report read by the Doctor on Foreign Missions was full of interesting facts, in fact a discussion of the subject, as well as an appeal for larger and greater efforts in this department of work.

At the close of Dr. Durham's speech on State Missions, Dr. Dickinson said "I have not heard a more powerful address on this subject."

The brethren were glad to see Bro. John Mitchell and heard him with interest for Ministerial Education. The pledges from the churches for the continual support of this valuable work was proof of the appreciation in which it is held.

Bro. T. G. Wood, who Dr. Overby says "was born a gentleman and can never be anything else," offered a resolution providing for the annual discussion of Sunday-schools and for aiding in the support of our Ministerial Relief Board. These were added to the objects of the Association without discussion.

Bro. W. G. Forebee was fresh from Thomasville, and so was in a good trim to act as "right-bower" to Bro. Mills in the discussion of the Orphanage. The collection which followed the discussion was better than last year, so Bro. Mills stated; also, some individual gave more than the collection amounted to; hence, Bro. Mills left us early Thursday in good spirits.

A good time and a full house was given to Bro. Blanchard on Wednesday night to speak for Wake Forest and general education. He has his subject well in hand and tells the history in a manner interesting to those who are more or less familiar with the matter. His work will result in good to the College, both in increasing the endowment and in causing many young men to find a way to College.

All pledges by the churches were fully paid, and those for the present year are larger than ever before. The attendance was good, the interest well sustained; just as it always is with this body.

The Association will meet in July in 1896 instead of in May as heretofore.

....Dr. J. A. Mundy of Wilson was a welcomed visitor to our office Monday. He preached the annual sermon before the graduates of the Oxford Female Seminary, Sunday. His church is doing good, solid work.

....Rev. A. Ben Oliel, who has been an honored and successful missionary of the Presbyterians to Jerusalem, has severed those relations and announced that he accepts immersion as the only true mode of baptism.

....We extend sympathy to editor Thad. R. Manning of the Henderson Gold Leaf, who lost his venerable father by death last week, aged seventy-six years. He was an esteemed Christian gentleman, and raised up a large family of useful men and women.

....Two of our exchanges come to us in new and tasteful dress, the Baptist and Reflector and the Orphans' Friend. If the brethren and sisters will make an extra effort to get us over the "June hill," we will do something of the kind for the RECORDER.

....From a report in Our Home Field we learn that Rev. J. M. Brittain, Theological Instructor under the Home Board for negro preachers and deacons, held 32 institutes last year, reached 409 preachers and 289 deacons and traveled 6,527 miles in his work.

....The excellent reports of the Southern Baptist Convention sent daily by their regular correspondent to the News and Observer and the Charlotte Observer speak well for those papers. The widespread interest in the Convention, especially in North Carolina, was evidenced not only in these papers, but in quite full accounts given in many county papers and numerous editorial comments.

....The time of holding the Sunday-school Chautauqua has been changed to Aug. 13–18.

....We tender our sincere sympathy to Brother and Sister Cannady in the death of their little girl in Oxford last week. May the Lord who alone can comfort them bring light and joy out of this dispenation.

....If we read the Examiner correctly, patriotism is going to seed in New York and Boston Baptist churches. Calvary church flies an American flag, and Tremont Temple will follow the example when the new edifice has been completed.

....Rev. A. J. Taylor of Mt. Olive writes in a letter sending us a renewal and a new subscriber: "We will now take up the work to complete our new house at Corinth. We want to finish it for the Association which meets with us this year.

....The Baptist and Reflector proposes the organization of Southern Baptist editors. We second the motion, provided Bro. Folk agrees to furnish a refrigerator, a gas escape, a meeting place, an accident ticket, and become responsible for other damages.

....If you want to get in the papers, join a city pastor's conference. They seem to be held in some of our cities every Monday morning and every one present says something about himself that gets into the paper, for having had a "good day" Sunday, if nothing more.

....The Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle Sunday-school gave its annual outing, May 29th, to Norfolk, Portsmouth and vicinity, carrying a large crowd. The Sunday school of the Raleigh First Baptist church will leave for Guilford Battle Ground, by way of Sanford and Greensboro June 5th.

... Pastor Felix of Asheville First church has issued a catalog descriptive of a two month's outing in the Warm Springs Valley, Virginia, during which a Bible Conference will be held. If we take it correctly, Dr. Felix is trying to get the pastors who get vacations to take them in company.

....Rev. A. C. Dixon publishes an appeal in the Examiner for support of the only Japanese mission in New York, one which he has been largely instrumental in establishing. He takes the ground that the best way to reach the Japanese is through their converted countrymen.

....Dr. J. J. Taylor of Mobile, Ala., conducted the prayer meeting at the Methodist church last Thursday night, and though he promised to give only a feeble talk, all who heard him pronounced it an able and eloquent sermon. The Doctor left for his home Saturday.—Piedmont Herald, Leaksville.

....We were glad to have a short visit from Bro. D. I. Watson, M. D., of Southport. The work at Southport is looking up hopefully, and Pastor Ballard grows stronger and stronger with the people. Bro. Watson is his efficient lieutenant, being an energetic Sunday school superintendent and general church worker.

....Prof. M. O. Carpenter, who graduated at Wake Forest last June, and has since been successfully engaged in teaching at Reynoldson, passed through Raleigh last week with his bride, formerly Miss Claudia Waff. They are now at Bro. Carpenter's home in Lincoln county. We wish them happiness.

....A man competent to become principal of a good academy and pastor of neighboring churches, a young single man, or one who has a wife who will aid him in the school-room, can get occupation in a good community in our State. Applicants will send their names to the RECORDER, each with a two-cent stamp.

....Bro. Jos. S. Fox sends us the following from McAdensville: "Our beloved pastor, Rev. J. M. Bridges of Pelham, S. C., baptized fourteen candidates last Sunday at two o'clock as a partial result of the meeting he and Bro. Pruett conducted here for us in April. Our church was greatly revived by their faithful work."

....Rev J. L. White is holding a meeting at the Second Baptist church, Atlanta, Ga., Dr. Henry McDonald pastor. The Index gives a long report of the first few services, speaking of them in the highest terms. There have been more than 100 professions of religion in Bro. White's Macon church since he went there.

....We have pleasure in assuring our nervous contemporaries, the Evangel and the Baptist Courier, in response to their anxious inquiries, that they have taken false alarm. The lecturers are not coming. The sentinels are still on the watch for new-age apostles, monists, co-educationalists, and $50 a week N. E. S. peripatetics.

....Rev. Russell H. Conwell of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, baptized his three thousandeth candidate recently; and he has been in the ministry a short time comparatively. Spurgeon baptized only 2,100. Dr. Conwell is arranging to use a telephone so as to preach to three audiences at once, so great are the crowds.

....We were very glad to see Rev. J. H. Hutchinson on the streets last Friday on the way to fill his first appointment this year. He was taken with pneumonia last winter and his recovery has been very gradual. We thank the Lord for sparing him. Wake county Baptists in many localities would hardly know what to do without him.

....We were anxious to publish a letter from Brother Hocutt concerning the important crisis in our work at Haw River, but it came too late. They are building a church there. It is a very important point and growing more so. The church will be finished the fifth Sunday in June. It will cost $1,575. The Haw River people hope to contribute $1,000; this leaves $575 to be raised by North Carolina Baptists, if the church is to be dedicated free of debt. Bro. Hocutt has received some responses to his appeals, but he must have more. We urge those who can to send Rev. J. C. Hocutt, Haw River, N. C., what they can for a worthy and promising Baptist enterprise.

....The English Church is sending out an appeal to ministers of its own and other churches "to devote at least one sermon on Whit Sunday, June 2d, calling attention to the good work of some branch of the church other than their own." Many archbishops and bishops in England have agreed to this, and several noted American preachers.

....Bro. Love's tract is receiving many testimonials for clearness and strength. It will do your people good. Why not make a special effort next Sunday to get us five dollars worth of new subscribers and receive twenty copies of the work for distribution? Just to make it easier for you, we will send the RECORDER and the tract to any new names you may send, from June 1st to January 1st, for one dollar.

....A professor in Peking University, writing in the Independent, is responsible for the statement that the Emperor of China studies the Bible daily. He first came in contact with one sent the Empress Dowager as a present. A great barrier to China missions is the obdurate indifference of the better classes of the inhabitants to our missionaries. Perhaps the Emperor's interest may be fruitful. Let us pray that it will.

....The Pope is still whining for Christian unity. He has addressed another fawning letter to his American children. The Roman Catholic church made the great division of Christendom necessary. If it had not gone back to ritualism and paganism, Christian union would be practically operative now. And the Pope and all his dupes may rest assured that so long as they claim to represent the Christian religion, unity is impossible.

....We were glad to have a talk with Dr. G. H. Sadleson of Southern Pines last week. He is one of our most intelligent and active Baptists in that promising community, and is making efforts to get his brethren to secure a hold in the place before it is too late. It is interesting to know that although Bro. Sadleson is a Northern man who was driven to the South by ill health, he says he would not go back North to live if good health were guaranteed him, so well pleased is he with our climate and people.

....We were very glad to have a visit from Dr. J. D. Hufham last week on his return from Washington, for which trip he was very grateful to the Shelby people. Dr. Hufham had been at Tarboro several days in a meeting with Rev. J. E. Hutson and Pastor Savage, which, Rev. Hutson having left, is being continued now by the latter. The meeting at Scotland Neck and Tarboro have been very fruitful, there being an unusually large number of baptisms.

....Rev. Dr. H. M. Wharton, the celebrated Baltimore pastor-evangelist, writes Rev. W. B. Oliver that his meetings will commence in this city on Sunday, June 2d. They will be held in the First Baptist church, and will continue for about two weeks. Dr. Wharton will be preceded by either Rev. Dr. Barron or Rev. Mr Neighbour, both well known evangelists, who will conduct the services for two or three days, until the arrival of the noted preacher.—Wil. Star.

....The Richmond Christian Advocate has been running a special club rate of $1 00 a year since January 1st. It has learned the inevitable lesson: List not greatly enlarged, and as many reasons for not subscribing as ever. Here is what it says: "The Advocate is $2 00 Its price has not been changed. If, as we hoped and some predicted, the list would run up to 15,000 in clubs, we could have brought the price down. But in truth, there is only a certain per cent. in all denominations who take interest in church affairs, and only a limited number who care for religious literature. We shall winnow out the delinquents on June 20th."

....We thank Secretary Burrows for promptly furnishing our office with a copy of the minutes of the "Southern Baptist Convention, Jubilee Year, 1895." It is a book of about 200 pages and contains, in addition to an accurate and concise report of the proceedings, full reports of the boards, pictures of Dr. Broadus, Dr. J. W. M. Williams, the church at Augusta, Ga., (Greene St.,) in which the Convention was organized, the church in which it met last, of Rev. John Stout, Rev. Jos. Walker, Dr. H. A. Tupper, and Hon. Jos. G. Brown, the latter two being prominently referred to in Dr. Whitsitt's Historical Sermon, which is also printed in the minutes.

....Wake Forest's closing exercises will be unusually brilliant this year. Dr. H. M. Wharton is a famous preacher; Hon. Thos. W. Mason is not equalled in the State as an orator of the "old school"; there are twenty-two young men to receive degrees, and of course they will make it interesting Monday night (class-day exercises, by many considered the most entertaining of the week) and Thursday morning, when the graduating orations are delivered and Dr. Taylor makes his final charge to the graduates. If we never get anywhere else, every Baptist in the State ought to try to make one pilgrimage to Wake Forest. Let there be a big crowd.

....It is not necessary to make any explanation of Bro. Porter's resignation at Morehead to accept the call to Newbern to those who know him. He is a sincere and humble as well as efficient servant of the Master, and is as far as possible from doing anything that seems not to be his duty. But we fear some may have misunderstood Bro. Willis' letter, and for this reason take it upon ourselves to say that Bro. Porter prayerfully considered the Newbern call, fully appreciating the responsibilities that accepting it would bring. He felt himself guided of God to undertake them, and we are sure Bro. Willis would not have any one to think otherwise. We know Bro. Porter's circumstances well enough to assure every one that if the fact of larger salary had any weight with him, it was because he regards it as a sacred duty to render all possible assistance to his aged and afflicted parents and invalid sister, and to pay his debts.

....Prof. E. P. Moses, superintendent of Raleigh city schools nearly ten years, has been elected to the chairmanship of the department of Pedagogics in the new South Carolina Winthrop Normal College. Prof. Moses' work at Raleigh has been of the highest order. Our schools have increased in number and grown in efficiency under his administration until they are an ornament of our city and considered models throughout the State. We learn from the Baptist Courier that six of the new professors in this institution are Baptists. Bro. Moses is an active member of the Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle.

....Rev. C. Burgess has accepted a call to the pastorate of the new second Baptist church at Newbern. Bro. Burgess is a young man, having been at Wake Forest until two years ago, where he was accounted a faithful student and a good speaker. He has been laboring successfully in the extreme east since he left college. The pastor of the first church, Bro. Porter is also a young man recently out of Wake Forest. We hope and pray the Lord will bless the labors of these brethren to the upbuilding of our forces in the thriving little city in which they are stationed. Rev. R. E. Peele is aiding Bro. Burgess in a meeting.

....Rev. J. M. Carroll of Texas stopped in Raleigh with Bro. O. J. Carroll, returning from the Convention. While in Raleigh Bro. Carroll preached at the First Baptist church, and for his old friend and co laborer, Rev. A. M. Simms at the Tabernacle. Both of his sermons were good and strong. Before going back to Texas he visited Dr. J. L. Carroll at Chapel Hill. With Dr. B. H. Carroll of Texas standing at the front of the Baptist ministry, and Drs. J. L. and J. M. Carroll among the leaders in their respective States, and Bro. Rice Carroll one of the most useful laymen in North Carolina, and all the others by that name so far as we know substantial and respected Baptists, all have to admit that there is considerable in this name, at least.

....It is well to consider the different efforts being made to mitigate the liquor evil. We have been impressed with the encouraging reports coming from Georgia and give in the following an outline of the measure employed in that State, as written in the Western Recorder by a Georgia correspondent: "'Local option' is the law on the liquor question in Georgia, whereby each county can vote whether liquor shall be sold within its borders, and at present out of 137 counties about 100 of them are 'dry.' In Ware county, liquor is literally taxed out of the county by high license which is put at $20,000 or $25 000 In addition to these helps in the temperance cause, we also have the three-mile law which prohibits the sale of the stuff within three miles of any church or schoolhouse except in incorporated cities and towns. This drives the traffic from the country, and frees our land largely from this abomination of iniquity."

....It gives us pleasure to note the favorable mention the Durham Sun makes of the efforts of our friend and brother, Judge Leander L. Green, who has just held his third court at Durham. The Sun says: "Judge Leander L. Green, who is now holding his third term of the Superior Court in our city, deserves the thanks of our people for the manner in which he has stood up to his duty under the most trying physical circumstances. He opened court last Monday a very sick man—suffering from asthma. He had quite a full criminal docket before him and, as it was essential to the county exchequer to have it cleared, he has borne his physical pains patiently and disposed of the greater number of important cases. It was indeed a trying time to him—perhaps more so than to the defendants before him. Judge Green is a very plain, matter-of-fact man, and the opinion formed of him is that he is earnestly endeavoring to do his duty, with a practical conception of the law."

....On general principles we disapprove of anonymous communications; but when they are like those in this issue we had as lief publish them without names as with them. It is clear that the pen names in other columns are used not for any unworthy purpose, but to keep back the personality of very modest brethren. The article on "Revivals" was written several years ago, the first of a series sent to the RECORDER by "Old Man." By some means the entire series was misplaced; and in clearing up some piles of manuscript last Christmas article No. 3 came to light. At a glance we found it so timely that, in spite of the fact that we did not know who wrote it, we decided to publish it. The reader will recall with how much favor it was received. We have lately found out who "Old Man" is; but if we did not know, we would not hesitate to assume responsibility for his article in this issue. It is a fine piece of foundation work.——Rev. A. H. Porter of Pollocksville contributes his first article for our columns. It is solid with Scripture and good sense. We hope to hear from him again. Rev. W. B. Harrell writes ably on the craze that is troubling the Methodists no little. Rev. T. J. Taylor's letter about his Georgia trip should have been published two weeks ago, but it was unavoidably held over. However, he is always fresh and bright.

The management of the New England Conservatory of Music has arranged to entertain not less than five hundred delegates during to Christian Endeavor Convention, which will give an excellent opportunity not only for those entertained but for all others to become thoroughly acquainted with the magnificent equipment and situation of this great institution. The usual midsummer term of five weeks begins July 15th, immediately after the convention, and is especially designed for teachers and others who will be benefited by a limited period of instruction under able teachers.

Mr. J. M. Broughton has something in this issue to every one who preserves fruit.

From Missionary Powell.

The Conference held in this city on April 3, 4, and 5, for the purpose of studying the subject of the Holy Spirit, was attended by more than one hundred missionaries and native workers, from almost all parts of this republic. During those three days and nights, Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, and Quakers, bound by the blessed tie of Christian love, sent up their prayers "as one," trusting that, in future, the presence of the Spirit would be more clearly revealed to them in their struggle to win Mexico for Christ. Messrs. Moody and Sankey left the United States for two weeks and came to us for those three days; the former, speaking in his inimitable way to the American Congregation, once or twice each day, and to the natives, through an interpreter, at night. Mr. Sankey's soul-stirring tones were deeply appreciated, even by those upon whose ears the English words fell as sounds of an "unknown tongue." As the services in Spanish were held in the theatre, the last two nights, I am sure, many were present who never heard the gospel before. A number of the missionaries accompanied Messrs. Moody and Sankey to Mexico City, when the Conference closed, and took part in the services held there for a week or ten days. Your correspondent, falling a victim to Grippe during that time, was compelled by the consequent condition of his health to leave home, a few days later, hoping to procure relief from the change. In the city of Aguas Calientes, (where there are warm baths the virtue of which I tested), Bro. Howell of the Northern Board is working. I aided him in a series of meetings at night; and during the day, sold copies of the gospels; in which labor, I had good success, both there and in the cities of Zacatecas and Silas; having disposed of more than two thousand ere I reached home. Bro. Gassaway of our Mission entertained me in Zacatecas and we had good meetings there for about a week. At Silas, we have a native worker; the field there is a discouraging one, as are many others; but "the battle is the Lord's." Pray for us, one and all of you!

W. D. POWELL.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews; Rev. J. N. Stallings; Rev. R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges; Rev. I. W. Thomas; Rev. J. M. Hilliard; Rev. N. B. Orrell; Rev. J. C. Sorrells; Rev. C. B. Justice; Rev. J. L. Smith; Rev. S. B. Barnes; Rev. E. C. Bobbitt; Rev. A. J. Bordeaux; Rev. W. B. Harrell; Rev. Thos. G. Wood; Rev. Samuel Saunders; Rev. G. M. Webb, Rev. S. C. Page, Rev. R. W. Weaver, Rev. C. W. Matthews; Layman T. H. Street.

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

Closing exercises of Chowan Baptist Female Institute this week.

Resolutions of Hendersonville Baptist Church.

Your committee to see Pastor D. A. Glenn of the Hendersonville Baptist church for the purpose of influencing him, if possible, to withdraw his resignation as pastor, tendered to the church last Sabbath, desire to report that on Friday morning, in accordance with the instructions of the church, the committee had a conference with Bro. Glenn, and communicated to him the message we bore from the church, urging him to withdraw his resignation and continue as its pastor.

The conference between the pastor and your committee was pleasant and harmonious, but we are constrained to report that Bro. Glenn, in obedience to a strong sense of duty, in which there is to him an indication of his Master's will, declines to withdraw his resignation as pastor of this church. Your committee is forced, therefore, though it is with sad and heavy hearts, to recommend that this church do accept the resignation of Bro. D. A. Glenn as its pastor.

The committee further recommends the adoption by the church of the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, Our beloved pastor, the Rev. D. A. Glenn, in obedience to a sense of duty which he could not disregard, has tendered his resignation as pastor to the church and is about to leave us to go into a different part of the Master's vineyard; now, therefore, be it Resolved by the members of the Baptist church of the town of Hendersonville, in church meeting assembled, That in Bro. D. A. Glenn the Baptist church of this place has had a pastor who has labored faithfully, lovingly, and efficiently with its members for more than four years, never wearying in his efforts to build up the members spiritually and make them strong men and women in the Lord, and ever bearing witness through the consecration of his life to the truth of the doctrines which he has preached. That by the severance of the relation which has existed so long and so profitably, the church sustains a loss which it will be difficult, if not impossible, for it to remedy, and that as he goes forth from us to do other work among different people, we renew the sincere expression of our warm love for him, trusting that God in the beneficence of his providence will pour out many choice blessings upon his head and ever guide him in the ways of pleasantness and in the paths of peace.

C. M. PACE,
J. WILLIAMS,
M. BUCKNER,
J. A. MADDREY,
M. W. EDERTON,
Committee.

By motion, it is ordered that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this church, and a copy sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER and the Western N. C. Baptist for publication.

Done in conference and signed by order of same.

Thankful.

Dear Recorder:—I wish to acknowledge through your columns the kindness of the ladies of the Madison church in sending their pastor to the Southern Baptist Convention at Washington, D. C. This kindness was appreciated to the fullest extent, and I shall work harder than ever to show myself more worthy of such favors. None but poor, hard-working pastors know how to appreciate such thoughtfulness.

I enjoy the RECORDER more and more as the years go by. You may put me down a life subscriber. Yours,

W. H. WILSON.

asked, "What do you think of Bishop Wilson's calling this doctrine "a delusion." He replied with the utmost self-satisfaction, "Well, the Bishop hadn't got there"! "He didn't know anything about it"! Comment is unnecessary here. "But," continued the other, "what about the Apostle John as quoted above"! and the reply was, "I suppose the Apostle hadn't reached it"! Deluded man! He would set aside the Word of God when that Word conflicts with his own distorted conceptions.

The Texas Standard puts it right in saying, "The second-blessing heresy contravenes all those Scripture admonitions concerning growth in grace; for a sinless man would have no room for growth. The whole theory of entire sanctification of the body (as preached in this day) is a fraud from bottom to top." This is well said.

The Apostle Paul evidently knew nothing of this modern so-called "sanctification." With him and with all the Apostles, the Christian life was "a race" to be "run," ever pressing onward to the attainment of "the prize" See Heb. 12: 1; also Phil. 3: 13, 14. "Let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us," &c. But our modern sanctificationists have no more weights now—no more besetting sins; they are in the "second blessing" state of sinless deliverance, and no longer have need to "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God," because they are already there.

If it is not sinful to make such professions of superior holiness as these "sanctified folks" do make, then I am at a loss to know what it all means. I stand where the Apostle Paul stood on this theme, and hope to be constantly pressing on, daily endeavoring to lay aside the weights, and patiently run "the race" till the call to go up to the higher attainment of the glorified state shall be reached, striving by the help of the Holy Spirit to obey the injunction of the Apostle Peter, 2 Epistle, last verse, to "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ." Amen.

A Trip to Georgia.

MEETING IN JACKSON—A SUDDEN DEATH—"UNCLE CRIS"—INDIAN SPRING—A BIT OF HISTORY.

On the 12th of April I left home and went to Jackson, Ga., via the Seaboard Air Line, to aid Rev. Dr. G. W. Gardner and his noble church in a series of meetings.

Jackson is a town of 1,500 inhabitants. It is a wide-awake, progressive town, located in one of the finest farming sections of the State, about half way between Atlanta and Macon. Everywhere in and around the town are signs of wealth and progress.

The Baptist church is a strong body of progressive brethren and sisters. They seem to think that a New Testament church is fully equal to the work required of it. They have no societies, at least I heard of none, and yet it would be hard to find a more progressive church. Men and women, boys and girls, old people and young people, are working together, helping each other, strengthening each other, co-operating together, never seeming to think that they ought to be divided into different societies. But Dr. Gardner has wonderful gifts as a leader, and seems to know how to train a church along New Testament lines.

The meeting commenced on the second Sunday in April. The Holy Spirit was with us in great power from the first service. Indeed the church was well prepared for the meeting, and it was not necessary to spend a week or ten days in preparatory work. They went through the town and into the country urging the unconverted to seek the Lord.

We kept no count of those who professed faith in Christ, at least I did not. Thirteen united with the church, and as many more could have been dragged in if we had been disposed to do that kind of work. The greater number of those interested were men, but many women were blessed also.

I would be glad to mention the faithfulness of individuals, but all were so faithful that I must not attempt it, lest I leave out some of those who did the best work.

The interest continued to increase to the close of the meeting, and letters received since I came home assure me that the work is going forward.

The last day of the meeting was saddened by a sudden death. Miss Daisy Jones of West Point, Ga., who was in Jackson attending school, had been slightly indisposed for a few days, but no one thought her seriously ill. On Thursday she became suddenly unconscious, and Friday morning she passed away. The whole community, and especially the young people, seemed impressed with the solemn words of Jesus, "Be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh."

"UNCLE CRIS."

I had the pleasure of meeting our old friend, "Uncle Cris," during my trip. The old gentleman is hale and hearty. He is one of the most active members of his church and his pastor is in the habit of putting about three times as much work upon him as he does upon any of the other members of the church. Aunt Cris is not in good health, but she is improving. A trip to California would likely do her good. If they take the trip, you will likely hear from him.

INDIAN SPRING.

The famous Indian Spring is four miles South of Jackson. It lies in the heart of a little bit of mountain scenery that looks as if it had been transplanted from the mountains of western North Carolina.

The Wigwam Hotel and the Elder House with attached cottages have accommodations for about one thousand people, and during the season they are always full.

The water is very strong with sulphur in combination with a number of other minerals. The Spring was known to the Indians as "medicine water."

Brother W. A. Elder, a staunch Baptist, who has resided at Indian Spring ever since 1827 gave me this BIT OF HISTORY.

The story of the famous "medicine water" was brought to the white people by the Indians; but they would not tell where it was. At last three brave men, Douglas Watson, Fitz Patrick and an unknown man ventured into the Indian country to find the spring of medicine water. They escaped the Indians who discovered and chased them, and at night found the spring for which they were searching.

In 1817 or '18 the Indians ceded most of their Georgia lands to the government, but reserved three thousand acres in one thousand acre tracts. One of these contained the famous spring. In 1825 under the leadership of a Scotchman by the name of McIntosh, whom they had made chief, they ceded the rest of their lands In the transaction which took place at Indian Spring, chief McIntosh managed to retain for himself one thousand acres. This enraged the Indians and led by a young chief, they finally succeeded in killing their chief.

I saw the rock on which the young chief stood when he made the speech that made the tribe seek the life of McIntosh. I climbed up on the rock and tried to catch some inspiration, but it was a failure.

OTHER STATEMENTS.

The country around Jackson is dominated by Baptists. The Baptist church is the leading church in the town. In point of wealth, intelligence, influence and progressiveness, the Baptists of this section are in the front rank.

Dr. Gardner is strongly entrenched in the affections of his people, and is growing stronger every day.

During my stay in Jackson, I was the guest of Mr. F. S. Etheredge, President of the Jackson Banking Company. Brother Etheredge is not only a successful business man, but he is one of the most wide-awake enterprising Christians I have ever met. I am greatly indebted to him and his family for many kindnesses. May God bless them and all my dear friends in Jackson.

A Friendly Talk.

Recently I heard a friendly talk between a Methodist and a Baptist. The Methodist introduced the subject. He said to the Baptist: "I do not hold with all the doctrines of the Methodist church. I do not believe that a truly regenerated person can fall away and be finally lost. I do not blame Baptists for practicing what is called 'close communion,' believing, as they do, that immersion alone is valid baptism; they regard us as unbaptized, and therefore they do not invite us to their tables. I heard a Baptist minister preach a doctrinal sermon not long ago. He preached what Baptists believe, and did not abuse others. I heard him gladly."

Baptist to Methodist: "I am glad to hear you talk so pleasantly and freely on this subject. I would like to know if you believe in infant sprinkling?"

Methodist: "O, yes, I accept that as a Christian rite."

Baptist: "By what Scripture do you support the rite?"

Methodist: "I do not know much about the Scriptures on the subject; I just take it as a family custom handed down from generation to generation in our family."

Who can give any better reason for infant sprinkling than this brother gave?

The electric thrill of health is never felt by those who are run down—out of sorts—poor in blood—badly nourished—dyspeptic. That would be impossible, and so the delight of living is lost!

Brown's Iron Bitters

brings weak people up to the standard of health—feeds the blood—acts on the nerves—strengthens the muscles. It brings the blush of youth to weary women's cheeks—is a boon to the invalid—refreshes and renews life in the aged—nourishes the weak, puny child—briefly said, it gives strength, and strength cannot exist without perfect health. It is a necessity in every family. It does not injure the teeth or cause constipation.

It's Brown's Iron Bitters you need!

Within the Church.

BY REV. J. N. STALLINGS.

I am utterly opposed to any organization in a church that is independent of the church; but what objection can there be to an organization of workers within a church which is in all things subject to the church and reports all it does to her? Is not a Sunday-school an organization of workers within a church? If not, what authority is there for it? If a church has no organization of workers within it, is any work, as a rule, accomplished?

I believe that a church is the unit of organization and is supreme. A gospel church is the executive of Christ's laws, and is the highest and only authority on earth in all matters pertaining to his kingdom, and no member nor number of members has any right to act independently of her, or in subjection to any other to-day; but those principles are in no wise contravened by an organization of workers within a church wholly subject to her and which reports all its work to her. If so, a Sunday-school violates the same principles. Every church ought to fully control every organization of workers within it, and there can be no well founded objection to any organization so controlled.

What our churches need is workers. If we can get them by organizations of workers, by all means let us have them; but, let us keep them in all things subject to the church. It is a fact that as a rule, those churches that have no organization of workers within them are doing little, if anything, for the progress of the Lord's kingdom.

SOME DAY

men may find a positive cure for Consumption, but it is a great thing to be able to prevent it, and in its early stages even to cure it. The only remedy yet known to prevent, as well as to cure in the early stages of the disease, is Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda.

It acts in two ways—as a medicine destroying the germs which cause the disease, and as a food stopping the wasting (the consuming), and replacing the lost flesh and tissue.

Echoes from the Woman's Missionary Union.

Mrs. Tyler, in making the report from Maryland, said: "We hear much of interesting this or that person in missions. Let us spend a little time trying to interest the Sunday-school superintendents and I think we will accomplish very much."

Mrs. Burnham of Missouri came fresh from the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Societies in the State. They had had a blessed time, she said. They had a program for the meeting, but everything seemed to go against carrying out that program. "It was a program with the bottom dropped out, but the women were so full of love and zeal, that they were better off without it than with it."

Miss Heck, in making the report for North Carolina, said: "The Societies in North Carolina are hungry and thirsty—hungry for more of the bread of life, thirsty for a more continual filling of the waters of life. We have enough Societies to accomplish almost anything if they were all made powerful with the power of God."

Miss Daisy Hutson of Richmond, Va., the newly appointed Secretary for that State, said that they had in their work two elements to contend against, one in the east and one in the west; the one opposed to all mission work, the other opposed to all woman's mission work. In spite of this, although Miss Hutson did not say so, the women in Virginia do wonderful things that the rest of us might well copy.

Miss Mina Everett, the much beloved Secretary of the work in Texas, gave an interesting account of work there. In closing, she reminded the ladies of the mighty power of prayer which was within their grasp. She had heard, she said, of a mighty safe in this the capitol city; whose massive door weighed many tons, yet so delicately was this door adjusted on its hinges, that a woman's hand might open or close it if only she had its keys and its secret. Such was the door of God's treasure house which a weak woman might open with the key of prayer."

South Carolina felt the loss of Miss M. E McIntosh, now Mrs. T. P. Bell of Nashville, so long their untiring Secretary. They hoped, however, that South Carolina's loss would be Tennessee's gain.

Western North Carolina, the last of the Conventions connected with the Southern Baptist Convention to have an organized woman's work, reported through its present President, Mrs. James Tucker of Asheville. Miss Lottie Moon, who was made President in the beginning of their work, left them soon afterward for China. Mrs. Tucker's report was a very hopeful one. We wish her all success.

The District of Columbia does not properly belong to the Southern Baptist Convention, some of the churches reporting, indeed, through that body, but the majority being connected with the Northern Societies, or, as we would say, Convention. The W. M. Societies of one or two of the Washington churches, however, had reported to the Woman's Missionary Union. In connection with their report to the annual meeting occasion was taken to say some very nice things with regard to the management of the Union's session, the character of its addresses, etc., etc. If Washington people do not know when a meeting moves on smoothly, from start to finish, who does?

Among the North Carolina ladies present at the meeting may be named Mrs. J. Q Adams, Mrs. Covington and Mrs. Bennett of Wadesboro; Mrs. Ed. Aydlette of Elizabeth City, Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. Bryan and Miss Cora Conrad of Charlotte, Mrs. Markham and Miss Riggsbee of Durham, Mrs. White of Elizabeth City, Mrs. Lewis and Miss Draughn of Kinston, Mrs. R. Van Daventer of Henderson, Mrs. J. H. Edwards of Fayetteville, Miss Mamie Birdsong and Mrs. N. B. Broughton of Raleigh. Besides these there were a number of representatives from other Societies whom it was a pleasure to meet, but whose names were lost in the general hour of the social ten minutes that interspersed the meetings. Among these were members of the Societies of Leaksville, Greensboro, and several Societies in the Eastern part of the State.

Mrs. Dodson, who will be remembered by the ladies of Greensboro as an earnest worker in their midst, now a resident of Washington, was one of the most regular interested attendants of the ladies' meetings.

Pastor J. Q. Adams of Wadesboro believes in the women of his church attending the Convention, and what is more, has the ability to carry them with him. Besides those named above he had some ten or fifteen others with him. We learned that all the Convention was to be taken back to Wadesboro, several of the young ladies of the party being appointed to write essays on what they saw and heard in Washington on their return home.

The essay of Mrs. R. G. Patrick of Kentucky on "Our Responsibility for our Boys" brought out some strong expressions of opinion on the subject of the neglected possibilities of work among the boys. Mrs. Gambrell of Mercer College, the newly elected Secretary of the work in Georgia, said with much emphasis, that she was tired of soft talk to girls and hard talk to boys. For instance, "You dear lovely creatures, you rosebud garden of girls, so pure, so spotless—sit still there, you boys, you are only made to give trouble and make a noise." There was but one grace that could save boy and girl alike, the saving grace of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Mrs. Hoyt of South Carolina, who was busy during the whole meeting making notes for her department of the Courier, said that she, too, must say a word for the boys, among whom she had worked all her life. Mrs. Porter of Florida, who was also busy with notes reporting for the Florida Witness, said she also loved boys. No words could tell her joy when of her Sunday-school class of nine boys she saw seven baptized. At her own expense she had purchased a little library of books such as boys love, and these were hers and her boys'. Work among boys paid.

There was much disappointment that neither Mrs. Chappell nor Mrs. Britton, newly arrived in this country from China and in Washington, were able to be at the meeting of the Union on account of sickness. Mrs. Chappell, we regret to learn, is very unwell, indeed quite broken down.

Mr. and Mrs. Graves leave Baltimore in a few days for the first stages of their return trip to China. They go back as self-supporting missionaries under the direction of the Board. Dr. Graves' new book will be out in a few weeks.

Another addition to our missionary literature has been made by Miss Sallie Hale of Mexico. It is entitled "Mercedes," and, though we have been unable to read it as yet, looks very interesting.

Mrs. O H. Gregory who has many friends in North Carolina, had charge of the Literature Table, containing the free tracts of the Woman's Missionary Union and the very large variety of purchasable tracts from the Maryland Mission Rooms, 9 West Lexington Street, Baltimore. If you have not a catalogue of the tracts on sale at Mission Rooms, you will help yourself to much useful missionary information by asking for one.

The appropriate and beautiful decorations of the room in which the Union met, should not pass unmentioned. In the centre of the wide platform was a long standard on which was painted, in bright colors, the two hemispheres, showing the territory and mission fields of the Southern Baptist Convention. Beneath was the motto and the question, "'She went and came and gleaned in the field.' Ruth 2: 3. Where has thou gleaned to day?" In addition to this, there was a standard in black and white for each day. For Friday, Foreign Mission Day, six bells with name and number of inhabitants printed on each, reminded us of our Foreign Mission fields; Saturday, a temple of liberty represented the Home Board's mission in the State and Church; and Monday, a Bible and a lamp suggested the work of the Sunday-school Board. Beautiful palms and fresh roses made up the tasteful decorations.

On Foreign Mission Day a number of idols, loaned by the National Musuem, were explained by Miss Mason, daughter of the president of the Museum. Perhaps, however, even more interest was felt in a small model of dug out, made by the modeler of the National Museum. The fact that many of our devoted missionaries live in caves such as these, and that into some of them had been brought a little comfort and cheer by the boxes we have sent, awakened many conflicting emotions, and many a woman turned away from this eloquent, though silent preacher, with wet eyes. "Shall we at home count cost," they asked themselves, "while our substitutes on the frontier bear hardships such as these?"

Who shall put in words the spirit of a meeting, that intangible something that is not words, but breathes through them? Suffice it to say all came away feeling—why, they could not say, perhaps—that the ensuing year would be one of much work, much success, and much strengthening in the Lord.

What Some Japanese Children Did For The Soldiers.

[The word picture given below of a Christian Japanese school would do credit to a school in any Christian land.]

When we were planning for Christmas, we decided to have among our mottoes, "God Bless our Country," "God Bless our Emperor." Now the one thing most talked of in school books, out of books, everywhere, always in Japan, is loyalty to country and king. So I said to the children:

"How many of you truly love your country and your Emperor? All who do, raise your hand."

Two hundred hands were up in a second, and a flash in their eyes, as much as to say, "What do you take us for? we are Japanese." Then I said:

"All who love your Emperor well enough to give up your Christmas gifts for the Red Cross Society, raise your hands," and up again they all went.

Now once more: "All who will give up the gifts and the goodies—every bit of Christmas—for the Red Cross and the sick soldiers, to help the Emperor feed and cure them, raise your hands." And again they went up; all but a few tiny mites who hardly understood.

Then we told them how here they could serve their Emperor and follow the command of Christ in feeding and helping the enemies of their country, and serve Christ under the "Inasmuch." Well, we did not take all they would have given. To the little children who had been with us only for one and two years, who had not yet learned so much of God's great gift to man at the Christmas time, we gave a little gift worth two yen each (about one cent) and for the higher classes gave the same amount each, which amounted to three yen. What I would have given to the teachers, and they to each other, swelled the amount to six yen for the Red Cross Society.

A son of a soldier, now in the front, was chosen to make the presentation, while the children sang the hymn of the offering of the wise men to the infant King at the manger of Bethlehem. The money was put into a large envelope with a red cross on one end and the beautiful gift symbol on the other end. This was borne on a tray, with both hands, as an offering is carried, and reverently placed on the table at the appropriate moment. It was one of the prettiest sights I ever saw, and could not fail to impress the lookers-on, the parents of the children, about two hundred of them.

After this followed an explanation of what the Red Cross Society meant and what it was doing, and where the emblem came from, and ended up with the Cross of Christ and his mission to man.—Over Land and Sea.

During the century, 160,000,000 copies of the whole Bible or portions of it have been issued in 320 languages, bringing it within the reach of nine-tenths of the human race. The number of Bible societies has grown from one in 1804 to eighty. In 1792 there was one missionary organization; there are now 280, besides seventy-five women's societies; and the annual contributions for missionary work have increased within the same time from $415 to $14,000,000. In India, in 1812, all Christian teaching was forbidden, now it is widespread and influential. In 1819 Judson baptized the first convert; in 1892 there were in that land 671,000 Protestant Christians. In China, in 1843, after thirty-seven years of missionary labor there were six converts; now there are 500 churches with 50,000 members and 150,000 adherents, and 150 Christian hospitals and dispensaries, where 350,000 persons are treated annually. Similar statements were made about Japan, Turkey, Madagascar, Africa, and the Pacific Islands. Through the introduction of civilization, with its railways and telegraph lines, the controlling influence of Christian nations is rapidly spreading. More and more it is becoming evident that it means something for a nation to be known as a Christian nation.—Examiner.

A Wonderful Cure for Cancer.

There is no further need to cut cancers out with knives or burn them out with plasters. Dr. Mason, Richmond, Va., has a cure for this dreadful disease that surpasses all other methods in rapid healing and permanent cure. It will not be worth while, however, to write to the Doctor unless you are tired of quack medicine and so-called cancer doctors who use knives or plasters. Dr. Mason does not compete with such. His remedy is painless and soothing, and the only one suitable for the aged or weak. The relief is immediate and the cure rapid. It seeks out the disease growths and destroys their vitality, causing the cancer to pass away, leaving only an ordinary healthy sore, which rapidly heals.

Dr. Mason has two methods of treatment—"Home Treatment" and "Personal Treatment." "Home Treatment" is for cases where the patients can be cared for at home without any other cost than the medicines, fully as well as to go to Richmond for "Personal Treatment," by the Doctor. The cost for "Home Treatment" is less than half the cost of "Personal Treatment," and for those who can be cured in a few weeks. When writing, describe the case fully, and direct letter to Dr. Scott Mason, 700 E. Clay Street Richmond, Va.

"Be Ye Doers."

He who "went about doing good" laid it as a primary duty upon all his followers that they must be doers of the Divine will; that, whatever else was absent from them, activity for God must be present. "What do ye more than others?" was his pointed inquiry. To be "workers together with him," to have a love "in deed and in truth" instead of in word and tongue simply, and to be "ready for every good word and work," are the terse characterizations of all genuine Christian disciples.

In one sense this is trite. But when one sees how comfortably the mass of so called disciples compose themselves to slumber, and how well satisfied they seem to be that, though utterly idle, they are on the way to heaven, it does appear as though the call to do something for God could not be too often sounded. Our religion lies not so much in profession, or even emotion, as in action—action that indeed springs from emotion, and likewise leads to it. To set a church to work is one of the most weighty of the pastor's tasks; but only as he can do it is any great success for him or his people possible. When the members of any organization are at it in earnest always and everywhere in the interests of their cause, that organization has reached the high-water mark of efficiency.—Zion's Herald.

Confirmation.

Twice some little while ago, the News and Observer of Raleigh has spoken of Bishop Cheshire performing the "Apostolic rite of Confirmation."

Calling a rite "Apostolic" means that the Apostles of Jesus Christ authorized and practiced the rite. In the first place, I ask, is there any Bible authority for such a religious dignitary as a Bishop—one of higher grade than other preachers of the gospel—one who alone has the authority to confirm, ordain, consecrate, &c.?

Again, I ask for a single New Testament example of a Bishop performing the rite of confirmation; that is, laying hands on the heads of individuals, thereby inducting them into full church membership. I find in the New Testament that when new churches had been started on mission fields, the Apostles, not a Bishop, revisited these churches and "confirmed" them. The Apostles confirmed the churches, not individuals. The word "confirmed" here means that they strengthened and established these new churches in the faith of the gospel. Is not this the only New Testament idea of confirmation?

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

Having failed to comply with the requirement of the election law, namely, that all candidates make public the amounts they have spent in election, within ten days after that occasion, two Republican aldermen of Raleigh have been replaced with Democrats. Four others failed to comply.——Mr. J. T. Rogers succeeds the late M. E. Carter of the Western Revenue District.——Mrs. D. E. Osborne of Winston announces that she will issue a novel entitled, "Linked Together." A book of verse by Prof. H. J. Stockard of Monroe has been announced by Mr. C. L. Van Noppen.———There was another fire at Kinston May 21st, before daybreak. The residences of Mrs. Irvin Whitehurst and Mrs. Elizabeth Parrot were fired and burned down. While the fire was in progress a store and the railroad depot were broken open. A special to the Raleigh News and Observer leaves no doubt that the fire was incendiary with the object of attracting attention that robbery might be committed. A negro is in jail.———Efforts are being made to build a monument to Vance. About $500 have been raised.——The Methodist District Conference at Scotland Neck last week petitioned Superintendent Leazer to appoint a chaplain for the Roanoke farm convicts.——Col. J. S. Carr gave a picnic and barbecue at his model farm, Occoneechee, near Hillsboro, to the students of the A. and M. College, and friends of the institution, for which we applaud him.——Minister Ransom is reported as being in a low state of health in Mexico.———Weather throughout the State continues unfavorable for cotton. The fruit crop is the most promising in years, and the extensive frosts North and West following the Florida blizzard make prospect of prices good ——The largest cotton mill in the State (30,000 spindles) is being equipped at Henrietta. The Raleigh cotton mill is building an addition to permit an increase of 7,000 spindles.———Seven suits have been entered against the Carsleigh Phosphate mills of Wake County, for failing to properly tag their fertilizer bags.———Secretary Coulter of the State Y. M. C. A. has accepted a similar place in Virginia.

In General.

The Confederate veterans had their annual reunion at Houston, Texas, last week, 12,000 attended. $10,000 was subscribed for the Jeff Davis monument at Richmond. Gen. John B. Gordon was re elected commander.———The meeting of the Southern Presbyterians at Dallas, Texas, was only partially in favor of young people's societies. The Northern Presbyterians at Pittsburgh, Pa., had a hot discussion of communion wine, and left the matter undetermined. They resolved to raise $1,000,000 for general purposes ——Ex Secretary of the Treasury, Hugh McCulloh, died at Washington, May 24 ——Masons will erect a $100,000 temple at Atlanta, Ga.———The Money Convention ("Sound Money") at Memphis last week was a success from the standpoint of attendance. Another convention of "sound money" men will meet there next month.———Prof. Young of Furman University, S. C., accidentally shot off one of his hands last week.———Outbreaks of small-pox have been reported at Stanton, Va., New Orleans, Bowling Green, Ky., Vicksburg, Miss., and Wheeling, W. Va. The cases have been isolated.———Charles B. Rouse of New York, an ex-Confederate, offers to give $100,000 toward endowing a Confederate Memorial Association, with a view to making an illustrated history of the war and getting relics collected at one place.——Queen Victoria was 76 years old the 24th.———Since Japan has acceded to Russia's stipulations, politics in Europe have been quieter———Spain has not succeeded in quelling the Cuban rebellion.——An institution known as the Chicago Southern Association is making efforts to induce Southern immigration. The Southern Railway and the Seaboard Air Line are making practical efforts in the same direction, and are succeeding to a wholesome extent.

Liberality Acknowledged.

Dear Recorder:—I wish to state through your columns that funds were donated to me by Cumberland Union church of Cedar Creek Association, also by Ten Mile, Saddle Tree, and Rennert churches of the Robeson Association, the churches of which I am pastor, to pay my expenses to and from, and while at the Southern Baptist Convention at Washington, D. C., for which I am very grateful. I derived benefit in the way of information, spiritual strength, energy and enthusiasm received in the work before me.

All churches should send their pastors to our Conventions, if they would keep them from reaching an untimely dead line. They need the stimulation they receive at our Conventions. A. R. PITTMAN.

THE MEMORIAL TABLET.

The Secretary is authorized to say that any individual or church contributing five hundred dollars or more to the Baptist Female University will be entitled to have a memorial tablet in the Memorial Assembly Hall with any inscription the donor may wish. Arrangements are being made to secure tablets 16 inches by 24 inches. It is very desirable that a very large number of our churches, and a host of our brethren put tablets in this Hall.

The work on the building is going on, and we most earnestly ask our people to make every possible effort to furnish the funds with which to carry on the work to completion.

After Thirty Years.

(From the Ashtabula, Ohio, Beacon.)

Mr. Fred Taylor was born and brought up near Elmira, N. Y. and from there enlisted in the 189th regiment, N. Y. V. I., with which he went through the war, and saw much hard service. Owing to exposure and hardships during the service, Mr. Taylor contracted chronic diarrhœa from which he has suffered now over 30 years, with absolutely no help from physicians. By nature he was a wonderfully vigorous man. Had he not been, his disease and the experiments of the doctors had killed him long ago. Laudanum was the only thing which afforded him relief. He had terrible headaches, his nerves were shattered, he could not sleep an hour a day on an average, and he was reduced to a skeleton. A year ago, he and his wife sought relief in a change of climate and removed to Geneva, Ohio; but the change in health came not. Finally on the recommendation of F. J. Hoffner, the leading druggist of Geneva, who was cognizant of similar cases which Pink Pills had cured, Mr. Taylor was persuaded to try a box. "As a drowning man grasps a straw so I took the pills," says Mr. Taylor, "but with no more hope of rescue. But after thirty years of suffering and fruitless search for relief I at last found it in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The day after I took the first pills I commenced to feel better and when I had taken the first box I was in fact a new man." That was two months ago. Mr. Taylor has since taken more of the pills and his progress is steady and he has the utmost confidence in them. He had regained full control of his nerves and sleeps as well as in his youth. Color is coming back to his parched veins and he is gaining flesh and strength rapidly. He is now able to do considerable outdoor work.

As he concluded narrating his sufferings, experience and cure to a Beacon reporter Mrs. Taylor, who has been his faithful helpmeet these many years, said she wished to add her testimony in favor of Pink Pills. "To the pills alone is due to credit of raising Mr. Taylor from a helpless invalid to the man he is to-day," said Mrs. Taylor. Both Mr. and Mrs. Taylor cannot find words to express the gratitude they feel or recommend too highly Pink Pills to suffering humanity. Any inquiries addressed to them at Geneva, O., regarding Mr. Taylor's case they will cheerfully answer as they are anxious that the whole world shall know what Pink Pills have done for them and that suffering humanity may be benefited thereby.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or my be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2 50.

Cedar Rock Academy and Business Institute.

The closing exercises of Cedar Rock Academy and Business Institute were, indeed, enjoyable. On Tuesday, May 14th, 7:30 p. m., the Calhoun Literary Society held its second annual debate. Question: "Do the Signs of the Times Indicate the Future Prosperity of our Country?" Debaters: affirmative, T. H. Sledge, Stallings, N. C.; W. W. Wood, Cedar Rock, N. C.; E A. Burnett, Oswego, N. C.; W. H. Smith, Hadley's Mills, N. C. Negative, W. J. Scott, Williams' Mills, N. C.; R. T. Teague, Silk Hope, N. C.; R. H. Cheek, Chapel Hill, N. C.; G. W. May, Oswego, N. C. The affirmative was successful.

On Wednesday 10 a. m., the contest for declaimer's medal resulted in a victory for Benj. B. Bobbitt of Cedar Rock, N. C.

At 11 a. m., Mr. E. E. Hilliard of Scotland Neck delighted a very large audience with one of the best addresses to which we ever listened, upon "What You Already Know."

After an intermission of an hour and a half, during which all cheerfully partook of the good things that were spread upon the grounds of the Institute, the recitation medal contest came. Miss Eva Mitchell of Letha, N. C., was the winner.

At 8 p. m., certificates of proficiency in Commercial Department were awarded to Messrs. C. M. Gattis of Raleigh, N. C.; W. H. Smith of Hadley's Mills, N. C.; G. T. Harper of Castalia, N. C., and R. T. Teague of Silk Hope, N. C.

At 7:30 p. m., a musical concert was given which was highly enjoyed by, at least, a thousand people.

After the concert, the medals were delivered as follows: Scholarship medal, to T. H. Sledge of Stallings, N. C., having made an average of 99¼ per cent.; Declaimer's medal, to Benj. B. Bobbitt of Stallings, N. C.; Recitation to Miss Evie Mitchell of Letha, N. C.; Music medal, to Miss Ophelia Griffin of Argo, N. C.; Penmanship medal, to J. D. Beal of Red Oak, N. C. The prize for the second best improvement in music was awarded to Miss Lilla Cheek of Chapel Hill, N. C.

The next session opens Aug. 19th, 1895.

Work at Piedmont, S. C.

Dear Recorder:—It might be interesting to many of your readers to know of the good work being done by a North Carolinian at Piedmont. Bro. J. B. Marsh, who was for many years a pastor in North Carolina, and who was called three years ago by the saints at Piedmont, S. C., is doing a grand work there. I have recently been with him in a meeting of eighteen days. We had a good meeting and many were blessed. Forty-six had joined during the meeting, and the pastor was expecting others to join soon.

Bro. Marsh is full of life and love and good works, and imparts the same to others. He is deservingly popular not only with his own church and congregation, but with the entire community also. He has a hard field, but he is equal to the task before him. He knows how to work it and he works it for the glory of God and the salvation of souls. May he be spared yet many years to do his Master's work, whose he is and whom he loves.

MARRIED.

PAGE—MURRAY—On May 12th, by Rev. A. D. Hunter, Mr. Claude Page and Miss Bettie Murray, both of Wake county.

DIED.

ASHLEY—Bro. James Ashley of Antioch church is with us no more. God called him unto himself, and we humbly submit to his will and providence. For a number of years he belonged to the church and remained faithful to the end. He was quiet in his life, and tried to serve his God faithfully.

G. T. W.

PUGH—On April 30th, Bro. R. C. Pugh passed into the reward of the faithful. He was sixty-nine years old, and had been a faithful member of the church for about thirty years. At the time of his death he was one of the pillows of Mill Creek church. He was a good man, kind father, indulgent husband, and devout Christian. G. T. W.

WHITFIELD—Sister Mary A. Whitfield, after acute suffering for several years, passed to that home of rest and peace April 6th. She was seventy-three years old and lived a Christian life for fifty years. She was of a gentle and sweet disposition, child-like in faith, and a word always for Jesus. A life well spent, and a death in the triumphs of the Christian's hope. G. T. W.

CATES—Bro. Thos. J. Cates of Rock Spring, N. C., died April 25th, 1895, at the age of eighty-three years, eight months and twenty-six days, having been born July 29th, 1811. He was a member of Cane Creek Baptist church fifty-four years. Soon after he joined the church he was elected and ordained as deacon, in which capacity he served faithfully and efficiently until he was called to a service in a higher realm.

Bro. Cates was a leader; hence, he seldom failed to attend the services of his church. He did his own thinking—others did not think for him. He had an opinion on every subject that claimed his attention, and it was seldom that his judgment was in error. His religious life was not so meditative as it was practical.

In the death of this servant of God, an aged widow, six surviving children, and a large circle of friends have been bereaved. He died trusting in the Saviour whom he had served so many years. JOHN C. HOCUTT.

MILLINGER—Sister Mary Millinder, wife of Henry Millinder, was born February 17th, 1824. She gave her heart to Jesus when about sixteen, and united with Smithfield Baptist church, Johnston county, N. C. She transferred her membership to Selma, same county, several years after her profession, where it remained until God called her spirit home, April 30th, 1895. She lived to the good old age of seventy-one and more, and still her presence here was desired longer. She was quite a sufferer toward the close of her life, but she bore up under her afflictions like one whose trust is in him who doeth all things well. She loved her Saviour and his church, and went to hear the gospel as long as she could walk to the house of worship; yea, even after ability to walk had failed, she would request to be helped to the place appointed for the service of the Lord. She very much enjoyed hearing what she called "the precious word." She leaves quite a large family—husband, seven children, several grandchildren, and other relatives—to mourn their loss. She had a large circle of friends, also, who dropped a tear with the bereaved, as they took the last look at the remains.

Text selected with a view to give comfort to the sorrowful, John 14: 18, and then the body was placed in "the house appointed for all living." O. C. HORTON.

Tributes of Respect.

At our last meeting at Maple Spring the following was adopted:

It has pleased the Allwise disposer of events to remove from our midst our dear sister, Susanah Harper, widow of Wm. H. Harper, aged about forty-three years.

Her remains were deposited in the graveyard at Maple Springs. She leaves four children, three girls and one boy, and many friends and relatives to mourn their loss.

Resolutions of Mill Creek Sunday-school:

WHEREAS, Almighty God in his Allwise providence did on the 30th day of April, 1895, remove from our midst Bro. R. C. Pugh, in the sixty-ninth year of his age. He was a member of Mill Creek church and a true worker in our Sunday-school: therefore be it Resolved 1. That we humbly submit to the will of God.

2. That the Sunday-school of Mill Creek church extend to his bereaved wife and family their heartfelt sympathy at the death of a loving and affectionate husband and father.

3. That Mill Creek Sunday-school has lost a consistent, faithful and useful member.

4. That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Sunday-school to his memory.

5. That the secretary of this meeting transmit a copy of these proceedings to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be sent for publication to the BIBLICAL RECORDER and the Person County Courier.

Dress Goods.

We have begun a special sale of Dress Goods at 50c. in the dollar.

The majority of these dress goods are the last shipments this season, being duplicates of the goods lost on the ill-fated steamer Elbe.

They were duplicated by the manufacturer without our advice, and arriving late, were offered at such prices that we accepted them and are able to offer them at just half their original price.

Estimates for making up will be furnished by our Dress-making Department.

By this arrangement one can obtain fine dresses at even less prices than cheaper and medium priced goods.

THESE DRESS GOODS . .

are entirely separate from the regular dress goods department, being upon our second floor, so when writing for samples kindly mention that they are wanted from this lot.

It's the OLD STORY—age improves wine and tobacco
BLACKWELL'S DURHAM HAS THE AGE

The Home Circle.

High Noon.

Time's finger on the dial of my life
Points to high noon. And yet the half-spent day
Leaves less than half remaining! For the dark,
Bleak shadows of the grave engulf the end,
To those who burn the candle to the stick,
The sputtering socket yields but little light,
Long life is sadder than early death,
We cannot count on raveled threads of age
Whereof to weave a fabric; we must use
The warp and woof the ready present yields,
And toil while daylight lasts. When I bethink
How brief the past, the future still more brief
Calls on to action, action! Not for me
Is time for retrospection or for dreams:
Not time for self-laudation, or remorse.
Have I done nobly? Then I must not let Dead yesterday unborn to-morrow shame.
Have I done wrong? Well, let this bitter taste
Of fruit that turned to ashes on my lip
Be my reminder in temptation's hour,
And keep me silent when I would condemn.
Sometimes it takes the acid of a sin
To cleanse the clouded windows of our souls
So pity may shine through them Looking back
My faults and errors seem like stepping-stones
That led the way to knowledge of the truth
And made me value virtue! Sorrows shine
In rainbow colors o'er the gulf of years
Where lie forgotten pleasures. Looking forth
Out to the Western sky, still bright with noon,
I feel well spurred and booted for the strife
That ends not till Paradise is gained.
Battling with fate, with men, and with myself,
Up the steep summit of my life's forenoon,
Three things I learned—three things of precious worth
To guide and help me down the western slope.
I have learned how to pray, and toil, and save;
To pray for courage to receive what comes,
Knowing what comes to be divinely sent;
To toil for universal good, since thus,
And only thus, can good come unto me;
To save, by giving whatso'er I have
To those who have not—this alone is gain.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in the Arena.

Stealing.

Most people, when they read the Eighth Commandment think only of pickpockets, till-tappers, train robbers and burglars. But God's law is exceedingly broad, and all dishonesty in dealing is theft. If butter is worth thirty-two cents a pound, and the grocer sells you a roll for that price which weighs only fourteen ounces, he steals four cents from you as really, and more meanly, than if he picked your pocket. If hiring a man to work for you at $1 a day you send him out to hoe corn, and he sogers half of the time, when he takes his pay he steals fifty cents from you just as if he presented a pistol, saying, "Your money or your life." When you go to the store to buy goods of any kind, and the merchant assures you that what he offers you is of a certain quality, when it is not all that he induces you to pay over the real value, is stolen. That merchant would be very angry if one of his clerks should take money out of the drawer. He would have the young man arrested and branded as a thief. But he does not stop to think that he has taught him to steal—nay, that the very money which the clerk takes from the drawer has, in part at least been stolen from customers by false representations.

Every trick of trade by which the seller makes more than a fair profit is a violation of the Eighth Commandment. Applying this test to the business transactions of the day, and who is guiltless? Who does not try to get the advantage of those with whom he deals? No wonder that our Lord was crucified between two thieves as representatives of the race for which he died. The great manufacturers who adulterate the goods which they make and sell, and the great corporations that water their stocks, are thieves as well as the milkmen who water their milk. The fact that stealing is systematically and on an extensive scale, or that it is a custom, and all establishments do it, does not make the matter any better, but rather worse. The tendency of such wholesale peculation is to give dishonesty a varnish of respectability. We all despise a petty thief, even if he is driven to steal by hunger; but the millionaire manipulator of stocks and trusts, the shrewd and unscrupulous speculator who gets up a corner on wheat, and thus robs every man who buys a barrel of flour, move in the best society. Our laws seem powerless to reach and punish them. We need a higher standard of morality, a standard that shall be applied equally to the rich and the poor; a standard that shall condemn indiscriminately all who get what belongs to their neighbors unfairly whether they steal with pistols or with false promises and pretenses.

But there is a kind of stealing that is worse than that of the speculators. It is

THE STEALING OF REPUTATION.

Truly does our great dramatist say: "He that steals my purse, steals trash.... But he who filches from me my good name, takes that which not enriches him, but makes me poor indeed." Yet how few who violate the Eighth Commandment in this way realize what they are doing. Mrs. Tabitha Tattle invites a half a dozen ladies to tea. She does not say to them, I want you to join me in a raid upon the home of our neighbor, Jarmine Jones. She has some jewels that I would like to have, and you can help me steal them. Oh, no; she pretends that her invitation is for an hour of innocent social intercourse. But when they meet around the table she tells them that it is too bad the way Widow Jones is going on. She is sadly compromised already with Dr. Pillman and Lawyer Pleader. And she encourages her guests to talk in this way, not only about Mrs. Jones, but about many other neighbors. When these gossips go home they repeat what they have heard with sundry embellishments; for gossips' imaginations are generally better than their memories. The result is that people begin to regard Mrs. Jones, etc., with suspicion and to treat them coldly, though they are better every way than those who talk about them in the spirit of Tabitha Tattle.

Now, that old maid, Tabitha, would be very angry indeed if anybody should report that she entered the Widow Jones' house while the owner was away and stole her silver spoons. But she is guilty of a far greater breach of the law of love. She injures her neighbor more than a hundred spoons are worth, and gains nothing by it but the gratification of her own malignant passions. This kind of stealing can not be reached and punished by law except in extreme cases, but all the moral power of society and of the Church of Christ ought to be rallied for its suppression. Let us call the slanderer a thief. When the gossip begins her cruel talk let us remind her of the Eighth Commandment, and something may be done to mitigate this prevalent and terrible evil.

STEALING TIME.

Rev. Dr. Wilkins was very busy preparing his sermon. There was a knock at his study door. He said "Come in" without looking up. He thought that it was probably the sexton or the chorister. But a stranger entered with a bundle under his arms. The Doctor knew instinctively that one of those thieves of time, commonly called book agents, had caught him. He said:

"My friend, you must excuse me. I am very busy this morning and cannot attend to you unless your business is of the most urgent importance."

"It is both important and urgent. I have here the great work of the nineteenth century. It is sold only by subscription, and this is for you the opportunity of a lifetime. In justice to yourself, you must look over these specimen pages and recommendations. When you do so you will be satisfied that you need the book, and will thank me for giving you an opportunity to secure it."

The good Doctor frowned, but the agent was irrepressible. He wanted the pastor's subscription because he intended to canvass his congregation. The book was entitled "The Religions of the World." It was popular in its style and profusely illustrated. But the information in it every minister has already, if he owns a respectable library. But to this explanation of his unwillingness to subscribe, the agent would not listen, and bored the Doctor for an hour before he retired, disappointed and discomfited. He did not succeed in getting from the minister's small salary three dollars for a book that the minister did not want or need, but he did steal from him time that was worth a good deal to him and to his congregation. If he had gone to the study door with a loaded pistol and said, "Give me one dollar, or I will shoot you," it would have been a manlier theft.

I refer to this theft of time by agents merely as an illustration. Whoever goes to a pastor's study, or to any man's home or place of business, and keeps him from his work by talking that is unnecessary and unprofitable, is a thief, for he not only steals his time, but tries his temper. He compels him to appear cordial, when he is really annoyed, and is impatient to be free that he may attend to duties that press upon him. Reader, be careful about trespassing upon the time of your neighbors. Time is often more than money, and he who steals it is a thief and a robber.—Senex Smith, in Journal and Messenger.

Led by a Child.

A gentleman lecturing in London said, "Everybody has influence, even that child," pointing to a little girl who sat beside her father.

"That's true," cried the man.

At the close he said to the lecturer: "I beg your pardon, sir, but I could not help speaking. I was once a drunkard. I used to carry this child with me to the public house sometimes. As I approached it one night, hearing a great noise inside, she said, 'Don't go, father!'

"'Hold your tongue, child!'

"'Please, father, don't go!'

"'Hold your tongue,' I said.

"Presently a big tear fell on my cheek—I could not get a step farther. I turned and went home, and have never been in a barroom since. Thank God for it! I am now a happy man, and this little girl has led me to it; and when you said that even she had influence, I could not help saying, 'That's true.'"—Christian Observer.

Money.

Money, money, money! Good money, bad money, sound money, the money of the fathers, yellow money, white money, bimetalists, mono-metalists, and what not, will be the craze for the next year or two, while everybody will be bending every conceivable energy to pocket all the money, of every kind, that is within reach. We have a peculiar nation of people. They can be more thoroughly crazed on any given question that the party leaders may designedly spring than any people on earth. The masses do less thinking and more shouting to the glory of their political idols than any any one could imagine was possible, who was unacquainted with us. The best plan is for every one to maintain frugal habits, with persevering industry, and scrupulous honesty, and then it wont take so much money to meet our demands.—Western Recorder.

Evening Hymn.

Draw near, draw near and praise Him,
This King all kings above!
Thy love alone repays Him,
Whose dearest name is Love.
Draw near, draw near and bless Him,
If life be glad and free,
With grateful heart confess Him,
Who gave that life to thee.

Draw near, draw near unto Him,
If sorrow bow thee down,
None, sorrowing, vainly sue Him,—
He hath worn Sorrow's crown.
Draw near, draw near with weeping,
O bruised and mourning heart!
Commend thee to His keeping,
Whose wandering child thou art.

Draw near, draw near imploring,
If stained with guilt and sin,
He, pitying and restoring,
Shall heal thy wounds within;
Draw near, draw near His altar,
Tho' faith itself be fled;
Deem'st thou His love can falter,
Tho' thine be cold and dead?

Brother, or friend, or stranger,
O child of God!—draw near;
Whate'er thy need, thy danger,
Behold a refuge here!
Draw near, kneel low before Him,
Lift, lift thy heart above,
And reverently adore Him,—
Thy God, whose name is Love!

And a Lively Remembrance of the HORRIBLE SORES
WHICH CAUSED THEM.
Traveler Henry Hudson's Experience.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc., none impress me more than my own case, and I conscientiously believe it to be my duty to let people know it. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."—HENRY HUDSON, James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE death of Hon. W. Q Gresham, Secretary of State, draws attention to a unique public career—a career marked in war, in the courts, on the bench, in the cabinet, and most peculiarly marked in politics: never a leader though an extraordinarily successful public man, having had cabinet positions under two parties, and having come very near running for the presidency at the hands of another after failing to get the nomination in a previous contest from the party he had always clung to. Until the day of his death, his political creed was an open question; but at no time in his career did he seem to be without confiding friends and allies of influence. While he was an active party man, it seems that he was never a bitter partizan or intolerant. He succeeded in an unusual degree in keeping his own counsel, saying little or nothing for publication.

If these facts suggest duplicity, it must be said in his behalf that they were known while he lived, and yet great leaders trusted him, to the last no one seriously charging him with shiftiness or weakness. We are inclined to think that he was not required to renounce his party to accept the position made vacant by his death; and if he did not, there is no ground for belief that he was anything but a smart politician of simple habits, strong faculties, singularly indifferent to public criticism and party feeling.

He was an efficient official. As a judge he was able and popular, having a large share of the people's confidence, and proving in many instances worthy of it. As a cabinet officer, as Postmaster General, and later as Secretary of the Treasury, very briefly indeed, under President Arthur, he pursued an even way; but it was evident that his place was on the bench, to which he returned before President Arthur's term expired, remaining until President Cleveland amazed the Nation by calling him to head his second cabinet.

As Secretary of State he had more international complications to deal with (none of them through fault of his) than any of his predecessors. He was straightforward and simple in diplomacy, but was not the man that Blaine was, and made no such success as he made. True, our country has arrived at this stage internationally uninvolved, after passing the Hawaiian troubles, the revolution in Brazil, Great Brittain's encroachments on Venezuela, Samoan, Nicaraguan, Japan-China, Spain-Cuba, Behring Sea, and innumerable lesser cases, under Gresham's ministry; but there have been no great strokes, and at best we are no better off than when he took hold.

EDITOR BOK of the Ladies' Home Journal is a young man who, though editing a journal for women, writes more about young men than any editor we know of; and it is not altogether strange either, since he himself is married and is employed to write of matters interesting to women, and has apparently made a famous success at it from the beginning.

Editor Bok first wrote a thoughtful and most wholesome monograph, "The Young Man in Business," which will be of value to any young man, in position or out. Then he wrote on "The Young Man and the Church," in which he was so unfortunate as to lay down as the main premise that the young man and the church are seldom seen together; but his warning was timely, and his unfortunate premise aroused a good many brethren who had gone daft on advanced thought, higher criticism, monism and the like. Now he offers a few thoughts on the young man and the dance, and they are about as encouraging to us as his premise in the church article was to Satan; that is, he believes the time is at hand when the young man will have to choose between throwing away himself or giving up the dance, and that he is doing the latter.

We know a good deal about dancing. We have seen half a college of boys go so crazy on the subject that they would wear out their shoes and work themselves almost down, dancing for hours with each other on a rough floor. It was much like the dances at the Insane Asylum, except the latter are more moderate, for as a rule over there at least one of the partners is sane. And we have also seen a Fourth of July summer resort ball, which alone would entitle one to a certificate of proficiency on the subject, not to mention one or two other variations of the same kind of idiotic foolery that have been in our way. But up to date we have never seen any good in any variety of it: at best, it seemed to us to be mild lunacy, at worst, and more often, a hideous mixture of rivalry, envy, jealousy and lust.

So if Editor Bok is right, we shall rejoice. And he gives good reasons for his prophecy; as, for instance, the frequency of dances, the obligation of dancing with all one's dear acquaintances, the wear and tear of a night of it, and repeated so often that it is impossible for a young man to do tolerable work and accept invitations to dances, thus leaving the evil to women who are so anxious as to take as partners young men who have no other purpose than loafing in the daytime and soft talking at night.

If Editor Bok will keep up his work along this line, he needn't bother about the young man and the church; for the young man will not lose time coming round if some one will get the young woman straight.

ONE has only to see Washington to realize what a power the spoils system has exerted in the organization of our institutions. Half of the government property and a third of the offices are contrary to the principles of our government. What do you and I care about long rows of hot houses filled with a million tropical plants? But they make offices. Who reads one out of the thousands of educational books the government sends out? Who sees the innumerable agricultural pamphlets and the thousands of others on the subject of cooking and the like? But they provide work for some faithful politicians.

A certain amount of government is absolutely necessary, but too much is only a little better than monarchy. Under the pressure of the spoils system our institutions have grown entirely beyond themselves, and one is tempted to think of some of them as homes for campaigners rather than departments of our government. All this will be remedied when the people themselves quit wanting office and decide that all subordinate officers shall be retained so long as they are efficient.

A DEATH scene, whether it is an electrocution or the natural passing of a distinguished man, is a boon to the bright young men who set the intellectual side of our breakfast tables. We have no notion of blaming them; it's their business to make news readable just as it is the caterer's to make victuals palatable; and if the public's taste is abominable, the public must be held to account for it, not the cooks. In other words, a caterer should not be expected to waste his time, money and energies serving steak cooked when the public will pay him or his rival more to serve it nine-tenths raw. The reformer must start with the one needing reform, and the reporters will come round soon enough, if he succeeds; and the best way to make a start is to begin with an experiment at home.

No one can reasonably account for the morbid appetite of the average newspaper reader for details of a death, how the dearest relatives conducted themselves, or to make the instance more tolerable, why people like to read columns on columns of stuff describing the manner with which a public man got off the cars, the length of his cigar, the color of his hat, the condition of his complexion, etc., etc. But a newspaper without such details is "dead" these days.

While we are about it, it is not out of the way to say a word of the base ball cranks now in their heydey. No one would have predicted that a game would come to be so popular that a thousand and more men make good livings playing it, some of them getting salaries of $5,000 for two games a week for six months; and yet it has come to this, eight clubs leading the 'sport' and hundreds of little ones all over the country following wildly after, and we are all good-naturedly taking it as a matter of course. At least 50,000 people attend ball games every day; but it does not stop with this: so great is the public interest that the press unions send out the results of the games by telegraph every night, and patent sheets usually have a corner for the "standing of the clubs." A metropolitan daily pays a man a handsome salary, more than is paid any public officer in this State, to travel around with a club and write up its games, which he does with as much regard to detail as if he were recording the deductions of a prolonged analytic study. It's the same way with horse-racing.

Now, what of it? Whose fault is it? The fault lies at our own doors. In the beginning parents should have refused admittance into their homes of papers that fostered these things. Stopping them would have been easy at the beginning; it is like damming a flood now.

Concerning Denominational Schools.

BY REV. J. B. GAMBRELL, D. D.

In the discussion of this matter, there are many incidental questions which must be passed without a word, or only briefly alluded to.

It is assumed that denominational colleges rest on a bottom of solid reason. Thoughtful Christians now agree as to the real need of Christian schools of high order, and Christian schools, that are really Christian to count for much in the stress of current thought, must be church schools. Just as the churches are the real conservators of Christianity in every other form, so they are in higher education. There may be diffused widely, in schools and in all forms of life a gracious religious sentiment, but it emanates, not from these extraneous sources, but from the churches.

Now it must be seen that denominational schools properly exist to give force to the principles of the churches represented. To deny this is neither wise nor candid. If money is asked of the churches for a denominational college, it must be for reasons distinctly religious. It is not the function of such an institution to give secular education merely; that can be done elsewhere; it is the real purpose to give mental training, at the formative period of life, under such conditions as will give the best possible guarantees that all the strength and power gained will be employed to advance the truth, it being assumed that the denomination holds the truth. Every denomination has come to see, that if the churches hold their own and make progress, they must train their own leaders. Baptists are among the foremost to hold this view, and with the very best of reasons. The whole denomination being now committed to denominational education, we may well take up the many questions which concern the uses of our colleges. Most of these schools, or many of them, at least, had their origin in a single thought, that of providing an educated ministry. But this idea did not very long stand by itself. It was seen that educated laymen are needed in many spheres of activity. And it was seen further that the education of ministers would go on better, if the scope of the school was enlarged. Mercer University had this kind of development. Every one in Georgia sees now the wisdom of widening the original conception. The denomination has been immensely helped by its educated laymen, for largely they have been leaders of the churches and of the State.

A denomination to live must have designs on the future. It must dominate the public mind with its ideas, and it must plan wisely to do this. One way to do it, is to train to the highest point of efficiency a godly ministry. More and more we are seeing this, though we do not half see it yet Another way is to put our principles into the very hearts of the future governors, judges and other rulers of the people. And still another way is to train the teachers of the coming generation. Now all this it is the function of the college to do. I say nothing of the importance of trained fathers and mothers. That goes without saying.

It is a moderate statement to say that the denominational college in a State is the fullest and loftiest expression of the denominational life and purposes in that State, because it holds in itself the potencies of the future. This is not minimizing the churches; it magnifies them, because the college represents their concentrated strength, which it expends along the higher range of effort to come back to the churches in a hundred ways to strengthen them.

The real function of the college is to compass the educational wants of the people. This being true, there must be a constant broadening of courses and elevation of standards to meet conditions. Let no one delude himself with the notion that an institution acceptable and sufficient forty years ago will serve to day. There is far more demanded now than then. Our fathers put out their strength to bring the denomination to see the need of colleges; our work is to make people see the need of institutions equal to the demands of the present situation. With many people a college is a college, and there be not a few colleges which exist for the purpose of giving diplomas. They drive a thriving business in that line, but all because the people have not been educated to proper standards of education.

One of the incidental hindrances to the proper development of denominational schools of high grade is the existence of State institutions of like grade. Not a few Baptists feel that, if they pay taxes to support a State University, they ought not to be expected to support with money a denominational institution. But the trouble reaches further; many parents are right easy to conclude that with so much money the State institution ought to be and is better than the church school. The State schools are the occasion, far more than the cause of such a difficulty in the development of denominational colleges, but with many there is a hitch at this point, and we must deal with the situation as it is.

If the establishment of State Universities were an original question, many people would oppose such a departure from the supposed or real function of the State. But it is not an original question at all, and many of these same people are now asking what are we going to do about the State schools and our denominational schools. I write for Baptists, and write as one not unfriendly to our State Universities. I was educated a little in one of them. Desiring to do the greatest good to the whole people, and thinking much on the subject, it appears to me that the pushing of our denominational schools does a double good. It does a direct good in strengthening all the lines of Christian work with which Baptists are connected. And a strong denominational system of schools is the very best guarantee that the State schools will not develop irreligious tendencies. As long as the competition is close, the managers of State institutions, who are usually politicians, will not take the risk of offending the religious sentiment of the State by electing men of infidel notions to places in the State schools.

It only remains to say two more things as to denominational colleges. First, we must make them really excellent. No excuse ought to be given the more intelligent or worldly minded for not patronizing their denominational schools. It is really easier to keep our schools in the front rank than it is to make them bring up the rear. Nobody feels like helping a sickly, limping institution. Everybody likes to be connected with a progressive enterprise.

And the last thought is one not much insisted upon, but really of great consequence. Baptist colleges need not be narrow; they should be the broadest in the world. They can deal with every phase of every question that interests man—all scientific questions and all religious questions. No state school can treat the latter class of questions at all thoroughly. And these are the questions of first importance because they fix the real value of all human learning.

Bishop Randolph on Religious Freedom.

BY PREST. CHAS. E. TAYLOR.

The Richmond Dispatch of a recent date contained a brief summary of a Centennial Address of Bishop Randolph before the Episcopal Council of Virginia. In speaking of the Act for Religious Freedom he is reported to have said:—

"If the Episcopal Church had remained an established church it would have died."

When one remembers the zeal and vigor with which dis-establishment was opposed by Bishop Randolph's predecessors, the utterance just quoted will appear to be a very remarkable one. It is as encouraging as it is remarkable, evidencing as it does the recognition, even where it was least to be expected, of the salutary results of the Voluntary Principle in religion. Perhaps the day may come when even from unexpected quarters similar testimony will be given to the practical working of this principle in the higher education also.

Twenty five years ago only $3,500,000 were invested in the endowment and equipment of Baptist colleges and universities in the United States. To day $33,500,000 are invested in these Baptist institutions. This increase of thirty million dollars within twenty five years reveals a wonderful expansion of interest in higher education among the Baptists of this country. One of the most suggestive lessons from these figures is derived from the fact that the great bulk of these contributions to the higher education has come from those States in which the Voluntary Principle receives most recognition.

We have not our share of the thirty millions at Wake Forest. Not yet. But I doubt whether any Christian college in the country is doing more or better work in proportion to the means at its disposal. But, in proportion as these means are increased, the usefulness of the institution will be increased. And I can say honestly, and after mature reflection, that I do not believe that money can be invested more wisely for the building up of the kingdom of heaven in the world, and so as to secure larger and more far reaching results than in the strengthening of such an institution as Wake Forest College.

We are making progress all the time in our work for the Royall Chair. The top of the hill is not yet in sight, but we are going to get there by and by. A great many brethren have signified to me by word or by letter their intention to aid in this movement. It would be a great help if all who really wish to take part in it would crystallize their intentions into definite promises. And, as an aid to this, I shall be very glad to send blank notes to those who may be willing to use them.

Two letters have recently come to me from China. I do not know when I have been more deeply touched than I have been by the spirit of self sacrifice manifested in these letters of two of our own missionaries. One is from Bro. Herring. It encloses drafts for $91.57 as a contribution to the Students' Aid Fund. This money had been given from time to time to little Manly Yates Herring in birthday presents, first by Bro. Yates and then by Mrs. Yates. The parents had laid it up for his education. After the death of his dear little boy, Bro. Herring decided to use this money in helping other young men to educate themselves. Bro. Herring writes of his great approval of the aims of this Students' Aid Fund and says, "I would rather see this Fund pushed and matured now than to see even the endowment increased. By the way, isn't it time to burden the people of North Carolina with their College again? Give them occasion to give, that God may have occasion to give to them."

The second letter is from Bro. George Greene of Canton, China. He sends his notes for $100 and a check for $50, and accompanies these remittances with words of love and devotion to his alma mater.

If our missionaries in foreign lands can make such sacrifices as these, sending such noble gifts out of their meagre resources, what ought we to do who remain in North Carolina and in other fields in the United States?

Nothing in the history of Wake Forest College inspires me with more gratitude than the fact that God has put it into the hearts of many of its alumni to go as missionaries to foreign lands. May the steady glow of missionary fervor never cease to be felt here.

We are drawing near the close of a very prosperous session. It may be doubted whether more students have ever been at the College at this stage of the session than are here at present. The outlook for the future seems to be hopeful. But for the attitude of resistance which we were compelled to assume some months ago, I doubt whether we would have more than seventy five students here now. As it is we have about three times that number.

Wake Forest, May 28, 1895.

Let the Facts be Known.

BY REV. M. B. JONES.

It has been variously estimated by different brethren as to the number of Baptists that actually contribute the money that is used for the furtherance of the Lord's kingdom. Well, there is no way of finding this out, so far as the past is concerned, and it would do no real good if we could, because the past cannot be called back, and the work done over. But there is a possibility of knowing these facts so far as the future is concerned, and I believe that they should be known.

A church without a system is not according to the Scriptures, for they tell us to do all things decently and in order. We have all felt ashamed of the way some churches have sent up their reports to the Association. Some of us have had our patience severely tested when trying to make up a church letter. We often find the books in such shape that no man on earth can tell what has been done by the members. All this is without excuse. No pastor or officer of any church is pardonable for not being able to give a correct statement of all the moneys passing through the hands of the church, the name of every person from whom it came, and the exact amount given by every one unless it be the regular collections for incidental expenses. So far as benevolence, missions and pastor's salary are concerned, the facts should always be known by every church. It is great injustice to fire into a church promiscuously as some brethren do for not giving as largely as they think. It may be when the contributing members have been separated from the non-contributing, that their liberality will appear large. It would take me only a few minutes to show the exact amount contributed by every member of my church and the names of every one who has not given. This is the easiest thing in the world to do. And if any brother cannot see how, it would be a real pleasure for me to tell him.

Our Associations will begin to meet very soon, and if it be possible, let every Associational letter bear upon its face the actual number of members who have contributed since the last year's session; but if you can't possibly do so this year, see that you do so next year. I believe it would be a stimulus to our churches and a wonderful help to the officers of the Associations and Convention. I am of the opinion that not more than two-thirds of the entire Baptist denomination give anything towards our church work. This can never be known as to the past, but we can know the facts in the future. Some may say it will do no good; but I believe it will do good to bring out these things in the churches, and from the churches to the Association, and thence to the State and Southern Baptist Conventions.

My people will be able at the meeting of our Association to give these figures and facts since the last session of the body. Give us consecrated system, service and silver, and we can take the world for Christ.

Salisbury, N. C.

Lent and Germans.

Thousands of people during lent do a great many apparently pious things, in the way of fasting and extra religious duties. But as soon as lent is over (and it is to be presumed that many are glad when it is over), many of these lent Christians become leaders in worldly amusements that chill and blight true piety and destroy Christian influence. Since lent passed, we hear of germans in all directions.

The church members who patronize ball-rooms, grog-shops and theaters, which all go hand in hand, are standing monuments of a high type of worldliness and a low type of Christianity. They are stumbling-blocks in the way of sinners, they dishonor God and please the Devil. ANTI LENT.

The burden of subjection seems a precious thing about our necks, while in reality it is only the weight which is necessary to keep down the diver while he is hunting for pearls.—Richter.

Love's investments are always drawing dividends.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5, 1895.

Rev. C. T. BAILEY, Editor and Proprietor.
J. C. CADDELL, Agent and Correspondent.

The extreme illness of Dr. Bailey, editor of the RECORDER, will be learned with real sadness in many a home in North Carolina. His physician thought he would hardly live through last night; he is, however, alive this (Tuesday) morning, but at most can last but few more hours.

We have received several programs of Union Meetings and Sunday-school conventions. If they come in fast enough we will publish a supplement of them June 12th; if not we will have to condense them and put them in our regular columns. We wish the committees would act promptly.

The following, presumably from Bro. J. H. Mills, appeared in Charity and Children last week in reply to our note as to his statement that the Normal and Industrial School does not teach Latin, Greek or French:—

"We were reluctant to say anything on the foregoing subject, because it is so hard to do so without being misunderstood and misrepresented. We tried to say that the female colleges teaching from nine to ten months each year and taking time to use thorough text books ought not to consider themselves in competition with schools teaching only eight months and using abbreviated text books. Many preparatory schools teach French, Latin and Greek; but the female colleges ought not to be thought of as competing with them. The Normal and Industrial School at Greensboro was designed to help teachers and give them such a start as will enable them to prosecute their studies in connection with their work. The female colleges have a more extensive curriculum. They have more time, and their students will hereafter have more leisure. So their studies are and ought to be more thorough. Let us illustrate. The voyage from Troy to Italy will answer the purpose of a normal school; but a female college ought to make its students familiar with the inimitable Eclogues of Virgil. It is some satisfaction to be able to repeat the famous answer made by the Oxford student to Queen Elizabeth, but it is an everlasting delight to think of those Currituck beeches in connection with the first line of Virgil's Eclogue.

We say there is room for normal schools and for female colleges; that schools need not fight each other. Boys and girls need not require fancy fare, nor royal delicacies. The price of board ought to come within the reach of small purses. Good board can be furnished for one month at one half the cost of 100 pounds of bacon and of one barrel of flour, provided sixty boarders are together, and pay promptly. We say this after having made the experiment during the Confederate war.

The RECORDER, if willing to deal fairly, will copy the foregoing remarks."

The reader may fail to perceive what this has to do with charity or children. However, our brother is entitled to his opinion, and we shall make no question of it, so long as he sticks to facts.

It doesn't matter what our brother tried to say. The fact is he said that neither French nor Greek nor Latin were taught at the Normal and Industrial School.

It is very weak to try to side-track the question by saying preparatory schools teach French, Greek and Latin. That has no weight whatever in the question of what the Normal and Industrial School teaches nor in what it competes with our female colleges.

True, "the Normal and Industrial School was designed to help teachers." It is helping more than one hundred girls who will never darken the doors of a school room after they leave Greensboro, except as mothers interested in the progress of their children. It does not even pretend to confine its help to teachers. Its doors are open to all classes.

Troy, Italy, Virgil, the Oxford student, Queen Elizabeth, Eclogues, the Confederate war, etc., etc.,—well, what have they to do with this question any way?

Have "the female colleges a more extensive curriculum?" We have President McIver's word for it, to which we will certify, that the Normal and Industrial School at Greensboro aims to do and is prepared (in his opinion, better prepared) to do everything for the young women of North Carolina than any private or denominational school does, except teaching art and music; and the Greensboro Female College, Methodist, takes Normal and Industrial girls in these departments.

We are sorry that Charity and Children is being used to try to destroy the effect of the RECORDER'S efforts for our denominational institutions, the conservators of our denominational growth.

We usually know what is and what is not fair. We do not feel at all obliged to publish Bro. Mills' statement, as he does not show that we misrepresented him in the fact. But it will serve as a fine example of opinion and keep down the old cry of "persecution."

WAKE FOREST COLLEGE 1894–'95 CATALOG.

We have looked through the latest catalog of Wake Forest College closely and with great interest. From title page to the end we have found it a model of tastefulness, clearness and succinctness, which are to be justly appreciated only by publishers and editors. We were made to wonder how so much clear reading could be put in sixty-four pages. For this work the College is indebted to Professors Sledd and Gorrell who have charge of the catalogs.

A catalog is a college's foremost representative; and work and care put in its making is never wasted. In the one before us there is everything about Wake Forest College that young men or their parents would desire to know, stated clearly and with particular regard for details, and yet it appears to be unusually brief.

Some changes may be noted now with a view to coming back to them after the accounts of closing exercises have been worked off, when we will have more space.

A new degree has been made possible—Bachelor of Law; and junior and senior courses in Law have been incorporated in some of the Bachelor of Arts courses. The School of Latin has been filled in with readings from a round list of classic authors; and Roman History is now a regular branch of the School. It has not been possible to improve Prof. Royall's School of Greek, which he has spent his life building up to the present standard. We note with pleasure, however, a reaching out in the direction of philosophy, economy and general literature of ancient Greece. The Latin and Greek seminaries are required in three of the four courses by which the M. A. degree can be reached. The College has made more progress within the last ten years in the Schools of English and Modern Languages than in any other. It has been possible to get through English in a year, easily in two; now it is a work of three, and one who has taken it may be counted on for a sound acquaintance with our language and literature. Under Professor Gorrell a general broadening, with a view to the Literatures, is evident in the School of French and German. History classes and lectures on Comparative Philosophy have been established. The addition of a branch of Road making is mentioned under Applied Mathematics. Mineralogy has been transferred from Prof. Poteat's to Prof. Brewer's department, and made an elective. This is necessary in order that Prof. Poteat may give proper attention to his enlarged School of Biology, which embraces General Biology, Botany, Geology, Human Physiology, and Geology. History of Philosophy has been added to Prest. Taylor's admirable School of Moral Philosophy; and we were pleased to see that Prof. Robinson will hereafter share the honors with Butler in the matter of text-books of Christian Evidences.

The chair of Political Science being vacant, Professors Gulley and Sledd have shared its duties.

The School of Law has been sub-divided and systematized. The summer school convenes first Monday in July. Prof. Gulley is well equipped for preparing young men for examination before the Supreme Court.

Good work in the Gymnasium, under the direction of Mr. Walters Durham, is reported. It is thought that a point has been reached at which inter-collegiate games can be dispensed with, without sacrifice of wholesome interest in athletics.

There is a noticeable general broadening of Schools and Courses, the number of electives being very liberal. This gives desirable scope to students, which cannot be had at any other institution in this State.

Two hundred and twenty-one students were enrolled this session.

Pastors should send Prest. Taylor the addresses of all the young men they can find who ought to go to college. Friends of the College ought to get the catalog to see what the institution is doing.

THE "Regions Beyond Roll" is only a phase of our regular State Mission work. The plan was sanctioned and set in operation by the Board quite a while ago. We are making a special effort in this direction just now, because we believe the plan can be developed much more largely than it has been. For years—ever since there were missionary Baptists in the State—this work has been going on; but never before has it been given the publicity and encouragement that it is receiving this year.

We have no means of knowing how many meetings our preachers held in destitute places last year, but we can name strong Baptist points that were destitute of the gospel a few years ago which were first planted with a protracted meeting.

From now on we want to keep this work in view. It is a most important feature of State missions. We hope those who have it on their hearts to hold these meetings will let us know, in order that we may see just what is being done along this line. We are looking for one hundred such meetings this summer and fall.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Mercer University, Georgia, has come into a legacy that will net $25,000.

....From Rev. C. A. Jenkens, New Brunswick, N. J.: "Am very busy and delightfully situated."

....Our new house of worship at Berry's Grove, Orange county, will be dedicated first Sunday in July.

....Baptists have just dedicated a new church in New York City, building and ground costing $114,000.

....Rev. Dr. J. H. Luther, at one time editor of the Central Baptist, has gone to Brazil as a self supporting missionary.

....Rev. Walter Crane started off the Wharton evangelistic meetings at Wilmington, Sunday. Dr. Wharton is expected later.

....The Board of Trustees will meet in the Wingate Memorial Building at Wake Forest College, Tuesday 10 o'clock a. m., June 11th, 1895.

....Rev. Jno. F. McMillan has welcomed sixty new members into his church at Graniteville, S. C., as a result of a recent protracted meeting.

....The American Baptist Publication Society will send a committee to Europe seeking a larger out let for its publications. Going to take the world.

....Methodists have just dedicated a $75,000 house of worship at Williamsbridge, N. Y., with a regular baptistery under the pulpit. They are coming round.

....Rev. C. V. Brooks of Jonesboro and Miss Blanch Liles, daughter of Bro. S. N. Liles of Jonesboro, were united in marriage the 4th inst. We wish them a happy life of usefulness.

....We were glad to have a visit from Bro. W. P. Shaw of Winton recently. Also, Rev. Dr. Pritchard paid our office a pleasant call on Monday of this week; he was on his way to Chapel Hill.

....Rev. A. C. Cree of Wake Forest preached for Rev. A. D. Hunter at West Raleigh Baptist church, giving Bro. Hunter a chance to preach and baptize for Brother Pullen on last Sunday night.

....The weather makes the thought of a seaside chautauqua very enticing. Bro. Spilman's notes are in good time. He has made it possible to spend a pleasant season by the seashore at very low cost.

....Rev. W. F. Fry, who is doing good work in the east, preaching and teaching, had Dr. Taylor to make an address at the closing exercises of the Granston Academy, of which Bro. Fry is principal, last week.

....Rev. P. S. Moxom, once a prominent Baptist, who about a year ago accepted a call to a Congregational church, has received "a $10,000 call" to a Presbyterian church in New York City. We suppose he will feel called to flop again.

....Dr. Carter of the Raleigh First Baptist church is going down East to aid Rev. W. F. Fry of Bayboro in a protracted meeting. It will do that section good to hear Dr. Carter, and it will do the Doctor good to see those people.

....Brethren Dowell, Horton and McDuffie have been holding meetings in Durham within the last several weeks. Some have been baptized and others are awaiting the ordinance. Bro. Tyree's people are happy over the prospect of one of the handsomest church houses in the State.

...."That Oxford church is going to be beautiful," said a brother passing through the other day, "and it will be finished before fall." Our Oxford brethren and sisters have been building patiently and faithfully, and we are not surprised that as the efforts take shape, it is seen that they have been building well.

....Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas of Greensboro was in Raleigh last week attending the State Council of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of which he is a very prominent member. He made the response to the address of welcome, and of course did it gracefully. Bro. Thomas reported all in good shape at Greensboro.

....President Booth of Yorkville High School, South Carolina, has resigned, and will succeed Prest. C. P. Sapp as president of Mars Hill College, Prof. Sapp going to Tennessee to study law. His administration at Mars Hill has been very successful. He is a young man of unusual gifts, and we wish for him a large measure of usefulness.

....At the First Baptist church in this city on last Sunday morning, Dr. J. W. Carter preached a most striking and convincing sermon on the resurrection of Christ, and at the close of the administration of the Lord's supper, on motion of Dr. T. E. Skinner, Dr Carter was asked by the church to furnish the sermon for publication. It is hoped that he will do so soon.

....Rev. J. Q Adams of Wadesboro, N. C., preached at the Eutaw Place church. Whilst the congregations were not large, owing to the inclement weather, everybody was very much pleased. Bro. Adams is in this city on a very serious errand, a dear one being at Johns Hopkins hospital. He is a strong, solid preacher, and a lovely man every way.—Evangel, Baltimore.

....A very important committee meeting provided for by the last Southern Baptist Convention has been called by its chairman, Dr. Gambrell. The committee consists of Drs. Gambrell, Hiden, Carroll, Manly, Willingham, Tichenor, Bell, and will meet with the secretaries of the State Boards, at Atlanta, June 19th, Dr. Durham representing our State. The object of this committee is to consider "how better we may reach the masses of Southern Baptists. It will take into consideration at its coming meeting the advisability of consolidating the Foreign Mission Journal and the Home Field.

....Rev. S. M. Brown of Kansas City made a visit to his old home, near Elkin, N. C., returning from the Washington Convention.

....Rev. T. J. Taylor administered the ordinance of baptism to two persons last week in the Baptist church here.—Warrenton Record.

....Rev. J. G. Pulliam has returned to his Selma-Smithfield field with his family, after an exteded stay in the western part of the State, his old home.

....Morris, the "Lottery King," died the other day, leaving a fortune of $30,000,000. The Florida Baptist Witness brought the good news last week that Florida has passed anti-lottery laws that will strengthen those passed by Congress, and the end of the lottery is at hand. But there seems to be no end of petty gambling.

....Rev. J. Hartwell Edwards has resigned as pastor at Fayetteville to take effect July 1st. He has done good and lasting work there, and we regret that his pastorate is thus cut short, he having been pastor since August, 1893. We hope the Lord will see fit to so order that Bro. Edwards will remain in this State, and that He will send Fayetteville just such a man as it needs.

....Our house of worship at Aberdeen, Rev. C. J. F. Anderson pastor, will be dedicated the fourth Sunday in June; and Revs. C. Durham, L. Johnson and Bro. N. B. Broughton are expected to be present. This church was organized just twelve months ago, and it is one of the most promising in the Association. The town is a progressive milling centre, and Bro. Anderson is an able and energetic leader.

....An old-fashioned revival is in progress in Rev. A. C. Dixon's Hanson Place church, Brooklyn, says the Examiner. "The open-air meetings, the preacher occupying 'a pulpit of wood, made for the purpose in the street, as in Ezra's time, attracts thousands. Hearty singing and homely preaching still have power with the common people." Suppose those people could see a real old fashioned outpouring of the spirit!

....Fayetteville Street Baptist church closed its meeting last week, and on Sunday night last, Rev. A. D. Hunter baptized five. This is forty one recently baptized into this church, three of whom were old men, one in seventieth year. Others have joined by letter. Bro. Hunter says he is glad to work with such helpers as Bro. John T. Pullen and those who labor with him. Many of those who attended this meeting also attended the meeting at Caraleigh Mills.

....Rev. W. R. Cullom begins his work as supply at Scotland Neck, during Dr. Vann's absence on leave, this week. Bro. Cullom is a full graduate of Wake Forest and the Seminary. He has preached in many parts of this State and is unusually well and favorably known for a young man. He was assistant in the Seminary for awhile, and later pastor of Kentucky churches. We are very glad to have him back in North Carolina, and we want him to stay.

....We thank Bro. W. L. Foushee for a tasteful invitation to the fourth annual exercises of the excellent Roxboro Institute, of which he is principal, June 6th. Rev. T. N. Ivey of Wilson will deliver the address. We are also indebted to Prof. Thos. R. Crocker, of the faculty of Turlington Institute, Smithfield, N. C., for a handsome invitation to the annual exercises of that useful institution, June 11th. Hon. Josephus Daniels will deliver the address, and there will be exercises by pupils, and an address by J. M. Morgan of Louisiana.

....Rev. J. L. White of Macon has been preaching in the afternoon and at night each day during the past week at the Second church, and continues this week. His sermons have been strong, practical and convincing. About twenty had professed conversion up to the opening of this week. He will leave before the end of the week, as he preaches next Sunday the commencement sermon for Union Female College at Eufaula, Ala., Dr. McDonald preached Sunday at Macon for Bro. White.—Christian Index, Atlanta, Ga.

....Pastor J. K. Howell of Rocky Mount sent us the following interesting notes May 27th: "Not long since Bro. J. E. Hutson came to Rocky Mount and remained over two weeks. He preached the gospel with great power. Many professed faith, but a large part of them were railroad men, and persons who did not live here, so a small number joined our church. Bro. Hutson left here greatly beloved by our people, and I think any pastor who may get him to help him in a meeting will be greatly blessed. We will soon have a nice church finished at the Falls, the factory town here, and we hope to get Bro. H. to help us in a meeting then. Three were baptized last night. I had a chill, and Bro. J. W. Powell came to my help and did the baptizing. Our town continues to grow, and soon South Rocky Mount will call for another church."

....A law suit against a railroad last week was of considerable interest to a prominent Baptist brother in Raleigh who says something once in awhile about missions and education. He was coming back from the Chowan, after preaching at Scotland Neck Sunday, and when he got to Henderson he found it necessary under the law to go into the Vance court and tell all he knew for and against a Mr. "Shaw," who, with a Capt. Dunlap, held several meetings in our State last summer, and who were run out of Raleigh by the said prominent Baptist. A few hours afterwards the impostor "Shaw" was killed in a railroad collision. This was made ground for a suit for damages. It was proved on the stand that "Shaw" was not the man's name and that he was a characterless tramp, and it was also brought out that Dunlap is now in a penitentiary for forgery. Let us be kind to strangers, brethren; but let us keep our eyes open as well.

....We are glad to see that Bro. Geo. W. Blount has so far recovered from his recent attack as to walk about; and that his paper the Mirror is keeping up to its standard.

....The Baptist church at Morehead City has called Rev. J. T. Jenkins with a salary of $600 and parsonage. He has accepted, and will commence his pastoral work on the 17th inst.

....Several exchanges have published a clipping from the Sanford Express, relative to the Progressive Farmer, and credited it to the RECORDER. We make this correction in justice to the Express.

....Almost all our town people attended the baptizing at McAdensville on Sunday evening. Fourteen persons were baptized in the river by the pastor, Rev. D. P. Bridges.—Lowell Cor. Gastonia Gazette.

....We hope there will be a large gathering of alumni at Wake Forest next week, and that they will come in time for Prof. Poteat's Alumni Address. The prospect for a large general attendance is encouraging.

....The minutes of the late Southern Baptist Convention are now in the Mission Room ready for delivery. If you wish a copy, send four cents in stamps to Dr. C. Durham, and the minute will be sent you at once.

....Bro. R. A. Moore of Red Springs send us renewals and writes: "Our pastor, Bro. Kesler, is delighting the people wherever he goes. He is at Autryville this week (May 31st) to deliver an address at Bro. Royall's school."

....Rev. C. V. Brooks writes in high terms of the exercises of Buie's Creek Academy, Rev. J. A. Campbell's useful institution. Hon. J. C. Scarborough delivered a highly instructive address, and the students did credit to their teachers.

....Rev. Claude E. Gower sends us a new subscriber and some renewals and closes his letter: "I have a large membership and heavy work, in encouraging condition, I am thankful to say; and am grateful for such an assistant as the BIBLICAL RECORDER. Have about half dozen protracted meetings in sight and about half these in the 'regions beyond.'" That's a man who is in the work with a will.

....We trust that it is only necessary to suggest to our good friends whose subscriptions have expired that any little payment they may make right now will be worth a great deal to us in our tedious climb up the long and dry "June hill." We are still sending out Bro. Love's tract to those who pay two dollars and ask for it. Please look at your label. We know some will be tempted to drop off; but we are hoping they will take the proper view of it, that the Associations will soon be here, harvests sold, and we can wait on those who just cannot spare anything now. But look at your label anyway. We would like to correct any error in the label, and will do so whenever our attention is called thereto.

....The annual exercises at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary were unusually quiet this year in respect to the memory of Dr. Broadus. They closed May 30. Dr. Hawthorne and Rev. Ernest Cook made addresses. There were nineteen graduates with Th. G., eight with Th. B, thirteen with Th. M., five with D. Rev. Junius W. Milliard represented our State as one of the five speakers; it is not necessary to say that we stood second to none. North Carolina graduates are as follows: Full course, J. W. Milliard, Henderson; W. R. Cullom, Scotland Neck; J. G. Blalock, Rockingham; T. J. Hudson and R. D. Cross completed the English course. Brethren Hudson (who purposes joining the Gospel Mission workers in the fall,) R. G. Kendrick and Cross want to work in North Carolina; also brethren Reddish and Sledge. Prof. A. T. Robertson and wife will spend the month of June at his father's home in Iredell county. Prof. H. H. Harris has accepted the professorship lately tendered him. We are under many obligations to Bro. J. D. Robertson, brother of A. T., for this news. Bro. Robertson is one of the most promising students at the Seminary.

....At the Northern Baptist Anniversaries at Saratoga last week, there was a large and interesting attendance. Addresses were delivered as follows: President A. H. Strong, Rev. D. D. MacLaurin, Dr. Wm. Ashmore, Dr. G. C. Lorimer, several returned missionaries, S. Grenell, D. D., D. A. Waterman, Esq., A. J. Fox, Esq., Dr. Wm. M. Lawrence, Rev. Johnston Myers, Rev. A. W. Clark, Rev. Geo. E. Horr, Jr., Rev. E. B. Pope, Rev. D. F. Hudleson, Rev. A. H. Lyons, Miss Helen F. Clark, Dr. A. S. Coats, A. B. Bellondi, Jos. Antonowski, Rev. N. F. Roberts of North Carolina on the work of Shaw University, Dr. L. Morehouse, Dr. J. B. Hawthorne on co operation with the South, Dr. E. T. Hiscox, and others. The Southern co operation idea met with general approval. The American Baptist Missionary Union began the year under a debt of $300,000. Curtailment was necessary. By this means the year's expenses have been met and the debt reduced by $18 639 08. The total amount received was $661,258 68. The American Baptist Home Mission Society began the year with a debt of $101,000. By retrenchment and wise economy, only $7,000 has been added to this debt, and a great deal of work has been done. The total expenditures were $455,024 39. The Woman's Baptist Mission Society raised $64,129.55, and expended $63,709 89. The American Baptist Publication Society sold $532 768 53 worth of publications; gave profits of $7 666 to missionary department. The contributions for the mission work of the Society have not met the demands, and there is a deficit of $3 368.04. Counting last year's deficit the aggregate is $18,401 88; the amount received for missionary work was $113,606 78, the amount for Bible work, $15 243 84. Sixty-three new publications were issued during the year, of which 362,250 copies were printed; 34 914 810 copies of books, pamphlets, periodicals, tracts, etc., etc., were published.

Oxford Female Seminary.

[MISSING] EXERCISES.

The annual exercises of this popular and progressive institution are a notable occasion, and always bring to this classic town large numbers of visitors. The town takes on a holiday appearance during commencement week; for the exercises of the Seminary are followed immediately by those of the Horner School. This year, as usual, large numbers came by the railroad and by private conveyance from this and surrounding counties, with a good delegation from Virginia: for there were five Virginia girls enrolled in the school during the session just passed.

The Seminary grounds never before were so attractive—the grass presenting a beautiful, velvet-green appearance; the Silver and Norway maples in full leaf decorating the grounds; the roses and flowering shrubs in bloom, and the pretty girls in white wandering through these, making, as they did, such a beautiful picture, compelled one to pause and look, and look again.

At first it seemed as though the usual rainy commencement weather would ensue, but on Sunday the clouds vanished, and all during the exercises the weather was faultless.

It is now the custom of the Seminary to have two sermons, one the regular baccalaureate sermon, the other the sermon before the Maggie Nutt Missionary Society. In past years the sermons on these occasions have been preached by such men as Drs. Hatcher, Hawthorne, Burrows, Cooper, Sledd, Pritchard, Carter, and other men of note and ability. On the present occasion this high standard was fully maintained. In the morning, on Sunday, the sermon before the graduating class was preached by Rev. C. A. G. Thomas, of Greensboro, N. C. His subject was "Glorying in Christ," and in a very instructive manner he showed the vanity of glorying in aught else. His first sentence enlisted the sympathy and secured the attention of the audience, which was held throughout the discourse.

The missionary sermon was preached in the evening of the same day by Dr. J. A. Mundy of Wilson, N. C. Dr. Mundy fifteen years ago delivered the first sermon preached after the establishment of the institution, and the memory of it is still with those who heard it. The people knew what to expect from him, those who had never heard him knowing his reputation for ability and strength of intellect. His text was, "He that hath the Son hath life." The effort was masterly, and his analysis of the "new birth" able and searching.

THE SONG OF THE SPHERES.

On Monday evening in the Opera House the young ladies of the Calliopean Society presented a cantata entitled "The Song of the Spheres." This cantata was composed by Miss Bettie Jordan, a talented lady of Oxford who was formerly connected with the Seminary. Her gifts were never more clarly shown than in the design and execution of this mixture of tableaux, recitations and songs. The effect was pleasing and the performance very creditable to the young ladies. The recitations were given in the best of style and with beauty and grace, and indicated careful and painstaking training, innate ability and aptitude. The songs were sweetly sung, the two duets being especially good. These were two of the old songs "that will never die," sung by Misses Bell and Freeman and Messrs. Dunn and Hobgood. The tableaux were the most beautiful your correspondent has ever seen. One who knew nothing of the solar system came away with a clear conception of it from beholding the sun with his planets accompanied by their satellites represented by beautiful girls.

CLASS DAY

is the most interesting of all the exercises. To hear these the Opera House was filled by beauty and chivalry, fair women and brave men. Sweet girl graduates, music, flowers, sunshine, hope, joy—all were there. Diploma as Bachelor of Letters was conferred on Miss Birdie Dunn of Forestville, while Miss Jessie Herman won a diploma in piano music. Misses Marable Freeman and Mamie Crews obtained diplomas in School of French; Sallie Sandling and Maude Freeman in French; Berta Bell and Mamie Crews in English; Phœbe Knott, Annie Williams, Janie Lacy, Maude Freeman in History.

President Hobgood's report made this morning was interesting. We quote a part of it: "The session now closing has been a prosperous one. The number of boarding students in attendance is nearly thirty five per cent. larger than the number during the previous school year, while the total of day and boarding students is twenty per cent. larger.

The outlook is full of hope. All the present members of the Faculty have been re-engaged, while one new teacher has been engaged, a specialist in vocalisation and elocution, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music. It is our purpose for the future, as it has been our practice in the past, year after year, to offer increased facilities and to raise our standards."

ANNUAL CONCERT.

Following these interesting exercises came the annual concert, an event always eagerly anticipated by the lovers of music, a rich program being always prepared. Only teachers of the highest skill are employed in the department. For many years the Director has come from one of the great German Conservatories, the present incumbent holding a diploma from the famous Leipsic. The great progress of the local students was evident, and reflected the highest credit on their training. The instrumental pieces were rendered with a finish and appreciation unusual in school girls. Of special excellence were the two duos—one by Misses Herman and Hobgood, the other by the Misses Crews. Following is the program:

Der Freischutz, Weber. Mary Purefoy, Lottie Britt, Lena Stone, Myrtle Tuxentine.

Gondellied, Graben Hoffman. Birdie Dunn and Carrie Hobgood.

Polka de la Reine, J. Raff. Sarah Parham.

Call Me Back, L. Denza. Minnie Kronheimer.

Danse Macabre (Dance of Death), C. Saint Saens. Maude Freeman and Berta Bell.

(a) Among Lilies, H. B. Farnie; (b) Open Thy Blue Eyes, J. Masseet. Birdie Dunn.

Barcarole, Fr. Chopin. Janie Lacy.

On the Ocean. Concone. Minnie Kronheimer, Maude Freeman and Carrie Hobgood.

Rhapsodie Hongroise VIII, F. Liszt. Jessie Herman.

Marche religieuse de "Lohengrin," R. Wagner. Nannie Kelly, Marie Moss, Sarah Parham and Susie Gooch.

Ernani Fly With Me, G. Verdi. Carrie Hobgood.

Concerto—G. Minor, Andante, Presto, F. Mendelsohn-Bartholdy. Orchestral part on second piano. Jessie Herman, Carrie Hobgood.

Summer Fancies, O. Metra. Vocal Class.

THE ART RECEPTION

was attended by large numbers. The exhibit was of unusual excellence and shewed to fine advantage in the Reading Room, which had been recently refurnished. This School has in all its history made much of its Art Department. The best talent has been employed to conduct it, ladies who have been trained in the Cooper Union of New York and other celebrated Art Schools of the land. Art in all its styles was represented—crayon, pastels, water colors, oil—fruits, flowers, landscapes, animals, the "human from divine."

ADDRESS TUESDAY EVENING.

When the announcement was made several weeks ago that the usual literary address before the Society of the Seminary would be delivered by Dr. Hume of the University of North Carolina, there was general pleasure and every one began anticipating a feast. On this occasion, as on previous ones, the seating capacity of the house was taxed to its utmost—in fact, all could not obtain seats.

The exercises were begun with an instrumental duo by the Misses Crews, to which reference has been made. Then followed a quartette of mixed voices, beautifully rendered.

President Hobgood then presented to the audience Dr. Hume, who announced as his subject, "Woman—Poet, Prophet." It were extremely difficult, in fact impossible, to give any adequate idea of the address. It abounded in the most elegant expressions—indeed, is it not high enough praise to say that it was just what one expected from Dr. Hume! One of the most superb paragraphs your correspondent has ever heard was one in which he advised young ladies to cultivate intellectual beauty, it being the only lasting, wearing beauty, and the effect upon the world, and man especially, of such cultivation. I could wish it were possible to give his address in full. Only the faintest outline can be attempted. His pictures and illustrations were drawn from the life and works of Elizabeth Barrett Browing, Shakespeare's child of the nineteenth century. She as the woman, the poet, the prophet, with and by means of references to her life, he showed the true woman, the "womanly" woman. He showed the true rights of woman—not the rights claimed by some, but those in the enjoyment and execution of which she should shine and brighten the world.

After the address an informal reception was held in the parlors of Society Hall of the Seminary, which was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed.

The memory of all these occasions will be lasting, and many will seek again the recurring pleasures. COR.

Seaside Chautauqua.

The Seaside Chautauqua will be held at Smyrna, N. C., beginning at 10 a. m. June 27th. Parties wishing to attend will go to Morehead City where a boat will be waiting to take them to Smyrna. In Morehead City get off at the Newbern House. The S. A. L Railroad and the A. C. L Railroad will sell tickets at reduced rates. The others have not been heard from. For information as to rates, ask your railroad agent. The cost at Smyrna will be, board and lodging in families (there are no hotels) per day, forty cents; sailing per hour, five cents, to ocean and return, ten cents, to lighthouse at Cape Lookout and return, twenty five cents; from Morehead to Smyrna and return, fifty cents.

Smyrna is on Core Sound at the mouth of Jarrett's Bay, fifteen miles from Beaufort. A sail boat will leave Morehead City every night after the arrival of the train from Goldsboro for the first few nights. If any desire to stop in Morehead over night a boat will be ready to take them down every morning.

The program, now being prepared, will provide for the discussion of subjects relative to Sunday school work and also questions of special interest to preachers. The afternoons will be largely devoted to sailing, fishing and surf-bathing. Bring your own bathing suit. We are going to have a "go-as you please" meeting, so you need not bring your fine clothes. They will only be in your way.

The meeting will continue until July 4th. If you can take a week with us, please notify me at once. The number that will be entertained is limited. If any who have already notified me that they will attend, find that they cannot do so, please drop me a postal as soon as possible. We have room for a few more young ladies and for a large number of men. Entertainment is not confined to Baptists.

If you will reach Morehead City after June 27th, please notify Mr. W. S. Simpson, Smyrna, N. C., as to the date of your arrival. A boat will leave Morehead about 8 p. m. on June 24th, 25th and 27th.

B. W. SPILMAN.

Kinston, N. C.

Haw River.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Work was begun on our house of worship May 13th. If the weather does not hinder, the building will be completed before the fifth Sunday in June.

I think that we shall be able to collect $1,000 in and around the town; as the building will cost $1,575, not including the finishings, it will be necessary for us to have $575 from brethren, sisters and friends elsewhere.

Considering the size and rapidly growing condition of this town; the fact that, with Burlington, four miles west, it forms the centre of a populous district; and the fact that there is a large territory stretching out in every direction, almost entirely destitute of Baptist churches and Baptist preaching, we cannot afford to put up a building inferior to the one we have planned.

Within the last five weeks, I have mailed more than 500 letters to persons in the Mt. Zion Association, and elsewhere, asking for help to pay the $575 which we must have in order that we may dedicate this house of worship, clear of debt, the fifth Sunday in June. Some of those to whom I have written have gladdened our hearts by responding to our appeal. Let me say this to those who have not responded—This is your cause, as it is the Lord's cause. If you respond, we shall be able to dedicate this house clear of debt. Should you fail to respond, we shall fail, and the progress of the cause here will be impeded. I can't believe, I will not believe that we shall fail. Send your contributions as early as June 25th, the day the contract binds the builder to finish the house.

The Union Meeting of the Mt. Zion Association will convene with the church at Haw River, beginning Friday before the fifth Sunday in June. Allow me to ask all the pastors, who preach for churches in this Association, to be with us, to remain through Sunday, to take a part in the dedication services; also, let me ask each church in the Association to have, at least, one delegate in this meeting.

Fraternally, JOHN C. HOCUTT.

P. S. To those to whom I have not sent letters:—If the Lord has dealt kindly with you, and if he puts it into your hearts to help this needy, this worthy, and this promising interest, we will gratefully receive your contribution. J. C. H.

How North Carolina Stands

Dear Brethren of North Carolina:—According to the amount asked for by the S. B. Convention to pay off all obligations and support our missionaries in the field this year, we look to your State from May 1st, 1895, to May 31st, for $750. In that time we have received $58 70.

"Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come."—I Cor. 16: 2.

The following have paid more than the amounts asked for the time named: Tennessee, Virginia, District of Columbia.

Baptism By Immersion.

The rite of Baptism by immersion was administered to Mr. E. E. Harris (such being his faith and preference) on Tuesday afternoon in the water at Bahnson's farm in the presence of many friends. The beautiful and solemn Baptismal service of the Episcopal church was most impressively performed by the Minister Rev. J. F. George. Some persons seem to think this a new mode of baptism in the Episcopal church—because not so frequently used. Such is an erroneous impression. Although the sacraments were ordained by Christ himself, still the church was thoughtful in providing ways and means to suit all people, as is stated in rubric of Baptismal Service, in the Book of Common Prayer. Her ministers have authority to administer baptism, by sprinkling, pouring, or immersion, (either mode the candidate to receive prefers.) just so water is used, and its done "in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost."—One who Witnessed, in Winston Sentinel.

We clipped this several weeks ago. It does not require a great deal of thinking to see that the writer was speaking ironically, sticking it to the Episcopalians with so fine a point that they must not have felt it at first.—EDITOR.

Rose Bay Sunday-school.

Dear Recorder:—I desire to say something through your columns in regard to our Sunday school work at Rose Bay in Hyde county. On the third Sunday in May, at the First Missionary Baptist church in Hyde county, Mrs. Deborah Chadwick and Miss Mattie A. Carawan, two of our best and most energetic teachers having their respective classes trained, and uniting them in one classes for the occasion, the children recited their respective pieces with much credit to themselves, and reflected credit upon their noble and progressive techers. People came from different sections of the county to witness the exercises very much to their satisfaction. Our little choir, composed of Mrs. Mary B. Swindell, Mr. Geo. Smith, Mr. S. H. Bridgman, Mrs. M. B. Swindell and others, sang several very appropriate pieces.

After closing the exercises, a collection was taken for the purpose of purchasing hymn-books for the church.

After a short prayer by the superintendent and singing of "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," the audience was dismissed with the benediction.

Brethren, pray for us in our work.

Yours fraternally, W. R. CARAWAN.

Closing Exercises of Augusta Seminary.

Dear Recorder:—Miss Sarah K. Stancil, a young lady of Selma, N. C., who, after a thorough preparation, entered college and graduated, closed her school here the 15 h inst. We are glad to say she had success.

We are thankful that the day set apart was fair. But we are still more thankful that the Lord has placed within our own dear sunny land, our own dear State, such men as the Rev. C. S. Cashwell, who gave us a very able address, in which he impressed the importance of work; and for the Rev. Dr. J. N. Stallings, who, with his deep and sound understanding, proclaimed in bold and tender language woman's rights and duties. He dwelt especially on the great importance of her education and development, not that she might compete with men for positions that rob her of modesty, but for the good of mankind. I would to God that many more would come out in the fear of, and by the help of the Lord, and proclaim the truth on that subject as he did.

The Rev. Bennett, who came unexpectedly, and whom the writer invited to make a practical talk, just got beyond himself on the spur of the moment and did not stop at a talk, but gave us a very good speech that left an impression on all, and caused them to realize that all things should be done practically.

The recitations and declamations rendered by the school were very good, and the exercises at night were greatly enjoyed by all.

A Sunday-school Rally.

Editor Recorder:—We had a general rally of the Sunday-schools of French's Creek township at the French's Creek Academy to day. It was a Union Sunday-school Convention organized four years ago by electing Dr. W. H. G. Lucas as President, Bro. C. B. Pridgen, Vice-President, and Bro. E. H. Anders as Secretary, and they have been so faithful in the performance of their duties that we have to day re elected them for the fourth time.

The President called on Rev. Wm. Brunt to open the exercises with religious service, which he did by reading the 100.h Psalm and prayer. The choir gave us good music.

The Secretary called the roll, after which the President called on the undersigned to make the welcome address, which was responded to by Rev. S. S. Etheridge in an appropriate and well directed speech.

The President then read the first query, What is teaching? This was ably discussed by Rev. Wm. Brunt.

The second query, Who shall teach us in Sunday school? was ably discussed by Rev. S. S. Etheridge and Rev. Wm. Brunt.

We adjourned to partake of one of the best dinners we ever saw, set on a long table in the grove, and the 400 or 500 present enjoyed it.

We again assembled at two o'clock, and after excellent music by the choir, the third query was read, Who shall attend the Sunday school? It was appropriately discussed by Bro. C. B. Pridgen and Dr. Lucas.

The fourth query was then read, What can be done to induce parents to attend Sunday school? was argued by Mr. S. M. King.

The fifth topic, Parental Responsibility, was discussed by Rev. S. M. Chaffin.

The sixth query, Who is responsible for the failure of the Sunday school? was considered by Bro. G. W. Corbett, Dr. Lucas and Rev. S. S. E heridge.

Then we had music by the choir and benediction by Rev. S. M. Chaffin.

Thus ended one of the largest and most interesting Sunday school Conventions that ever assembled in our section of the country, and I know, Bro. Bailey, you would have enjoyed very much to have been here and heard those discussions and the music led by Mrs. Ed. Andrews and Sister R. P. Allen.

May the good Lord impress the truths we have heard to-day, so indelibly upon our minds that we may go to work for the Sunday school cause as we have never before done. A. J. BORDEAUX.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews; Rev. J. N. Stallings; Rev. R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges; Rev. I. W. Thomas; Rev. J. M. Hilliard; Rev. N. B. Orrell; Rev. J. C. Sorrells; Rev. C. B. Justice; Rev. J. L. Smith; Rev. S. B. Barnes; Rev. E. C. Bobbitt; Rev. A. J. Bordeaux; Rev. W. B. Harrell; Rev. Thos. G. Wood; Rev. Samuel Saunders; Rev. G. M. Webb, Rev. S. C. Page, Rev. R. W. Weaver, Rev. C. W. Matthews; Layman T. H. Street; Rev. Claude E. Gower; Rev. W. R. Beach, Rev. J. W. Carter, D. D., Rev. W. F. Fry.

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

A Few Notes on the Chowan.

It was necessary to omit last week the following notes sent by our traveling agent:

Dr. Overby is in his usual vigor, and was never more interested in work than now.

Our home was partly with Bro. Outland and partly with Bro. C. J. Woodson.

A dozen brethren will join in saying that when it came to real hospitality, Washington City wasn't in it at all.

Bro. T. E. Cross was the only member who was present at the organization of the Baptist church in Gatesville.

"Send on my delegates" could be heard on every hand; the only complaint I heard was from persons who were expecting more company than they received.

The speech of welcome by Bro. O. B. Williams, on the part of the church, was, if a Baptist Association needs a thing of that sort, just the thing it needed.

None of our young brethren know better how things ought to be done than Bro. C. S. Vann of Edenton. He is always present at his Association, and is sure to be responsible for some good work during the session.

Bro. A. W. Barfoot didn't want the time of meeting of the Association changed, and made, as he always does, a good, sensible speech against it, but the young brethren got him on the vote, and he accepted the verdict with his characteristic good nature.

Special mention was made in the Association of Bro. Josiah Elliott's faithful work in completing the church in Hyde county. Bro. Elliott is also much interested in female schools, but he does not talk so much publicly on this subject.

Flat River Union Meeting.

This Union will hold its next session with Bethany Baptist church, Person county, N. C.

On Saturday, the 29th of June, at 10 o'clock a. m., religious exercises will be led by Rev. G. T. Watkins; at 10:30 a. m., organization. After this, a discussion of the following practical subjects will take place:

1. What is the duty of parents to their children from an educational standpoint? W. L. Foushee and P. P. Hobgood.

2. What work can young Christians do in the cause of their Master, and how can they be induced to perform the same? Rev. T. B. Hill and Rev. P. H. Fontaine.

3. What is brotherly love as required of Christians? Rev. J. A. Beam and Rev. J. A. Stradley.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, S. S. lesson will be taught by T. H. Street. At 11 o'clock, the missionary sermon will be preached by Rev. J. S. Hardaway, Rev. J. E. Smith, Alternate.

South Yadkin Union.

The Union Meeting of the South Yadkin Association will meet with the church at Mocksville, Friday before the fifth Sunday in June.

It is hoped that all the churches will appoint delegates that will attend, and that all the ministers of the Association will be present.

A cordial invitation is extended to brethren, sisters and friends, not only of the Association, but generally to meet with us at that time. All who come will be cordially welcomed and gladly entertained.

We desire that many will come and that all who come, will come full of the Spirit. We devoutly desire a great and glorious meeting. Let all faithfully pray and faithfully work for it.

Some Facts About the So-called Normal and Industrial School at Greensboro.

The question was asked the Committee of the House on Education, What business have the private school men to interfere with the business of the State by coming before this Committee? We desire to present a few reasons for their action:

1. If the Greensboro school were kept full it could not educate five per cent. of the girls of the State. Who, then, must educate the others? Only the private (including denominational) schools, unless the State intends to destroy these schools and put these so-called normal female boarding schools in their places. Why, then, should the State establish a school or schools, almost exactly like the other boarding schools of the State, and in direct competition with them?

2 The main argument for this school is the silly gush that the State must try to do as much for the girls as it has done for the boys. Well, what has the State done for the boys? To-day at the University of North Carolina the boy pays his sixty dollars for his literary tuition, and his poor sister, whose imaginary woes have bedewed the land with tears, pays no more, and often not so much, in the private school. It has been heralded everywhere that the State pays from two-thirds to three fourths of the boy's tuition, while it does not and will not pay a cent for his sister. This is but the cry of the demagogue, for the stubborn fact stares every one in the face that the boy at the University has to pay his sixty dollars for literary tuition, and the State does not pay one cent of it (unless he gets a scholarship), and his sister pays the same amount for the very same kind of instruction in the high-class female seminaries. In both cases the large investments in buildings and grounds and apparatus are the gifts of private citizens to the cause of education.

3 But we must do something for the young women. Well, let us look at that side of the question. What will be the general effect upon the female schools of the State? This Greensboro boarding school, with its teachers paid by the State and its tuition given to the pupils, will tempt the cupidity of some parents all over the State. They will use the prices charged at Greensboro to beat down the scanty prices now charged in these schools; for while these schools charge now only $5 00 a month maximum tuition, and from that down to $1.50 a month, the actual cost to the State of the tuition at Greensboro is from $7 50 a month to $9 00. The result will be that private schools all over the State will be compelled to lower their prices or retire from the business. These schools are almost universally taught by young women, and these women have no other mode of living. They must continue. Though they labor now at less than one-fifth of the male salaries at Greensboro, they must toil on for still less than the small salaries they now receive. And in order that well-to do girls may be educated at Greensboro at the expense of the State, the young women of our State who now teach and must continue to teach more than nine-tenths of all the girls in the State, must have their salaries reduced. Nor is this the end. This demagogic cry will grow by what it feeds upon. Great Cæsar will grow fat and kick. The cry before our next Legislature will be "We must do ten times as much for our girls, you know," and the thousands of young women who are now doing the great teaching work for the girls must take less, and give, give, give. And all this in the name of doing something for the women. In God's name let all the young women teachers of the land rise up and cry out in the language of the Spanish proverb, "Deliver us from our friends that we may be able to fight our enemies."

But this diminution of the rewards of teaching will drive the best teachers from the profession, and there will be a rapid lowering of the grade of female education everywhere in the State except at the most prosperous centres.

Is the State ready for this sort of work? I believe not. Should she, then, compete with her women teachers? Were the Greensboro school made a strictly professional Normal and Industrial School, no cry would rise against it, but until it is made such, it will find strong and powerful enemies who will not down at the threats of the lobbyists. We need no more female seminaries now, but we want a training school for teachers and for industrial students. Every pupil at Greensboro should be one who has determined to be a professional teacher or to devote herself to industrial pursuits. No one else has any business there. The classes for practice and instruction should be made up of girls from the various counties who intend to be teachers, but who are not able to educate themselves. This is the kind of school recommended by the Teachers' Assembly.

[Published during the Legislature of 1893.]

Palmetto Notes.

Notwithstanding court injunctions against the dispensary and registration laws, and the confusion resulting therefrom, despite the cry of "hard times" and want of money, the Palmetto State is "marching on."

Greenville has four new cotton mills in course of construction. Pelzer, fifteen miles southwest on the C. & G. R. R., with its mammoth mill employing 1,300 hands, is doubling its plant. The new mill, a five-story brick building, will be run by electricity, and will employ for 1,900 to 1,600 hands.

Piedmont, between Greenville and Pelzer, already has one of the largest mills in the South, but not to be behind, are building an extension of Mill No. 2, 138 by 100 feet, four stories, which will add 16,000 to the 48,500 spindles now running. This means the employment of hundreds of hands in addition to the 1,200 already employed, and an addition of several thousands of dollars to the $15,000 paid monthly. A large force are at work outside the mills digging down a hill to make room for the extension and in making brick. Every man employed is told if he uses a profane word he will be dismissed. Would that all employers would thus look after the moral conduct of their employees!

Nor are the spiritual interests of the people overlooked (I speak now of Piedmont) The Presbyterians, Methodists and Baptists have each beautiful and commodious houses of worship with a seating capacity of 2 500 for a population of 3,500 Between the pastors and membership of the different churches there exists a fraternal feeling and a spirit of co operation. Just now we have a protracted meeting in progress at the Baptist church led by a Baptist evangelist, who is not ashamed of the distinctive principles of Baptists, yet Pastors Stewart of the Presbyterian church and Dunlop of the Methodist church with their people are working with us and sharing in the blessing. We have received thirty five for baptism and ten by letter since the meeting began. Last night a large number, many of them men, came forward for prayer and instruction, and we are expecting to welcome many more to Christ and the church. But Sublett preaches the Word in simplicity and with power. He is free from sensationalism, and a safe advisor in the inquiry room, which cannot be said of all evangelists.

Pastors needing help would do well to write to Rev. R. A. Sublett, Summerton, S. C.

Much interest will be felt by the public in the return of Rudyard Kipling to India. He has just agreed to furnish a regular contribution to The Cosmopolitan Magazine for the coming year, beginning his work upon his return to India. India has never been critically considered by such a pen as Kipling's, and what he will write for The Cosmopolitan will attract the widest attention, both here and in England. Perhaps the most beautiful series of pictures ever presented of the Rocky mountains will be found in a collection of fourteen original paintings, executed by Thomas Moran for the May Cosmopolitan. To those who have been in the Rockies, this issue of The Cosmopolitan is a souvenir worthy of preservation. This number contains fifty two original drawings, by Thomas Moran, Oliver Herford, Dan Beard, H. M. Eaton, F. G. Attwood, F. O. Small, F. Lix, J. H. Dolph, and Rosina Emmett Sherwood, besides six reproductions of famous recent works of art, and forty other interesting illustrations—ninety-eight in all. Though The Cosmopolitan sells for but fifteen cents, probably no magazine in the world will present for May so great a number of illustrations specially designed for its pages by famous illustrators. The fiction in this number is by F. Hopkinson Smith, Gustav Kobbe, W. Clark Russell, Edgar W. Nye, and T. C. Crawford.

President Woman's Central Committee of North Carolina, Miss FANNIE E. HECK, Raleigh, N. C.; Secretary, Mrs. J. A. BRIGGS, Raleigh, N. C.

Two new narrative leaflets, telling of the work of the Home Board, have been published and will be sent free on application to Miss Fannie E. Heck, Raleigh, N. C.

Now that the annual meeting is a thing of the past, the most important question is how to carry out the recommendations and resolutions made there.

To fully understand the importance of these resolutions, it should be borne in mind that each Board, sometime before the meeting, presents a set of recommendations, giving in succinct form the lines of work on which they think the Womans' Missionary Union can work most effectively and most effectually aid the general work they have in hand. These, together with some practical recommendations as to methods of working from the Executive Committee of the Womans' Missionary Union, are separately submitted to the annual meeting, are discussed fully and at length, and when adopted by that meeting become the basis, or we might say, the great frame to be filled in during the year.

Thus the Boards of the Convention give the work, the Executive Committee tell how it may be done, but the doing depends on the hearty participation in this work and in these methods by every individual Society and every individual of every Society.

The recommendations given in full in this column must, therefore, be of the highest practical interest to each Society.

What shall be North Carolina's part in this work?

As has been said, the only decidedly new feature of the recommendations of the Foreign and Home Boards is that the Union was asked to give a definite amount, the Foreign Board asking the Missionary Societies of the Southern Baptist churches to give $30,000 to the work this year, the Home Board asking for $25,000, an aggregate amount of $55,000!

Yet no one in the annual meeting seemed surprised or drew a long breath; and so far as we heard not a doubt was expressed but that the Societies would reach this large sum. On the contrary, more than one was heard to say that she believed they would go beyond it. The amount given this year to these objects was $44,459 25; so that the increase asked is something less than seven thousand dollars.

Some one will ask, What shall be North Carolina's part in this work?

After, by unanimous vote, these recommendations had been adopted, a suggested apportionment was made among the States, each State represented being, of course, at liberty to object. No one objected, and the suggested apportionment stood approved. Notice, please, the word suggested. No one pledged anything for any one. They only recognized the justice of each State being asked to bear a fair share of the increase asked for, their ability being judged by a review of what each had given every year since the beginning of the Union. Had we space, it would prove interesting to compare the amounts given by all the Societies of the States last year, with what they are asked for this year. Let a few examples suffice: Maryland gave $2,112 57 to Foreign Missions; this year her Societies are asked for $3,400. Texas gave $2,359 to the same object, and is asked for $2,700. South Carolina gave $3,752 89, and is asked for $4,400. Virginia $4,433 97, and is asked for $4,700.

For Home Missions some of last year's amounts, and this year's asked for increase, are: Maryland, $4 142 20; asked for, $4 250. Missouri, $1,524 09; asked for, $1,650. Georgia, $2,501.64; asked for, $2 650.

But what of North Carolina?

Slowly we came to the re-statement of the fact that North Carolina Societies fell behind this year the amounts given for three years previous. We do not like to state this painful fact again, but nevertheless it faces us. Here are the statements of the amounts reported to the Home and Foreign Boards since we joined the Union in 1891:

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

1891	1892	1893	1894	1895
1,150.75	1,806 29	2,781.10	1,996.36	1,583.04

HOME MISSIONS.

1891	1892	1893	1894	1895
$464 72	890 49	1,287.15	1,583 96	863 16

It therefore appears that last year the North Carolina Societies gave $1,583 04 to Foreign Missions and $863 16 to Home Missions. In the suggested apportionment they are asked to give this year $1,950 to Foreign Missions and $1,000 to Home Missions, a total increase of $553 80 to these two objects.

We do not suppose that there is a member of a Society anywhere who does not believe we can make this small increase, remembering that the amount asked for is the total amount, and to include the Christmas Offering for China, the Week of Self Denial, should one be proposed for Home Missions this year as last, or any other plans that may be proposed by the Union.

But to raise this amount means an increase in the contributions of every Society. Shall North Carolina bear her share?

One word more and we are done. Though there are other features of the recommendations, such as a Mission Day in Sunday-schools and the Week of Prayer, which we would like to mention especially. This one word more is about a feature of the work that the recommendations from their very nature, coming as they do from the general Boards, do not mention. We mean State Missions. Our Societies have in the past given far too little to this great object. Should we not and shall we not give this year as much to State Missions as we are asked for, for Home Missions, or in other words, a thousand dollars?

Recommendations.

PREAMBLE.

As Woman's Missionary Union is auxiliary to Southern Baptist Convention, and carries on its work in co-operation with the Boards of the Convention, the following recommendations from the Home, Foreign and Sunday-school Boards, and Executive Committee, W. M. U., are presented:

HOME BOARD.

1. We would suggest that Woman's Mission Societies aim to raise $25,000 for Home Missions during the year, this sum to cover all special efforts, viz: Frontier Boxes, Self-Denial Week, etc., etc.

2. The boxes sent to our missionaries are most helpful to them in their work. While the Board rejoices in their increasing number and value, there is room for more. Let the good work be continued.

3. We especially invite attention to the work among the foreign population—the Mexicans in El Paso, Texas, and New Mexico; among the Germans in Baltimore, Louisville, St. Louis, Kansas City and Oklahoma; among the Cubans in Havana and Florida, and among the Chinese in our great cities. These are the heathen at our doors—a needy and constantly increasing class.

4. The work for colored women and children about our homes is increasing in interest. We desire that it should be fostered by every means in the power of our Christian women.

5. As an aid to interesting the young in missions, we would commend S. S. Missionary Day to Woman's Mission Societies, asking their active co-operation with the S. S. Board in making it a success.

FOREIGN BOARD.

1. For the Christmas Offering for 1895, we recommend the further extension of the work in the great Empire of China, which during this year God has opened up as never before.

2. That the sisters in their missionary societies endeavor to raise during the year $30,000 in aid of Foreign Missions, this sum to include the results of all special efforts, such as Christmas Offerings, etc.

3 That the Woman's Missionary Union be requested, in connection with the Sunday-school Board, which has this work in charge, to lend their valuable aid toward making a grand success of the "Missionary Day" in our Sunday-schools.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL BOARD

1. That the Missionary Day in the Sunday-schools, which proved so successful last year and which brought into the treasuries of the Home and Foreign Boards so large a sum of money, be made a subject of special attention on the part of the W. M. Societies this year.

1. That more emphatically than ever before the ladies emphasize the value of our Convention Series of Sunday-school Helps, as the best agency for inculcating and developing the missionary spirit in the children of our schools; also as greatly aiding in Band work.

3. That they also urge on the Superintendents of the Sunday schools the importance of having the whole school study the missionary lessons on fourth page of Kind Words, as well as the missionary lessons in the quarterlies.

4 That they take into their favor, examine into the merits and press the circulation of the Young People's Leader, as embodying for young people the same missionary features which make Kind Words so helpful to the children.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, WOMAN'S MISSIONARY UNION.

1. Believing that through the influence and power of the Holy Spirit great things can be accomplished for the Lord, we suggest that the first week in January, 1895—the World's Week of Prayer—be observed by the Woman's Mission Societies with special reference to the guidance of the Spirit in the extension of interest in missions; and to make our prayers more specific, that the Mission (Prayer) Card be more generally used.

NOTE.—If providentially prevented from observing this first week of the year, that another time be appointed and observed.

2. As the Foreign Mission Journal, Our Home Field, the publications of the Sunday-school Board at Nashville and the Maryland Baptist Mission Rooms, and religious State papers give the necessary information about the work of the various Boards; therefore, let special effort be made to increase the subscription lists of these publications, so that by the reading of them we may give and pray more intelligently.

3. That the recommendations of Foreign and Home Boards asking for total collections from Woman's Mission Societies of $30,000 and $35,000 respectively, be heartily commended; and we further suggest to give definiteness of aim, that these sums be apportioned among the States.

4 Believing that in the young people is our future strength, we earnestly recommend that the work of organizing Mission Societies and Bands among young women, girls, and boys be vigorously prosecuted. That Central Committees appoint one of their number or elect one to be of their number to take charge of this work in each State.

5. Encouraged by the enthusiasm with which the work of Self denial was entered upon and the results following, it is again recommended that a week of Self-denial be observed by the Societies.

6. That Mothers' Meetings and Industrial Schools be organized among foreign population and colored women and children; and that Sunday-schools be instituted for the Chinese wherever found, whether there be one or more.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The Indian.

BY REV. ELIAS DODSON.

I dwell in the tempest, I'm rocked by the storm,
No pillow of luxury come I to crave,
Sole lord of the brute in whose furs I am warmed;
O pity the red man, ye sons of the wave!
Ere the wide spreading ocean now rolling so blue
Your forefathers bore from afar to our shore
These forests comprised all of pleasures we knew;
O pity the red man thus happy no more!
Ye dwell at the fountains of mental delight
Where streams intellectual deliciously roll
And where the rich banquets so freely invite;
O pity the red man, he, too, has a soul!
Go teach him that name to Christians so dear,
Your passport to mansions of glory on high,
That name which supports you in death without fear,
Declare to the red man, and teach him to die.

Elias Dodson, now in heaven, was known from one end of the State to the other as one of the godliest of the Master's servants. He took it as his life-mission to carry the gospel to the Indians, and there never was a better friend of the Red Man. He studied their traits, learned their language, and compelled their love by his noble devotion.

Taken all in all, we have never known a holier man than Elias Dodson.

The foregoing lines of poetry by Bro. Dodson were sent to us by a friend, and are now published for the first time.

A Wonderful Cure for Cancer.

There is no further need to cut cancers out with knives or burn them out with plasters. Dr. Mason, Richmond, Va., has a cure for this dreadful disease that surpasses all other methods in rapid healing and permanent cure. It will not be worth while, however, to write to the Doctor unless you are tired of quack medicine and so-called cancer doctors who use knives or plasters. Dr. Mason does not compete with such. His remedy is painless and soothing, and the only one suitable for the aged or weak. The relief is immediate and the cure rapid. It seeks out the disease growths and destroys their vitality, causing the cancer to pass away, leaving only an ordinary healthy sore, which rapidly heals.

Dr. Mason has two methods of treatment—"Home Treatment" and "Personal Treatment." "Home Treatment" is for cases where the patients can be cared for at home without any other cost than the medicines, fully as well as to go to Richmond for "Personal Treatment," by the Doctor. The cost for "Home Treatment" is less than half the cost of "Personal Treatment," and for those who can be cured in a few weeks. When writing, describe the case fully, and direct letter to Dr. Scott Mason, 700 E. Clay Street Richmond, Va.

The Mole Disgusted.

Dr. J. P. Stelle says, in the Fort Worth Gazette, that he has always been able to drive moles away from his garden by a very simple method, now to be described. Open small holes in the tunnels here and there and pour in a little cheap molasses. The molasses gums the fur of the animal, engenders disgust, and causes it to transfer its operations to more cleanly localities. Coal tar would probably be better than molasses, though more expensive and less convenient. One good application of the molasses has usually driven the moles away for the season.

A Burning and a Shining Light.

IN MEMORY OF DR. JOHN A. BROADUS.

"A burning, shining light" hath sped
Across our earthly sky;
He walked with God, and upward fled
In peace to dwell on high.

As preacher, teacher, author, friend,
The way he led he trod,
While taking counsel to the end
Of Christ, the Son of God.

Discerning truth and men, he spoke
His message, never failing,
Like Jacob 'neath the angel's stroke,
He struggled long, prevailing.

Upon his spirit heavenward turned
Fell sweetest grace like dew;
His "thoughts that breathed and words that burned"
Made oldest truths look new.

We dreamed that many a smiling year
Should many a charm inspire;
When, lo, the mandate loud and clear,
Was shouted, "Come up higher."

While oft unbidden tears do start,
And oft doth doth bleed our wound;
How fondly beats each brother's heart
To know that thou art crowned!

There beauties ever vernal greet
Thy spirit clothed in love:
We press thy path, and pledge to meet
Thy ransomed soul above.

—D. W. Gwin in Religious Herald.

Mistress: What have you marked that "T. M." on all your pies for Norah? Norah: Sure ma'am, that's to tell th' mince pies from the apple pies. "T. M." on th' mince pies is "'tis mince," and "T. M." on th' apple pies is "'taint mince,"—so I kin tell 'em ma'am, without cutting 'em.—Boston Budget.

Dress Goods.

We have begun a special sale of Dress Goods at 50c. in the dollar.

The majority of these dress goods are the last shipments this season, being duplicates of the goods lost on the ill fated steamer Elbe.

They were duplicated by the manufacturer without our advice, and arriving late, were offered at such prices that we accepted them and are able to offer them at just half their original price.

Estimates for making up will be furnished by our Dress making Department.

By this arrangement one can obtain fine dresses at even less prices than cheaper and medium priced goods.

THESE DRESS GOODS . .

are entirely separate from the regular dress goods department, being upon our second floor, so when writing for samples kindly mention that they are wanted from this lot.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

Mr. Van Vracker, an elderly married man hailing from North Dakoto, has been called to succeed Mr. L. A. Coulter of the State Y. M. C. A. He is said to be a man of energy.——The State Democratic Execu Committee has aroused considerable feeling among the anti free silver men of that party by issuing a call to all people to join in with it in a fight for free silver coinage at 16 to 1. The silver fever is running so high that many predict a quick and decided revulsion. ——A young man near Asheville became so dangerous while under the influence of liquor recently that one of his friends shot him fatally. Judge Norwood was so drunk at Lumberton that court could not be held. This is shameful. He ought to be impeached; and all good men should refuse to vote for any man who is not temperate.——Another large cotton mill will be built at Graham. A large mill near Monroe has been put up for sale on account of mortgage. It has paid fairly well.——Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., will preach at Elon College commencement June 12. He will lecture at Mt. Airy that night.——Rev. W. F. Walker of Brown Summit, once prohibition candidate for Governor, died May 27. He had been editor of the Christian Sun and later of a prohibition organ.——Four men were killed and two dangerously scalded by explosion of a saw mill at Downsville, Caldwell county, May 28 ——A dime Savings Bank will be established at Raleigh in the near future. It is well backed.——The session of the United States Circuit Court at Raleigh last week brought more than 500 moonshiners and illegal retailers of liquor together. There were 350 defendants; the others were witnesses. An unusually large number were found guilty. A statement is made that nine-tenths of the crime in this State can be traced to this class of people. We notice they tried to blow up the house of an aged couple near Concord last week, because the latter were suspected of telling on them.——Through the enterprise of the three leading railway systems running through this State, our resources will be well exhibited at the Atlanta Exposition. ——The official war figures are just coming out, and North Carolina takes the place of honor in number of killed. She lost 14 523 out of a white population of 629.942; Virginia lost 5,328 out of 1,047,-299; South Carolina lost 9,187 out of 412,-320; Georgia lost 5,553 out of 591,550; Mississippi lost 5,807 out of 353,899; Louisiana lost 9,714 out of 357,456 ——A new roller mill will be put up at Rutherfordton.——A new post office, Gombroon, has been established and a Baptist preacher, Rev. Mr. Tyson, is postmaster.——At the Episcopal Council at Fayetteville last week the fiftieth anniversary of the elevation of Rev. Bishop Watson to the priesthood, was celebrated. ——The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Carolina Methodist Conference convened in annual session at Fayetteville last week. Report of Secretary showed $3 962 93 raised last year.——The orthodox Jews of Wilmington have organ ised and dedicated a new synagogue ——New divisions of the Naval Reserve have been organized at Elizabeth City, Morehead City and Kinston.——The Normal and Industrial School of Greensboro will add a wing at each end of its main building.——The Oxford Orphan Asylum is enlarging; and the Odd Fellows contemplate expending $17,000 for additional buildings for their Asylum at Goldsboro.——$4,000 000 has already been expended on the Vanderbilt estate at Biltmore, and $2,000,000 more will be.——Plans are on foot for the reorganization of the C. F. & Y. V. Railway.——Judge Walter Clark and Dr. S. B. Weeks are engaged in completing the work of collating and publishing the State "Colonial Records." ——On account of the new assignment law, papers have been issued with a view of declaring void the assignment of Col. J. W. Alspaugh, involving $40 000 If this suit is sustained, others will follow.——The Supreme Court has marked out a new course for applicants for law license. The principal change is that in place of seven or eight volumes, costing $6 each, there has been substituted the three volumes of "Ewell's Essentials," costing $2 each. These contain all of the displaced eight volumes which is not obsolete.——Four young men, representing some kind of a new heathen sect, have arrived in New York and are on their way to Mitchell county, this State, with the purpose of establishing their order; so it is reported in a Northern paper

In General.

There was a notable gathering of distinguished men at Chicago May 30th at the unveiling of a monument to the Confederate soldiers. North and South were well represented.——Earthquakes in Vermont were the occasion of considerable alarm May 29th, 30th; but no damage was done.——Two young white men were lynched in Illinois May 24th for criminal assaults. A young negro in Maryland under sentence of death was lynched May 28th.——It is reported by telegraph that an extraordinary session of Congress will be called in October to provide for raising revenue to carry on the government.——100 000 idle people walk the streets of New York City, and half of them are fed by charity. The usual fresh air, free ice and free-milk funds for poor children are being raised; also there are persistent efforts to provide work for those who want it. 150 000 idle people are said to exist in Chicago.——The anti-lottery test case before the Supreme Court has been decided against the lotteries. The Geary Chinese Exclusion law has been found constitutional, and will be enforced.——The new State of Utah has framed its Constitution by convention, and will submit it for popular approval in November. It forbids polygamy, but permits women to vote and hold office. The State of Wyoming also allows this.——The striking West Virginia miners have resumed work.——The massacre of more than 30 negro colonists in Mexico is reported. They are in the power of Mexicans, and are killed in efforts to escape to this country.——Oscar Wilde has been found guilty in English Courts of heinously immoral conduct and sentenced to two years at hard labor.——Russia compelled Japan to relinquish her well-won hold on the Chinese mainland, and now the little island of Formosa, ceded by China, has asserted her independence and will make Japan go to war to hold her.——A dreadful disaster at sea was reported last week. A dispatch from Mazatland, Mexico, by way of Galveston, Texas, reports that the steamer "Carolina" ran upon a reef in a storm, her boilers thereupon exploding, the ship going down with more than 100 persons lost, a few being saved. The captain went down with his ship, having shown remarkable coolness.——The Cuban insurrectionists are not making any headway.——The United States civil service laws have been extended so as to cover all chiefs of division in the Department of Agriculture and all revenue officers except deputy collectors. The civil service laws do not amount to much, because they are not hard to be evaded.——Eugene V. Debs has lost his appeal to the Supreme Court, and with his fellows will go to jail ——Superintendent Byrnes of the New York police system has resigned. This is considered a victory for Dr. Parkhurst, who will not go to Europe to rest. Byrnes was the master of a great detective system, but repeated attacks on the character of his captains destroyed confidence in him. It will be hard to replace him.——The wages of about 20.000 workers for the Carnegie Iron works at Pittsburgh, Pa., have been increased ten per cent——It is estimated that $107,000,-000 is now invested in cotton mills at the South, and $12 000.000 in projected mills. The amount in 1880 was $21.900 000; in 1890 $61,100,000 ——Pennsylvania has a compulsary education law for children between eight and thirteen years of age.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

In PARIS.

Eminent Parisian Physicians order BUFFALO LITHIA WATER specially for Uric Acid Diathesis, Bright's Disease, Gout, Rheumatism, etc.

Dr. Thomas H. Buckler, of Paris (formerly of Baltimore), Suggester of Lithia as a Solvent for Uric Acid, says:
"Nothing I could say would add to the well known reputation of the
BUFFALO LITHIA WATER
"I have frequently used it with good results in Uric Acid Diathesis, Rheumatism, and Gout, and with this object I ordered it to Europe, from Baltimore. Lithia is in no form so valuable as where it exists in the Carbonate, the form in which it is found in the
BUFFALO LITHIA WATER
G. Halstead Boyland, A. M., M. D., of the Faculty of Paris and University of Leipsic
"In cases of Bright's Disease in which albumen in the urine reached as high as fifty per cent., I have known it under a course of gradually diminish and finally disappear; at the same time other alarming symptoms were relieved and the sufferers restored to health."
BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Dr. Wm. A. Hammond,
Washington, D. C., Surgeon-General U. S. Army (retired).
"I have for some time made use of the
BUFFALO LITHIA WATER
in cases of affections of the nervous system complicated with Bright's Disease of the Kidneys or with a Gouty Diathesis. The results have been eminently satisfactory."

Dr. Alfred L. Loomis,
Professor of Pathology and Practical Medicine in the Medical Department of University of New York:
"For the past four years I have used in the treatment of chronic Bright's Disease of the Kidneys occurring in Gouty and Rheumatic subjects with marked benefit."
BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Dr. Wm. B. Towles,
Professor of Anatomy and Materia Medica in the Medical Department of the University of Virginia:
"I feel no hesitancy whatever in saying that in Gout, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatism, Stone in the Bladder, and in all diseases of Uric Acid Diathesis, I know of no remedy at all comparable to
BUFFALO LITHIA WATER
"I have witnessed decided beneficial results from its use in Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, and have great confidence in it as a remedy in certain stages of this disease."

Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, of New York, Professor of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System, in the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital:
"In all cases of Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, I have found
BUFFALO LITHIA WATER
of the greatest service in increasing the quantity of urine and in eliminating the albumen."

Ayer's Hair Vigor

RESTORES

Color, Fullness and Texture TO HAIR

Which has become Wiry, Thin, or Gray.

"Some five years ago, I was not a little alarmed to discover that my hair was falling out, threatening speedy baldness. AYER'S Hair Vigor being recommended, I procured a bottle and at once applied it to my hair and scalp, continuing to do so for several weeks, and was happily surprised that my hair stopped falling and new hair came out full of life and vigor. AYER'S Hair Vigor does not only restore new hair, but gives new life and vigor to its growth, and is a blessing to all who use it." Rev. D. J. BURT, Baptist Minister and Clerk of the Superior Court, Dawsonville, Ga.

A Living Shadow.

(From the Greenville, N. C., Reflector.)

The following interview has just been given our reporter by Mr. G. A. Baker the overseer at the farm of Col. Isaac A. Sugg, of Greenville, N. C. It will interest anyone who has ever had Typhoid fever. Mr. Baker said in part:

"I was living in Beaufort county, and on the 2d day of October, 1893, I was stricken with typhoid fever. I had the best physicians to attend me and on the 15th day of January, 1894, I was allowed to get up. I was emaciated, weak and had no appetite. I could only drag along for a short distance and would be compelled to sit down and rest. This continued for some time and I began to give up all hope of ever getting well. I lost my position in Beaufort county and having secured one in Pitt county, clerking in a store, I undertook it, but was so weak I could not do the work and had to give it up. The disease settled in my knees, legs and feet. I was taking first one kind of medicine and then another, but nothing did me any good. I was mighty low-spirited. I moved out to Col. Sugg's about four or five months ago and commenced taking Dr. Williams' Pills. I took three a day for about three months. I began to regain my appetite in a week's time, and then my weakness began to disappear, and hope sprung up with a blessedness that is beyond all telling. At the expiration of the three months I was entirely cured and could take my axe and go in the woods and do as good a day's work as any man. I was troubled with dyspepsia and that has disappeared. It is also a splendid tonic for weak people. I say, Mr. Editor, God bless Dr. Williams may he live for a long time, I know he will go up yonder to reap his reward for he has done a wonderful lot of good. 'Tell everybody that asks you about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People that if they will come to me I can certainly satisfy them as to their merits. I always carry a box of pills with me and when ever I feel bad I take one." We were forcibly struck with the earnestness of Mr. Baker and his statements may may be relied on.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female, and all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2 50) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

DIED.

BROWN—Sister Jane E. Brown died in the State of Missouri April 27th, 1895. She was nearly eighty years of age. For many years she was an active member of Abbott's Creek church. For a few years she belonged to the First Baptist church in Winston, N. C. She was a woman of strong faith in God. Her love for her church was intense and constant. In her last days she was toiling to help the church. Many in North Carolina and in Missouri will recall her works of charity and her life of faith. H. A. B.

GREEN—Sister Priscilla A. Green, wife of James R. Green, departed this life May 2d, 1895. She leaves a husband, six children, and some grandchildren to mourn their loss, but their loss is her gain. We trust she is at rest. At the age of twelve she professed faith in Christ and joined the church at Bethlehem, and there remained until her death. Sister Green died at the age of fifty-five years, five months and twenty-three days. She was born in Hertford county, N. C., near Bethlehem church, in 1839.

JAMES D. GREEN.

SATTERFIELD—Sister Celia M. Satterfield departed this life May 8th, 1895. She was fifty-eight years old, and had been a member of the Baptist church forty-eight years. She raised eight children, all of whom are members of the Baptist church. She lived with her husband thirty-two years.

Sister Satterfield lived a Christian life. She was a good neighbor. She leaves behind a husband and children, three brothers and one sister to mourn their loss; but their loss is her eternal gain. Sleep on, mother, we shall see you in the sweet bye and bye.

The funeral was conducted by the writer.

S. F. BRISTOW.

STOKES—Departed this life April 20th, 1895, at her home near Warsaw, Miss Sadie Stokes, in the twenty-second year of her age. She was a consistent member of Johnson Baptist church, having joined that church when about seventeen years of age. Since the death of her father and mother, which occurred several years ago, she has resided with her aunt and two brothers, to whom she was a great comfort. The absence and influence of her life in that home is a sore bereavement—but there is comfort in the blessed thought that she rests from her labors, and while her friends sustain an irreparable loss, she enjoys eternal gain.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

MOORE—A peculiarly afflictive dispensation of Divine Providence has been visited upon Moore's Chapel Baptist church in the death of one of its prominent members, Bro. Green Moore, which occurred on Tuesday morning, April 23d, 1895, at 6:30 o'clock, aged seventy-seven years, seven months and fifteen days. Bro. Moore was the second oldest member of Moore's Chapel Church. He gave his heart to Jesus early in life and joined the Baptist church. He formally belonged to Mt. Olive Baptist church, some eight miles from his home, to which he proved faithful, and was one of the deacons. Later in life he became interested in a church nearer his home. He was one of the founders of Moore's Chapel Church, which now stands some four hundred yards in front of his old homestead. He and his older brother, Chesley, who now survives him, gave the land for the church site, in whose honor the church was named. He was also a deacon in this church, and was frequently chosen delegate to represent his church in their Association.

Bro. Moore was not only a true and faithful church member—he was a kind husband, loving father, and a good neighbor. The door of his home was ever open to receive his pastor as well as friends into his hospitable home. No doubt many of the minister's minds will run back to the pleasant hours they have spent with him around his fireside when they read this sketch. These traits of character won for him the love and esteem of most all who knew him. The public respect and honor shown to the memory of the deceased at his burial was proof enough that this is true. Our dear brother was not confined but a few days in his last affliction, but had been in declining health for some time. During his last illness he had the attention of a loving wife, affectionate children and kind neighbors.

Now after giving this partial sketch of Bro. Moore's life, let each and every one bow with humble submission to the will of him who doeth all things well, ever remembering there is comfort in the thought that God reigns and controls all events and makes no mistakes. So let the survivors take the example of Bro. Moore and follow Christ as he did, that their portion may be like his in the bright world to which we have every reason to believe he has ascended.

"How blest the righteous when he dies,
When sinks the weary soul to rest;
How mildly beam the closing eyes,
How gently heaves the expiring breast.

Life's labor done as sinks the clay,
Light from its load the spirit flies,
While heaven and earth combined to say
How blest the righteous when he dies."

Rev. P. S. C. Davis, a brother whom Virginia claims, but whom North Carolina will not give up, was missed at the Chowan week before last. He sends us his subscription, and some kind words instead of a club that he might have brought with him to the Association. We appreciate this: "I love the old RECORDER; it was the first paper I subscribed for and it shall be the last."

COTTOLENE.

Lardepsia

would be a more appropriate name for that common cause of suffering—dyspepsia—because most cases of dyspepsia can be traced to food cooked with lard. Let COTTOLENE take the place of lard in your kitchen and good health will take the place of Dyspepsia. Try it. Every pail of the genuine COTTOLENE bears this trade mark—steer's head in cotton-plant wreath.

Have You? Many Millions Have accepted James Pyle's invitation to try his wonderful discovery, Pyle's Pearline; for easy washing and cleaning. You couldn't count them in a lifetime. Some of the twelve million housekeepers in this land must have accepted very often. That's the way with Pearline. The wise woman who investigates, tries it; the woman who tries it continues to use it. A daily increasing sale proves it. The truth is, there's nothing so acceptable as Pearline. Once accept its help, and you'll decline the imitations—they don't help you. It washes clothes or cleans house. It saves labor and it saves wear. It hurts nothing, but it's suited to everything. Try it when it suits you, for it will suit you when you try it.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 175 JAMES PYLE, New York.

The Home Circle.

She Made Home Happy.

"She made home happy!" These few words I read
Within a churchyard, written on a stone;
No name, nor date, the simple words alone
Told me the story of the unknown dead
A marble column lifted high its head,
Close by, inscribed to one the world had known,
But, ah! that lonely grave, with moss o'er-grown,
Thrilled me far more than his who armies led.

"She made home happy!" Through the long sad years
The mother toiled, and never stopped to rest
Until they crossed her hands upon her breast,
And closed her eyes, no longer dim with tears.
The simple record that she left behind
Was grander than the soldier's—to my mind.
—Henry Coyle, in New York Sun.

Premonitions.

I have not spilt one drop of joy
Poured in the sense of the boy,
Nor Nature fails my walk to bless
With all her golden inwardness;
And as blind nestlings, unafraid,
Stretch up wide-mouthed to every shade
By which their downy dream is stirred,
Taking it for the mother-bird,
So, when God's shadow, which is light,
Unheralded, by day or night,
My wakening instincts fall across,
Silent as sunbeams over moss,
In my heart's nest half-conscious things
Stir with a helpless sense of wings,
Lift themselves up and tremble long
With premonitions sweet of song.
—James Russell Lowell

Two Stories of Two Queens.

The following is an interesting story of the little Queen of Holland. It must be a bewildering relation for a little girl to be her mother's queen. It must take a very wise woman to be a mother and a subject of the same little girl. Her Majesty, Wilhelmina, the girl Queen of Holland, is at present only fourteen years of age, and she is credited with an even larger measure of caprice and precocity than is usually granted to less exalted young ladies at that interesting period of life. Her mother, the Queen of Regent, therefore thinks it well at times to deal severely with Welhelmina's little ways. Lately the young queen, desiring to speak to her mother, knocked—not, perhaps, in the most dignified fashion—at the door of the room in which the Queen Regent was engaged.

"Who is there?"

"It is the Queen of Holland!" imperiously.

"Then she must not enter!" peremptorily.

At this rebuff the little queen suddenly changed her tactics, and, softening her tones, said, winningly: "Mamma, it is your own little daughter, that loves you and would like to kiss you."

"You may come in."

The story is pretty, but it is doubtful if it is true. It bears a close resemblance to a story that is very old, told of Queen Victoria and her husband Prince Albert.

The queen was Prince Albert's wife, but she was still his queen. It is said that when they had been married a short time they had a little dispute. It ended in Prince Albert going to his room. The queen, it is said, was the first one to be sorry. She went to the door of her husband's room and knocked.

"Who is there?" he asked.

"The queen," was the answer.

"She cannot come in," was the response of the prince.

The queen, it is said, waited a few minutes and knocked again.

"Who is there?" was asked.

"Victoria, your wife," was the reply; and the door was opened.

You see how closely the stories resemble each other. I prefer to think of the little Queen of Holland as the sweet little girl, always dressed in the pretty white dress her mother chooses for her, playing with the sons of the Emperor of Germany, her visitors, and other playmates, a happy, free little Dutch girl, greatly bored when she must attend court ceremonies.

No wonder Dr. Wayland Hoyt was moved to exclaim, "If young people only knew the value of their youth!" He says: "A half hour each day steadily given to the vanquishing of some real books in history, science and literature, is three hours a week, is more than twelve hours a month, is more than twelve solid days of twenty-four hours each year. What cannot the busiest man accomplish by such seizures of fragments of time! O if the young people only knew the culture possible for them by such simple means! And for evermore it is the man who gets to be the human being who does, and to whom the chance for doing comes. Merely frittering newspaper and novel reading—a youthhood only devoted to that—how pitiably sad! No ship drifts into harbor. No young person drifts into an achieving manhood or womanhood."—Christian Neighbor.

Money-making for Boys.

If I were a farmer boy, I should either cultivate some particular fruit or vegetable, go into the poultry business on shares, or form a partnership with my mother in the preparation of fruit and vegetables for market. I would be more independent to know that what I had I had earned; and I am sure that later in life I would have cause to rejoice in those early days of business training.

The boy on the farm can usually have a piece of ground, rent free, on which to try his skill. He can set out a strawberry bed, borrowing the money for the plants, if need be, of his father, and giving his note in a business-like way. Off this he cannot hope to make anything the first year—there may be a few berries for table use—but the second there will be returns, and so on.

The most prominent small-fruit grower in Wisconsin says: "I can raise ten bushels of ripe, luscious berries with no more labor than the farmer puts on ten bushels of wheat. The wheat sells for seventy or eighty cents per bushel; my strawberries for $3.00 per bushel. The average cost per box of my berries is two cents; I never sell them for less than ten."

Now, if I were a farmer boy, I would deliberately settle in my own mind what business I wanted to engage in, remembering that there are losses as well as gains in everything. I would read up on the culture and marketableness of different fruits, of celery, of asparagus, of many different things, and then try to choose intelligently. I have a theory (based upon the experience of successful men) that most people do best by making a specialty of some one thing.

Some of our boys may think they have not time to run a little industry of their own, but in the case of the majority "where there's a will there's a way."—V. C. Melville, in American Agriculturist.

Take Time.

Let us take time for the good bye kiss. We shall go to the day's work with a sweeter spirit for it. Let us take time to speak kind words to those we love. By and by, when they can no longer hear us, our foolishness will seem more wise than our best wisdom. Let us take time to be pleasant. The small courtesies which we often omit because they are small will some day look larger to us than the wealth which we have coveted or the fame for which we have struggled. Let us take time to get acquainted with our families. The wealth you are accumulating may be a doubtful blessing to the son who is a stranger to you. Your beautifully kept house, busy mother, can never be a home to the daughter whom you have no time to caress.—Christian Herald.

Decision.

I thought on my ways and turned my feet unto thy testimonies.—Psalms 119: 59.

Thought is the mother of acts. Act is the mother of deed. Deed is the mother of character. Character makes the man: "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he." Think of God, and thy acts will be godly.

Do for God, and you will have a godly character. If our thoughts are pure, our deeds will be pure, our character will be pure. What is greater, grander and nobler than a pure character born of God?

Our hearts ought to have so many thoughts consecrated to God on them that there would not be room for those that are against Him. If we think for God, act for God, live for God, we will die for God, and heaven will be ours.—Christian Observer.

"Sheep," says a writer, "are a species of stock which are naturally as free from disease as any of our domestic animals, but when once attacked they give up easily and do not try to rally. In our own experience preventing disease by giving the flock common care—neither coddling nor neglecting—we have been fairly successful, and consider sheep one of the best paying branches of farm economy. A hog dies and we have nothing to repay us for the labor of burial; from a horse we have an inferior hide and perhaps his shoes; a cow's hide is usually worth taking off, but when a sheep goes the way of all flesh, it never dies in debt, that is, its fleece will always pay for what has been eaten since last shearing. Keep sheep."

If the Critics are Right, What?

BY MOCLELLAN BROWN.

Interpretation may be altered, but truth will not be smirched. There is an evidence of validity of the Hebrew Scriptures which stands above all criticism in point of fact, and below all current examination in point of scientific foundation. This test of truth is not far to seek.

The value to profane history, of the Hebrew writings, has never been questioned. They are the record of one of the families of the earth, which made a most profound impression upon the world's history. These writings set forth what is generally true of a tribal people with one important addition. Their religious ideal was higher and purer. The Hebrews were taught through varied experiences, the ethical principle of good will, limited, it is true, to their own tribes; but not the less an imperative obedience for the sake of good will to all,—a national criterion.

This teaching involved purity of life, sturdiness of character, and eventual exaltation of ideal. In the lapse of tribal power and national autonomy during the later centuries before Christ, they sought chiefly their national restoration. And it was natural they should interpret their ancient writings as pointing to such supremacy. Hence when their ideal was realized in the Christ of their Scriptures, he was to them the carpenter's son. They did not recognize him, because they misunderstood their own Scriptures,—the moral meanings of their own history. In other words, when the ethical ideal of their own life-history was revealed in actual life, they did not know him. Why? Because they had misinterpreted his moral glory to mean temporal power.

We are in danger of a similar error from an opposite extreme view. They wanted a material fact to harmonize with their interpretations. We want a purely ethical and intuitional fact to harmonize with our theories or interpretations.

As the life of Christ was the test of both material and ethical meanings of Hebrew history, so the life of Christ to day is the test of the ethical or intuitional fact of inspiration which we wish to establish beyond the power of criticism.

The acts and character of Jesus must be the perfect expression of truth rounded up in a life. The continued discipleship of Jesus must therefore be the perpetuated manifestation of his life in the world.

Let the interpretations be unprejudiced by any doctrinal views, and look sincerely for the life of Christ in the church,—in the world. For he lives in his kingdom which is not bounded by church walls. He lives actually in the practical life of men. He lives really and personally in the world, though not of the world. He lives spiritually, yet not without a body,—not theoretically in the cloister, or pulpit, or official head of a religious propagandism. He lives in the life of men, in all the duties and joys and sufferings and loves of men. He lives such a real, such an actual life the world does not recognize him because of their unrealistic theories about him.

These theories and formulas are chiefly the product of cloistered, impractical and structural dogmatism, which idealizes the life of Christ beyond the possible embodiment in human form. They limit the power of man's spirit for a living unity with God. Yet, this fact Christ promised his disciples. The spiritual fact of this unity is the unique feature, differentiating the morality of the teaching of Christ from all other religions. This is the new principle in the otherwise old commandment to "love one another." Superior to the golden rule, it actuates a vital relation, even to our enemies, of the good will eternal.

This real life of Christ in the world is a personality in each of his disciples. This personality is as eternal as the type of individuality in nature. The spirit endowment is true to its type in every soul. Through all the changes of environment, this free, spiritual manhood and womanhood is actuant in the field of human love. It is a vital Christliness, > ——"whose life-blood coursing high > Gives strength to all the ages."

The sermon on the mount is the platform of principles upon which Christ lives in the life of men. It is radically a doctrine of good will—a code which goes to the core of daily life and practical human relations. It goes to the root of conduct.

The test of validity then turns upon the conduct of the cult. Is Christ in the world as predicted? Lives he in the lives of men—every-day business men? Works he the miracles of mercy by the hands of men who feel the anguish of society? Feeds he the multitude by the co operation of his disciples? Teaches he the new commandment by the sacrifice of life for the love of men? Speaks he still with the authority of a great Divine impulse of love?

This is a final test of inspiration,—the truth of God expressed in the conduct of men. There an unseen but free spirit imposes duty upon itself and proceeds to do it regardless of selfish aims.

The Christian religion has thus become the flower and fruit of the Hebrew stock. The unique distinction between the two is the Christian consciousness of God by the spirit.

The Hebrews was an implicit ideal. The Christian's is an explicit ideal, leveling up toward the Divine will. It is a religion of the spirit of life.

This union of the concrete practice with the abstract theory of good will to men is the only logic of conviction. It is the only manifestation of revelation—the only evidence that Christ still lives—the true test of Divine inspiration.

Sunday-school and Mission Work.

[Read before the S. C. B S. S. Association at Jonesboro, N. C., by Miss Lizzie Brooks, March 30th 1895, and requested for publication in the RECORDER.]

The Sunday school substantially represents one of God's chosen agencies for the evangelization and for the instruction of those whom his church is set to reach and to rear. It is an agency by which the word of God is taught. Through its teaching the children realize the need of salvation, without which no one can become an heir of God.

For this reason our teachers should search earnestly for the truths given in God's word, in order to instil into the hearts of the young the feeling of the need of salvation.

He who as a child has received the truths designed for children by Sunday schools is in a degree qualified to impart those truths to others.

It should be the aim of the Sunday school to give each member the basis of a scriptural education, fully preparing him to impart his knowledge to others that all may have a knowledge of God. We are divinely commanded to give the gospel to every creature. This commission was given to all of Christ's disciples, and it includes all nations. This command is binding on us as Christians as long as there is a nation without the gospel. It is the very nature of a living Christianity to be missionary. The spirit of missions is responsive. It is the response of a soul called out of darkness into light, filled with love and gratitude for the renewing influence of the Holy Spirit, with anxiety and love for the unenlightened and unsaved. The Sunday-school should be the connecting link between the Christian and the world. It is the artery, the great aorta, through which the story of the cleansing blood of Christ flows most freely in the circulation of biblical information.

The great heart, the church, throbs and beats, propelling the knowledge of the Scriptures through this artery until it branches off into smaller arteries, called societies; thence into capillaries, called practical work. Just in proportion as the Sunday-school has been accorded the place which our Lord would have it occupy, has substantial progress been made in the membership and in the upbuilding of the body of Christian believers in the knowledge of God's word and in the practice of its precepts. Christ, at the age of twelve years, was seen in a Bible school taking a part in its ordinary exercise in accordance with the customs of that time. He was sitting in the midst of the teachers, both hearing them and asking questions. Catechetical teaching is often more effective than preaching from the pulpit, because it commands a response. It has been affirmed as the best means for imparting knowledge to children. There should be an interchange of thought or knowledge between the teacher and pupil. Words written on the memory without ideas or sense in the mind will never incline one to his duty nor save his soul. If the world is ever brought to Christ, we as Christians must organize, and the Sunday-school is the greatest evangelical organization under the authority of the church.

The conspiracy of infidels and atheists in the Eighteenth Century against religion, government and humanity, against truth and peace, order and liberty, shook the foundations of kingdoms and nations, and attempted to destroy from the earth the church and kingdom of God, and the name and glory of the Lord Jesus Christ. In the city of Gloucester, England, in 1780, began the modern Sunday-school movement. This was followed a few years later by the organization of the society from which William Carey went as a missionary to India, and the beginning of modern missions. This was the beginning of a new period of life and hope to the church of Christ, and through the church to the world. The personal Bible study in the Sunday-school caused a great interest in the world's religious needs that led to a higher interest in foreign missions.

We now need a missionary awakening in our churches. We must give the gospel to the world. Christianity is a universal religion, and we must accept the heathen as our inheritance. Our wealth and power as Christians are sufficient for this. If we will only use what God gives us for the upbuilding of his kingdom, we can but succeed. Cannot each of us lend a helping hand in the mission work that is being prosecuted throughout the world? If we cannot sacrifice earthly pleasures for the heathen of foreign lands, we can find them nearer, even at our door. Are not we as Christians responsible for the heathen condition of many here in our own land? If we cannot carry the gospel we can consecrate our small talents to him and his service; for each of us has a work to do. Perhaps some of us have talents lying dormant within us which, if only cultivated, would result in much good. The command is to preach the gospel. All are not preachers; all are not teachers. I know of no place more suited to all than the work of the Sunday school. There are no barriers to entrance. Every one can take a part in the noble work and show himself worthy of so great a trust involved in that commission. Every school is a missionary society of itself, and should develop into a working order for the express purpose of extending Christian knowledge. Oh, what a blessed thing to have a part in the final triumph of the gospel. Let us be up and doing so that when our Father calls us home we can say, "I have finished the work thou gavest me to do."

Dots Here and There.

BY REV. J. J. LANSDELL.

This is an age of show, parade, ostentation and extravagance, in religion as well as other things. Enter some houses built ostensibly for the worship of God, and the plain man is struck with the gaudy appearance of his surroundings, the stained glass windows, and the fancy paintings of the walls and ceiling are in keeping with the windows, so that the whole thing looks more like a theatre than a place dedicated to divine worship. These things remind one of Rev. 17: 4, 5. White is an emblem of purity, while gaudy colors are an emblem of impurity. Baptists have no business with houses of worship decorated with gaudy colors. They are not in good taste, neither are they in harmony with the gospel.

I wish Baptists would learn to love the church and quit their society movements. Christ loved the church, and gave himself for it (not the society, but the church.) It is true the church is a society, but it is a society invested with divinely authorized functions, and he chose to name it church. True, it is very plain and simple in its organization, but just such as the Lord chose. It is the output of divine wisdom, and we can't improve upon the pattern. It is just such as he designed to be the home of his people while on earth, for enjoyment, for fellowship and for labor. It is the place where he gave the Spirit, and where he designed that the Spirit should dwell. This running about after societies reminds one of the words of Christ, "Lo, here is Christ, lo, there is Christ." If there is any spirituality in a man, be he young or old, the church is entitled to the benefit of it directly. I am inclined to think that Sister Dorcas had her sewing circle where they labored in that way for the cause of Christ. The good sisters now have similar circles or societies, and they have their missionary societies and aid societies, and the young men have their prayer meetings for improvement, but all these are in the church. These several departments of labor are somewhat like a garden laid off in squares, but all enclosed by the same fence.

I am glad to notice an awakened enquiry on the offices and work of the Spirit. I have not read Dr. Gordon's book on the Ministry of the Spirit, but have no doubt of its being a good book, neither have I any doubt about its being timely. I have read the Bible on the subject and tried to study what it says. A great deal of the modern religious excitement is like bubbles on the wave, but the work of the Spirit is permanent. He that is born of the Spirit becomes a child of God, is made partaker of the divine nature and is sealed unto the day of redemption. This is permanent work. A child born unto one can never be any one else's child; one made partaker of the divine nature is a new man, and when sealed by the Spirit unto the day of redemption, immovable. This is quite different from the oft-repeated twaddle about human volition and the great stress placed on free agency. Let the Spirit be honored and his power sought in the churches, and he will honor those who honor him.

Work in Korea.

On our way to China on the ship, we fell in with a big Canadian from Nova Scotia, a Scotchman by descent, who was going to Korea as a missionary. He was alone and had come without an appointment from his Board (Presbyterian). We spent much time with him on shipboard and learned to love him for his consecration and deep spiritual life. A lively, strong, big-bodied, big-brained, big hearted man he is. He expected to work in Korea under his own direction, as he felt led by the Lord, and his support was to come from voluntary contributions in Canada. Since he has gone to Korea, war troubles have arisen, and the missionaries have been compelled to flee to the port cities for protection. I have a letter from Mr. McKenzie, dated Dec. 15, from North Korea, "180 miles," he said, "from any foreigner." I quote from his letter, thinking it will be of interest, and will give us an encouraging example of consecration of life and all to Christ in the salvation of the heathen. He says:

"I have struck out for the country from the first. It was very painful to stay even for one month in Soul where so many are cooped up together. I came up here (Sorai) over two months ago. The consul would give no passport, owing to the troubles. The Japs and Chinese have changed their fighting from Korea. Since then we are having a lively time with the Tong Haks. These fellows started about five or six years ago. A Korean who was taught some truth by the Jesuit priests seemed anxious to gain influence, and, like Mahomet, received messages and valuable letters from heaven, &c. So now his followers are studying these letters and spreading their doctrine. There is a prophecy that the present reigning dynasty must be overthrown. This guild is now fast spreading here in the north where first there was supposed to be none. They are virtually rebels, or the poor oppressed people rising and asserting their rights. These officials and their hirelings are indeed the scum of the nation, and, as you have them in China, living on the helplessness of the poor. The officials get beatings and some, according to their iniquity, have to hand over money and rice to these fellows. Twice my life was threatened and my few belongings sent off to another place. I expected within a few hours to be in eternity. To escape or hide was impossible. Every village was full of them, and night and day they were on the road. I had only to meet my fate. A Christian went to see a leader, who formerly was his friend. Strange to say, he found a Chinese New Testament in his possession, and quoting some of the words of Jesus. Soon the Christian taught him the deep meaning of His words. Here they conversed on till morning, when the rebel leader thanked him for his instruction and promised him protection, and so day by day they pass by us on their errands of murder and plunder. Several Japs and two or three interpreters were shot and mangled with swords and spears quite near. I go about the villages unmolested, indeed the foreigner's favor is sought, as he is suspected of being able to give advice. Christian books are sought by many, expecting that when the Japs come, they will grant immunity to the Tong Haks. My work is to preach the Word. Oh, if I lived nearer God I could accomplish more. Heathen influence is most depressing on the spiritual life. The other day the villagers gathered and asked me to allow them to erect a tall flag staff on which to unfurl the banner of Jesus. This we did—white flag with red cross, design of St. George. We gathered and sang 'All hail the power of Jesus' name' in Korean. They seemed glad to have it, believer and unbeliever, and even the rebels lent a hand. Thus every day this emblem of purity and suffering for the sake of others preaches a silent but most eloquent sermon.

"There is now not one missionary in the interior but myself. All the others are in the open ports. I am 180 miles from any foreigner."

Would not such zeal and consecration as this brother's life shows bring down a speedy blessing on the heathen world, if such a spirit should take hold of our churches? Let us pray God to help us not to wait for opportunities, but to make them in his name.

Prayer for China.

It has been suggested by the prayer-card issued by the Women's Missionary Union that the month of June be set apart for special prayer for China. Our Sunday-school publications at Nashville have also directed attention to China for this month.

I wish to urge some reasons why China has special claims upon our prayers at this time. North Carolinians should need no reminder of the claim of this heathen empire. She has given to us some of her best men, and is in advance of any other State in sending her sons to this needy field. Yates, Greene, Britton, Chappell, Bryan, Herring, Bostick, Royall, and others, have gone from the Old North State to carry the gospel to the Chinese. Still it is well sometimes to have our "pure minds stirred up by way of remembrance." I urge special and constant prayer for China during the month of June.

1. Because this is a time of crisis in China. The war with Japan has resulted in the humiliation of the Chinese. The arrogance and self-conceit of the Chinese have been an obstacle to their accepting the gospel. No one can enter the kingdom of heaven except as a little child. Then the ruling classes have found their schemes for obstructing foreign intercourse and keeping the gospel from the masses of the people a failure. New cities and towns in the interior will be thrown open to residence and trade, and consequently to missionary effort. In South China, Bro. Simmons writes me that Shin Hing and Ng (Wu) Chan, on the West River, are to be made open ports. This is especially encouraging as within two years past these cities have been the seats of official opposition to Christianity. The proud mandarines who tried to retard the progress of the religion of Jesus because it is the religion of "foreigners," now find their cities thrown open by treaty to the influx of numerous foreigners who come not with the gospel of peace, but to make money. As the period of my earlier ministry was spent in trying to open up the valley of the great West River for the gospel, it is especially gratifying to me to see these new openings. We should have young men to enter them at once. Will not the brethren pray for men for China at this crisis. If we fail to enter these open doors God will raise up others to tell the perishing heathen of Jesus. Why should the Southern Baptists lose the fruits of years of prayer and labor? While I will rejoice by whomsoever Christ is preached, yet I do want to see churches of baptized believers walking according to what we believe to be scriptural principles organized in all this region.

2. Because our home churches need some grand and difficult enterprise to develop their enthusiasm. God honors his people by assigning them difficult tasks. It was so with Israel, it has been so in all ages. As soldiers show their bravery by storming a frowning fort, so God will have us prove our obedience and faith by undertaking great things for the Master. The last great heathen empire left on earth is now open to us as never before. Shall we not have men ready to press forward. This is not the time to fritter away our energies in discussing methods of mission work. Anyway, whatever our differences of judgment may be, let us press onward. It is painful to think of the number of our churches and of members in our churches who are doing nothing for the salvation of the heathen. It is distressing to think of the number of our pastors who are only carrying out part of their commission. They make disciples of men and baptize them and then "turn them loose," making no effort to organize them to carry out Christ's command to "preach the gospel to every creature" and teach them to observe this one of the most important among the "all things" that the Master has commanded us.

3. Because prayer is the most efficient means of accomplishing the desired result. The conversion of the heathen is a spiritual work, and can be accomplished only by spiritual means. The Holy Spirit alone can renew the hearts of men, but the spirit is given in answer to the prayers of God's people. I verily believe that the faithful, constant prayers of God's people will accomplish more than any other single means of promoting the true success of Christ's cause.

Then prayer implies effort. I cannot sincerely, heartily and continuously pray for an object without earnestly laboring to promote it. If we pray for more men for China we will deny ourselves to give the means to send them, and have courage to ask our friends to subscribe to the Lord's treasury. At present our debt of $20,000 is the great obstacle in the way of reinforcing our mission fields. Why may we not join in prayer to God to remove this hindrance by putting it into the minds of his people to send up the means to the treasury by July 1st. Twenty thousand dollars ought to be no very serious obstacle in the way of one and one-third million of Baptists. Deducting two-thirds of these for anti mission Baptists and children without any income, we would still have about half a million well able to give. Five cents from each would more than pay our debt. It is not that they lack the will, but their attention needs to be called to their responsibility, and we may well ask the Lord to incline their hearts. Let each one ask himself, What have I done toward clearing off the debt, and enabling the Board in the language and text of the semi-centennial sermon to "go forward." Let us be in earnest in prayer; then may we rise to the great emergency.

A Sad Confession.

Archbishop Ireland [Catholic] makes this confession: "I have walked through the streets of our city, and looked over the doors of business and banking houses for Catholic names, but, I am sorry to say, I found very few. But, oh, great God! what sorrow and bitterness came to my heart when I looked over the doors of our saloons, and found on nearly all of them Catholic names." May those who agree with him in his Church, on the [illegible] question, increase in number and influence!—Holston Methodist.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 12, 1895.

THE EDITOR, DR. C. T. BAILEY, DEAD.

Christopher Thomas Bailey, D.D., was born in James City county, near Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 24, 1835. His father, Wm. M. Bailey, of Scotch descent, was a quiet and successful farmer. Dr. Bailey's early education was secured at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Virginia. He there studied law also under Dr. Minor, and, at that time, fully expected to follow that profession. He professed faith in Jesus Christ in his seventeenth year, and was often called on by his father to attend the meetings at the colored Baptist church near his home in order to make a lawful meeting. The pastor could not read, and it fell to him, as a duty, to read the Scriptures for the preacher. From this he was gradually led into preaching to the people. His father died in 1855, and his mother, a most devout Christian, having been baptized years before by Dr. Robert Ryland, then president of Richmond College, urged her son to take a special course of study at said institution. He, deeply impressed to preach, gave up the law, and with his mind fully made up to become a minister of the gospel, entered Richmond College and completed a three years course of study. Drs. Ryland and Bailey were most warmly attached to each other through all their after years.

He was ordained to the gospel ministry at Williamsburg, Va., in 1856. He came to North Carolina in October, 1865, and was for two years principal of the Reynoldson Academy in Gates county. From 1868 to 1871 he was pastor in Edenton, and from 1871 to 1876 he was pastor in Warrenton. On the first of July, 1875, he became editor and proprietor of the BIBLICAL RECORDER. On Sunday, March 6th, 1892, while preaching for the Fayetteville Street Church in this city he was stricken with paralysis. After a few months, he partly recovered, and for about two years attended faithfully to his work as editor. But all this time the indications to him and to his brethren were that the end could not be long postponed.

After November 1st, 1894, he was not able to go to the RECORDER office; but up to the last week of his life he had the keenest interest in the make up and success of the paper.

From Monday, June 3d, to the end, on Wednesday, at 8 o'clock a. m., June 5th, he was not conscious, but went down gradually and quietly; and, so far as could be known, without a struggle or a pain.

On Thursday at 5 o'clock, p. m., his funeral services at the First Baptist church were attended by a large congregation.

His brethren, Skinner, Marsh, Gwaltney, Cobb, Simms, and the writer, conducted the sad services. The day was perfect, and as the sun was sinking behind the far-off western hills his body was tenderly laid to rest in Oakwood cemetery.

Dr. Bailey leaves a widow, one daughter, the wife of Bro. W. N. Jones, and three sons. Sister Bailey and daughter and one son are members of the First Baptist church in this city.

Dr. Bailey's inner, deeper, spiritual life was not known by many; but it was there as an unfailing link that ever bound him back to God. He was without religious cant, and, by nature, full of eyes to see and ears to hear all that was grotesque. He was constantly bubbling over with wit and humor, and hence it was not strange that many who knew him did not know his deeper life.

He talked with the writer more than once during the past two years quietly and very earnestly about his expected death, and his humble but unshaken faith in Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour. It was with him, like it has ever been with those gone before, harder to wait than to work. But he waited patiently with a quiet, humble, submissive, and heroic faith.

On November 18th, 1850, Rev. Thomas Meredith, the founder, and for seventeen years the wise, strong and brave editor of the BIBLICAL RECORDER, passed over to his reward. He carried the RECORDER successfully through its first great struggles. Dr. J. D. Hufham, still spared to the churches, carried the paper successfully through its second period of trials—the war period, 1861 to 1867.

But it remained for Dr. Bailey to take the RECORDER in July, 1875, with only about two thousand subscribers, and to carry it through twenty years of the most trying days in our denominational history, to increase its circulation to almost seven thousand subscribers, and to close his useful life work with the feelings of his brethren more closely drawn about him and the RECORDER than at any time through all the years of his administration. On Thursday last we buried the most successful editor the Baptists of North Carolina ever had.

C. DURHAM.

THE PERSONALITY OF THE LATE EDITOR OF THE BIBLICAL RECORDER.

Individuality is a state of oneness, a separate, distinct nature, with qualities which distinguish one person from another, a distinctive character; hence we say of a man, he was a person of marked individuality. This has been truly said of the subject of this notice.

Personality is more than this. Coleridge said, "It is individuality existing in itself." Not a something which pertains to a person, or belongs to a person. All men have this. But it is an individuality, which is the person himself; that, through which he is recognized by all who see him, be it once or often. Personality is not a mood, or state of feeling expressed under certain circumstances, but it is a state of being or existence running from birth to death. Not a part of the man, but the man himself.

Humor, which is often associated with high intellectual and moral character, may be cited in this instance as one of the marks of high personality. So fully developed was this trait of Dr. Bailey's character that most of the thousands who ever saw him or heard of him would, when seeing or hearing of him, bear in the expressions of their faces the smile of credulity, approbation, or of critical amazement.

This was not a weak, but a strong feature of the character of the man; because the human heart leans towards everything which lightens, gladdens and blesses life. Charity is everything. Its absence is the negation of all that is of real worth. "And have not charity, I am nothing." Bailey's charity was popular and contagious. It did not consist of declarations of love, but illustrations and demonstrations of true brotherly charity, both in thought and feeling, and also of action. He was indiscreet in the last point. I remember while sitting in his office discussing a most grave and important matter pertaining to our denominational polity, that suddenly there appeared in our presence a most dilapidated and well-known character, the veriest hag of the town, asking alms. As soon as he saw her he pulled out of his pocket a nickel, and she bowed, and left with blessings upon his head. I said, "Why, Bailey, do you know what you are doing; is she not the worst drunken hag in the city?" "O, yes, but it is all that she will ever get in this world or the next." That was misplaced charity; and yet it revealed to me a heart of unbounded charity and of conspicuous sympathy, more love than wisdom. Yes, but after all, there is the great trait of the man's soul, which more than all of his other gifts bound him to me in tender love.

A man once said to me, "How can you sustain Bailey, knowing him as you do?" "O, my brother, it is because you don't know him as I do, that you thus speak. I do not sustain Bailey, but he sustains me, by evincing just such heartfelt sympathy for poor, lost humanity;" misdirected though it may be, as in the case cited. I have elsewhere said or written that I knew no man who gave more to charity and good works, in proportion to his ability, than Dr. Bailey. Indeed, I never saw him fail to subscribe or give to any good cause. He was a severe critic of a keen insight to character, with a brush dipped in his most pungent colors of sarcasm and ridicule, wreathed with the smile of humor; and to some men no hotter artillery ever belched forth its blasts; but this was to his humorous soul the mere oiling of the machinery, the little furbelows intended to adorn and dress off the occasion. There was no malice in it. I could not approve always his severity, but I did admire his mastery of the situation. I well remember on one occasion, when an Association was in session, the report on periodicals was before us. Of course he was expected to speak, and for an hour or more he kept the audience convulsed with his inimitable humor. The stove of the church was in bad condition, and we were suffering for more warmth in the church. He described, without any reference to the present situation, a church which he once served in Virginia, where they had a movable stove pipe which they did not hesitate to change from one side of the church to the other, just as the wind veered. He pronounced it an improvement upon all stoves of his knowledge, and declared that we never would lack for heat where such an invention was in use. The frowns, gazes and smiles which adorned the faces of the brethren was interesting to behold, and yet they were not offended, but enjoyed the humor and subscribed freely and joyfully for the RECORDER. Here is where you may discover the real charity of the man's make up. I know that men of certain temperaments—just the opposite of his—would complain of such things on his part, and yet they, too, would smile and be better and kinder men without knowing it.

In contrast with this feature, the opposite characteristic of sound judgment and business-like gifts was not only always present, but he had intuitive knowledge, or as we say, like our noble women, without a process of reasoning, would arrive at the wisest conclusions. I do not remember ever to have heard Dr. Bailey give his reasons for his opinions. He simply announced them, without arguments or illustrations.

In the Board of Trustees, or Board of Missions, or in any ecclesiastical meeting, or in the handling of the various difficult and intricate affairs of the denomination in the columns of the BIBLICAL RECORDER, he was always brief, concise and determined. He did not court the good will of men, but left all to judge him and his acts as they pleased. This was true independence, and it left its weight upon thoughtful minds.

Dr. Bailey was a pronounced Baptist, and yet no man was ever more esteemed by the citizens of the community and of the whole State than he was in life and in death.

Five ministers representing as many denominations were present in the audience during the impressive funeral ceremonies, while six of his own ministerial brethren of the Baptist denomination officiated on the sad occasion.

One word only, and we close this sad yet pleasant duty to our dead friend. It is this, that the only indispensable qualification for a successful journalist is strong personality. Of course, for such a publication as the BIBLICAL RECORDER, one of the oldest religious papers in the land, not only literary and spiritual qualifications are needful, but above all others and absolutely indispensable, is that subtle, magnetic, all conquering qualification which we call, and yet cannot fully describe, personality. It is behind the paper and in the paper, and without it you will have no paper, or its equivalent—a poor, unsatisfactory and unsuccessful paper. Let those who control in such matters, see that the grand, noble, old organ, the BIBLICAL RECORDER, shall have for a successor of its late editor a man of true personality, with other essential qualifications, and then all will be well.

THOS. E. SKINNER.

Next to the family and relatives of Bro. Bailey, his death comes as a personal grief to me. Others will speak of his work, but that which occupies me is the personal loss I sustain in his death.

Bro. Bailey was himself a hard worker, and knew very well how necessary it is to success. He also knew how sometimes honest effort fails of success. No one connected with the RECORDER ever felt other than that in Bro. Bailey he had a true and liberal friend. When sickness came to any of the employees, or if for any other reasonable cause any one was kept from his post of duty, in many instances he kept his place on Bro. Bailey's pay-roll just as though he had remained at his work.

When Bro. Bailey trusted at all, he trusted fully. In the five years of my connection with him I constantly discovered new reasons to honor him for his manly qualities and for his absolute freedom from everything little or selfish. Even during the years of his sickness, when he no longer held his place among us, the remembrance of his kindness, his magnanimity and his genial bearing has been a constant stimulant to every one to put forth his best efforts to prosper the work which Bro. Bailey loved so well, and for which he gave the best years of his life.

We shall always delight to honor his memory as that of a true man, a Christian gentleman, a valuable friend, a pleasant co-worker.

J. C. CADDELL.

The uninterrupted patience and calmness of the late editor of the RECORDER under God's chastening rod three years, reminded one of the dying emperor who felt that while his public usefulness seemed at an end, by God's help he yet must do a work no less important than that which he had done for his country, teaching his sons how to suffer. From beginning to end one who kept near his heart never heard him speak of his condition as an affliction or even as a misfortune; from the time, three years ago, when, after an heroic effort to take up his work, he realized that he would never be active again, until God gave him peace, no one heard him murmur. But he did not give up. He was not the kind of man ever to give up. Months after he was stricken he could be seen at his desk trying to write, his left hand grasping his trembling right to steady it. Long after that he continued coming to his office, the time of his stay gradually growing shorter, to direct matters and to see the brethren, whom no longer he met with his old time cheerfulness, though seldom, if ever, without his well-remembered cheerful smile. He saw that for him there were no more meetings at the Associations, but though it grieved him, he never let it be said. No man loved his brethren more, no man could miss them more; but God had prepared him for his course. And when, finally, he saw that he must leave his desk forever, (and no one knew it better than he), it was with a cheering twinkle of his eyes that he said to one who was near, "Do your best; the Lord is always with the RECORDER." He believed this with all his soul, and though he was so wrapped up with the paper, his faith enabled him to part from it hopefully and without a pang. His trust in God's guidance was the backbone of his career; it was that alone which won his victories, and no one knew it so well as he. Because he believed he was doing God's will, he was always ready to withstand all opposition.

About this time other characteristics were strongly brought out. He was leaving his paper, and there were grave questions to be dealt with. Gradually he had become out-of-touch with affairs. Being asked for some rule for maintaining the course he had set, he said, "Stand by the Bible solidly; be loyal to the churches and the Convention. Do not tear down, but build up. Help those who are struggling. Let the RECORDER continue to be representative of the denomination. Take care of its name for fairness and truthfulness." Fidelity, helpfulness, fairness and reliability, were the qualities he aimed at. He had friends who seemed to him to possess these qualities, and he always held them up as true men.

To the end his judgment was clear. It was a custom to tell him at evening who had come to the office that day; and it is not recalled that he ever failed to recollect any one. When the RECORDER came out, some one would go over the columns telling him who had written the articles and letters; and he often made remarks about the writers that would suggest the nature of their contributions. He knew a safe man, and the word safe in this connection meant a great deal with him. He would let a safe man's manuscript go in without reading it; and if he happened not to be a fluent writer, he knew the printers would fix that; and he had no use for dainty style or nice turns of rhetoric, his desire being to make the columns strong with the ruggedness of genuine sense and feeling. If the religion and the sense were right, that was all he asked.

It may have seemed to him that his day of usefulness ended with his first illness, but there are those who know that his influence upon the RECORDER up to the present time is as strong as it ever was. He is not with us, we will not hear his voice, his cheering presence will no longer be felt; but his life of faith and loyalty has sent out numberless influences blessed of God, and his complete resignation to God's will and his abiding hope in Jesus Christ (whom he loved to call "The Master"), showing so plainly the comfortings of the Spirit, will always be to those who knew him in his deprivations and sufferings, a strong testimonial of the faithfulness of God's promises to the righteous. "As thy days, so shall thy strength be," can be said of him by one who saw him patiently enduring the providences of God in the heat and burden of the day and the long and sleepless hours of the night, with more of reality in the promise than of any one he has ever known.

After his labors and trials, it was good of God to give him such a peaceful end; his family and friends with him, his life-work finished, his place in the hearts of his brethren secure as his title to his home in heaven, his faith tried and sufficient, his race run, his triumph in life and death complete. "How blest the righteous when he dies!"

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Another of our missionaries to Africa, Sister W. T. Lumbly, is dead.

....The Southern Baptist Convention has sent out 350 foreign missionaries, all told.

....Rev. J. L. Rollins of South Carolina, an humble but useful servant of God, died recently.

....Mr Samuel Cupples of St. Louis has recently given the Southern Methodist Orphanage of that city $70,000.

....Wake Forest is at her best this week. Monday night the exercises began brilliantly. The promise is for a large attendance.

....Pennsylvania Baptists are trying to start a State organ to take the place of the National Baptist, which went into the Examiner.

....Rev. Junius W. Millard contributes a sketch of the new President of the Seminary, Dr. Whitsitt, in the current Seminary Magazine.

....Rev. Chas. A. G. Thomas will preach the sermon at the annual Orphanage meeting, July 24th, and Hon. Chas. M. Cooke will deliver the address.

....We know of one or two thoroughly competent young ministers who need work for the summer. They ought not to be forced to remain idle. Any help toward finding them useful work until school opens again will be kindness.

....The Board of Missions and Sunday-schools will hold an important meeting on Monday, June 17th, 1895, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in the Mission Rooms in this city.

....Rev. John A. Mason, having closed his school at Judson, S. C., for vacation, has returned to Conclave, N. C. He will continue preaching at Judson and Little Rock.

....Dr. Chapin, who can be classed among the leading lay brethren of the State, informs us that the church in Pittsboro is getting on well, constantly gaining strength by the reception of new members.

....Bro. J. T. Tuttle pastor at Whiteville has been slightly indisposed but we are glad to say is better now. Bro. Tuttle one of our best and truest men is doing a fine work at Whiteville, and other churches in the Columbus Association.

....See the announcement elsewhere of the time and place of the North Carolina Baptist S. S. Chautauqua. It offers a week of recreation at a popular health resort, with opportunity for profitable enjoyment to every Sunday-school worker.

....Rev. J. B. Richardson preached two good sermons at the Baptist church last Sunday, one in the morning and one at night. At the close of the morning sermon five members were received by letter and one by experience.—Piedmont Herald, Leaksville.

....We are sorry to hear of the continued sickness of Dr. J. L. Carroll, one of our ablest men. He is now at Seven Springs. May God restore to him his old time strength and usefulness, and give him many years to labor for the cause which he has upheld so faithfully.

....It is never too late to institute systematic giving and systematic record keeping in your churches. Try it. Almost all the large denominations have far more nearly complete records than the Baptists. Bro. Jones' suggestions along this line are timely and wholesome.

....Sunday school teachers' meetings are held weekly at the First Baptist and Main street Methodist churches Friday and Wednesday nights respectively, and all are invited to both meetings to study the Sunday-school lesson for the following Sunday.—Reidsville Review.

....We learned with sorrow from the Robesonian (Lumberton) last week of the death of our venerable fellow-servant, Rev. Furney Prevatte, May 29, aged nearly 87 years. Truly his life was full of days and usefulness. We will publish a sketch of him next week.

....We thank Rev. J. A. Beam for a handsome invitation to the annual exercises of the Bethel Hill Institute, June 5th and 6th. Rev. R. Van Deventer preached the sermon, and Dr. W. E. Hatcher delivered the address. The work of the school moves onward and upward.

....We are always glad to give space to our schools, and it is regretted that we have not been able to publish accounts of school-closings as promptly as we hoped. However they will be given a place. This week we are indebted to one of our most active laymen for the excellent account of the Chowan exercises.

....Rev. D. A. Glenn is at Mountain City, in East Tennessee. We commend him to our brethren across the line as a man and servant of God in every respect worthy of their love and confidence. He is a good, safe, consecrated man, who does well wherever he goes. We hope to have him back in North Carolina in a little while.

....A good pastor writes, in no contentious spirit, "While I believe that churches ought to seek pastors, it is certainly legitimate to let it be known that one can be had." We agree with him exactly. We had other things in mind when we wrote the note referred to, which may be obvious to some. Every pastor ought to find a field or make one.

....Bro. L. Johnson of Lumberton is delivering a series of lectures at his weekly prayer meetings, on the history and Geography of portions of the Old Testament. These lectures showing, as they do, the practical influence which has come to the spreading of the gospel, are not only very entertaining, but are real sources of instruction to the membership.

....Bro. W. F. Watson, pastor of the Spurgeon Memorial Church, Norfolk, Va., and Bro. C. J. F. Anderson, pastor of the Carthage Baptist church, have exchanged pulpits for the summer. We regret to hear of the ill health of Sister Watson, and hope that a stay with her father, Dr. John Shaw, where she will get an abundance of pure air, fresh from the "long leaf" pine, may soon bring back her accustomed good health.

....Rev. G. S Daugherty writes from Fountain Inn, S. C.: "We are trying to do something here at Fountain Inn. We have most of the lumber on our church lot for a parsonage, but can't go on with the work until the crops are laid by. We need a new church building, and hope that it may be built in the near future; but we need most of all a waking up along spiritual lines. Oh! for a deeper work of grace in all our hearts, and such an abundance of it that our church membership and church attendance would last all the year."

....The protracted meeting, at the Baptist church, commenced Sunday morning according to previous announcement, conducted by Rev. J. E. Armstrong, of Baltimore. He held three services Sunday, the afternoon service was for the ladies especially. Mr. Armstrong is a clear, fluent and impressive and at all times eloquent speaker. The meeting is increasing in numbers and interest. Christians of all denominations are working together in this meeting, and there is no reason why there should not be a glorious ingathering of souls. There will be three services next Sunday.—Albion Times.

....The Rev. H. W. Tribble of Jackson, Tenn., has been called to the pastorate of the Baptist church at Charlottesville, Va.

....The Goldsboro church has extended a call to Rev. W. C. Newton, a member of this year's graduating class at Wake Forest College.

....The meeting at the Tabernacle church, Newbern, continued all last week, and proved very fruitful. Rev. R. E. Peele aided Pastor Burgess.

....Rev. H. A. Brown of Winston and Rev. M. A. Adams of Reidsville passed through Raleigh Monday on their way to Wake Forest College. We were glad to see Dr. R. H. Marsh and Prof. F. P. Hobgood in the city last week.

....We will take back all we have said and all we ever intended to say on the subject, if the South Carolina brethren will just compose themselves. One brother tells us we were right, and another writes that we couldn't have missed it worse. But we have no idea of letting them fight it out in the RECORDER. Let us all pray for the Palmetto State, and keep our opinions to ourselves.

....Rev. J. O. Alderman sends us the following interesting items and promises to send more soon: "If nothing prevents, we shall hold a meeting of days the week after the third Sunday in June. On our return from Washington, I found that Bro. C. E Gower had run in and filled my pulpit on the third Sunday in May to the joy of my people. They spoke in high terms of his sermon on Sunday morning."

....Rev. R. T. Vann returned home Saturday from Philadelphia, where he has been for several weeks under treatment for his nervous troubles. His physicians think that his eyes are the source of the principal trouble, and that after resting awhile and relieving them by the use of glasses he will be well. Mr. Vann will remain in Scotland Neck this week and then will go away on a summer rest.—Scotland Neck Democrat.

....We caught Bro. Thomas of the Baptist Courier "on the fly," making his way from the educational meeting at Saratoga. He says our Northern brethren showed at this meeting that they possessed plenty of brains and energy, and also an abundance of old time religion. Speaking of Bro. J. H. Edwards, who has recently resigned at Fayetteville, he said, "I wish he may find his way back to his native State. We have no better man."

....It would be worth a trip to Raleigh to see the enlarged picture of the Baptist Female University and then go to the grounds and see the work going on. It has proceeded just far enough to give one an idea of the size and shape of the building. We do hope it will be finished without interruption, and we beg the brethren to help Bro Stringfield raise the amount for the first payment which will come due shortly.

....Rev. J. A. Smith, one of our strongest and best educated preachers, is entirely content to live in his nice home cooled by the breezes fresh from the Lumber river, preaching every Sunday to a country church. These country churches, under the direction of Bro. Smith, are growing in their interest in Sunday schools, in mission work among the sisters, in the care they are taking of the poor in the churches, and in other directions in which our country churches might work.

....Negro B. Y. P. U. A's thought they were treated discourteously at the national gathering of that organization last year at Toronto; so this year they took time by the forelock, having sometime since written to Secretary Wilkins to find out what they could expect at Baltimore. And the Secretary dodges the issue! The negroes are mad because it is evident that he is fooling them, and the whites ought to be mad because he failed to show his backbone by giving a definite answer.

....The Roman Curia have again decided that Anglican (Episcopalian) "orders" are not valid. The Episcopalians admit the validity of Roman Catholic and Greek Catholic ordinations, but these deny the validity of Episcopalian ordinations. Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists admit the validity of the ordinations of the Episcopalians and yet the latter deny the validity of the ordinations of these denominations. We have therefore this curious spectacle: The Episcopalians admit the validity of those who deny theirs and deny the validity of those who admit theirs. Funny, is it not?—Western Recorder.

....Our readers have some idea of the work being done at Wake Forest now in Bible study and Biblical lectures, two of which we have published. From what we hear on all sides, that is, from pastor Gwaltney, the faculty and students, this work has proved unusually beneficial. The course of a dozen or more well prepared lectures has been well attended, interest in it growing all the time. Although Wake Forest has no established chair of Biblical study, she has always been able to offer her students unusual advantages in this respect, through the zeal of members of her faculty, particularly Drs. Wm. Royall, W. B. Royall, President Taylor and Prof. Poteat.

....Here's more good news from Rev. J. B. Marsh, a valued North-South Carolinian, who is serving the Master at Piedmont, S. C.: "The interest still continues here. I am preaching two or three nights a week. Fifty, some of them strong men, came forward as inquirers last Sunday at evening service. In connection with the service, I baptized thirty five. Others will be baptized next Sunday evening. Rev. G. S. Daugherty will preach for us to night and remain over Sunday. He once labored in North Carolina—was pastor at Burlington and other points." Bro. Marsh orders a good supply of papers containing Rev. W. E. Harrell's exposure of "Modern Sanctification," as there is a tent meeting of this kind of religion going on in his community.

....Our ardent working Statesville pastor writes: "I am getting on nicely with my work in Statesville. The interest is growing along all lines, and many of my people have a mind to work. I have given nearly one week in a meeting in the "Regions beyond." Myself and brethren W. J. Wyatt and Ballard held a week's meeting near Trontman's Depot, which resulted in the call for the organization of a Baptist church. Six were baptized and others will follow. We will organize Saturday, June 8th. Many of those people had never heard Baptist preaching." This should add impetus to the Regions Beyond movement.

....Rev. A. J. Taylor, who is doing good work in the Eastern Association, recently preached the missionary sermon to the Woman's Mission Society at Magnolia. He sends an interesting item or two: "Miss Hattie Cox is doing a noble work in the society at Magnolia for her Master, in training the minds, and hearts of the dear young people to love and to help push forward the great work of evangelizing the world. Would to God that we had more such consecrated women in our churches as she. Many of our hearts were made glad last Thursday night by having Dr. N. B. Cobb with us, and hearing him preach. Bro. A. A. Butler has resigned the church here" (Mt. Olive).

From Rev. G. P. Bostick.

Dear Recorder:—I enclose an article for insertion in your columns on some of the events and changes that have occurred since Dr. and Sister Crawford came to China. I penned these last Saturday, the forty-third anniversary of their arrival in China. I am sure that some of your readers will be interested in the lives of these two who have lived on the foreign field together longer than perhaps any other two American Baptist missionaries. They are rapidly ripening for the other shore.

We are all pretty well away off here in the interior. It takes our letters as long to reach us from Shanghai as it does for them to come from Raleigh to Shanghai. The war grows fiercer, and would be very discouraging, except for the hope that the darkest hour is just before day-break.

Li Hung Chang has reached Japan, fully authorized, they say, to make peace, but it is very uncertain whether he will offer terms that Japan will accept or not. If he does not, then it seems that China may soon be overturned by little Japan. China's great fleet, with several of her great generals, is no more. Many missionaries have gone from the interior to the coasts, and many remain at their posts in much anxiety as to what will be the end, while those at the coast are many of them on or near the scene of conflict. God's precious promises do increase in reality and sweetness to us in these uncertain times. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." Hundreds of carts are passing here daily with guns and ammunition from South China to Peking, and some soldiers are also passing. God bless you and all the saints in North Carolina. Yours in Christ,

G. P. BOSTICK.

FORTY-THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF THE ARRIVAL OF DR AND SISTER T. P CRAWFORD IN CHINA—RETROSPECT.

Forty-three years ago to day, Dr. T. P. Crawford and wife landed in Shanghai from Hong Kong. They made an unusually quick trip across the ocean, being on the vessel only 102 days from New York to Hong Kong. The trip from Vancouver to Hong Kong can now be made in about twenty-two days, and to Shanghai in seventeen.

Of all the missionaries then in China, only the Crawfords and two other men remain, one of these having his third, and the other his second wife. I doubt if any other missionary couple has lived in a foreign field longer than Dr. and Sister Crawford.

When they reached China, there were less than 100 missionaries and perhaps not over 100 native Christians in the empire. The missionaries were not then allowed to remain more than twenty-four hours away from the open ports—then only five in number. Now there are over 2,000 foreign missionaries, nearly 50,000 professed native Christians and missionaries living, even in these war times, far in the interior of every province except one or two. No other Southern, and perhaps no other American Baptist missionary now on the field has been so long in this work as Dr. and Mrs. Crawford. During these forty-three years, Mrs. Crawford has made one trip to Japan and two to the United States, and Dr. Crawford one to Japan and four to America, being ordered by his physician to make the last trip home in 1889.

Since their arrival, China has passed through two wars with England and France combined, one with France and two with Japan, including the present one, whose end does not seem yet in sight. She has also passed through three serious internal rebellions, including the Tai Ping, lasting from 1848 to 1868. Some one has said that more people were perhaps destroyed during that rebellion than in any other war in history. There have also been many local maraudings, in one of which our Southern Baptist missionary Holmes was killed, and in another the city of Tung Chow was packed with wounded and dying rebels, and Dr. Crawford's house was for weeks crowded as a hospital for the wounded and dying. The Crimean war, the mutiny in India, the Franco German war, and the American war of 1861-'65 have all occurred in these forty-three years, the last three seriously affecting foreigners in China. The mutiny of India began when England was at war with China, and she was compelled to leave the war in China to give her attention to India, and so left foreigners in anything but an enviable position here. So France had to leave off demanding satisfaction from China for the depredations committed on her citizens in the Tien Sin massacre, and turn to fighting Germany, when the anti-foreign feeling was very high in China. But the American war affected the Crawfords most of all, cutting them off from nearly all home communication and from home support for almost four years. During this time Dr. Crawford acted as land agent in Shanghai, as did also the late Dr. Yates, in order to support themselves in their missionary work. They were not only enabled to tide themselves in missionary work, but each acquired some property which afterwards greatly increased in value. The Crawfords are now spending their last days in earnest missionary toil, supporting themselves, and even helping others, out of the income from this property. Besides, they have given a great deal directly to missions for many years. They spent their first twelve years in Shanghai, thirty in Tung Chow, and last year, after a short sojourn in Pingtu, moved to this (Teian-fu) city, about twelve days' travel in the interior from Tung Chow. They were both seriously ill—nigh unto death—last summer, but are now fully recovered. They are very diligently trying every day to give the message of salvation to these people, so ruined by sin and who are so rapidly hastening into eternity. Dr. Crawford is just now engaged, too, in having some needed repairs made on his rented Chinese house. If he lives till May 8th he will pass his seventy-fourth birth-day. Sister Crawford has passed her sixty-fifth. They can heartily and truthfully sing,

"Tis grace has brought me safe thus far,
And grace will lead me home."

They also love to sing,

"How firm a foundation ye saints of the Lord,
Is laid for your faith in his excellent word;"

and especially the verse,

"E'en down to old age all my people shall prove My sovereign, eternal, unchangeable love"

None feel more keenly than they that

"My faith is built on nothing less Than Jesus' blood and righteousness."

They know many dear natives who have been saved through their instrumentality and who now await them over yonder, and others who still labor here; and I doubt not that many will rise up in that day to call them blessed whom they have not known as interested here below.

Let us thank God for these long and useful lives, and pray God to call and send for many more such! Fraternally,

G. P. BOSTICK.

Oxford News.

The people of Oxford have enjoyed a rare treat in the visits of brethren Thomas of Greensboro, Mundy of Wilson, and Hume of Chapel Hill.

They came to take part in the closing exercises of the Oxford Female Seminary. Bro. Thomas preached the baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class. I had never heard him preach, though we were at Richmond College, and at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary together. I was, together with the people, delighted with his sermon on "Glorying in the Cross."

Bro. Mundy I had known for years, but never before had I had the pleasure of hearing him, either. He preached an elegant sermon on "Life," and fully sustained his reputation as an able and spiritual gospel preacher. His sermon was delivered before the "Maggie Nutt Missionary Society."

Prof. Hume of Chapel Hill delivered the address before the "Calliopean Society." His theme was "Elizabeth Barrett Browning—Woman—Poet—Prophet." It was a chaste, elegant, and beautiful address. We shall long remember their pleasant visit to us, and assure them of a warm welcome whenever they shall come this way again.

A word as to the Oxford Seminary. Last session was a very prosperous one. The patronage was largely increased; the health of the students excellent; the work moved on nicely; and was satisfactorily done. Having lived in Oxford for twelve years, and having been in close relations with the Seminary, I can say that its motto is, "Good, honest, thorough work." Its course is being elevated year by year, and the President endeavors to offer the best modern facilities for a thorough education. In addition to the excellent faculty which he already has, he has secured the services of a specialist in elocution and vocalization for the next session. This lady has had several sessions in the New England Conservatory of Music.

We wish Pres. Hobgood abundant success in the future in the useful work of educating our girls. JNO. S. HARDAWAY.

Letter from Bro. Bryan in China.

Dear Recorder:—You may wonder why I do not write more about the war. Changes have taken place so rapidly that what I might write to day might not be true by the time that it reached you. Then, too, you hear by telegram of all the important events.

Peace is about concluded. It is too early to know results, but we hope and believe that many changes will take place in China, which will help us in giving China the gospel. Now, now, now! is our time to work in China. Now is the flood tide, let us awake and take advantage of it. "Come over into Macedonia and help us." "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few; pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest that he thrust out laborers into his harvest." "The fields are white unto the harvest." Sincerely,

R. T. BRYAN.

Baptist Backbone.

Now that it is a settled fact that 15,000 Baptist young people will attend the B. Y. P. U. Convention in Baltimore, July 18th-21st, many are asking, will it pay in spiritual fruitage for the time and money expended? Yes, a thousand per cent. In what? In the product of "Baptist backbone," an article not too plentiful in pulpits or pews. How? The Convention itself, with its unprecedented numbers, will furnish an irresistible inspiration. The splendid speeches from the geatest number of representative Baptists ever booked for one occasion will stir the souls of the most lukewarm. The earnest enthusiasm kindled by contact with so many of a common purpose and a common faith will produce courage, conviction, and a pardonable denominational pride or Baptist backbone, solid, thick, and plenty of it.

I believe the pastor who induces his young people to attend this Convention, will find them on return increased five fold for usefulness.

Because of this Convention I have consented to act as transportation leader for North Carolina, and have arranged with almost all the railroads and boat lines to carry all who want to go for one fare for the round trip.

The cost to each person for board and lodging during the four days in Baltimore will be $5 00. Already 10,500 have secured entertainment at this rate. I will arrange for all who send me their names.

It is not necessary to belong to a B. Y. P. U. Society to secure the reduced rates. A certificate from your pastor that you are going to the Convention is enough. Write me at once. C. S BLACKWELL

Good News from Brunswick, Ga.

Dear Recorder:—The Lord be praised for his unspeakable goodness. Last night we closed a very precious meeting at our church which resulted in the conversion of seventy-five souls, and in the addition of forty-three to our church. Dr. W. A. Nelson and his dear wife, well known and beloved in North Carolina, and Bro. Frank L. Mallory, a young business man of Macon, Ga., have been with us for the past two weeks. They came filled with the Holy Ghost, and from the very beginning to the last, God blessed us with the conversion of souls. Brunswick has never before had such a revival of pure and undefiled religion. The First church is upon a much higher plane than ever before. Dr. Nelson makes no compromise with sin, but preaches the whole gospel. In many respects he is the most powerful man I ever met. He is one of the Lord's anointed, highly taught of the Word and the Spirit. He has given up the pastorate and gone out as a "free lance" preacher to be used in building up of the Lord's cause when it is weak and to win souls for Christ. He often speaks for six hours a day in his institute work for weeks in succession. North Carolina lost one of her strongest and best men when Dr. Nelson left the State.

We organized a Baptist Young Peoples Union yesterday afternoon with 58 active members.

We have one of the best working forces of young people in the State. The Lord has abundantly blessed us since we came to Brunswick, we feel encouraged to attempt still greater things for him. We have one of the broadest fields in the South. As we look toward the North there is not a Baptist church within sixty miles, toward the West, forty miles, toward the South, twenty miles toward the East, three thousand miles.

God bless the RECORDER and all those who love the Lord Jesus in the dear old North State. Fraternally,

WALTER M. GILMORE.

A great silver sound money convention was held in Memphis the 12th inst. There was representation from North Carolina, including at least two political parties.

With the blood full of humors, the heated term is all the more oppressive. Give the system a thorough cleansing with Ayer's Sarsaparilla and a dose or two of Ayer's Pills, and you will enjoy summer as never before in your life. Just try this for once, and you'll not repent it.

The New England Conservatory.

Few educational institutions are so widely and favorably known as the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. In the midst of such times as these its strength and prestige are shown by a patronage which fills the home and educational departments to overflowing. It is manifestly evident that the American people have found that the best in none too good for them and also that the best is the cheapest in the end. To those desiring the highest and most complete musical training this institution offers inducements second to none in the world. It has departments of Elocution and Art as well as Music, each being complete in itself and placed under the personal supervision of a principal and corps of instructors.

C. F. I. Institute, Murfreesboro, N. C.

The closing exercises of this very worthy and renowned female college were celebrated Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 27th, 28th and 29th of May.

Monday night was the occasion for the celebration by the Literary Societies—"C. O. V. A." and "P. & A."—which consisted of recitations, vocal solos, &c.

Miss Fannie N. Powers, Wake Forest, of the "P. & A. Society," and Miss Addie McD. Shaw, Warrenton, of the "C. O. V. A. Society," were the essayists. These young ladies were selected by their respective Societies to fill these positions. Miss Powers chose for her subject, "The Woman of the Nineteenth Century," and Miss Shaw, "Fasten Your Thread." The verdict of the audience was that the Societies had not made a mistake, both as to subject matter and the beautiful, clear and distinct style of reading, in the selection of these young ladies.

Tuesday at 11 o'clock, Dr. W. L. Wright of Richmond, Va., preached the sermon before the Graduating Class. He did not take any regular text, but after reading several selections from the Bible bearing on the subject, the principal one, "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom," he announced his subject, "What Not and What to Live For," and proceeded to outline his sermon by showing some things not to live for; among them, for nought, for pleasure, for society, and for self; and then what to live for, which were, our highest natures, for duty, for truth, for humanity, for higher possibilities of our natures, and finally, live to save a soul. The time occupied in the delivery of this sermon was some one and a half hours, and yet when I say, no one in that vast audience but regretted the closing, and could have listened with profound interest and silence an hour longer—some little idea can be had of its grand and glorious truths so beautifully and eloquently spoken. He is a man of great power, and bids fair to be one of the best preachers in the South in the coming years. It was in every way the best sermon the writer ever heard before a graduating class; and from frequent expressions by others better able to judge, this opinion is fully sustained.

Tuesday evening was the Recital School of Elocution, a program of which I give:

Inst. Solo—Yankee Doodle, M. Strakosch. Miss Susie L. Mitchell.

Recitation—The Knight and the Page, Martha C. Howe. Miss Maggie Bell.

Recitation—The Bachelor's Sale. Miss Lizzie Bateman.

Vocal Solo—I Dreamt, F. Lohira. Miss Mary Brewer.

Recitation—The Rustic Bridal, H. W. Longfellow. Musical accompaniment. Miss Fannie Powers.

Recitation—The Low-back Car. Miss Mary Brewer.

Vocal Solo—Flower Song, Bevignani. Miss Addie McD. Shaw.

Recitation—Princess Imra and the Goatherd. Miss Lillie White.

Recitation—The Shadow of a Song, Campbell Rae Brown. Musical accompaniment. Miss Addie McD. Shaw.

Recitation—The Day of Judgment, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. Miss Joe Vann.

Vocal Duett—When early morn beams o'er us. F. Kuckon. Misses L. White and M. Brewer.

Delsartean Pantomime—The Raven, E. A. Poe. Misses M. Bell, L. Bateman, M. Brewer, Z. Brown, A. Gore, S. Mitchell, F. Powers, A. Shaw, L. White. Mrs. L. McC. Sanber, reader. Miss A. Bruce Brewer, accompanist.

Recitation—That Waltz of Von Webers, Nora Perry. Musical accompaniment. Miss Zephia Brown.

Duologue—Pauline Pavlovna, Thomas Bailey Aldrich. Misses A. Bruce Brewer and Fannie Powers.

Vocal Solo—In Her Simplicity, Mignon A. Thomas.

These exercises were very interesting and instructive, and the young ladies reflected great credit on themselves and on their efficient teachers in this department.

Wednesday was the great day of the occasion, and it was an ideal one, both as to natural causes, as well as the hundreds of the brightest, happiest and most intelligent people from various parts of the State who make their annual visits, not only to witness the interesting exercises, but to mingle with friends, thereby removing much of the care, worry and monotonous things of every-day life. The commingling of old friends and talking about old times the better prepares them to continue in life's struggles and in hope to bear its burdens.

The exercises commenced promptly at 10 o'clock with the following program:

Salutatory, Miss Susie L. Mitchell, Winton, N. C.

Concert Waltz, "On Blooming Meadows," (3 pianos) Rive King. Misses Marshburn, Newsome, M. Deans, M. Vaughan, E. Burden and B. Parker.

Essay, "The Voyage of Life," Miss E. Jennie Long, Rockingham, N. C.

Vocal solo, "Spring Revel," (Tito Mattei.) Miss Lillie V. White.

Essay, "The Ideal and the Real," Miss Mollie Parker, Murfreesboro, N. C.

Piano solo, "Frau Holle" Op. 135, No. 1, (Bendel). Miss Jessie T. Brewer.

Essay, "Decision of Character," Miss Sallie M. Shaw, Winton, N. C.

Piano Duo, "Allegro Brilliant" Op. 835, (Josef Low.) Misses Mitchell and Brothers.

Essay, "High Aims," Miss Eva McD. Watford, Colerain, N. C.

Vocal solo, "Scene and Aria from Freischutz." M. Von Weber. Mrs. L. A. Bides.

Essay, "The Best Beauty," Miss Mabelle M. Marshburn, Taylor's Bridge, N. C.

Piano solo, "Dornroschen." (Bendel.) Miss Lillie V. White.

Chorus, "Glide On." L. Delibes.

President's Report.

Presentation of Diplomas.

These exercises were by the graduates, excepting the music, and the essays were of the highest order, showing the young ladies were embarking on life's voyage well equipped, their little barques beautifully built and fully prepared for the calm and the storm, and their chart so understood as to wisely direct their course, and finally to drop anchor in the home of eternal rest. Special mention is due to the young ladies who received the highest average marks, which were Miss Lucilla Eborn of Yeatesville, N. C., the valedictorian, and Miss Susie L. Mitchell of Winton, N. C., who received the salutatory. The first of these mentioned made for herself nearly a perfect average in studies, department, &c., over 99½, and the last named very near as good. While these young ladies received the highest, yet when President Brewer announced many others in the school whose average was from 93 to 97, and a great many golden reports, it was very clear these young ladies had a fierce conflict with the highest order of talent, and had to struggle heroically for their honors.

Immediately following this came the address before the literary societies, which was delivered by Rev. J. E. White, pastor of Edenton Baptist church. He was at a disadvantage in having to speak to a wearied audience, as they had been patiently enjoying the preceding exercises for some three hours. Yet at the first he dispelled the weary feeling of his hearers, and captured their profound attention. His subject was "Making of a Man," in which of course woman was embraced. He spoke without manuscript, and was fluent and eloquent. He has many advantages over most speakers, being quite handsome, with commanding figure, and then with a strong musical voice, it is no wonder that all at the start are fascinated, and with bated breath listen to his words of wisdom. The style of his address was unique and very instructive, and the impression made upon his audience will go with them through life.

It was very wise, and in the fitness of things, that Wake Forest men should have been selected as speakers for this occasion. Wake Forest and the Institute are very close kin, and in close touch one with the other in their great work of educating the boys and girls of our State; and so, as stated, it was wise to have selected speakers from her graduatues, especially so as those selected were men who reflected great credit on their alma mater.

When our sons and daughters are trained and educated from these institutions, they go forth fully equipped. Our State and denomination expect great things of them, and so far we have not been disappointed.

The crowning glory of this interesting and joyous occasion was the concert at night. Wish I could give the program, but the length of this article reminds me that I have already trespassed on your valuable space, and so must simply add that as usual it was very good—fully up to the standard, and enjoyed by all. The music was well selected, and the singing, playing, and recitations were so rendered as to show conclusively that the young ladies had received the best training, and had profited by the same.

A few reflections, and we close. This is quite an old institution, and were its location on the line of one of our trunk railroads, it would be the wonder, attraction and admiration of every passer by, for without question it is naturally one of the loveliest and most picturesque spots in the South, and the very sight impresses the wisdom of such a delightful spot for a female school. Again, it has done a great work for North Carolina, Virginia and bordering States, for go where you may, even in heathen lands, you find her daughters, who are making impressions as wise, prudent, intelligent Christian women; and there are thousands of homes that are made bright, joyous and happy by the radiance that comes from her who rules with so much care, love, sacrifice and Christian discipline.

What could the State do without her daughters, and what a great calamity would come to the Baptists if deprived of her influence, piety, love and patriotism. What she has done, she can and will do if sustained, and the question very appropriate just now is, will she be sustained and continue to shed her benign influence over our people; if so all well; if not we very much fear that a loss will be sustained that cannot now be calculated. The answering of this question is with the friends and old students of the school, if they speak of her often and work as they should for her increased prosperity, all is well; otherwise, the opinion of the writer is that her record is in the past; and as glorious as it is, we cannot as a Christian people well afford to close the volume of her history, but to make it far more glorious than it has ever been. God grant this may be. "ANY LESS."

Of all Fevers

the worst and most serious is Dengue or break-bone fever. Called "break-bone" because one's bones are not only racked with pain, but feel as if they were tightly held, as by a vice.

At times one feels that the pain is almost unbearable, and many are brought to Death's door by the terrible prostration which follows this grievous complaint.

All persons should know that

Brown's Iron Bitters

is the one medicine which relieves this extreme weakness and brings the patient back to sound health by it's well-known medicinal qualities. From the first bottle the improvement is marked and permanent recovery is but a matter of a short period.

SUBJECT FOR JUNE—ANCIENT AND MODERN MISSIONS IN CHINA.

CHINA.—"Behold * * these from the land of Sinim." Missionaries, 58; native assistants, 23; stations, 57; churches, 13; membership, 1,077; baptisms, 122; schools, 14; scholars, 335. Contributions, $1,580.52.

STUDY TOPICS.—The importance of China as a mission field. The work already done there. The Stations occupied by our Foreign Board. The necessity of enlargement in the work. The special value of woman's work in China. The duty of American Christians towards the Chinese in this country.

How far the missionary influence of that most wonderful missionary age of all ages—the first hundred years after the death of our Lord—extended, must ever be a question of the greatest interest to the Christian world. Did it reach to China?

Undoubtedly China had been known to the Jews long before this period. Isaiah in the forty-ninth chapter of his prophecy bursts into a triumphant strain foretelling the glories that await for Zion and the spread of God's kingdom. In rapt joy he sings, "They shall not hunger nor thirst; neither shall the heat nor sun smite them; for he that hath mercy upon them shall lead them, even by springs of water shall he guide them.... Behold, these shall come from far; and, lo, these from the north and from the west; and these from the land of Sinim. Sing, O heavens; and be joyous, O earth, and break forth into singing, O mountains; for the Lord hath comforted his people and will have mercy upon his afflicted."

In this time of glory and rejoicing those of the land of Sinim should have part. The best biblical authorities agree that the land here referred to was a province of Southern China, which in the eighth century B. C. attained independence, and in the third century B. C. conquered the whole country, the Tsin dynasty of the conquerors giving the present name China to the country. But China was already a kingdom hoary with antiquity, in the days of Isaiah. Its history stretches back 2,000 years before Christ, and Confucius and Isaiah were almost contemporaneous. 220 years before Christ, its great wall of 1,500 miles was completed, under the reign of the glorious dynasty of Ham, which gave to China rulers who were the restorers of ancient literature, patrons of arts and sciences and mighty conquerors.

It could not be that such a country as this could exist in the same continent with Jerusalem and Judea, without much being known of its people and without the early church, ambitious for God, desiring that there also the religion of Christ might be preached to every creature.

Among the many nations enumerated as having the gospel in their own tongue on the day of pentecost were inhabitants of countries stretching far back on to eastern Asia. Whether any of these took the good news so far as China we do not know. Armenian Christians have held the belief that the Apostle Thomas crossed the mighty wall and was the Apostle of China.

Be this as it may, China was not forgotten by the churches of Asia Minor, and the Nestorian Christians sent missionaries to China as soon as 305 A. D, and continued work there until 1368. Of their work and their success they have left an enduring reward in an immense granite slab eight feet high, three feet wide and a foot thick, in which, under a carved cross, is written in Chinese characters the history of the mission and something of the doctrines taught by the missionaries. This tablet set up in 781 A. D., "whereon is inscribed the dispensation of our Redeemer and the preaching of the apostolic missionaries of the King of China" was discovered in the city of Si-rigan fu in 1625, and makes some most remarkable statements as to the progress of the Christian religion in China, the propagation of which was begun under the "Most Virtuous Olopum from Syria." Olopum, it states, was received with royal honors by the Emperor Tai Tsung. "The sacred books were translated in the imperial library." Kau Tsung, who succeeded Tai Tsung, "was still more beneficent to the truth." "In every province he caused illustrious churches to be erected." "Every city was full of churches, and the royal family enjoyed luster and happiness."

This most interesting relic, of which a picture and an extended account was given in the Missionary Review some months since, stops short of course of the story of the expulsion of the Nestorian missionaries. In 1368, a Buddhist monk of low origin had a revolution which overthrew the Mongolian dynasty. The Buddhist priests had ever been the enemies of the Christians, and as early as 713 had raised riots against them which had succeeded in destroying some of their churches. Now with their triumph, under the leadership of one of their own priesthood, the Christian teachers were expelled from the country.

But though the labors of the Nestorian Christians ceased, the Catholics had already begun to attempt missions in China in 1271, under the illustrious traveller, Marco Polo.

"At one time there were over 1,100 churches and 100,000 converts in two provinces alone; at the present it is estimated that there are 400,000 to 500 000 converts and 471 European priests in the whole empire."

"Protestant missions," says the Review, "began with Robert Morrison, of the London Missionary Society, in 1807; there are now over fifty societies laboring there, not including the ten educational and tract societies. The Protestant missionaries numbered in 1890, 1,296 foreign workers and 1,657 native helpers; this force has been increased until now there are not less 1,600 foreign and 2,000 native laborers. There are 600 churches, 100 of which are self-supporting. Communicants number about 60,000."

American Baptist missions began by the sending out of Rev. J. L. Shuck, in 1839. Soon after this occurred the division of the Northern and Southern Baptist Convention. The Northern Baptists report to day eight central mission stations, nineteen churches and 1,373 church members. The Southern Baptists have just reported in their annual Convention a force of sixteen male and twenty-five female missionaries, sixteen churches, with fifty out stations and a membership of 1,131.

Of China's needs for gospel teachers, whole volumes might be written. There are still a thousand counties in which the gospel has never been preached. And additional mission force of 6,400 missionaries would be needed that there might be but one missionary to every 50,000 of the people. While the gospel needs of the people are so poorly met, thirty three thousand Chinese die every day. Remember, in two days as many Chinese die as there are members of all the Protestant churches in China.

Report of Miss Lottie Moon to the Convention.

As for many years my work has been somewhat unequally divided between the Tung Chow and Hwang Hien regions, but with the difference that, whereas formerly the greater part of the year was spent at Pingtu and only a brief time at Tung Chow, during the year just closed the reverse has been true. With the exception of about two months and a half, my time has been given to work in Tung Chow and the neighboring villages. In the city, where I had not visited for several years, I was delighted to find a marked change in the people. In many homes where Mrs. Crawford had labored so faithfully for years, I have been received most cordially, and in some, the message I bore was heard with earnest attention. My chief work, however, has been in the villages in the Tung Chow region. Within easy reach of my home there are probably as many as 130 villages, in most of which the missionary meets a kindly welcome. I set out with the purpose to visit all of these, but time has been lacking. It was necessary to give especial attention to village work on the Lung san tien region, distance from Tung Chow about fifteen miles. To some of those villages I went twice during the year, spending usually several days at each village, making the village at which I was temporarily staying the centre from which to reach the surrounding country. During the year, I have visited in the Tung Chow and Tingtu regions, over 140 villages. In the Tung Chow region the friendly spirit of the people has filled me with hope that their hearts will yet open to receive the message of grace. Since the war with Japan there has been a very marked increase of friendliness. As I went week after week to stay in villages adjacent to each other, I found that my visits were eagerly looked for as a proof of security to the people. It was a new role and one altogether very agreeable, to be looked upon as the protector of the people, and it was pleasant to find that my going among them was regarded as a welcome proof that there was no danger.

(A Mandarin actually put out a proclamation in Tung Chow in which he told the people that the missionaries were still there and that therefore they need not be afraid!)

In Pingtu the work has been a delight, even more than of old, in the fact that all responsibility about it had been transferred to the broad shoulders of missionary brethren living in Pingtu city. I could work with a sense of absolute freedom from anxiety lest something should be done or left undone which would mar the work. The prospect in that region is most hopeful. Inquiries multiply in all directions. I have been filled with wonder and joy in hearing of the dying testimony of saints who have gone home to heaven, "rejoicing in hope of the glory of God." The Christians are earnest, active and aggresive. The close of the year found me at Jiang chia keo, a village about ten miles from Pingtu City, where the labors of our Bro. Sears have been remarkably blessed. The work there reminded me much of that at Saling in the early days. There were whole families desiring instruction, and it was a joy to go from house to house to teach the women and children. Inquiries came constantly from neighboring villages. On one Sunday as many as seventy were present at the morning service which was conducted by a young brother recently baptized. The brethren here are full of zeal and enthusiasm.

I take the liberty of seconding Bro. Sears' earnest plea for two single women for Pingtu. The interest of the work there imperatively demands that they shall be sent out as soon as possible. It makes one's heart ache to see so many open doors with none to enter. All over the vast field which our mission has undertaken are the elect of God waiting to be sought and brought into the fold. We cannot possibly overtake the work with our present force. We ought to have prompt and large reinforcement to meet the present needs of the work.

Rubber Bands.

Red tape has long been a synonym for rigid routine and unbending rules, for fussy officialism and a conservative obstructiveness that has often proved fatal to the most promising movements for the improvement and benefit of man. In view of this fact, it is not without deep significance that in place of this murderous red tape, which used to be seen universally around bundles of papers and documents, there has now come about very generally the use of elastic bands. The yielding India rubber, supple and flexible to the immediate wants of the hour, has taken the place of the rough, resisting cord.—Zion's Herald.

A Wonderful Cure for Cancer.

There is no further need to cut cancers out with knives or burn them out with plasters. Dr. Mason, Richmond, Va., has a cure for this dreadful disease that surpasses all other methods in rapid healing and permanent cure. It will not be worth while, however, to write to the Doctor unless you are tired of quack medicine and so-called cancer doctors who use knives or plasters. Dr. Mason does not compete with such. His remedy is painless and soothing, and the only one suitable for the aged or weak. The relief is immediate and the cure rapid. It seeks out the disease growths and destroys their vitality, causing the cancer to pass away, leaving only an ordinary healthy sore, which rapidly heals.

Dr. Mason has two methods of treatment—"Home Treatment" and "Personal Treatment." "Home Treatment" is for cases where the patients can be cared for at home without any other cost than the medicines, fully as well as to go to Richmond for "Personal Treatment," by the Doctor. The cost for "Home Treatment" is less than half the cost of "Personal Treatment," and for those who can be cured in a few weeks. When writing, describe the case fully, and direct letter to Dr. Scott Mason, 700 E. Clay Street Richmond, Va.

Some of the greatest men in the world have aspired to the high office of a country pastor. Alexander Carson, Andrew Fuller, Wm. Carey and John A. Broadus were all country preachers. John A. Broadus was pastor of the Cedar Grove Baptist church, twenty five miles from Greenville, S. C., seven years, beginning in 1860 and ending in 1867. It is a geat thing to be a successful country pastor. Let no man despise thy gifts.—Texas Baptist and Herald.

NEWS SUMMARY.

North Carolina.

At the State University last week, the one hundredth anniversary of the institution was fittingly and enthusiastically observed by a large gathering of friends and alumni. Col. A. M. Waddell, Mr. H. A. London, Dr. S. B. Weeks and Mr. A. H. Eller made the addresses, and both were magnificent efforts, the last named being one of our State's most promising young orators. The sum of $18,300 was pledged for an alumni hall for the institution. There were thirty-nine graduates. Honorary degrees were conferred as follows: LL. D., R. H. Battle, W. T. Faircloth, D. M. Furches, Thos. M. Holt, Walter A. Montgomery, Mrs. Cornelia P. Spencer, A. M. Waddell; D. D., O. H. Davis, A. L. Phillips, Robert Strange, A. D. Betts.——Efforts are being made to enforce the strict anti pedler laws passed by the legislature. The difficulty seems to be in applying it to those who send sample ranges, etc., through the country. The tax on this is $100 a year for each wagon.——The Renfro Inn at Mt. Airy was destroyed by fire Friday night. Loss about $25 000.——The Charlotte Y. M. C. A. has elected W. H. Tipton, Selma, Ala., assistant Secretary and physical director.——Minister M. W. Ransom is back in North Carolina again for his health. He startled the natives in Mexico by invoking God's guidance over that country.——The Manufacturer's Record reports three new cotton mills for North Carolina, a $500,000 company organizing to build at Charlotte, an 8000 spindle mill at Graham, and a new mill at Mt. Holly.——Hedrick Bros. flouring mills at Lexington were destroyed by fire 4th inst.; loss $4,000.——In the case of W. E Daniel, Esq., administrator of the estate of C. D. Key, vs. the Petersburg Railway Company, the jury awarded $13 000 damages to the plaintiff.——The Bristol, Elizabethton and North Carolina has been sold to a new company and will be extended to Asheville, N. C.——A census taken by the excellent Gazette, of the inhabitants of Gastonia shows that this town has doubled in size three times since 1880; present populat on 2,313, less than half of whom are church members. We congratulate the energetic little city on her growth and wish her church membership may catch up.——It has been decided that the State Fair will be held at Raleigh as usual.——A promising gold mine is being investigated in the county of Caldwell.

In General.

The English ministry is said to be about to resign. The troubles in Turkey continue to give England anxiety.——The recent railway boycott has been lifted and the cut rates ceased June 11th.——The Chinese government has just borrowed $75,000,000 at four per cent. from Paris bankers——The Spanish government is still sending troops to Cuba, as the rebellion does not seem to abate.——Insurrectionists in Ecuador have captured the city of Guayaquil; Gen. Flores has resigned, and Ignacio Robles has been proclaimed civil and military chief.——The President has appointed Attorney-General Olney Secretary of State, and Judge Judson Harmon of Ohio, Attorney-General.——The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold a great meeting in London June 16-21. The famous "Polyglot" anti-saloon petition will be presented to the government.——The Illinois Democratic Convention adopted a 16 to 1 free silver resolution. Interest in the question is running high everywhere. The Chilian government has been forced to return to a gold basis.

The N. C. Baptist Sunday-school Chautauqua.

Red Springs, Robeson county, is the place, and August 13th—18th, 1895, is the time. The program is being prepared and will be issued at an early day.

It is designed to make this the greatest gathering of Sunday-school workers that ever assembled in North Carolina.

Special reduced rates have been requested from the railroads and will be announced with the program.

The hotel and boarding house accommodations are of the very best. Board will be furnished at seventy-five cents per day by the boarding houses, and at one dollar per day by the two splendid and well-equipped hotels.

The mineral water at Red Springs is not surpassed by any place in the State. The springs are carefully kept and free to all.

The Chautauqua has been granted the use of the Tabernacle of the Presbyterian Institute, which will accommodate from 2,000 to 3,000 people.

Prof. J. H. Rusbush of Maryland, who so successfully conducted our music last year at Mt. Vernon Springs, has promised to be with us at Red Springs this year. He will be aided with an orchestra, and the singing will be one of the special features of our Chautauqua.

Every Baptist Sunday school in the State should be represented.

A Woman's Nerves.

(From the Gate City, Keokuk, Iowa.)

Mrs. Helen Meyers whose home is in Chicago, at 3515 Vernon Ave., has been recently visiting her uncle in Dallas county near Keokuk, Ia. She had been sent away from Chicago by her physician on account of a nervous malady. He told her she would never recover if she did not get away from the noise of the city and be prescribed for during her absence, but when she arrived at Keokuk she heard so much about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, (for every one knows about these famous pills there,) that she stopped doctoring and began their use.

In an interview with the Gate City representative she told him the old story so familiar to thousand of mothers, how her nerves gradually gave way under the pressure of household duties, how the least excitement would prostrate her for a week and how they were obliged to give up their residence near the Lake Shore drive for a more quiet location. Her nerves seemed always on the point of explosion. Then too, her complexion underwent a change and she became so yellow and sallow, she was ashamed to venture from the house. She said in part:

"I began to take the pills according to directions and I began to feel better from the start. My uncle told me two weeks after I commenced taking Pink Pills that he guessed he would not be afraid to discharge his old army musket now without warning me beforehand, for he didn't think it would affect me at all. I took several boxes of the Pink Pills and then I was ready to go back to Chicago. My nervousness was gone and my complexion was as fresh as any sixteen-year old girl in Iowa and Pink Pills is what put the color in my cheeks. No wonder I am in such high spirits and feel like a prize fighter. And no wonder I like to come to Keokuk for if it had not been for Pink Pills bought from a Keokuk firm I would not have been alive now," laughingly concluded the lady.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes, for $2 50.

Literary.

The New York Commercial Advertiser, in its issue of May 18, says: "The Century has undoubtedly made a hit with its new serial, 'The Princess Sonia,' which is being read on every hand, and it will serve to attract a strong interest to its author, Julia Magruder, whose work in fiction has not altogether received the attention which it merits. Miss Magruder, although thousands will know of her for the first time through 'The Princess Sonia,' is not a novice in literary work. Some eight years ago, if I mistake not, she issued 'Across the Chasm,' through the Scribners, a novel of the North and South, which attracted considerable attention and was very successful. Then she wrote and published a story called 'The Child Amy,' which added to her fame. Two years ago came a very strong story, 'A Beautiful Alien,' published as a serial in one of the popular magazines, and it made a greater success than anything which Miss Magruder had previously done. Now comes 'The Princess Sonia,' and in the autumn there will issue from the same author's pen a longer novel called 'The Violet,' which C. D. Gibson is now illustrating, and is considered by Miss Magruder's friends and editors to be the best thing she has done. Miss Magruder is a Southern girl who makes her home in North Carolina. She comes of an old Virginia family, and received her education in the South and in Washington, her father having practiced law at the capital for many years. Of recent years she has traveled abroad quite extensively, but has now settled down to literary work in her Southern home. Miss Magruder often spends a social fortnight in New York."

With the June number of that magazine, The Homiletic Review closes its twenty-ninth volume. It is a number characterized by extraordinary strength. Dr. D. S. Gregory, ex President of Lake Forest University and late Managing Editor of the Standard Dictionary, begins a series of articles on The Preacher and the Preaching for the Present Crisis, treating in this number the subject of The Preacher's Present Commission, and especially emphasizing the need of the development of the spirit of Christian giving. A striking paper is that of Rev. J. Westby Earnshaw, on Henry Ward Beecher: His Genius, Work, and Worth. It is in full sympathy with the remarkable man of whom it treats, and yet has the candor of honest criticism. Prof. T. W. Hunt, of Princeton, contributes an article on The Evangelization of Early England. William Hayes Ward, D. D, writes on The Primitive Gods of Palestine. There are among others three sermons worthy of special note in the Sermonic Section, one by Dr. John Fox, of Brooklyn, on "The Powers That Be"; one by Rev. C. H. McAnney on "Religious Rebuke a Lost Art," and one by Pres. J. E Rankin, D D., LL. D., of Howard University, on "The Influence of Individuality on Christian Character." The Social Problem is treated by Dr. J. H. W. Stuckenberg with great ability and helpfulness to those who study it. His contributions are supplemented with a suggestive paper on The Submerged Tenth by Dr. B. F. Kidder. Published monthly by the Funk & Wagnalls Co., 30 Lafayette Place, New York City. $3.50 a year.

The June Harper's contains an article by Julian Ralph on "House-Boating in China," the first of several articles giving interesting and instructive view of Oriental life. "By choosing the best part of the empire," says Mr. Ralph, "by carrying a large stock of that good-nature which works the greatest magic with the Chinese, and by being properly conducted, I enjoyed the most delightful of all my journeys—one so completely delightful that I do not hesitate to recommend it to the great army of globe-trotters, even to the most fastidious ladies and the tenderest children among them."

William Martin Johnson, who illustrated the "Garfield" edition of "Ben Hur" for the Harpers and also their editions of "The Cloister and the Hearth" and "Hypatia," becomes the art editor of The Ladies' Home Journal on June 1st, leaving New York to reside permanently in Philadelphia. Mr. Barton Cheyney, a clever newspaper man who has been attached to the press of Delaware and Pennsylvania, is also added to the Journal's editorial staff as one of Mr. Bok's principal associates.

Prof. Seymour Eaton, Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, has arranged a very attractive Sunday school review exercise for June 30. It is printed in colors and has some bright illustrations. The price is $2 00 per 100. Prof. Eaton will mail a free sample copy to any superintendent who sends him his name and address and a two cent stamp.

The "Regions Beyond" Roll.

The following pastors and laymen agree to hold a meeting within the next few months in some destitute place where our doctrines are not preached,—at least, where our denomination is not regularly represented:

Rev. N. S. Jones; Rev. C. W. Blackwell, Hyde county; Rev. B. H. Matthews; Rev. J. N. Stallings; Rev. R. L. Byrd, Abbottsburg, N. C.; Rev. B. W. Spilman, Kinston, N. C.; Rev. J. Q. Adams; Rev. J. E. Greene; Rev. C. J. F. Anderson; Rev. D. P. Bridges; Rev. I. W. Thomas; Rev. J. M. Hilliard; Rev. N. B. Orrell; Rev. J. C. Sorrells; Rev. C. B. Justice; Rev. J. L. Smith; Rev. S. B. Barnes; Rev. E. C. Bobbitt; Rev. A. J. Bordeaux; Rev. W. B. Harrell; Rev. Thos. G. Wood; Rev. Samuel Saunders; Rev. G. M. Webb, Rev. S. C. Page, Rev. R. W. Weaver, Rev. C. W. Matthews; Layman T. H. Street; Rev. Claude E. Gower; Rev. W. R. Beach, Rev. J. W. Carter, D. D; Rev. W. F. Fry; G. H. Church.

It has been wisely suggested that a pastor, and a layman go together in this great and sacred work, but where this is impossible, let two pastors go together, in order to relieve one another, do more personal work and lead singing.

Destitute places desiring a meeting may make it known by writing to the RECORDER.

A Great Stayer.

As competition increases it becomes harder and harder for the business men to succeed, and in recognition of this fact, the public is very often informed that this or that thing has "come to stay." A strong purpose is good, but doing the thing is even better. One of the greatest stayers we know of is Pain-Killer, the advertisements of which we are printing elsewhere. This famous old family remedy has stayed in the homes of the country 55 years, and is to day more popular than ever. This one fact proves its value, and makes argument unnecessary. It only remains for the proprietors (as they are now doing) to remind each coming generation that for over half a century Pain-Killer has been recognized as the handiest, surest and cheapest cure for the common ills of humanity, and ,that a bottle on their shelf will sooner or later save them trouble and suffering and money.

The Teacher's Assembly.

The 12th annual session of The Teachers' Assembly will be held at Morehead City June 18 to 30th, 1895. It will be the most valuable meeting of all to the teachers and the most enjoyable to all friends of education. Among the noted educators and lecturers on the program are Dr. W. A. Mowry, President of Martha's Vineyard Summer School; Dr. A. E. Winship, editor of New England Journal of Education; Mr. Polk Miller, the South's favorite dialect speaker; Miss Virginia Culbertson, the popular reciter and lecturer. The highest order of North Carolina talent has been placed on the program. The educational work and the musical and literary entertainment will be a rare treat to the thousands who will be present this session. Railroad rates only about one and a half cent a mile and board at Atlantic Hotel is $1.00 a day. Tickets on sale June 15th to 30th, good to return until July 30th.

Young Mothers

should early learn the necessity of keeping on hand a supply of Gail Borden Eagle Brand Condensed Milk for nursing babies as well as for general cooking. It has stood the test for thirty years, and its value is recognized.

Forestville S. S. Picnic.

Despite last winter's disagreeable weather, our Sunday school clung together. Since spring has opened upon us, our attendance has grown and the work has gained new interest.

Saturday, June 1st, was our picnic day. The crowd was large. Appropriate remarks were made by Rev. J. C. Owen, Prof. J. B. Carlyle, Hon. E. C. Beddingfield, and Rev. Mr. Holmes. The day was pleasantly spent, and all are wishing for its repetition.

KNIGHT—GORDAN—On May 29th, 1895, at State Line church, Mecklenburg county, Virginia, by Rev. Dr. R. H. Marsh, Mr. Jas. T. Knight of Clayton, N. C., and Miss Lovella Gordan, daughter of W. S. Gordan, Esq., of Mecklenburg county, Va.

DIED.

SORRELL—Died in Cedar Fork township, Durham county, N. C., May 24th, 1895, Mary E. Sorrell, daughter of M. L. and R. R. Sorrell, aged eleven years and eight days. May God bless the dear parents.

W. G. CLEMENTS.

TAYLOR—Died at the residence of Rev. Alvin Betts, Raleigh, on Tuesday, May 21st, Willie C. Taylor, aged twenty-one years.

Mr. Taylor was educated at the Oxford Orphan Asylum. His mother lives in Dare county. He came to this city about one year ago, and being employed by Messrs. Betts Bros. he proved a most faithful and efficient man. Living in the family of Bro. Alvin Betts, he greatly endeared himself to them from the beginning. His death was sudden and most unexpected, and has cast a gloom over the family in which he lived and over his many friends.
